LAST OF BUFFALOES.

LESS THAN ONE HUNDRED OF THE ANIMALS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The Fears of the Scientists Who Love the Study of Natural History—Habits of the Buffalo—A Four Million Herd of Moving Flesh.

The scientists of Washington are much alarmed at the possible extinction of the buffalo. Mr. Lumley, the head of the Smithsonian Institution, says Frank C. Carpenter in Philadelphia Press, does not think that there are as many as 100 buffaloes left in the United States. There are a few in the National Park, a small herd at Washington and in the Zoological Gardens at Philadelphia. Austin Corbin, the New York millionaire, has several, and it may be that there are some small scattering herds in different parts of the west. Of these, however, the Smithsonian Institution has no record, and such as exist are probably half-breeds. The only pure buffaloes outside the above are those of the Yellowstone Park, which two years ago numbered about 200 head, and which are now reduced to fifty.

It is Mr. Langley's idea that they should be brought to Washington and put in the National Zoological Park there. The main purpose of purchasing this park was for the protection of such things as the buffalo and other American animals liable to become extinct.

One of the largest buffaloes ever known was shot by Mr. Hornaday. It is now preserved in the National Museum. It is now five feet eight inches at the shoulders, and is ten feet two inches long from nose to tail. Many buffaloes weigh over 1600 pounds. The natural life of the animal is about twenty-five years. The cows usually breed once a year and begin breeding at the age of two years. The buffalo calf at birth is covered with red hair. This hair changes after a time to brown and then black. The hair on the head of a buffalo is very long. Many a woman, in fact, would be glad to have as long hair as one of the stuffed buffaloes in the National Museum, which measures, I am told, twenty-two inches.

The buffalo cows weigh less than the bulls, a good, fat one weighing from 1000 to 1200 pounds. They have small udders, but their milk is very rich.

The value of buffaloes has been increasing more rapidly than anything in this country. Town lots in Chicago are nothing to them. About ten years ago they were a drug on the market. Thousands of them were killed for their tongues, but a good buffalo is now worth at least $500 when dead. Its skin is worth from $100 and upward, according to quality, and the head is worth from $300 to $500 for mounting and preservation as a relic of this great animal of the past. Such is the value of a dead buffalo. Like buffaloes for breeding are worth much more, and I am told that the Government buffaloes are worth from $1000 to $2000 apiece.

Few people are now aware of the former wonderful extent of the buffalo. No animal has ever existed in such large numbers nor covered so much territory. In 1871, now only twenty-five years ago, Colonel R. I. Dodge rode for fifty miles through a herd of buffaloes, which he estimated as being twenty-five miles wide. This was along the Arkansas River.

At one point he was able to get upon a hill and he says he could see this vast herd of buffaloes stretching out from six to ten miles in every direction. The herd was moving, and it took it five days to pass a given point. Professor Hornaday says that at the lowest estimate there were 4,000,000 buffaloes in this one herd, and this, as I have said, was only twenty-five years ago. In 1868 a traveler along the Kansas Pacific Railroad states that the train at one time passed through 120 miles of solid buffalo. The plains were blackened by them, and more than once the cars were stopped by them. The best authority of the National Museum as to the early buffalo is George Catlin, who spent the greater part of his life in the west studying the Indian, and who made many pictures of the buffalo as they existed before the great destruction began. He tells of herds of millions, and says that their roaring sounded like thunder; and tells how the Indians killed them by the hundreds of thousands for their skins, for which they received only a pint of whisky apiece.

You would not think that such immense herds could be wiped out. The buffalo, however, are very dull beasts in many ways. They are a mixture of stupidity and intelligence which it is hard to understand. These mighty herds were made up of companions, or clumps, of buffaloes of from twenty to one hundred each, each clump being led and taken care of by one strong bull. In going for water one of the old cows of the clump would start ahead and rose along the track of a dry stream for miles until it found a waterway, the others of that company following in single file. The herd would then drink and would lie down to rest before eating. This would seem to mean a high degree of intelligence. But such eveidence is not shown in their attempting to escape from man. A hunter might lie with a repeating rifle near such a herd and pick off one after the other without apparently frightening or scaring the rest. If they ran it was usually against the wind, and they were cowards except when brought to bay.

A Straight Tip.

Mr. Newriche—What does this mean on Mrs. Bonton's card: "At home Tuesday?"

Mrs. Newriche (severely)—Josiah, I'm surprised at your ignorance. She wants to let us know what day she'll get back from the country.

That Depended.

He—Why not marry me? I am not rich, but what is enough for one is enough for two.

She—Have you enough for one?

He—Yes.

She—Which one?

Weak Young Men or Women

Are seen everywhere. Heredity or overstudy renders them unfitted to cope with the responsibilities of life, susceptible to consumption or decline. Medicine has failed and must fail, for they need food. Take cod liver oil? No! Their poor stomachs rebel. Take emulsions? No! They are equally distasteful. Nothing will effect a cure but Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites. The oil, rendered palatable and easy of digestion, is quickly assimilated, and the maltine, equal in nutrition to the oil, and even surpassing it in energetic action upon the digestive processes, unite in producing increased weight, improved colour, and that elasticity and buoyancy which herald returning health. Maltine with cod liver oil has a remedial value ten times greater than emulsions. Try it.

GENIUS TRIUMPHS.

Thomas A. Edison Perfects His Great Ore Separating Process.

Thomas A. Edison has just brought to a practical conclusion his great ore separating process, at the mine at Edison, near Ogden, N.J., on which he has been at work for many years. After overcoming obstacles that would have conquered any less persistent experimenter, the process has at last been finished and the great plant is in running order.

The scheme is an interesting one in that there is no human intervention during the entire process from start to finish. When the cars of ore and rock are dumped in large masses into the massive crushers that form the first step in the process, the rest of the process is entirely automatic, the crushed rock and ore being carried automatically from one set of crushers to another by means of endless belts and bucket elevators, till the material is reduced to the requisite fineness, and then another series of belts and elevators carry it to the separating house, where the material falls in a fine stream across a field of large electro-magnets, which divert the iron from the direct line of fall and drop it in one receptacle, while the refuse and rock fall into another.

This process is repeated a number of times, till at last the resultant product is pure magnetic oxide of iron.

Automatic carriers take the iron ore thence to the bricking plant, where, by ingenious mechanism, over which the great inventor has spent thousands of dollars in experimenting, the ore is mixed with building material and pressed into small bricks for convenience in handling. These are then baked and are ready for the market. The sole remaining work of construction yet to be done is the building and rotary furnaces, which shall bake the bricks as they are delievered and turn them out automatically. There are no mechanical or scientific difficulties connected with this part of the process, and these furnaces are to be built as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring.

One Honest Man.

Dear Editor:—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially I will mail in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell, and want no money, but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness. Perfect secrecy assured. Address with stamp:—L. A. Edwards, Jarvis Ont.

SECOND CROP OF BARGAINS.

We start the Bargain Ball rolling for February in dead earnest. As there is a good deal of winter yet before us, it is unnecessary to point out the wisdom of buying now.

Our Stock-Taking is over—now for a month of lucky chances and snaps in mid-winter goods. An aftermath of Bargains for shrewd buyers—lines which we laid out during stock taking such as Serges, Cheviots, Heavy Tweeds and other Remnants, to be sold even at HALF REGULAR PRICES.

We don't want to carry winter lines past their regular selling season, so you may figure on getting pretty nearly your own way in prices.

You need the goods—we need the room they occupy—so there is mutual benefit all round in the selling of them.

Our New Spring Stock is wheeling into line, and we are glad to tell our lady friends that part of our programme for Spring is a NEW MILLINERY DEPARTMENT, of which we will tell you more in good time.

We don't "rest-up" during the winter months and take things easy until Spring. Business is full of worn-out, tired-out men who live almost wholly in the past and struggle for the success that never comes. And because of that they find fault with the times. While others are resting we're simply HUSTLING.

H. A. MASSEY IS DEAD

The Millionaire Manufacturer Passes Quietly Away.

HIS SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS CAREER

A Great Distributor of Charities During the Many Years of His Affluence—His Fortune Figures Between Two and Three Millions of Dollar

Toronto, Feb. 21.

Mr. Hart A. Massey died at his Jarvis-street residence at 8.40 o'clock last night.

Mr. Massey's death has been expected for some days past. Primarily it was due to heart failure. His heart first showed great weakness two months ago, and general dissolution has followed rapidly.

The deceased became unconscious at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and sank gradually from that hour until the moment of his death. He was calm and peaceful throughout the day, and the attending physicians announce that his death was absolutely painless. He had been constantly cared for by the members of his family, and at the last moment was surrounded by nearly all his immediate relatives, to whom the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances will go out in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Massey was in his 73rd year at the time of his death. The funeral will take place from the Metropolitan Church on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock; interment at Mt. Pleasant Cemetery. The services at the residence of the deceased, 515 Jarvis-street, will be private.

AN INTERESTING HISTORY.

The Life's Struggles and Achievements of the Deceased Man.

The career of the late Hart Almerni Massey and his great eminence as a manufacturer were the result of inherited traits of industry, economy and enterprise. He was a country-reared lad, and has himself told in several speeches delivered in recent years of his early hardships and the circumstances which turned him into a great manufacturer of agricultural machinery. He was born north of Cobourg, Ont., in Haldimand Township, Northumberland County, on April 29, 1823. His grandfather, a native of Vermont, had settled in this country some 40 years earlier, and had served in the war of 1812, teaming for the troops between Kingston and Toronto. While thus serving his country the wild bush farm at home was managed by a 12-year-old lad, Daniel Massey, who afterwards became the father of Hart A. Massey.

This Daniel Massey showed the same gifts of activity and enterprise which afterwards distinguished his son. He imported one of the finest threshing machines into the country, and was particularly active in the clearing of wild lands, more than 1200 acres of bush in the county of Northumberland having been cleared under his personal supervision.

Hart A. Massey, as a boy, tasted all the hardships of farm life. He lived part of his boyhood with relatives in Jefferson County, New York State, where he received his early education. Afterwards coming home to Canada, he spent the years of 1842-4 as a student at Victoria College, Cobourg. Upon leaving college he took a lively interest in the management of his father's farms, and as a boy he had always shown an aptitude for mechanics. This gift he turned to account in devising improvements and labor-saving contrivances in the farm machinery. The life of the Canadian farmer was then far more laborious than it is now, and it was the consciousness that much time and labor was wasted in our farming methods which led Mr. Massey to the belief that there was a great future for agricultural implements in this country. In 1847, therefore, he persuaded his father to start a foundry and machine shop at Newcastle, Ont. In 1852 he became his father's partner and business manager, and in this year he manufactured the first reaper and the first mower ever turned out in this country. He became sole proprietor of the business in 1855, his father first retiring through ill health, only to die in November of that year.

In connection with the implement business at Newcastle, Mr. Massey had also a tinware manufactory, which was in after years dropped. The business grew continuously, but in 1864 the property, valued at $30,000, was entirely destroyed by fire, but was quickly re-established. In 1867 commenced the business of exportation, with which Mr. Massey has since girdled the earth. In that year he commenced sending machines into the United States, and filled a large order for the French Government.

In 1870, his health having given out, he removed to Cleveland, Ohio, where he resided for twelve years, the interests of the business being largely in the hands of his eldest son, the late Charles A. Massey. Mr. Massey still took an active interest in the business, however, and paid frequent visits to Canada. When, in 1880, it was decided to establish the works of the Massey Manufacturing Company at Toronto, he came over and personally superintended the construction of all the buildings here. Soon after the establishment here commenced that campaign of absorption which has made his firm the greatest on the continent. In 1882 his health was so far recovered that he was able to live in Canada once more, and he then took up his residence in Toronto. His palatial mansion on Jarvis street is one of the chief ornaments to the residential section of the city.

While in Cleveland Mr. Massey had carried on no particular business, but that of an investor. At that time his Canadian interests were in the hands of the late Charles Albert Massey, his eldest son, to whom equal credit is said to be due for the ultimate direction of the Massey interests. The Massey-Harris Company, at the present time, is built on the foundations of the Massey Manufacturing Company, the Toronto Reaper and Mower Company, the Massey Company of Winnipeg, the A. Harris Company of Brantford, Patterson Bros., the Wisner Company and other firms.

The Massey family at present have a controlling interest in the Massey-Harris Company of Toronto; the Sawyer-Massey Company of Hamilton; the Bain Wagon Company of Woodstock; the Verity Plow Company of Brantford, and the Toronto Type Foundry Company.

Charles Albert Massey died in 1884, and in the works at Toronto a beautiful memorial chronicles his services to the family fortunes. The business is now managed by his two younger sons, Chester Massey and Walter E.H. Massey. His youngest son, Fred Victor Massey, died of consumption while still a student at Toronto University. Mr. Massey had only one daughter, Miss Lillian Frances Massey, who has remained unmarried and been the support of her father's declining years. Mrs. Massey, who was Miss Eliza Phelps of Johnstown, N.Y., when she married in 1847, survives her husband also.

Mr. Massey's wealth at the time of his death amounted to between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. In addition he has within recent years expended fully half a million on public, benevolent and educational institutions. His gift to the city—the great Massey Music Hall—designed as a memorial to the late Charles Albert Massey, cost $225,000. The Fred Victor Mission Hall, a memorial for his youngest son, cost $75,000. To Victoria College, when it removed to Toronto, he presented $40,000. At the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, is the Lillian Frances Hall, his daughter's gift to the institution, costing $15,000. Albert College, Belleville, was enriched by him to the extent of $10,000 at least. The Wesleyan College at Winnipeg and the Methodist institutions throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion have profited greatly by his largesse while living. The World can state authoritatively, too, that many benevolent and educational institutions will have cause to remember the name of Massey when his will is read. Though lavish in his gifts to the public, Mr. Massey remained to the last a shrewd business man, and did everything on business principles.

AWFUL SCENE AT A HANGING.

When the Trap Was Sprung to Kill Fitzgerald the Rope Broke—An Hour to End His Life.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 20.—James FitzGerald was hanged in the four courts' jail yards this morning. Two reprieves had lengthened the misery of the condemned man. The trap was sprung at 10.17 a.m., Fitzgerald's body shot downward. Instead of stopping when the rope's end was reached, there was a sharp snap and Fitzgerald's body lay writhing on the ground. The rope had broken. Officers at once rushed to the spot and found Fitzgerald was still alive and conscious.

"My God, my God, my throat," he groaned. Before the horror-stricken watchers could touch him, he arose. Standing up with the black cap over his face and the broken instrument of death dangling from his neck, he walked into the morgue, where he was given stimulants. He was more anxious than his executioners for death, and begged that the end come quickly.

When a second rope was called for, none was to be had and Fitzgerald lay moaning on a slab in the morgue while a messenger was sent a distance of nine squares for a new rope. Father McErlane bent over the body of Fitzgerald and recited prayers. Once Fitzgerald raised his hand and pulled the head of the priest to his face and whispered earnestly for half a minute. What that communication was will never be known, but the face of the priest, then ashy pale, turned scarlet and tears fell from his eyes.

At 10.45 the messenger arrived with a new rope, which was quickly adjusted, and Fitzgerald was carried to the scaffold. It was necessary for two deputy sheriffs to hold him up while the noose was placed. Fitzgerald's only words were pleas for haste. At 11.02 the trap was again sprung and at 11.15 the attending physicians pronounced life extinct.

DEBATING THE BUDGET

Mr. Matheson's Criticism of Ontario's Government.

IT IS THE OLD OPPOSITION SONG.

Mr. Davis Makes an Able Reply, in Which He Directs His Tory Friends to Look to Their Extravagant Work at Ottawa—New Bills Presented.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—The galleries at the Local Legislature were well filled yesterday by ladies and gentlemen, who appeared anxious to hear Mr. Matheson, the financial critic of the Opposition, deliver his annual address upon the monetary condition of the province. His was a difficult task. He has had but a brief experience in Parliament, followed Mr. Clancy, an able man in his task of grumbling, and added to this the bill of fare laid down by Hon. Mr. Harcourt left little to object to. Considering all these difficulties, it is safe to say that his friends were disappointed. He began by singing the old song that there was no surplus, which had the effect of quickly tiring his hearers. He stated that the expenditure of the past year had exceeded the revenue by some $300,000. He took the Government to task for having removed Mr. Massey from the position of Warden of the Central Prison, and attributed motives which were too silly to demand reply. He next touched upon the succession duties, and stated that the Government was deriving too large a revenue from this source. The Gilmour estate alone had last year contributed $150,000 to this fund. He said if the Government continued to tax at the present rate, capital would be drawn out of the province. He held that under the English law of paying 10 per cent., this estate would only have had to pay 7 per cent.

Mr. Harcourt: I draw my honorable friend's attention to section 18 of the English act, to prove that he is quite wrong in his contention.

Mr. Mat[illegible] prepared to have his set speech interrupted in this way, and after floundering about for a few moments, he proceeded to deal with Separate schools, abandoning the succession duties altogether. He complained that the Government in certain instances gave aid to Separate schools through the medium of the poor school grants. This was quite wrong. The School of Pedagogy was utterly useless, but he wisely refrained from venturing any reasons to back up this statement. He advised the Government to abandon all control of the Toronto University, but again in this case he advanced no argument in justification of his plea. He concluded a weak address of over two hours' duration by calling upon the Government to purchase all supplies by tender, to spend less money upon colonization roads, and to create no more new offices.

Mr. Davis followed and was warmly applauded. He compared the financial standing of Ontario with that of the other provinces and the Dominion Government at Ottawa. He proved that Ontario was upon a sounder financial basis than any of them, and referred to the opinions of bankers, merchants and business men from all over Canada to corroborate this statement. He also alluded to the articles upon this subject that had appeared in the columns of the independent press throughout the country. He then proceeded to take up the salient points of Mr. Matheson's speech, and entered upon a scathing exposure of the sophistries it contained. It had been stated that the provincial accounts were not made out in detail as at Ottawa. He wished to draw the attention of the country to the fact that witnesses in Ontario were examined before the Public Accounts Comittee upon oath, while the Dominion Government year after year refused to grant this kind of examination. (Hear, hear.) Complaint was made that too large salaries were paid the civil servants. He quoted figures to show that the Ontario officials were paid less than those of any other Government in America, notwithstanding the fact that they were of a most superior class. (Cheers.) Why did gentlemen opposite talk so much about the financial position of Ontario when they knew well that she had the only Government in America that had no debt. The motto of the Mowat Government was "Pay as we go." (Cheers.)

The magnificent Parliament buildings had been paid for. Not a dollar was owing upon them, and this money has all been paid out of revenue. No debt had been contracted. Since 1890 the expenditure had been on the decrease. Where was the Government anywhere that could show such a record? (Hear, hear.) It had been said that the Mowat Government spent more yearly than had John Sanfield Macdonald. This was quite true, but did gentlemen of the Opposition suppose that the Province of Ontario could be run in 1896 for as small a sum as in 1871. (Cheers.) From year to year the charge was made that timber lands were being sold to swell the provincial purse. It was at the same time stated that Macdonald's Government had not so used these lands. This was not true. John Sanfield had sold 159 square miles of these lands every year he was in office, while the Mowat Government, requiring larger sums to meet the legitimate wants of a growing population, had sold only upon an average of 197 miles. He advised gentlemen opposite to be more careful in their statements. (Hear, hear.) The Succession Duties Act had been attacked. It was stated that the effect would be to drive capital away from the province. The answer to this had been given by the people at the last elections. Attention had been called to the fact that the expenses of the departments had slightly increased but gentlemen opposite had not been fair enough to state that there were good grounds for this increase. They had failed to say that year after year the work of these departments had

ONTARIO FINANCES.

How Hon. Mr. Foster, Dominion Finance Minister, after his recent dismal experience in making his dismal budget speech, must envy Hon. R. Harcourt, who made his budget speech in the Ontario Legislature under the most cheering circumstances. Instead of Mr. Foster's deficit of four millions Mr. Harcourt was, on Wednesday, able to present the pleasing fact that our ordinary assets are in excess of our liabilities by $5,078,080, not including in our assets our public buildings and public works, that required a large expenditure of public money. Nor does the statement of assets include our great timber and mineral wealth, which will be a rich source of revenue for many, many years. At the same time, every demand of the public service has been adequately met, so that if there had not been not only economy, but prudent expenditure, we would not have found our finances in the exceedingly satisfactory condition they are to-day. At the same time, the progressive spirit of the Government has led it to the assumption of new responsibilities in the public interest, which of course involve corresponding expenditure. These include the experimental fruit station, the Algonquin and Rondeau parks, the west Algoma pioneer farm, the school of mining at Kingston, the departments of bacteriology, bee-keeping and poultry at the Agricultural College and the care of neglected and dependent children. These items taken singly do not perhaps amount to much, but they involve an additional annual expense amounting to about $50 000. If small they indicate an increase, and that, with such an increase, and with the largest expenditure made in any one year for the two largest interests of Ontario, education and agriculture. It is a pleasure to note that the expenditure of last year was $3,756,503 as against $4,158,459 in 1891 and the reduction has been steady since that time, and last year has been the lowest since 1889. The increased expenditure for recent years were caused by the construction of the Parliament Buildings, and now that we have in the language of the provincial treasurer, "overtaken our needs in this direction," the expenditure has returned to a normal condition and that it has been kept so low with increased responsibilities, argues vigilant control and efficient economy. And while the small expenditure of last year, which has however been sufficient for all ordinary needs, is gratifying, it is a pleasure to note that the government is asking for a still smaller sum for expenditure for next year—more than a quarter of a million—$275,595—less. No province or state on this continent can show such a satisfactory record for clean, efficient and honest government as Ontario, for without such a condition the satisfactory financial showing the Province is able to make would be impossible. If we had had for the past seventeen years half as good an administration at Ottawa, our country would, in population and development, be scores of years ahead of its present position. Good government pays.

THE STATUTE LABOUR SYSTEM.

Is it not a misnomer to call a system a system that, in practice, is really no system? On this point a Mr. Brooks of Brantford, uses the following language, which may fairly be called strong language:

"The statute labour has become one of the most elastic, pliable, flexible, flimsy, defective, disappointing, inefficient, unsatisfactory, old systems to be found on the statute books of our country to-day."

Whether or not all will agree with Mr. Brooks, there is no doubt that there is a general opinion, every day growing more pronounced, that the system of road making, or rather of dabbling with roads, needs improvement. The difficulty in the way of improvement is a practical one—a matter of expense. But considering the great advantage to be derived from improved roads, the question of expense should not stand in the way. Good farmers believe in permanent pastures. Why not in permanent roads? And a road that is recurrently destroyed by heavy rains or spring thaws is not a permanent road, though it is a permanent source of expense, without a satisfactory return, and a permanent source of annoyance and loss to those who have to use such a road. As to the matter of expense of permanent roads, the Municipal World says:

Whatever enthusiasts may say about the necessity to any country of improved roads, the principles governing the expenditure are precisely the same as those which govern any business enterprise, and the money cannot be wisely expended unless the future benefits will justify the action. There is no doubt that many sections of the country are already in a condition to be largely benefited by improved means of highway communication involving very considerable expenditures. This is not only true of populous suburban districts, some of which have spent large sums of money on their roads, but also of a great many rural centres of population and of other sections of the country in which only improved main lines of highways between centres of business, or between these centres and railways points would be justified. A rational system of education of popular sentiment and dissemination of reliable information regarding the various roads, the construction and comparative cost of each, is more needed than anything else at the present time.

The Good Roads Association has recommended the adoption of a county road system by which all leading roads will be maintained by the county and other roads by the local municipalities. This is the first definite step which they have taken beyond preaching the reform, and it is well for those interested to look carefully into this system and, if adopted, the details of carrying out the work can be easily arranged.

The expenses need not be so much of a bugbear. Generally speaking, in roads as in most other things, real reform need not be expected suddenly. A rational, commonsense system of spending money by degrees so as to be of real benefit, and of doing thoroughly what is done year after year will result in the course of a few years in giving us really permanent and improved highways. Ten dollars well spent and with a view to permanent results, is better than a hundred dollars wasted. It is gratifying to know that while some counties are only theorizing in the matter of good roads, the county of Peterborough has taken action with practical aims and the result of the present deliberations upon the subject will be awaited with interest.

THE KILLED NUMBERED 100.

Awful Result of the Great Dynamite Explosion in the Transvaal.

Johannesburg, Feb. 20.—The explosion of dynamite which occurred at Vledendorp, a suburb of this city, last evening, was more disastrous than was at first believed. Eight railway cars loaded with dynamite were being switched from one track to another when the explosion took place. At the spot where the dynamite exploded, a hole 30 feet deep was made in the ground, and every house within a radius of half a mile was razed to the ground.

The number of persons killed cannot yet be even estimated. Forty bodies have been found, and the search is just begun. Two hundred injured persons have been taken to the hospitals, where several of them died. Comparatively few white persons were killed.

As yet nothing is known as to what caused the explosion. Twenty tons of the dynamite has been exposed to the direct rays of the sun for three days.

Later—The latest estimated number of killed is over 100. Many persons are missing, and there is scarcely a doubt that they were blown to pieces.

The principal victims were Boers, very few foreigners living at Vledendorp.

TURNED THEIR BACKS ON ITALY.

The Peasants of Agame in Abyssinia Fighting Against Their Former Allies.

Rome, Feb. 20.—Advices have been received here from Adigrat, the headquarters of the Italian forces in Abyssinia, saying that King Menelek had instigated the peasants of Agame, a province of Tigre, in Abyssinia, to revolt against the Italians, and that the peasants consequently joined the forces of the native chiefs Sebat and Agos, who had previously deserted the Italians, taking part of their followers with them. The deserters made an attack upon an outpost to the south of Adigrat, but were defeated by the Italians, with heavy losses, the Italians losing 50 men killed and wounded. The defection of the native chiefs Sebat and Agos is important as showing that the natives have little confidence in the white troops.

Burned In a Prairie Fire.

Fort Worth, Texas, Feb. 20.—News has been received here of the death by prairie fire of three Mexicans near Laguana, Coronados, Hockley County. The men went into camp, and while asleep the grass was ignited by sparks from their camp fire, and before they could escape they were so badly burned that all died in a short time.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. Black Death was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than either of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing, constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, and distress after eating. The little help that is needed is furnished by Dr. Pearce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Once used they are always in favour. HE NEARLY DIED AS A MARTYR.

The Uncomfortable Experiences of Dr. Hoar While Answering a Call.

Windsor, Feb. 20.—Dr. Hoar of Walkerville had an exciting adventure while returning from a visit to a patient on Peche Island, Lake St. Clair, about a mile from the mainland. The ice was in a dangerous condition, but the call was pressing, and the doctor felt in duty bound to go. He engaged a man to mount a boat on runners and accompany him. Between sailing and dragging the boat, they reached the island safely, but on the return journey, while they were pushing the boat ahead of them, the ice gave way, and they went into the ice-cold water. Their heavy clothing dragged them down, and it was only after a hard struggle that they managed to crawl up on the ice. They had a hard time in reaching the shore, for they were almost completely exhausted, and their clothing was frozen stiff.

ONTARIO'S BUDGET.

The Provincial Treasurer's Annual Statement.

GOVERNMENT HAS A NICE SURPLUS

Mr. Harcourt Explains the Expenditure of $3,750,000—Hon. Mr. Hardy Proposes to Make a Great Revolution in Municipal Governments in This Province.

Toronto, Feb. 20.

The Legislature got down to hard work yesterday afternoon. The standing committees of the House were struck, and Mr. Harcourt delivered his Budget Speech.

Several questions and notices of motion, including Mr. Crawford's enquiry with reference to the Aqueduct Company, were, for one reason or another, laid over.

Mr. Marter moved for an order of the House for a return showing the names of all persons, firms, or companies indebted to the province since the date of the last return made to this House, an account of timber dues, ground rent or bonuses for timber limits; the amount of indebtedness in each case, the balance, if any, due by such persons, firms or companies at the date of last return, and the total amount of such indebtedness on the first day of January, 1896.

Mr. Marter said that in 1893 a return had been brought down on a similar motion. But, though he had tried at the proper place to obtain it, he had so far failed, and was, therefore, not prepared to go into the matter as fully as he would otherwise have done. That return did show, however, that there were accounts which had stood for a number of years without any change. He didn't know what might be the state of affairs since, but he thought it was in the interests of the people that these reports should be brought down from time to time for examination.

Mr. Hardy said that he knew of no reason why the returns should not be brought down at as early a date as possible. He had not been aware, until he had heard it from Mr. Marter, that the previous report was not available. He admitted that the previous reports showed some bad accounts, old accounts, and disputed accounts, and it was not to be wondered at that in a commercial transaction involving from 18 to 20 millions of dollars, and covering a period of 30 years, accounts of such a nature should be found.

Mr. Marter replied that he referred specially to certain accounts, which had remained unchanged for several years.

Among the notices of motion are a bill by Mr. Beatty (Leeds) to amend the Manhood Suffrage Act, also a bill to amend the Ontario Elections Act of 1892; a bill by Mr. Stratton respecting cities and towns, and a couple of bills by Hon. G. W. Ross with reference to educational matters. One of Mr. Ross' bills is to enable trustees of Separate schools to issue debentures for 30 years, instead of for 20 years, as at present, thus placing them on the same basis with respect to securities that Public schools have occupied for some years. Another of his bills provides for the establishment of an educational council for conducting departmental examinations, heretofore conducted by the Educational Department. The council is to be composed of 12 persons, four of whom are to be appointed by the Educational Department, four by the Senate of Toronto University and four by the Educational Convention of the Province.

Mr. Willoughby will on Thursday next ask for an order showing the names of all applicants for the position of Registrar in the County of Brant, and also the County of Wentworth; the dates of all applications, and the names and dates of the appointments.

In answer to a question by Mr. Matheson, Mr. Harcourt replied that the Government had not yet considered the question of amending the Succession Duties' Act.

Mr. Harcourt, in rising to deliver his Budget Speech, said that he did not expect to be able to present anything new or unusual, but he hoped to be able to satisfy the House and the country that the financial condition of the province was now, as in years passed, eminently sound and satisfactory. He would be able to show that no claims for new or increased expenditure had been made which the growing needs of the province did not demand. After some further preliminary remarks, he proceeded to take up the figures, showing the receipts and expenditures under the various heads, for the year 1895.

The Government received for Crown lands in 1895 the sum of $947,947. The estimated receipts were $825,000. The Government, therefore, received $123,-000 more than it expected; and yet last year was the first year in nine years when the receipts was less than a million. From 1883 to 1886 it was less than a million, but for 1886 until last year it quite exceeded a million. The condition of the lumber trade largely accounted for the fluctuation. The Government received by way of bonus in 1893 $986,000, in 1894 $89,000, and last year $76,000. The timber dues received in 1892 amounted to $797,000, in 1893 $707,000, in 1894 $844,000, and in 1895 $715,000. The receipts from ground rents were more steady and showed an increase from year to year. In 1892 they were $59,000, in 1893 $63,000, in 1894 $67,000, in 1895 $61,000. The interest receipt was somewhat less than in former years.

The interest from the Dominion Government on account of capital held in trust was less than the preceding year by nearly $48,000. This was partly accounted for by the fact that some of the interest had been withheld, pending the outcome of an arbitration now in progress. Then, too, the rate of interest last year was somewhat less than the preceding year.

From succession duties the Government received $298,825. The receipts from this source so far were as follows: 1892 $758, 1893 $45,000, 1894 $150,-000, 1895 $298,000. The estimate for last year was only $175,000. Altogether the Government receiver to the close of 1895 from succession duties $503,000. This receipt had been directed to the maintenance of the hospitals and asylums. Next to the Crown lands, the succession duties last year contributed the most important source of revenue.

Last year there were 4664 estates adjudicated upon, and of this number only 87 were dutiable under the act. In 20 counties not a single estate came within the provisions of the act. The counties of Carleton, Oxford and York furnished 40 per cent. of the total succession duties.

The receipts for licenses last year amounted to $272,819.12. This was a considerable falling off from the preceding years; but there was a corresponding falling off of municipal receipts. This was due to a falling off of the number of licenses issued. The number of licenses issued last year was 272 less than five years ago, a decrease of 10 per cent. In 100 of the 810 municipalities no liquor licenses was issued last year. In other words, in one-fourth of the province there was not a single license issued. The speaker pointed out that the question of brewers' licenses was still before the courts.

The receipts from the sale of annuities last year amounted to $171,520. The first sale, in 1884, was effected on a basis of 4 1-2 per cent., and the sales of each succeeding year on a more favorable basis. Last year the basis was less than 3 1-2 per cent. The act was not intended to authorize the creating of any new liability, and during the 12 years of its operation no new liability had been created. The act merely authorized the deferring of the year's railways obligations, and that was the only provision of which the Government had availed itself. The total payment for aid to railways in the province amounted up to date to $6,260,000.

The receipts from law stamps last year were $10,0000 less than the previous year; for the Education Department $4000 more. The receipts from public institutions exceeded the estimates, owing mainly to the good results attending last year's operation of the Central Prison. The estimate was $3,149,000; the receipts $3,364,000.

The expenditures for the year were $2,400 less than the amount authorized by the House. It was worse than idle to compare the estimates of last year with those of five years ago and from the difference to infer extravagance. We must educate our youth, foster our agriculture, administer justice and take care of the afflicted. The over expenditure under the head of legislation occurs in connection with stationery, printing and binding. Part of the stationery accounts for 1894 were carried over to 1895. The cost of printing and binding in 1895 was $38,000, more than double what it was five years ago. Mr. Harcourt asked the printing committee to limit and check this item of expenditure. In 1895 there were published 273,000 different reports, an increase of 56,000 in ten years. These reports were all valuable, but it was worth consideration if smaller editions should not be issued.

The expenditure for administration of justice in 1895 was abnormally large. It amounted to $118,476, $35,000 more than in 1894 and $122,000 more than 10 years ago.

More was spent, too, on education and agriculture than ever before. One-fifth of the total ordinary expenditure last year was applied to education. In the Department of Agriculture new branches of work were continually being taken up; in horticulture, dairying, farmers' institutes and the like.

In mining developments there was expended in 1894 and 1895 $9643. The School of Mining at Kingston cost, since its establishment in 1893, $22,-600.

The cost of public institutions last year was nearly $800,000, or $2190 a day, nearly one-fourth of all the ordinary expenditure; $42,000 in excess of the previous year, and nearly $10,000 in excess of the estimates. The increased expenditure was to some extent chargeable to teh new institution at Brockville. The expenditure on hospitals and charities has been increasing in recent years at the rate of $10,-000 a year. Last year the expenditure reached $196,000, the largest in the history of the province. Notwithstanding that the expenditures in administration of justice, education, agriculture and the care of the afflicted were larger than ever before, the total expenditure for 1895 was less than for 1890 or any intervening year. In 1891 the expenditure was $4,153,000; in 1892, $4,068,000; in 1893, $3,907,000; in 1894, $3,-842,000, and in 1895, $3,750,000.

With reference to the abitration now pending between the provinces and the Dominion, the speaker said it began in 1893, and had for its object the adjustment of accounts between Ontario and the Dominion and Ontario and Quebec. He was glad to say that satisfactory progress had been made, and that the beginning of the end had been reached, and that so far the Province of Ontario had not suffered. The speaker then proceeded to give a summary of the results of the arbitration up to the present.

The awards made up to the present have already been summarized in these columns.

Mr. Harcourt figures out a surplus of assets after deducting liabilities of $5,078,980.76. At the end of the year there was a cash balance of $437,508. The amount which the Government asked authority to expend was $3,483,-000. Deducting the $40,000 asked for statute consolidation, an expenditure required only once in ten years, the sum asked for was very little in excess of last year.

Mr. Harcourt finished his speech at 5.45. At the request of Mr. Matheson, who complained that his eyesight was not the best, the debate was adjourned till 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The following members will preside over the various committees during the session: Printing, Mr. Stratton; Public Accounts, Mr. McNish; Standing Orders, Mr. McKay; Privileges and Elections, Mr. Harcourt; Municipal, Mr. Hardy; Private Bills, Mr. Gibson (Hamilton); Railways, Mr. Bronson; Legal, Mr. Chapple.

HARDY'S MUNICIPAL BILL.

A Scheme to Reorganize the Conduct of the Affairs of Cities.

Hon. A. S. Hardy's bill respecting city councils and other matters proposes some important changes. It proposes, in the first place, to extend the term of office of aldermen to two years. Half the aldermen are to retire at the end of the first year following the first annual election after the act comes into force, and the other half shall retire the following year, and so on.

The question of retirement at the end of the first year is to be regulated as follows: Where an even number of aldermen is elected for each ward, the retiring members shall be those receiving the smaller number of votes. When three aldermen are elected for each ward, those receiving the smallest number of votes shall retire, and one alderman for the least populous ward for whom the smallest number of votes were polled, shall also retire, and so on, the aldermen for whom the next smallest vote was polled in the next least populous ward retiring until half the aldermen, less one, have retired. When an equal number of votes has been received, the question of who shall retire shall be decided by lot.

The next part of the bill deals with the constitution of the Board of Control of cities having a population of 100,000 and over. The board is to consist of the mayor and three aldermen, the aldermanic members to be elected by the council. The members may be compensated to the extent of $1000 per annum. The elected members may be removed and others appointed by a two-thirds vote of the whole council. The duties of the board shall be to prepare annual estimates, which shall not be exceeded by the council, except by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the whole council; to call for tenders and award contracts, and to nominate the heads of departments and other permanent offices; to inspect all municipal works. The council may impose other duties, and the decision of the board in all cases shall be final, except when over-ruled by a two-thirds vote of the whole council.

Under the head of miscellaneous provisions is a section providing that the Court of Revision in any city having a population of 30,000 or over shall consist of three members, one to be appointed by the council, one by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trade, and the third by the official arbitrator, or, in the absence of such an official, by the sheriff. The salary is to be $200 per annum, and no municipal employe or member of the council is to be eligible. The act also provides that in cities and towns, after the close of the polls and the counting of the ballots, the D.R.O. shall deliver on the same day the ballot boxes to the clerk. Power is given to councils, upon the certificate of the police commissioners, to pay the costs and damages recovered from members of the police force for actions done by them in the discharge of their duties. The power of police inspectors with regard to releasing persons arrested for drunkenness is extended to the third offence. The bill will be read a second time on Tuesday.

YOUR "BAD BACK" RE-BACKED.

HOW IT IS DONE!

The pertinent question of the day is—Does your back ache? Is it lame?

Thousands suffer from what they commonly term "Bad back." When they walk or when they work, when they lie down or rise up, wherever they may be or whatever they may do, the old aching, paining, "lame back" worries and wearies and wears them out.

Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can be cured.

Just a word of explanation.

The back is the key-note of the kidneys. When it aches that's a sign that the kidneys are not acting properly. When it is "lame," that indicates that the kidneys are clogged up.

Then all the poisonous products that it is the kidneys special duty to eliminate from the blood, are carried in the blood current to every organ and tissue of the body, bringing on many a kidney trouble which if neglected means disease.

Will you heed the timely warning the back gives you? Will you strike the enemy while you can strike hard? Doan's Kidney Pills are the little enemies of kidney disorders. They strike with no uncertain hand Old backs and young backs are being "re backed" and freed from never-ceasing pain and many a lame and shattered one, stooped and contracted, is strengthened and invigorated by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills For sale by

THE TRAIN SERVICE.

The Storm Fiend Fairly Conquered—The Principal Lines Kept Open.

All the local lines are reopened, with the exception of the Lakefield branch of the Grand Trunk.

Although few, if any, trains are running on time, still, both the G. T. R. and Canadian Pacific Companies are to be congratulated on the manner in which they have battled so resolutely against the storm fiend.

At noon to-day the C. P. R. express was only forty minutes late, but the passengers on the midnight train from the west had an unpleasant experience on this line last night, being snowed in for ten hours at Myrtle. Mr. James Fairweather was on this train and his description of the night in the snow drifts is not the most pleasant in the world.

The first train over the Grand Junction from Belleville since Tuesday came in this afternoon, being passed at Keene by Conductor Morrison's train which left for the south at noon.

Although the trains are not running on time over the Grand Trunk still the principal lines are open, and as fast as a train comes in it is again despatched for the accommodation of the passenger traffic. The snow plough crews are having a busy time of it.

TENDERS RECOMMENDED.

For Boots and Coats for the Fire Department.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last evening with Chairman Mills presiding, and considered the tenders for boots and coats for the firemen.

A large number of samples were submitted by Messrs. Jas. Carey, Foot & McWhinnie, R. Neil, J. J. Turner, Gough Bros., A. Mercer, Grafton & Co. and The Gutta Percha Rubber Co., of Toronto.

The committee after examining the different tenders, decided to recommend the council to accept the tender of Gough Bros. for the boots at $2.47 per pair, and that of Grafton & Co. for the coats at $4.15 each.

The following letter has been adopted by the Ministerial Association of Peterborough:

The whole civilized world has been moved by the accounts which have lately been received of the atrocities perpetrated by the Turks upon the Armenians. The great powers for various reasons have not taken concerted action to stop these atrocities, but many in different places are showing their sympathy with the Armenians by sending contributions for their relief.

The citizens of Peterborough ought certainly to do something for the persecuted Armenians, and with the view of calling their attention to this subject the Ministerial Association has ventured to address to them these few lines.

Obituary.

The death of Mr. John Riordan, aged 96, took place this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. McAuliffe, No. 906 Water street. The deceased was born in Limerick, Ireland, where he married, emigrating to America in 1850. He came direct to Peterborough, where he has since resided, winning the respect and esteem of all by his sterling integrity. The funeral will take place from the family residence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Cheap Musical Instruments.

Mr. W. A. Shaw, of the Octavius Newcombe Company, of Toronto, has taken in exchange for the splendid Newcombe pianos, several instruments. Among these is an R. S. They may be seen and terms learned at the rooms of Dr. Fred Robinson, Charlotte street, near the corner of Aylmer. This is a good chance to secure musical instruments at very favourable prices. Counterfeiters at Work.

One of the most successful comedies presented by the Marks Bros.' Company was that presented last night in "Too Counterfeiters," in which Miss Myra Collins took an exceptionally fine part, namely, "the blind wife." Mr. Thos. Marks as Corkey Mulvaney was exceedingly funny, always coming in to top the climax in the last act. Mr. Lee J. Kellam in the character of a most heartless villian, could not have been more realistic, every action being in line with his part. But the event of the evening is about to be mentioned when, in the specialties, Miss May A. Bell sang a song of her own arrangement, "Peculiar Walks," for which she was compelled to answer three encores. To-night a still better play, with new scenery, is promised, namely, "The Neat Diamond Robbery."

Toronto Fur Stock Bought.

Most of our readers have already heard of the big failure of the well known Toronto Furriers, Messrs. J. & J. Lugsdin, as announced about two weeks ago in the Toronto papers. Our enterprising local firm of Fairweather & Co., have had an eye on the stock for the past week, with the result that negotiations were closed on Thursday, and their bid accepted for the entire collection of these valuable furs. Whatever may have been the purchase price, the goods must have been bought right, as Fairweather & Co announced in to-days EXAMINER the commencement of an extensive sale of the stock at 50 cents on the dollar. Our citizens will be glad to learn that the Torontoites are not to derive all the benefit accruing from this big transaction in furs. A proportion of the stock is to be shipped to Peterborough and offered for sale at Fairweather & Co's. store here, at the same very generous reductions in price—about one-half.

A SWEET SINGER.

Miss Louise Daly Charms a George Street Church Audience with Her Voice.

It would have needed a greater preventive than the fact the mercury was below zero to keep the George street church from being well filled last evening by those anxious to judge for themselves of the capability of Miss Louise Daly, the young soprano vocalist, whose voice has been winning such golden opinions for her during the last year or so.

Miss Daly's first selection was Dudley Buck's "I will lay me down in Peace," a difficult composition, but one which gave her an opportunity of displaying the vocalistic powers of which she is the possessor, her singing being characterized by the most artistic phrasing, the sweetest of tones and the most agreeable personal manner, whilst the range of her voice and its volume are so as to give her the pre-eminence which she has attained amongst Canadian singers.

The audience was taken by storm, and Miss Daly gracefully responded to the enthusiastic applause by singing "Thy Will be Done." Later on in the evening she was heard in Clay's "She Wandered Down the Mountain Side," "The Slumber Song," "A Song of Trust," and a selection from the "Creation." Each appearance of Miss Daly elicited for her an encore, and her marvellously well controlled voice was heard with ever-increasing delight by those assembled.

The harmonious blending of the voices of Miss Daly and Mr. A. L. Davis was heard to advantage in the duet, "Holy Mother," the rendering of which was accomplished in a manner exceedingly pleasing.

The accompaniste during the evening was Miss Lillian Hall, of Napanee, in which town Miss Daly also resides. During the evening Miss Hall gave evidence of being possessed of a most complete control of the organ and in rendering selections from the compositions of Adolph Hesse, and in the "Festival March" in D, by Smart, her lightness of touch and were such as to command the closest attention during her clever performance.

Miss Hendren and Mr. A. L. Davis took Shelley's exquisite arrangement of "Hark, Hark, My Soul," and handled it in a manner which did full justice to the beauty of the work. Miss Hendren's full rich voice was also heard in "Eternal Rest" and "Annie Laurie," and her perfect notes were heard to better advantage and with keen appreciation and delight.

Sweet little Lola Ostrom also took part in the programme and as usual held her audience spellbound with the power of her lisping elocution. Her several selections, either serious or in lighter vein, were given with the ease which has won for her such glowing ecomiums from all who have had the pleasure of seeing the fairy-like little sprite on the platform.

The Epworth League of the church, under whose auspices the concert was given, are to be congratulated on securing talent of so high a standard for the evening. The audience could not fail to be delighted with the choice programme which was presented. The pianoforte used on the occasion was a Newcombe kindly supplied by the local representative Mr. W. A. Shaw.

GAINING IN POPULARITY.

An Ever-Increasing Attendance Marks the Periodical Concerts of the Foresters.

Courts Peterborough and Langton of the Canadian Order of Foresters gave one of their delightful periodical entertainments last evening in their rooms on Simcoe street, and the large attendance manifested the popularity which these entertainments have acquired.

The earlier portion of the evening was occupied by the presentation of the following varied and pleasing programme:—

Vocal solo	Miss Miller
Reading	Mr. Russell
Vocal solo	Mr. James Tranter
Vocal solo	Miss Ball
Vocal solo	Mr. Mackenzie
Vocal solo	Mr. Tranter
Vocal solo	Miss Miller
Vocal solo	Miss Ball

At the conclusion of the programme the younger portion of the audience enjoyed an informal hop of several hours' duration, while their elders enjoyed themselves in playing pedro and other interesting games.

THE STREETS.

Over Thirty Men Now at Work Cleaning the Sidewalks.

Twenty men were put to work this morning on the streets by Street Inspector Clinkscale and this afternoon ten more were given work. The clearing of the sidewalks and removal of the dangerous "hogbacks" will be first attended to.

The work of taking the snow from George street will not be attempted until a thaw sets in, as at present the snow is too difficult to remove, not sticking to the shovels as it will as soon as the weather moderates somewhat. In the meantime some dangerous pitcholes are developing and some levelling is badly needed in a few places. Seekers of charity can easily find work during the next few days.

Purified Blood

Saved an operation in the following case. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail. It makes pure blood.

"A year ago my father, William Thompson, was taken suddenly ill with inflammation of the bladder. He suffered a great deal and was very low for some time. At last the doctor said he would not get well unless an operation was performed. At this time we read about Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to try it. Before he used half a bottle his appetite had come back to him, whereas before he could eat but little. When he had taken three bottles of the medicine he was as well as ever." FRANCIS J. Next Month.

March, according to Smith's Almanac, will be an old-fashioned "lion-like" month up to about the 10th, with severe storms, snow blockades, generally cold zero weather in all sections, and disastrous gales on the Atlantic coast; after which a general break-up is probable and mild weather will set in, the remaining days giving promise of being "lamb like" in the extreme, the month closing cloudy with snow.

Calcutt's Dublin Porter.

Men and women are all more or less troubled with dyspepsia. Why? Because they suffer from constipation. This is easily cured if attended to. If neglected it will become chronic. Constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of all our sickness. Nature requires assistance to throw off impurities of the system and regulate the bowels. This is what Calcutt's porter will do. Build up your system by the moderate use of this tonic. It does not derange the system but builds it up and consequently adds to your strength and weight. Sold by all leading grocers, only $1.00 per dozen.

REV. D. J. MACDONNEL.

The death of Rev. D. J. Macdonnel, of Toronto, is a matter which brings regret to a wider area than the immediate circle of the congregation in Toronto to which he has faithfully ministered for the past twenty-five years, and nowhere, outside of his own flock, will more regret be felt than in Peterborough, where the reverend gentleman was well known and held in the highest respect, won during his four years pastorate of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, to which he was inducted the year of his ordination. He was recognized in Toronto as a moral force of great influence, and though in the course of his career, his orthodoxy on one point was questioned, yet that circumstance was an outgrowth of his character. His creed was a broad one, and love was its basis. As a pulpit orator he ranked high, more by virtue of the earnestness of conviction that marked his discussions than by fluent eloquence. It is said that his influence in his congregation was almost unbounded, and in the courts of the church his contributions to discourses always commanded respect. While his views on many important questions were apart from those generally held by religious persons, there is no doubt that they were sincere and reflected his conceptions of truth. He was in all respects a notable and a good man, and while an overruling Providence sees what is for the best, the human feeling excited by the death of Rev. D. J. Macdonnel is that his place will be hard to fill.

REV. D. J. MACDONNEL

A NOTABLE EVENT.

A Former Belmont Young Lady Marries a New York Professor.

(From the New York Sun.)

For the first time since the establishment of the Home and Training School for Deaconesses of the Methodist Episcopal Church, seven years ago, a deaconess was married in the Home, at No. 241 West Fourteenth street, last night. The bride was Miss Margaret J. Holdbrook, a licensed nurse, deaconess of the order, barely out of her probationary year of active service.

She was wedded to Professor Lyman C. Pierce, an instructor in the Harlem public school. Rev. Charles Pitblado, of the Rosehill Methodist Episcopal Church, in East Twenty-seventh street, the parish in which Miss Holbrook carried on her charitable labours, performed the ceremony.

No vows of celibacy are required from candidates for membership in the order, but it is generally understood that the young women who throw aside the finery and the many gayeties of society to take on the plain garb of the Deaconess and to take up this religious work, have consecrated their very lives to the work.

The marriage was a very exclusive and happy affair. It was solemnized in the big plain parlors of the home, and only a few guests were invited. They were all present, and likewise all the deaconesses, except half a dozen who were unable to leave the bedside of the poor and suffering invalids to whom they are ministering.

Miss Holbrook is a Canadian girl, and her parents still live in Belmont, Canada, her birthplace. She is a talented pianist, and is also the possessor of a rich soprano voice. She has contributed some worthy articles to various magazines from time to time. She is a trained nurse, and came to New York to join the deaconesses from the City Hospital, of Toronto.

Professor Pierce is a native of Wayne County, N. He was graduated from Syracuse University in 1886, and taught for seven years in Cassanovia Seminary. Six years ago he commenced to teach in the public school here. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

[The bride is a daughter of Mr. James Holbrooks, of Apsley, who until recently resided in Belmont, and is well known throughout the county. She is a sister of Mrs. Weese and Mr. John Holbrook, of Belmont.]—Ed, Shrewdness of a wellknown City Merchant.

HE KNEW WHAT WAS GOOD FOR HIM.

In winter when Canadians spend a large portion of their time indoors and cannot have the same variety of fresh food as in summer and fall, indigestion and dyspepsia afflict a majority. "If anybody will tell me that dyspepsia in its advanced stages is perfectly curable," said a Toronto merchant, "I will take his word. Personally I run no risks. As soon as I feel a sense of weight in the stomach, after a meal, I know that my blood is sluggish in circulation. In my business I cannot take much exercise, and I fight the first sign of stomach troubles with Scott's Sarsaparilla. It has never failed me, and has saved me many a doctor's bill."

Scott's Sarsaparilla possesses medicinal properties superior to all other so-called sarsaparillas made. As a remedy for indigestion, rheumatism, pimples, scrofula and all blood diseases, physicians state that its equal was never known. Sold at $1 per bottle, of all dealers.

TORY TREACHERY.

There Is Another Row in the Ranks at Ottawa.

WHAT THE BOLTERS' PROGRAM IS

They Will Not Read the Remedial Bill a Second Time, But Will Bring on the General Elections at Once The House May Dissolve in Two Weeks.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—There is going to be another big row in the Conservative camp. Mr. Foster and Mr. Haggart did not go on strike last month just for fun. They did not risk the break-up of the Government merely because Sir Mackenzie Bowell had not a slice of their gigantic interests, or because the High Commissioner would make any better figurehead than the President of the Council. There was a serious disagreement on a question of policy. Sir Mackenzie Bowell had a sufficient sense of honor to regard his pledge to Parliament on the school question as binding on him. It was because half a dozen of his colleagues looked upon the pledge as a mere device to tide over a serious Cabinet crisis last July, and wished to break it, that the seven Ministers resigned and insisted on a trasfer of the seals of office to Sir Charles Tupper. The scheme failed in part, but inasmuch as thy got Sir Charles Tupper into the Cabinet a point had been gained. The Cabinet agreed to the remedial bill as a matter of form, and it is remarkable that Sir Charles Tupper did not take his seat at the Council Board until the bill had been adopted. He evidently did not wish any personal responsibility for it, though of course his official responsibility was clear. But it was the final instalment of Sir Mackenzie Bowell's policy, and the acting High Commissioner would have nothing to do with it. He is determined that there shall not be any second reading of the Remedial Bill, even if the head of a Prime Minister is necessary to prevent it.

Still the bill has its use, even for Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Foster and Mr. Haggart, because a bit of coercion, a little pressure, has a place in their present program. That program is to begin negotiations with Manitoba for the settlement of the school question, compel Sir Mackenzie Bowell to resign, dissolve Parliament on the ground that these negotiations cannot be conducted to a satisfactory conclusion before April 24, and bring on the general elections immediately. If this Tupper-Foster-Haggart programme is carried out we will have the writs issued for the general elections within two weeks. A beginning has been made by the despatch of Sir Donald Smith to Winnipeg, where he is now communicating with the Greenway Government as the agent of the Dominion Government. He is confidently relied on to accomplish something, and will have the active co-operation of Lieut.-Governor Patterson. The Remedial Bill, Sir Donald Smith and Lieut.-Governor Patterson are expected to induce Premier Greenway to listen to Federal proposals. What these proposals are your correspondent is not at present in a position to say. These facts go far to explain why the Cabinet did not again split up publicly over the framing of the Remedial Bill. Mr. Haggart does not intend to face Ontario in the general elections in the guise of a man with a club pounding the small sister Province of Manitoba. Mr. Foster could not secure a seat in New Brunswick if he votes for a Remedial Bill. Mr. Wood could not hope to be re-elected in Brockville, where the ground is already being cut from under his feet. These men are not going to sacrifice themselves and their following to please Sir Mackenzie Bowell. That they should pretend to endorse the Remedial Bill and to serve under the Premier when they do not intend to stick to either the one of the other shows the petty, intriguing character of the men who say they represent the Conservative party. They are insincere and treacherous, and are not to be trusted, as the sequel will show.

Out of Work He Shoots Himself, Leaving His Wife and Children to Starve.

New York, Feb. 19.—James McCartney, a bartender, shot himself through the head in his apartments at No. 741 10th avenue early this morning, while standing with his wife's arms around his neck. Their six children were asleep in the next room at the time. McCartney lost his position a month ago, and since then was unable to find work. His small savings were quickly used up, and yesterday a writ to dispossess was left at his flat. McCartney saw it when he returned after midnight and turned to go out again. His wife threw her arms about him to detain him. As she stood beside him sobbing upon his shoulders he quietly drew a pistol from his overcoat pocket and shot himself through the brain, falling dead with the woman still clinging to the corpse.

MRS. MARZEN SENTENCED TO DIE.

He Murdered Fritz Holzhuetter for Money —Tragic Scene in Court.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—At 3 o'clock today a jury found Nic Marzan guilty of the murder of Fritz Holzhuetter in this city on Jan. 30, 1896, and condemned him to death.

The murder was for money which Holzhuetter was known to have for the purpose of buying cattle. The closing scene of the trial was almost tragic. While making the closing address Prosecuting Attorney Pearson picked up the butcher's cleaver with which he claimed Marzen killed Holzhuetter an dby way of illustration to the jury as to the matter of the murderous blow, raised the cleaver over his head with a quick motion, intending to bring it down heavily. But the blade flew from the handle, went over theheads of a dozen persons, and struck a pillar in the court room, entering the hard wood half an inch. Two men sat near the pillar, and the keen-edged steel passed between their deads with scarcely an inch of space on either side.

A NEW WAY OF LOOKING AT IT.

Why Great Britain Ought to Accept the U. S. View of the Venezuela Dispute.

London, Feb. 19.—The Westminster Gazette publishes an article urging Lord Salisbury not to further delay the reply of Great Britain to the proposal to appoint a joint British and American Venezuelan commission. In the course of the article The Gazette says that England is free to accept the conciliation proposed by America, in the way of which there is no obstacle except the possible objection of Venezuela to Great Britain and the United States taking the matter out of her hands and treating it as a question between themselves. For England, The Gazette thinks, there is a great advantage in settling the question with the United States instead of Venezuela. If America claims the dispute as her own, she must assume the attendant liability of becoming surety for Venezuela. England, at least, has nothing to complain of.

IMMENSE COFFIN FOR A FAT WOMAN.

No Hearse Big Enough and Sixteen Pallbearers Required.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—The coffin in which Mrs. Nettie Cole, the museum fat woman who died at the county hospital, was buried, measured 30 inches in width, 27 inches in height and 5 ft. 8 inches in length. Sixteen pallbearers were necessary, and they were secured from among representatives of museums. No hearse in the city was large enough, so Gavin's covered wagon was used.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from Gavin's undertaking rooms, 226 North Clark-street. Hundreds of people asked permission to see the remains, and many museum freaks paid their last respects. Rev. Mr. Cant of Chicago Biblical Institute conducted simple services. Interment was in Rosehill.

In Cutting Down the Pay Roll of Men at McKay's Lumber Camps.

Seney, Mich., Feb. 19.—Four men were killed and seven seriously injured to-day by the steam log-handler, which was experimenting at McKay's Camp for the M. L. Co. At the point where the accident occurred snow was piled in high banks. The engine, becoming uncontrollable, ran down the road full speed, catching the men before escape as possible. Such a storm is raging that help is impossible unless by snow shoes or dog train.

INSANITY OR DEVILTRY, WHICH?

Here is a Case Where a Man Kills His Neighbor and Suicides.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 19.—A little four-room cottage at No. 11 Plymouth avenue was the scene of a double tragedy this noon. Jacob Moser, 65 years of age, one of the tenants, shot and killed his neighbor, Mrs. Marguerite Senger, aged 32, who lived in the same house and then shot himself. The two families had been on unfriendly terms for some time, and this noon the man went to the rear door of the house and, walking into the woman's kitchen, exchanged a few words with her, and then, drawing a revolver, shot her through the neck. He then went to his own rooms, and, after cutting his wrists and throat, he raised the pistol to his own head and sent a bullet through his brain.

THE EYES OF THE WORLD

Are Fixed Upon South American Nervine.

Beyond Doubt the Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

WHEN EVERY OTHER HELPER HAS FAILED IT CURES

A Discovery, Based on Scientific Principles, that Renders Failure Impossible.

In the matter of good health temporizing measures, while possibly successful for the moment, can never be lasting. Those in poor health soon know whether the remedy they are using is simply a passing incident in their experience, bracing them up for the day, or something that is getting at the seat of the disease and is surely and permanently restoring.

The eyes of the world are literally fixed on South American Nervine. They are not viewing it as a nine-days' wonder, but critical and experienced men have been studying this medicine for years, with the one result—they have found that its claim of perfect curative qualities cannot be gainsaid.

The great discoverer of this medicine was possessed of the knowledge that the seat of all disease is the nerve centres, situated at the base of the brain. In this belief he had the best scientists and medical men of the world occupying exactly the same premises. Indeed, the ordinary layman recognized this principle long ago. Everyone knows that let disease or injury affect this part of the human system and death is almost certain. Injure the spinal cord, which is the medium of these nerve centres, and paralysis is sure to follow.

Here is the first principle. The trouble with medical treatment usually, and with nearly all medicines, is that they aim simply to treat the organ that may be diseased. South American Nervine passes by the organs, and immediately applies its curative powers to the nerve centres, from which the organs of the body receive their supply of nerve fluid. The nerve centres healed, and of necessity the organ which has shown the outward evidence only of derangement is healed. Indigestion, nervousness, impoverished blood, liver complaint, all owe their origin to a derangement of the nerve centres. Thousands bear testimony that they have been cured of these troubles, even when they have become so desperate as to baffle the skill of the most eminent physicians, because South American Nervine has gone to headquarters and cured there.

The eyes of the world have not been disappointed in the inquiry into the success of South American Nervine. People marvel, it is true, at its wonderful medical qualities, but they know beyond all question that it does everything that is claimed for it. It stands alone as the one great certain curing remedy of the nineteenth century. Why should anyone suffer distress and sickness while this remedy is practically at their hands?

A man's health carries him through the world. He depends on it for enjoyment, for happiness, for success, for the achievement of anything he has in hand. Americans take big chances. They risk everything in business. They have confidence in their brains and their ability. The American business man is active, flexible, elastic. Knock him down with failure and he is up again in a minute. As long as he keeps his health, failure doesn't mean anything to him. He has lost a little time, but that is all. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. He feels sure of that, and yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. His health is the rope by which he climbs to success. It behooves him to keep the rope in good condition, and not to neglect broken strands. When the rope of health breaks even a little bit, it should be mended at once. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. He is on a down grade. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

Every man who cares to keep his health should have Dr. Pierce's "Common Sense Medical Adviser"—a finely illustrated book of 1008 pages. Sent to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only.

BRENNAN'S STORY

As to How He Came to Murder John A. Strathy.

SHOT HIM IN AN EXCITED MOMENT

The Prisoner Sheds Tears as He Relates How the Awful Affair Took Place - Claims That He Had Been Forcibly Ejected From the House.

Barrie, Feb. 19.—(Special.)—Excitement consequent upon the awful tragedy of yesterday has abated but little, and the town is still discussing the details and wondering for the motive of the crime, which cost John A. Strathy his life. At 9 o'clock this morning, the time set for the inquest, crowds of people waited in front of the Court House and lined the streets between it and the jail, anxious to get a look at the prisoner while he was being transferred to the Police Court. Prompt on time Brennan emerged from the jail, handcuffed to Detective Beardsley. He was also accompanied by Constable Marian and a World reporter, who endeavored to obtain from him the motive of the dastardly act.

"Did you pass a good night?" asked the reporter.

"No; I did not sleep much; it was a miserable night."

"What was your motive in killing Mr. Strathy?"

The prisoner commenced to make a reply, but Detective Beardsley interrupted and warned him that he had better be careful of what he said. Brennan then exclaimed in almost a whisper: "I won't say nothing; I can't speak now. I will tell all, though."

In the Police Court the crowd was packed so tightly that some of the spectators had their coats burned by being crowded against the stove in the centre of the room. Coroner Wallwin conducted the inquest, while the interests of the Crown were looked after by Crown Attorney Cotter. The prisoner was seated at the end of the reporters' table and wept copiously when Jenny Neely, the Strathy servant girl, who was the only woman in court, was called. The man appeared to feel his position very keenly, and the tears rolled down his face while the witnesses gave their evidence.

The witnesses examined besides Miss Neely were: Joseph Morrin, the constable to whom Brennan surrendered himself; F. M. Smith, ex-deputy sheriff, who was in the sheriff's office when Brennan came in and admitted his guilt; John Weymouth, a bailiff, who heard him say he had a family of four children, which he was well able to keep if the people of the country would let him, and that if any man was in Michael J. Brennan's place they would have acted the same as he had. Dr. Rose, who attended Mr. Strathy after the shooting; Dr. Raikes, who, in company with Dr. Rose, gave evidence as to the post mortem, and M. C. Lusty, proprietor of the Victoria Hotel, who told that Brennan came to his place on Monday night, and that on Tuesday, after the murder, he had called and paid his bill.

At the conclusion of the examination of each witness, Crown Attorney Cotter asked the prisoner if he wished to cross-examine, but he replied in each case in the negative. When all the evidence was in, Mr. Cotter asked Brennan if he was desirous of making a statement, but the prisoner replied in a firm voice: "I don't wish to say anything."

After a short deliberation the jury brought in a verdict of wilful murder, and the prisoner was taken back to the jail, where he will remain until Friday, when the preliminary trial will take place at the Police Court.

At the request of Brennan, Inspector Greer of the Provincial Detective Department, who has been acquainted with him for over 20 years, went to the jail in the afternoon. Brennan insisted on making a statement and confession, which is as follows:

"I was in Barrie on Feb. 4, and met Mr. Strathy on the street," said Brennan, as he sat in his cell, "I asked him again to help me to find my family. He knew where they were and wouldn't tell me. This time he snubbed me, and said: 'Now, Brennan, you've got work and you'd better stick to it and not make any more fuss.' I intended to consult Lawyer Pepler to see if the courts would help me, but I knew they wouldn't and went back to the city. On Monday afternoon I went to Barrie again. I had no intention of killing Strathy. I wanted to go and tell the lawyers of my anxiety to find my family, but thought I would make another appeal to him first. I never had the slightest idea that there was ever anything wrong between Strathy and my wife. I know there was not. She said when we quarrelled, that she would go to the Gowan's or Strathy's, who she had lived with, and I believe Jack Strathy knew all the time where she was.

"I knew my little daughter was in Penetang, and thought the courts would allow me to have possession of her."

"I went to Mr. Strathy's house, and, after the servant girl had admitted me, waited for him a short time in the vestibule. When he came he opened the glass doors in the hall and said: 'The devil, Brennan, you here again?' I replied, 'Yes, I'm here, and I want to know where my wife and children are. You know all about them, and I want you to tell me.' He said, 'Get out of here. I've told you I know nothing about your family.' He grabbed me by the collar of my big fur coat and started to push me, while he opened the door with his left hand. I said: 'Hold on, Mr. Strathy, I want to talk to you,' but he shoved me out."

"My hat fell on the snow bank at the side of the walk. I stepped up and recovered it and, as Strathy was closing the door, I remembered the revolver, and, taking it from my coat pocket, fired directly at him, saying: 'Take that, d——n you.' I don't think I intended to kill him, and did not think I had done so. I never would have fired at all only Strathy was a strong man. He would have been living today if I had not have been wearing my big fur coat. Without it I could have licked him while he was trying to put me out of the vestibule."

"I'm not insane. I shot him on the impulse of the moment, and now I'm sorry I did it."

With tears in his eyes Brennan told his awful story, and was deeply affected when reminded of the sorrow he had brought upon the widow and orphans of the man he had so cruelly murdered.

Asked where he got the revolver and why he had it, Brennan replied that he purchased it on York-street, Toronto, for $1.25, in order to protect himself against some men on Portland-street, who had twice waylaid him on the street, while he was hunting for his family.

The World representative accompanied Inspector Greer and Crown-Attorney Cotter to the home of the deceased this afternoon. Inspector Greer had in his possession the murderer's coat and boots. The former fitted exactly an impression in the snowbank near the door, and the right boot was without doubt the one that had made a footmark in the snow when the hat was being reached for.

The varnished floor in the vestibule had been scratched in several places. One of the murderer's boots had a number of ragged nails in the heel and it was undoubtedly these that caused the scratches, for, when compared, they fitted precisely into the little grooves that had been made in the floor. These facts would bear out the truth of the prisoner's story, that there had been a scuffle before the tragedy occurred. Inspector Greer believes implicitly the statement made to him by the prisoner.

County Crown Attorney Cotter stated that it is a gross injustice to any dead man for anyone to believe or insinuate that Mr. Strathy had ever been thought by anyone to have had improper relations with Brennan's wife. Mr. Cotter has known deceased since he was an infant, and defies any man to say the slightest thing derogatory to his moral character.

The remains of the murdered man will be taken to Toronto to-morrow morning, and will be taken directly to St. James' Cemetery, where they will be interred in the family plot.

SAYS HE IS INSANE.

Mrs. Brennan Now in the City, Thus Excuses Her Husband.

The impression in some quarters that Brennan's motive for killing Mr. Strathy was that of jealousy, was yesterday enlivened by Mrs. Brennan herself, who is now a resident of this city. That lady claims to have been ill with symptoms of consumption for two months past and would not personally see the reporters. Through her brother her statement in connection with the case was given for publication in The World.

First of all she states that she will be a witness at the trial, but will keep her mouth closed until then.

The motive of Brennan's deed, she says, could not have been due to financial troubles, for she is certain that her husband never had any financial dealing with Mr. Strathy. His motive, she says, was insane jealousy. It was this jealousy that induced her to separate from him a year ago. All the time she lived at Midland her husband accused her of infidelity with a well-known lawyer and at different times with a half dozen other people. It was a mania with him and finally he took to trying to surprise her at unusual hours and to threatening her with an axe or carving knife. Being in fear of her life she left him and went to Penetanguishene to live with her mother, finally coming to Toronto. Her husband tried to get Mr. Strathy to reunite them, but the murdered man refused.

She affirms, however, that Brennan never charged her with having immoral relations with Strathy and she does not connect Mr. Strathy's visit to Toronto last week with the crime. She did not see Mr. Strathy then and denies the rumor that she attended the theatre with him on Saturday night. She excuses her husband on the ground that he is insane.

Mrs. Brennan has four children. Two girls well up in their 'teens are at work in Toronto, another girl is living with her grandmother at Penetang, and a little boy is living with his mother. Mrs. Brennan's relatives state that her husband does not support her, but except to say that she "earns her living decently," are not communicative as to the source of her income.

can't be bright and cheerful if the mother is ailing and the daughter complaining. WHERE'S THE STRATHCARRON?

Much Anxiety at Halifax, as the Steamer is Ten Days Overdue.

Halifax, Feb. 19.—There is anxiety felt here over the non-arrival of the steamer Strathcarron, now ten days overdue from the East Indies, with a cargo of sugar for the Acadia Sugar Refining Company. The steamer left Probolingo in November, and Samarang Dec. 7. She passed Gibraltar Jan. 19, and the last report from her was her sailing from St. Machalb, Jan. 29. It is thought by this time, if not disabled, that she must be pretty well out of coal. The Strathcarron has no doubt had a hard time in the many gales which have been sweeping over the Western ocean during the past month. The steamer is commanded by a Capt. Splatt, and would have a crew of 2050 tons, built at Port Glasgow in 1894, and owned by George and William Burrill of Glasgow.

EVERYTHING IS BRILLIANT NOW

Since Gen. Weyler, the Spanish Butcher, Fired the News Men.

Havana, Feb. 19.—Gen. Linares reports that the column under his command had an encounter on the 17th inst. with the rear guard of the rebel force in command of Macco and the advance guard of Gomez in the hills of Porvenir, near Chaparonzo, east of Bejucal. The Spaniards first attacked Macco's force, killing five and wounding three of the rebels, and then engaged the insurgents under Gomez, killing six of them and wounding 27. The Spanish cavalry made a brilliant charge, and their artillery did effective work against the enemy. The loss of the Government troops was four killed and one wounded.

been growing, and that more men were required to perform this work. It had been said the Government had squandered money by purchasing supplies on commission. He had only to say that the large proportion of purchases were made by tender in the open market—the fairest way possible. If gentlemen opposite wished to look for corruption they only required to turn their eyes to Ottawa. The cost of providing for prisoners at Kingston was just double that at the Central Prison, notwithstanding the prisoners in the provincial prison were better housed and fed than in the Dominion institution. Money was spent in Ontario. Money would be spent to give the children of the province a liberal education. The Government would continue to assist farmers to learn the best methods of producing grain, better cheese and other things. Deaf, dumb and blind would be looked after as in the past. Settlers would be assisted to locate in the northern districts. Money would continue to be spent in other [illegible] be administered. (Cheers.)

SIR DONALD'S TRIP TO WINNIPEG

Rumoured Amendments to the Manitoba School Law.

Winnipeg Man., Feb. 20.—(Special)—Although it has been repeatedly stated that Sir Donald Smith's trip to Winnipeg had no political significance, every observant man in the city feels satisfied that he is here as a special agent of the Ottawa Government to endeavor to arrange some compromise of the school question. The fact that Sir Donald had interviews with Premier Greenway, Archbishop Langevin, Lieutenant-Governor Patterson and others in authority seems to confirm public opinion in this respect. What progress Sir Donald has made in his mission, or what proposals he submitted to Mr. Greenway and Archbishop Langevin, it is impossible to learn. Few expect, however, that he succeeded in inducing Mr. Greenway to concede Separate Schools, or Archbishop Langevin to accept anything less.

Aside from any negotiations, there are the best of grounds for saying that the Provincial Government will so amend the school law as to remove the most serious objections of the Roman Catholic laity thereto. In the present act is a clause which prohibits the payment of Government money to any school where religious exercises other than those prescribed by the Advisory Board are used. As these exercises are held by the Roman Catholics to be strictly Protestant, there appears much force in the contention of the Roman Catholics that the law compels them to adopt the Protestant religion, or have none at all. As a matter of fact, however, great latitude is allowed in the matter of religious exercises, and there have been no cases of refusal of the Government grant on account of different exercises from those prescribed by the Advisory Board being used. It is now proposed to amend this clause, but by no means to make the schools thoroughly secular or "Godless." By the amendment, it will be permissable in Roman Catholic districts to have their own forms of religious exercises at any time of the day, and in mixed communities to have any forms which they chose before or after school hours, but which children need not attend if parents object. With this slight change in the present law, it is held that the Roman Catholics can have as much religious instruction as in Separate Schools, and the people would be saved the expense of a dual system.

BATTALION INSPECTION.

Col. Cotton Pays the 57th a Flying Visit.

Deputy Adjutant General Cotton, of Kingston, was in town yesterday inspecting the armouries of the 57th Battalion, the arms and accountrements, the quartermaster stores and the books of the adjutant.

Col. Cotton expressed himself as being much pleased with the manner in which the books were kept and stated that nowhere else did he find so perfect a system of checking in connection with the battalion, his duty it was to inspect. Adjutant Mason spends a good deal of time on his books and it is pleasing to the Battalion to know that the inspecting officer recognized the systematic manner in which the accounts are kept.

The D. A. G. will recommend that the shed be thoroughly repaired. To do this the roof will have to be raised, a number of new supports put in and the abutments strengthened. Col. Cotton was entertained in the officers quarters last evening prior to his departure.

NEW ANGLICAN EPISCOPATE CONTEMPLATED.

Peterborough Will be the See City.

The question of increasing the episcopate has been under contemplation for some time by the Anglican church clergy, and a committee of the Synod of Toronto, which had been appointed to consider the matter, met yesterday in the Synod office, Toronto, the Rev. Dr. Langtry in the chair.

There were present Rev. Dr. Pearson, who acted as secretary; Rev. Dr. C. H. Mockridge, Messrs. J. G. Hodgins, Q.C., Alfred Wilson and J. A. Worrel, Q.C.

It was resolved to prepare a full report on the subject based upon opinions recently published by leading churchmen, and also to prepare a statement which will show the financial position of the question. The first step will likely be in the direction of the formation of a northern diocese, with the see city at Peterborough, and it is probable that the whole question will come up for full discussion at the next meeting of the synod in June.

AN IDEA AS TO ACETYLENE.

A Suggestion that the Government Buy the Right to Manufacture It.

N. D. Galbraith has an idea regarding acetylene which, if it were adopted, would prove a boon to Canada, providing that the invention of Thos. L. Willson is anything like as valuable as it is expected to be. His suggestion is that the Dominion Government open negotiations with the inventor and buy from him the right to manufacture acetylene in Canada.

By this means it would be possible to ensure to the community whatever benefits there are in the invention without having to pay to monopolists the toll usually demanded. As Mr. Willson is himself a Canadian it is not improbable he would consider such a proposal favorably.

Experience Has Taught It.

A triumph in medicine was attained when experience proved that Scott's Emulsion would not only stop the progress of Pulmonary Consumption, but by its continued use, health and vigor could be fully restored.

Let Him Shovel It.

'Snow, snow, beautiful snow!"
That is a song sung long ago;
Sung by a man who wanted to show
Folly the worst that we ever shall know
Sung by a man o' foolishness great—
Would I were able to dictate his fate
Sung by a man, it is sad to relate,
Lacking a single respectable trait:
Sung by a man, the smallest fraction,
Heedless and thoughtless, vindictive and mean,
Would that I had this poet's pension
Working with me while I keep the walks clean.

Weak Young Men or Women

Are seen everywhere. Heredity or overstudy renders them unfitted to cope with the responsibilities of life, susceptible to consumption or decline. Medicine has failed and must fail, for they need food. Take cod liver oil? No! Their poor stomachs rebel. Take emulsions? No! They are equally distasteful. Nothing will effect a cure but Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites. The oil, rendered palatable and easy of digestion, is quickly assimilated, and the maltine, equal in nutrition to the oil, and even surpassing it in energetic action upon the digestive processes, unite in producing increased weight, improved colour, and that elasticity and buoyancy which herald returning health. Maltine with cod liver oil has a remedial value ten times greater than emulsions. Try it.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Down at the Rink Amongst the Curlers and the Hockeyists—Other Items of Interest.

KINGSTON WITH US.

The Kingston News says:—Where will the Canadian Wheelmen's Association hold the annual meet this year? This question is agitating the minds of local wheelmen. They want it held in Peterborough, as that is a central place and very convenient to this city. The Quebec (city) bicyclists have put in a claim for the meet, but their demand is not popular because of its extreme distance from the centre of Ontario. Quebec is too far away from the great body of wheelmen in the Association and it is not likely that the request of the wheelmen from that city will be granted by the Association. The meet was held in the Province of Quebec two years ago, and was never held in Peterborough.

CURLIANA.

A meeting of the skips of the Granite Curling Club will be held at the rink at 8 o'clock this evening.

As the result of last evening's matches the Thistles are now nine points ahead in the Innis Medal competition. The draws result as follows:

This afternoon Skip H. M. Allen and Jno. McClelland are billed to play and this evening the match of Edwards vs. Ferguson takes place. Those who have not played on the dates set so far are Hatton and Bradburn, Hopkins and Kells, and Dennistoun and J. McKee.

A match was played at the rink yesterday afternoon between rinks composed as follows:

W Stocker,		W H Meredith,
J Plain,		J S Knapman,
T E Bradburn,		H LeBrun,
Ed Brown, sk	23	H Phelan, sk	15

Skip Phelan thinks that the luck was all with his opponent and is trying to reverse the score this afternoon.

A display of the tankards and trophies in the possession of the Lindsay curling club, is made in the clothing window of Dundas & Flavelle Bros', store in that town, and it has attracted much attention. The massive tankard won by Skip Flavelle's rink at Winnipeg, heads the list and there are cups from Peterborough, Toronto, Oshawa, etc. The display fills the window, and is one that the curlers may well feel proud of. In addition to these there are about twenty private medals and four pairs of prize stones.

One Honest Man.

I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell, and want no money, but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness. SECOND CROP OF BARGAINS.

We start the Bargain Ball rolling for February in dead earnest. As there is a good deal of winter yet before us, it is unnecessary to point out the wisdom of buying now.

Our Stock-Taking is over—now for a month of lucky chances and snaps in mid-winter goods. An aftermath of Bargains for shrewd buyers—lines which we laid out during stock taking such as Serges, Cheviots, Heavy Tweeds and other Remnants, to be sold even at HALF REGULAR PRICES.

We don't want to carry winter lines past their regular selling season, so you may figure on getting pretty nearly your own way in prices.

You need the goods—we need the room they occupy—so there is mutual benefit all round in the selling of them.

Our New Spring Stock is wheeling into line, and we are glad to tell our lady friends that part of our programme for Spring is a NEW MILLINERY DEPARTMENT, of which we will tell you more in good time.

We don't "rest-up" during the winter months and take things easy until Spring. Business is full of worn-out, tired-out men who live almost wholly in the past and struggle for the success that never comes. And because of that they find fault with the times. While others are resting we're simply HUSTLING.

Sir Donald Trying to Find an Avenue of Escape

FOR THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT

Will They Carry Through Their Bargain With the Quebec Bishops and Pass the Remedial Bill? Mr. Marter at Ottawa Looking for His Instructions.

Ottawa, Feb. 21.—Notwithstanding to-day's announcement that the second reading of the Remedial Bill will be moved on Tuesday, March 3, there is an impression that the Government are still trifling with the question. Sir Donald Smith has been endeavoring to find an avenue of escape for them at Winnipeg, and report this evening states that he has been partially successful. Sir Donald has left Winnipeg for the east. The Ontario Conservatives are buoyed up with this impression and report, and no doubt by private assurances from the leaders in the House. On the other hand, the Quebec Conservatives are kept quiet by the introduction of the bill and the fixing of a date for the debate on the second reading. For five years the Government have played with the question, always taking a position they inwardly hope they will be able to abandon. They are still playing with it and daily fostering a religious war. If their Ontario supporters are weak enough, or Ontario Conservatives outside the House complaisant enough, they will carry through the bargain with the Quebec Bishops. The existence of such a bargain is clearly enough established.

The significance of Father Lacombe's letter to Mr. Laurier is that this old, respected, confiding and deceived missionary, who has spent his life among the Indians, has been used as the intermediary between the Dominion Government and the Quebec hierarchy, and in the letter he speaks in the name of the Bishops, and unless they repudiate his authority the letter must be held to have been sanctioned by all the Quebec Bishops before it was mailed.

The Ontario Conservatives are getting frightened at the revelations as the day approaches when, for all they know, they will be called on to face the music, and Mr. Marter is here to get instructions as to the attitude the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature should take on Mr. Crawford's resolution. Private protests are being received by every mail by the Ontario members. If public opinion in Ontario is plainly expressed between now and the 3rd of March, the Government's uncertain mind will be convinced that their bargain with the Quebec bishops is too expensive to keep.

Mr. Foster is so scared of the Government's policy on the school question that he has abandoned the County of York, in which he was driven from King's, and will run for St. John city with Mr. Hazen. Mr. McKeen, who resigned to give his seat to Sir Charles Tupper, has got his reward. He has been apointed to the Senate.

As the result of the conference between Messrs. Foster and Laurier, the former made a motion in the House to-day that the second reading of the Remedial Bill (Manitoba) be made the first order of the day on Tuesday, 3rd March, and on following days until the debate shall be concluded. Mr. Laurier suggested, and there was the promise of protracted debate in his suggestion, that Mondays be reserved for private members' business. Mr. Foster assented to the amendment, and the motion carried. The House, after this sniff at that most engrossing subject, resumed the course of the long-drawn-out budget debate. The first speaker was upon the Government side, Mr. McDougall, who has the distinction of being senior to Sir Charles Tupper in the representation of Cape Breton. Sir Charles, by the way, did not make his appearance in the House to-day, much to the disappointment of Mr. McMullen, who had gathered some interesting historical facts with reference to the Tupper family, which he wished to deliver in his presence.

Prof. Robertson, dairy commissioner, continued his interesting account of the proposed dressed meat experiments before the Agricultural Committee this morning. He said it was proposed to ask Parliament for an appropriation of $300,000 to permit the scheme being carried out. The intention was to purchase weekly an average of 500 head of cattle at Montreal, where they would be killed, dressed, chilled, put up in attractive wrappers and shipped to depots in Great Britain. In about 10 weeks' time the returns from the first shipment would come in. The proposed vote of $300,000 would all be returned to the Government as business progressed. He hoped in the winter time that trade would be continued from St. John or some other port. Members of the committee were greatly taken with Prof. Robertson's proposals and unanimously endorsed them on motion of Dr. Roome, seconded by Mr. Macdonald.

On motion of Mr. Wilson it was decided to print 150,000 copies of Prof. Robertson's evidence to circulate among the farmers.

Messrs. McKay and Ryckman introduced to the Minister of Public Works to-day a Hamilton deputation consisting of Mayor Tuckett, Ald. Brown, Colquhoun, McKeown, Messrs. John Hoodless, John Milne and J. G. Bowles who urged that the Burlington canal piers be renewed and the canal itself deepened to a depth of 14 feet for the purposes of allowing vessels which pass through the Welland Canal from the upper lakes to get to the Hamilton wharves. The desire of the people of Hamilton is to get ores from Lake Superior district by boat to the Hamilton smelting works.

The Minister of Finance was waited upon this afternoon by Mr. W. J. Gage of Toronto, J. R. Booth, the millionaire lumber and railway man of Ottawa, Dr. Roome, M.P., Messrs. Powell, Mara, Cameron and Weldon, who asked for financial assistance in the way of an annual grant to the proposed national sanitarium for the treatment of consumption. It was announced that Mr. Booth had offered free transportation over his lines, the Parry Sound and Canada Atlantic Railways, to patients going to the sanitarium at Muskoka.

T. G. Shaugnessy, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, and Montague Allan of the Allan Line, had an interview with Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Charles Tupper this afternoon, when details of the proposed fast Atlantic service were fully discussed preparatory to issuing the advertisements calling for tenders.

A deputation from Port Arthur and district consisting of Messrs. McKellan, Burke, Keefer, Marks, Conmee and others, and accompanied by Messers. McDonell, M.P., Marter, M.L.A., Mayor Tuckett of Hamilton and others, interviewed Hon. Mr. Haggart today to ask for a bonus to the Port Arthur, Duluth and Western Railway.

The Governor-General has made the following appointments: John Sinclair, late captain 5th Royal Irish Lancers, to be Governor-General's secretary, vice Arthur J. L. Gordon, resigned.

Deposits in the postoffice savings banks last month exceeded withdrawals by $194,000.

Hon. Clarke Wallace, Dr. Sproule and Joe Martin went to Toronto tonight to attend the anti-remedial meeting.

Mr. G. F. Marter, M.L.A., and Mr. Clancy, ex-M.L.A., are in the city.

The report of the Department of Agriculture was presented to the House to-day. It contains usual reports relating to crops, cattle trade, quarantine, etc. Dr. Smith, medical superintendent Tracadie Leper Hospital, reports 19 inmates—13 male and 6 female—3 of whom are dying. Leprosy is decreasing in Canada generally. The humane treatment our lepers receive affords a noble example to the rest of the world.

Mr. Edgar has a series of questions on the order paper relating to the copyright question.

A SMALL SCRAP IN QUEBEC.

'Tis Said All is Not Lovely Within the Taillon Cabinet.

Montreal, Feb. 21.—(Special.)—There is a crisis here, where the Taillon Government has been sitting for the past three days. Hon. George A. Nantel, Minister of Public Works, says he will resign if such and such a thing does not take place, while Hon. Mr. Pelletier and others declare they will resign if such and such a thing does take place. Ottawa had its crisis and why should not the Quebec Local Government enjoy the same blessing? It appears that Mr. Maze, who, by the way, voted against the Taillon candidate at the recent bye-election in Montreal Centre, is the cause of the severe shaking up that has come to the Government. Mr. Maze is the promoter of a short line of railway not far from Montreal and he has been pulling wires in order to have substantial assistance from the Local Treasury or a guarantee of the company's bonds. Hon. Mr. Nantel was anxious that the Government should come to the rescue, but this anxiety was not shared by the Premier, Hon. Mr. Pelletier, Hon. Mr. Hackett, and others of the Ministry, and, consequently, the proposed aid was blocked. The other day, however, the Ministers had about decided upon helping a second enterprise and suggested such a recommendation from the Minister of Public Works; and Hon. Mr. Nantel, therefore, came down with this recommendation to the Council and another in favor of Mr. Maze's scheme tacked on. This caused, so the correspondent learns, a veritable explosion, while threats and counter threats of resignation were thrown in as well. With the crisis at its height, the Ministers came to Montreal, but Hon. Mr. Nantel has scarcely been at the Government offices and has taken no part whatever in the business transacted in this city. His friends assert that he will leave the Ministry unless his colleagues give way, while others state that Hon. Mr. Nantel will be appointed sheriff of the district of Montreal.

IS GENERAL MACEO NO MORE.

The Spanish Commander at San Nicolas Reports His Death.

Havana, Feb. 21.—The rumor of the death of Maceo rests entirely upon a report made by the Spanish commander at the town of San Nicolas. He says that a peasant told him that the rebels had informed him that Maceo was dead. The value of the reports receivin in this manner is self-evident. There is absolutely no confirmation of the report and it is not credited even in official circles.

Col. Hernandez reports that after his second attack upon the forces of Maceo and Gomez on Wednesday last he continued his march and found that the rebels, after retreating, had taken up a strong position which they made a strong effort to hold. The Spanish troops made three bayonet charges and finally routed the enemy. The troops then entered the town of Catalina, to which the rebels had set fire on their retreat. The troops prevented the destruction of the place, although several houses were destroyed. The Spanish loss was 15. Nine other soldiers were slightly injured. The exact rebel loss could not be ascertained, but it is known to be considerable. The troops are pursuing the rebels in the direction of Las Vegas.

A LETTER TO MR. LAURIER.

In Reference to His Course on the Manitoba School Question.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—(Special)—The following is a copy of the letter which the Rev. Father Lacombe, the Oblat missionary, sent to the Hon. Wilfrid Luarier, asking the Liberal leader to vote for the Remedial bill:

St. Peter's Church, 107 Visitation St.,
Montreal, Jan. 20, 1896.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, M.P., Ottawa:

My Dear Sir,—In this critical time for the question of Manitoba schools, permit an aged missionary to-day representing the bishops of our country in this cause which concerns us all, permit me to say, I appeal to your faith, to your patriotism, and to your spirit of justice, to entreat you to accede to our request. It is in the name of our bishops, of the hierarchy and of Canadian Catholics, that we ask your party, of which you are the so worthy chief, to assist us in settling this famous question and to do so by voting with the Government on the Remedial Bill. We do not ask you to vote for the Government, but for the bill, which will render us our rights, which bill will be presented to the House in a few days.

I consider, or, rather, we all consider, that such an act of courage, good-will and sincerity on your part, and from those who follow our policy, will be greatly in the interests of your party, especially in the general elections. I must tell you that we cannot accept your commission of enquiry for any reason, and we will do the best to fight it.

If, which may God not grant, you do not believe it to be your duty to accede to our just demands, and that the Government, which is anxious to give us the promised law, be beaten and overthrown while keeping firm to the end of the struggle, I inform you with regret that the Episcopacy, like one man, united to the clergy, will rise to support those who may have fallen to defend us.

Please pardon my frankness, which leads me to speak thus. Though I am not your intimate friend, still I may say that we have been on good terms. Always I have deemed you a gentleman, a respectable citizen, and a man well able to be at the head of a political party. May Divine Providence keep up your courage and your energy for the good of our common country. I remain, sincerely and respectfully, honorable sir, your most humble and most devoted servant.

(Signed) A. LACOMBE, O.M.I.

P.S.—Certain members of your party blame me for standing aloof from you and ignoring you. You have too much good sense not to be able to understand my position. Belonging to no political party, I have to go to those who have been placed in power by the people. If one day the voice of the people calls you to govern the country I will be loyal and confident in you, as I am to-day towards those whom you oppose. If you should wish to see me and to secure fuller explanations, I will be at your service when that may please you, either at the University of Ottawa or at your private rooms, provided you inform me of the hour fixed by you. I will be in Ottawa on the 23rd inst. for several days.

(Signed) A.L., O.M.I.

LAND TAX SALES AND AMENDMENT OF COUNCILS.

Mr. Stratton's Bills to Amend the Land Sales Regulations, and to Improve the Constitutions of City and Town Councils.

SALES OF LAND FOR TAXES.

Mr. J. R. Stratton has introduced a bill to amend section 164 of the Consolidated Assessment Act of 1892 in the Local House as follows:

At least three weeks before publishing a list of the lands to be sold for taxes the treasurer of any county, city or town shall ascertain from the registrar the name and address of the last registered owner of each parcel of land, as well as the names and addresses of all persons or corporations holding undischarged mortgages on the same, and shall, within one month after the first publication of such list, notify by registered letter the owner or owners, mortgagees or mortgagors of each parcel of land so that they may identify it, and warn them that the said parcel of land is liable to be sold for taxes, on [a date and at a place mentioned in such notification.

2. For giving these notices the treasurer shall be entitled to receive the sum of ten cents and the actual sum disbursed for postage. For all searches by the said treasurer with respect to each parcel of land, the registrar shall be entitled to receive the sum of ten cents. The costs to be eventually repaid by a charge upon the land.

THE CITY AND TOWN COUNCILS' BILL.

Mr. Stratton's bill respecting City and Town Councils, is to be called the City and Town Council's Act, 1896. It is divided into two parts. Part 1 provides for the act coming into operation in every city or town in which the bylaw for its adoption has received the assent of the municipal electors. The bylaw is to be submitted upon a petition being presented to the Council, signed by one-tenth in number of the municipal electors of the city or town. The bylaw is not to be submitted after the first of September in any year, and if defeated is not to be re-submitted within two years thereafter.

1. Aldermen and councillors are to be elected by general vote, and it is the intention of the bill to reduce the number by about one-third, all of whom shall be elected each year, and it also provides that in case of a vacancy occurring in the representation of the city or town that the municipal council shall have power to appoint a qualified person to fill the vacant chair.

Every municipal elector may vote for a number of candidates not exceeding the number to be elected, but no one is to vote more than once for any candidate, and no person is to vote at more than one polling place in the same city or town.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. Black Death was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than either of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing, constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, and distress after eating. The little help that is needed is furnished by Dr. Pearce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Once used they are always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Send 31 cents in one cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1896.

THE Mail and Empire is endeavouring to persuade its readers that the Liberal party at Ottawa is at sixes and sevens. That accusation cannot be brought against the Dominion Cabinet—there is only one seven—the great original kickers.

"IF we had not had a protective duty on cheese we certainly would not have had to-day the fine cheese industry that exists," says the Mail and Empire, and the Globe shows that "the protective duty does nothing for the cheese industry except increase the cost of everything used in it. It does not save the industry from American competition at home, for the Americans could not compete with Canadian makers in this country. It does not help Canadian makers in the European markets. It is simply a burden, and the cheese-making industry is fortunately able to flourish in spite of it." Can it be claimed that while Canadian cheese beats American in the British market, is there the slightest danger that American cheese has a ghost of a chance of sale in Canada, of as much as an ounce of duty or no duty. If the Canadian Government, instead of the 3 cents per pound duty it imposes on imported cheese, were to offer a bonus of a similar amount to American cheese it could find no sale here. The only benefit of a duty on cheese is to exclude it from the American market where it would by its superior quality find a sale if the duty were removed. So that in effect the protective principle hurts instead of helps the Canadian cheese industry.

No Crumblers or Growlers When Diamond Dyes are Used.

Thousands of pleasant, happy and grateful letters are on file from ladies who have tested the popular Diamond Dyes that always do their work well and satisfactorily.

Mrs. Thos. Lavin, Newark, Ont., says: "I find that Diamond Dyes are the best, as I always get good and fast colours from them. I have used other dyes, but they are all inferior."

Mrs. Wm. Moore, Steenburg, Ont., says: "We like Diamond Dyes better than all others on the market; they always give splendid colours."

When ladies ask for Diamond Dyes, they should always insist upon seeing the name on the package, as there are so many worthless dyes sold by dealers.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB COLUMN.

No. LII.

Short Sketches of Great Men.

No. 2.—Socrates.

The conversations of Socrates (of which an example was given in our last column) naturally attracted many listeners. "At first they would look with indifference or contempt on the mean and poorly clad figure in the centre; but gradually their interest was aroused, their attention grew fixed, and then their hearts beat faster their eyes swam with tears, and their very souls were touched and thrilled by the voice of the charmer. They came again and again to listen; and so by degrees that company of friends was formed whose devotion and affection to their master is the best testimony to the magic power of his words.

Such a man, whose whole soul was devoted to the study of truth, justice and virtue, who in his conversations often put to shame men of great pretensions, and who was indifferent to fame, and unmoved by flattery was sure to have many enemies. By those who cannot understand disinterestedness, his motives would be impugned, and he would be suspected of deep designs against the state. His opinions, as those of every original thinker have been, would certainly be misunderstood, and misrepresented. It is only by taking these things into account that we can understand the accusations against Socrates, upon which he was tried, found guilty and put to death.

Xenophon, the great Athenian General, the hero of the famous "March of the 10,000," who has left most interesting memories of Socrates, says that he often "wondered by what arguments the accusers of Socrates persuaded the Athenians that he deserved death from the State; for the indictment against him was to this effect:—Socrates offends against the laws in not paying respect to those gods whom the city respects, and introducing other new deities; he also offends against the laws in corrupting the youth." Xenophon proceeds at considerable length to rebut these charges, and Plato in his dialogue entitled "The Apology" has probably preserved the arguments which Socrates used in his defence. The tone of his defence is rather that of defiance, and Cicero said that the speaker seemed not so much a suppliant or an accused person, as the lord and master of his judges.

"O Athenians," he cried, "I both love and honour you, but as long as I live and have the power I shall never cease to seek the truth and exhort you to follow it. For I seem to have been sent by God to rouse you from your lethargy, as you may see a gadfly stinging a strong and sluggish horse. Perhaps you will be angry at being thus awakened from your sleep. Shake me off, then, and take your rest, and sleep on forever. I shall not try to move your pity by tears and prayers, or by the sight of my weeping children, and if, O, Athenians by force of persuasion or entreaty, I could overpower your oaths, then I should indeed be teaching you to believe that there are no gods, and convict myself, in my own defence, of not believing in them. But that is not the case, for I do believe that there are gods, and in a far higher sense than that in which any of my accusers believe in them. And to you and to God I commit my cause, to be determined by you as is best, both for you and for me."

It was not likely that the Athenians would be convinced by such a speech as this, and he was found guilty on both counts of the indictment, but only by a majority of five in a vote of 500.

It is, however, by no means improbable that although carefully observing the prescribed services of the gods, Socrates in his teaching gave utterance to sentiments which appeared in some degree unorthodox. The time was ripe for a change. The old faith in the "gods of Greece" was breaking down, but at such times men cleave more tenaciously and less rationally to the old forms. They do not distinguish between a destructive skepticism and a higher faith. Socrates to his most intimate friends appeared to be a man inspired, and it was a nobler and purer faith that he offered to the Athenians.

Socrates himself believed in his inspiration. He thought that a divine spirit both conversed with him and guided him. We may say that it was really Conscience speaking in a clearer and louder voice to one who so obediently listened to it, than to most men, but Socrates would not have accepted this explanation. It was this sublime faith that in all he did and said, it was not his own wisdom that spake, nor his own will that asked, but a Divine wisdom and a Divine strength, that made Socrates strong. After his condemnation he addresses his judges in such terms as these:—"Wherefore, O ye judges, be of good cheer about death and know this of a truth, that no evil can happen to a good man, either in life or after death. He and his are not neglected by the gods, nor has my own approaching end happened by mere chance. But I see clearly that to die and be released was better for me; and therefore the oracle gave no sign. For which reason also I am not angry with my accusers or condemners; they have done me no harm, though neither of them meant to do me any good, and for this I may gently blame them. The hour of my departure has arrived and we go our ways, I to die and you to live.—Which is better God only knows."

During the time that elapsed between his trial and execution. Socrates was allowed to converse with his friends. It was out of these conversations that Plato composed the dialogue Phædo, in which Socrates expounds his faith in immortality. At last the fatal cup is brought. Socrates takes it "in the gentlest and easiest manner, without the least fear or change of colour or feature, then, holding the cup to his lips, quite readily and cheerfully he drank off the poison." Hereupon his friends broke down and wept, Socrates remaining unmoved. He continued to walk about until his legs failed, and then he lay on his back, whilst the poison gradually worked its way through the system until it reached the heart. "Such was the end of our friend, whom I may truly call the wisest and justest and best of all the men whom I have ever known."

The influence of Socrates did not die with him. Plato, perhaps the greatest prose writer that ever lived, put all his sayings into the mouth of Socrates. "There neither is," said Plato himself, "nor shall there ever be, any treatise of Plato. The opinions called by the name of Plato are those of Socrates in the days of his youthful vigour and glory."

The early Church in the person of many of its fathers, drew inspiration from the life and death of Socrates. They, too, were accused both of Atheism and of moral corruption. It is then little wonder that they looked upon Socrates as one in whom the Word of God dwelt. Wherever men love truth, justice and liberty, there will the name of Socrates be a venerated name, and his life a source of inspiration and consolation.

WONDERFUL CURES.

Simple Ailments, Like Small Fires, Easily Stamped Out.

People Will Talk—And We Listen and Learn—So May Every One—Wonders Worked by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The greatest cures, we think, are the simple ones, the cures of the small beginnings of disease, where the misery and the harm to the constitution is escaped.

What a happy fact cure is!

How endlessly people will talk of their case!

With what evident enjoyment!

Some of these grateful patients never come to the city without calling to talk over the cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A man by the name of Joshua Clarkson, living at 114 Robert street, this city, came in the other day.

His life had been saved by using two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

What was the disease?

Diabetes.

Yes; he had lost thirty-one pounds in weight in five weeks.

It took him seven weeks to regain his health and his avoirdupois.

No one could hear him talk and not take courage, be he ever so sick and ever so hopeless.

A full account of this case has appeared in this paper.

Then, not long ago, Samuel Murray came in, looking well, too. He it was who was paralyzed for a whole year, given up by ever so many doctors, and was cured by twelve boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

A reporter of a city paper saw him.

Seemed to think it impossible that a man could recover from such an illness.

There was no miracle about it, however. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Hundreds of people are talking to each other about cures accomplished by this medicine, and these pills are selling everywhere faster than ever before.

And they always cure.

Norway Pine Syrup strengthens the lungs and cures all throat troubles.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The Breath of the Pines.

Coughs, colds, asthma bronchitis, sore throat and lung troubles are cured by Norway Pine Syrup. Price 25 and 50 cents. It breathes out the healing virtues of the pine forests.

I want every young or old man to know about it. I take a personal interest in such cases and no one need hesitate to write me as all communications are held strictly confidential. I send the recipe of this remedy absolutely free of cost. Do not put it off but write me fully at once, you will always bless the day you did so. Address,

A GREAT WORK!

WOMEN SHOULD BE SPECIALLY INTERESTED.

Thousands Will Thank Mrs. Thompson, of Toronto, for Her Encouraging Letter.

Paine's Celery Compound Made Her a New Woman.

Mrs. M. Thompson, 610 Eastern Ave., Toronto, once a disheartened and broken-down woman owing to dyspepsia and nervousness, gratefully recommends Paine's Celery Compound to all sufferers. Reduced in flesh, weak and frail, she sought aid and relief from the best doctors, but, alas! no good results came to bless her. In a terribly critical condition, Mrs. Thompson commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, the dyspeptic's only hope. In a short time she was made hale, strong and vigorous; in a word, she was given a new and better life. Mrs. Thompson writes as follows;

"I feel it my duty to let the public know what Paine's Celery Compound did for me, and I trust it will be a benefit to other sufferers.

"I was much reduced in flesh and in a thoroughly broken-down condition, resulting from dyspepsia and nervousness. I was recommended to try the Compound: I did so and three bottles have made me a different woman.

"Previous to taking your Compound, I had taken medicine from some of the best doctors in the city, but with no good results. Therefore I have every reason to be thankful for Paine's Celery Compound and take great pleasure in recommending it to others."

BRENNAN'S PRELIMINARY TRIAL.

The Murderer of J. A. Strathy Makes No Defence and is Promptly Committed Until the Spring Assizes.

Barrie, Ont., Feb. 21.—(Special.)—The preliminary examination of Michael J. Brennan for the murder of John A. Strathy was held here to-day before Police Magistrate Ross and Messrs. Henry Bird and N. King, Justices of the Peace. The prisoner was not represented by counsel and made no effort to defend himself.

In reply to the question of whether or not he was guilty, he said that he would not plead, and a plea of not guilty was, in consequence, entered. The principal witnesses examined were Jennie Neely, Phoemie McKay, Dr. W. A. Ross and Constable Marrin. There was little in the evidence that was new or different from that given at the inquest. Some weight was attached to the evidence of the domestics at Strathy's house relative to the overturning of flower pot. This flower pot, which had been standing in the vestibule, was found overturned after the departure of Brennan, and some of the earth it contained was scattered over the floor. This fact will be advanced by the Crown as evidence that a scuffle took place. It may have some effect upon the plea of insanity which it is probable will be set up by the defence.

The prisoner declined to ask the witnesses any questions, and when asked if he wished to have the depositions read over to him simply remarked that he had heard them all and did not agree with them. He declined to make any statement and did not appear to be very much interested in the proceedings. He was committed to stand his trial at the Spring Assizes, which open here on April 7.

DOCTORS AND FLY BLISTERS FAIL.

But one Dose of South American Rheumatic Cure Relieves and Half a Bottle Cures.

Robert E. Gibson, Pembroke's well-known merchant:—"I contracted rheumatism in very severe form in 1893, and have suffered untold misery each spring since. I have repeatedly applied fly blisters with but little success. Doctors whom I consulted, likewise failed to relieve. I was induced to try South American Rheumatic Cure by Mr. W. F. C. Bethel, of the Dickson Drug Company. The first dose gave instant relief and half a bottle cured."

As a cure for rheumatism this remedy is certainly peerless.—Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

IN JUST 95 SECONDS

Did Fitzsimmons Knock Out Peter Maher

HE IS NOW THE WORLD'S CHAMPION

The Coup Was in the Form of One of His Famous Upper Hooks With Which He Floored Hall—There Was No Effort Made to Stop the Affair.

THE WINNER.

Langtry, Tex., Feb. 21.—It took Bob Fitzsimmons just 95 seconds this afternoon to defeat Peter Maher and become the heavyweight champion of the world. The fight took place in the bottom of the Rio Grande River, on the Mexican side, a mile and a half from the Langtry depot. Even to his friends it was evident that the Irish lad was not in it from the start. Before the round had progressed 30 seconds Maher attempted a foul and was warned by the referee.

Fitzsimmons' coup was in the form of one of his famous upper roks, with which he knocked out Hall and broke the nose of Jack Stelzener, his trainer. Maher made a gallant effort to get upon his feet when time was called, but after getting half way to a recumbent position he fell back and still had his head on the floor when time was called and the decision was awarded to the Cornish man.

When the train of sports arrived here from El Paso at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon there was no evidence that anything unusual was about to take place. Parties of excursionists from Eagle Pass and other points had been belated, and only some 50 residents of the country about Langtry had gathered at the depot. One company of the Texas Rangers guarded the depot, while the remainder went down to the bottom on the Texas side, but not the slightest effort was made to interfere with the sports in any of their movements.

When the word to move had been given the visitors speedily found that, although they had been on the road for over 16 hours and journeyed 400 miles, the hardest part of the trip was yet to come. Following guides in a straggling procession, they went across the prairie for a distance of 500 yards, and then commenced a precipitous descent of a seldom-used wagon road that runs in a circuitous way down the Rio Grande. Over rocks and boulders, now slipping on their backs, now clutching at a bramble to save themselves from a fall and a broken ankle, and now stubbing their toes against huge cobble stones or in cavities of rocks, the sports toiled in double and single file until the bank of the river was reached. Then there was a tramp of 500 yards more through sand and mud, full ankle deep, to the point where a 75-foot pontoon bridge had been stretched across the river, which, swollen by recent rains, had been changed from a sluggish stream to a roaring torrent. Once across the sports were on the bottoms of the Mexican side, and the canvas enclosure about the ring was to be seen in the distance. Five minutes more brought the perspiring and sore-footed pedestrians to the entrance stiles, where Bat Masterson and Joe Vendig examined the tickets and passed the holders within.

THE LOSER.

Time was called at 4.25, and the spectators pressed to the ropes.

Fitzsimmons led with his left. Maher backed towards his corner. Fitzsimmons landed with his right, and a clinch followed. Maher struck Fitzsimmons with his right hand, while they were clinched, and Referee Siler warned him that if he did so again he would give the fight to Fitzsimmons. After a break away, Peter landed his left on Fitzsimmons' neck. Close infighting followed, and Maher succeeded in landing his left on Fitzsimmons' upper lip, drawing blood. Fitz landed his left on Maher, and followed it with a right. A clinch followed, Maher feinted and Fitz led with his right, but fell short. A mix up followed, in which Maher landed both right and left on the side of Fitz's head. Maher led with his left, and another clinch followed. Fitz seemed a bit bothered and broke groundw on Maher's leads.

Maher measured his length on the floor, his head striking the canvas with great force. He vainly attempted to rise, but could not do more than raise his head. His second called on him to get up, but he failed to respond, and sank back to the canvas. The fatal tenth second was counted, Maher was declared out, and Fitzsimmons announced the victor, after one minute and 35 seconds' rather lively fighting. Fitz's admirers cheered him to the echo, and Maher's seconds carried the defeated Irishman to his corner. It was several minutes before he realized what had happened to him. Then Fitz walked over to his corner and shook him by the hand. Fitzsimmons also shook hands with Quinn and the seconds in Peter's corner.

Barring the slight bleeding at the nostrils occasioned by the left-hand jab of Maher, the Cornish man showed no marks of injury and appeared as fresh as at the opening of hostilities.

Maher showed no signs of punishment except a slight break in the skin just above the point of the chin, where Fitzsimmons' master-stroke had landed.

When the cheering of the people around the ropes and the waving of handkerchiefs of those upon the mountain summit had in a measure subsided, and Fitzsimmons had tired of bowing his appreciation, Julian took the centre of the ring and made the following announcement, with theatrical effect: "Gentlemen, Mr. Fitzsimmons has worked himself up from the bottom of the ladder, and by the decision of the referee is now the champion of the world. He is ready to defend the title against all-comers at any time or place. No man is barred, and all-comers will receive recognition."

Then came shouts of warning that the pontoon bridge was in danger of being washed away by the strong current. The fighters and assistants hastily gathered their traps together and the crowd rushed for the Texas side. All got over safely.

Peter Maher and his followers were a disappointed looking lot of individuals as they tramped their way back across the rocks and sand to the train. Peter was unusually communicative.

"Well, it was a chance blow that did the work," he said. "I did the best I could under the circumstances. My condition was not of the best, but as a further postponement was not to be considered by the Fitzsimmons crowd, I was obliged to go into the ring. My eyes were in worse condition than I believed them to be."

Results Tell the Story.

Sawing Wood.

A TORONTONIAN OF 85 YEARS WHO CAN STILL HANDLE A BUCKSAW.

To find a man of 85 sawing and splitting wood without any trouble would surprise most of us to whom such vigorous exercise is—to say the least—distasteful, but to hear the circumstances under which it took place but increases the wonder.

"Our representative visited Mr. John Clyne, 174½ Sackville st., City, a sufferer from kidney trouble for the past 10 years, having undergone two operations during that time. Mr. Clyne was for some 30 years engaged in the express and cartage businessfor such well-known firms as Swan Bros., Hugh Miller, J.P., Wm. Rennie, etc., and having been a resident of Toronto for 50 years, is well known. Mrs. Clyne was interviewed at their residence and said: 'Mr. Clyne was in a very bad state, his urine almost black with sediment and he was expecting to have another operation such as he had before. The pain in his back was at times very severe and kept him from doing any work. Mr. Clyne got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at J. R. Lee's drug store and was relieved from the first dose; the urine is now clear, no trouble or burning sensation, and to-day you would say that although 85 years old, he has taken on a new lease of life.' Mrs. Clyne then took our reporter to the yard, and to his surprise found Mr. C. sawing wood for over Sunday. He emphatically endorsed every word Mrs. Clyne had said. 'From the very first they did me good; I am well known here and you can use my name as reference. Two weeks ago I expected to be operated on, perhaps to die—to-day I am well and strong, better than I have felt for a score of years.'"

FIVE MILLION DOLLARS DAMAGE.

Was Done by the Awful Dynamite Explosion at Johannesburg.

Johannesburg, Feb. 21.—President Kruger and the chiefs of the several executive departments of the Government of the South African Republic made an inspection of the scene of the dynamite explosion at Vlederdorp, a suburb of this city, yesterday and visited many of the injured men, women and children in the hospitals. President Kruger, after viewing the scene of devastation, declared that the Netherlands Railway Company, on board of whose cars the dynamite exploded, would have to pay the amount of the damage done, which is calculated at £1,000,000 at least. The President was greatly affected by the scenes in the hospitals and elsewhere, and in speaking later dwelt upon the splendid manner in which the people of Johannesburg sunk their race and other feuds and joined hands in relieving the distress of the hundreds who were in need of aid. President Kruger was elected president of the Relief Committee which was formed yesterday, and which has already collected £100,000.

NEWFOUNDLAND LOBSTERS.

The Modus Vivendi Between Great Britain and France Renewed.

London, Feb. 21.—In the House of Commons this morning, Mr. Geo. N. Cameron, Parliamentary Minister for Foreign Affairs, replying to a question of Sir Charles Dilke, stated that Great Britain and France had agreed to renew for the approaching season the modus vivendi relating to lobster fisheries in Newfoundland waters, established in 1890. In consequence of this agreement, he said, the negotiations between Great Britain and France in regard to the general question of treaty rights would not now be proceeded with.

Cuts no figure with many lines now. "Clear the Decks" for spring trade is the orders all over this store. We have just got through inventory. It showed two pairs of this kind, one of that, and so on. They are a drug with us.

We have assorted them, and put a price on them—not what they are worth, but what they will bring.

Blankets,
Bed Comforters,
Lap Rugs,
Winter Shawls,
Underclothing.

These have got to walk the plank. We make a loss, of course; but in cleaning up stocks at the end of the season we expect to make sacrifices. The more we sell of these goods just now—and the more you buy of them—both of us make more money than by holding off for a more convenient season.

Will Have High Water Again.

"There will be no complaints about low water in the lakes, rivers and canals during the coming season of navigation," remarked a citizen, whose business brings him into frequent communication with those posted on such matters. "The immense quantity of snow that has fallen during the past week or ten days will flood those places from which the water receeded last summer, and the rise will be gradual when once the snow begins to melt."

In Shirtdom

Plently of linen is a necessity. Better change your shirts often than permit the dirt to become ground in them. It's rubbing out this dirt that destroys the fabric. Buy your shirts as you would your collars—in half dozens. The new novelties which we are now showing in fancy cambric shirts for spring wear will be the prime favourites for business, outing, etc. The endorsements which have already been given are sufficient to show their popularity. These shirts are worn with cuffs and collars attached or detached. The variety of colourings and effects are numerous, and the tendency is to avoid loud patterns. The best effects are stripes, which are made to open in front or back as desired. Three prices—$1, $1.25 and $1.50 each.

DEATH OF MR. F. J. LYNCH.

An Old Scholar Passes Away After a Long Illness.

The death of Mr. F. J. Lynch, of 269 Rubidge street, took place last night at 11.20 o'clock of heart failure. The deceased has been ailing since Christmas and his demise was expected at almost any hour within the last several weeks.

Mr. Lynch was born in the County of Sligo, Ireland, in 1826 and came to Canada in 1845, taking up his residence in Toronto with his uncle, Dr. Bradley, with whom he studied medicine for several years. His inclination, however, was to perfect himself in classics, for which he had a great love. How well he succeeded in the pursuit of his chosen profession of teaching is well known, as few classical scholars of the present day were his equal in this field.

For many years he was headmaster of the Uxbridge Grammar school and afterwards was connected with the separate schools of Guelph, Lindsay Belleville and Peterborough. On retiring from the Peterborough Separate School he was granted a pension as a retired teacher by the Education Department, and has since occupied himself in coaching pupils in special subjects. It is about twenty years since Mr. Lynch first came to Peterborough and about nine years since he retired from active life.

The deceased was married to Miss Margaret Brown in Uxbridge, whilst residing there, and four children blessed the union. Of these two are still living, viz: Mr. D. J. Lynch, of Campbellford, and Mr. J. J. Lynch, of Boston. The deceased was left a widower in 1868, and remarried later in life, but no children were born of this marriage, and in 1893 his second wife also died.

For many years Mr. Lynch's figure has been a familiar one on the streets, and his scholarly opinions were always received with the greatest deference.

The funeral will take place from his late residence on Monday, at 9 a.m., to St. Peter's Cathedral, from whence the remains will be taken to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

The New Treasurer.

Mr. Felix Brownscombe took his declaration of office as Town Treasurer this morning, and is now in possession of his office in the town buildings.

Out of Tooth Powder!

Then get the best. The best is Ivorine. "Best" because it whitens the teeth and does not destroy the enamel. Good as the best in fragrance and cleansing and polishing properties. Better than most, as it contains no acids to destroy. Better than all because pleasant, fragrant, cleansing and whitening, all the good qualities combined. Ivorine for the teeth alone can claim to be the best.

Calcutt's Dublin Porter.

Men and women are all more or less troubled with dyspepsia. Why? Because they suffer from constipation. This is easily cured if attended to. If neglected it will become chronic. Constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of all our sickness. Nature requires assistance to throw off impurities of the system and regulate the bowels. This is what Calcutt's porter will do. Build up your system by the moderate use of this tonic. It does not derange the system but builds it up and consequently adds to your strength and weight. Sold by all leading grocers, only $1.00 per dozen.

The Best Yet.

It would seem that Marks Bros. are reserving their best plays till the last. The bill for last night, "The Great Diamond Robbery" was one of the best, if not the best, of their reportoire. It is full of excitement from start to finish. Mr. T. Marks, as Lawyer Lennox, was fine—"and that's the law. If you don't believe me I'll show it to you." Messrs. Hodge and Kellam both in the role of villains took their parts to perfection. The specialties were grander than ever. Those that were there thought the house was coming down when Miss Myra Collins sang a picaniny solo in the great bar room scene. Having to sing it two times was her punishment for introducing it and then the audience were not satisfied. Miss May A. Bell's specialties were presented and heartily appreciated. To-night the great scenic comedy drama, "The Golden Giant Mine," will be presented.

Passion Play—Production of an Inventive Genius.

The Passion Play Company were to have closed their engagement in Barrie on Thursday night last, but receiving a number requests to remain a few days longer, decided to do so, and will remain here until to-night. This wonderful piece of mechanism has been witnessed by hundreds of our citizens and brings forth only words of praise and admiration, not only for the lesson it teaches but the life-like manner in which the different scenes in the life our Saviour are carefully carried out by inanimate figures and all who have witnessed this attraction are amased at the length of time and amount of study it must have required to complete this wonder. It is a Bible study forcibly told and an object lesson that once seen will linger long in the minds of children and grown people.—Barrie Gazette, Jan. 29th. This wonderful exhibition will be at No. 406 George street, Peterborough, all next week, afternoon and evening. Only 10c and 5c admission. Don't miss it.

A Wonderful Exhibition of Mesmerism.

Read what the Peterborough Examiner of Tuesday, July 9th, 1895, says of Prof. Lee, who opens a week's engagement at the Opera House, Monday night,—Mesmerist Lee is certainly a wonderful man. Last evening he gave an exhibition of his hypnotic powers in the in the opera house, which was interesting and furnished an endless fund of amusement for the large audience which was in attendance. Prof. Lee chose a dozen or so well known young men from the audience for his subjects, and their actions, when under his influence, were positively side-splitting in their comicality. He presented each with a billiard cue and set them fishing over the edge of the stage. The struggles of some of the subjects to land, especially large ones, was more than amusing. The bicycle race, when he mounted each on a chair and set him off, was very funny, too, as was the laughing match. He had his men nearly crazy by telling them that there were fleas down their back, and the actions of a well-known printer, as he rolled on the floor in his efforts to ease himself, were ludicrous in the extreme. Some very strange things were done from a scientific standpoint. One of the subjects were made so perfectly rigid that he was stretched in mid-air with no support but the back of a chair under his head and and another under his feet. While in this position half a dozen men sat on his extended body without making it relax one iota. Another strange and interesting experiment took place when a large hat pin was thrust through a subject's cheek, and another through his wrist, without his experiencing any inconvenience thereby. He walked among the audience to show that there was no fake connected with the affair. Prices 10, 20 and 30c.

A BELATED VET.

A Terrible Experience in the Snowdrifts Last Night.

Dr. Johnson, one of Peterborough's Veterinary Surgeons received a call to Keene last night and started out about one o'clock on his mission to relieve a suffering horse. The night was not only very cold but very dark and the roads were—well, two mile out of town there was no roads at all—that he could see or find. However, he floundered on out of one drift into another, until he struck a mountain of snow, showing a few feet of the tops of the tall pine trees out over the snow. His horse plunged deeper and deeper into the snow until the poor brute had to stop buried up to his head and almost smothered. The alarmed Vet. had to jump to the rescue of his horse and after hard work in kicking away the snow from around his horse's head to give him breathing room. Then unhitching the horse, the cutter was pulled back for half a mile with the horse in tow. After hitching up again our Vet. started back to Peterborough very reluctantly and arrived here about 7 o,clock this morning pretty much used up. The horse and rig were covered with snow and ice and our Vet. looked like one of Prof. Nansen's exploring party from the North Pole.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Paragraphs Picked Up and Pencilled for Public Perusal.

—Look out for a thaw.

—The blockade of the roads is killing business.

—The Riverside skating rink is drawing large crowds these evenings.

—A change in the weather has come at last and the storm may now be considered to be over.

—Young boys and girls are warned against the dangerous practice of "hanging on" sleighs.

—A citizen bought the skin of a black fox the other day for 75 cents and sold it for $35. Not a bad speculation.

—Men are at work cleaning the snow off the roof of the rink. All the large buildings in town are being treated in the same manner.

—At the meeting of the Epworth League of the district, recently held in Belleville, a resolution was passed condemning Sunday bicycle riding.

—Within a few pounds of four tons of wall paper was received at the Peterborough Bookstore to-day. This is only the first of the season's shipment — more to follow.

—We're pushing things in note papers and envelopes. Everything you want in shape, shade and style at the Peterborough Bookstore. A few copies of the February Munsey left at 10c.

—Quite a large number of Kingston citizens employed during the past week drawing surplus snow off the streets, are being summoned for infraction of the by-law relating to carters.

—Treasurer Harcourt's statement of our financial affairs reads well. He says Ontario has "a very substantial and real surplus of $5,078,980," and a cash balance in the banks of $437,580. This is eminently satisfactory.

—Personally to my list of two hundred subscribers of the Ladies' Home Companion, semi-monthly.—I am taking new and old subscribers at forty cents a year. Send 3c. stamp to W. D. Card, 157 Soraurren Ave, Toronto, Ont.

—Hats off ladies! Such is the decision of Judge Johnson, of Denver. It refers to wearing hats at theatres. Hereafter therefore, no hats or bonnets will obstruct the view of the stage. But what about the puff sleeves? They are nearly as bad.

—Ladies! Take the trolley right to our door, and buy a copy of the Spring and Summer Number of the Metropolitan Fashion Book. A. H. Stratton, Peterborough Bookstore.

—The deep snow has its benefits as well as disadvantages. A farmer named James Smith, of Grimsby, who lives on a farm adjoining that on which Mr. Robert Walton, town, recently resided, fell from a windmill, 56 feet in height, and striking the barn in his descent, bounded to the earth. His only injury was a broken arm, the deep snow doubtless acting as a cushion and softening the fall.

CURLING.

At a meeting of the Granites last evening, the following skips were chosen to play in Toronto, viz:—Messrs. Attrill, Allen, Edmison, Weller, Dennistoun and Edwards. In the evening in the Boucher—Davidson medal contest, Messrs. Atrill, Allen and Hatton will play with their skips.

As the results of a couple of matches at the rink last night, the Thistles now only have [a] lead of four points in the Innes medal competition. If the Granites win this trophy honors will be "even up" between them and the Thistles, as the latter club holds the Kendry cup for the season. The games played last evening resulted as follows:

Granites.	Thistles.
J A Cameron,	H Hay,
G M Roger,	E B Clegg,

HOCKEY.

Local hockey enthusiasts will be disappointed to learn that the finals will have to be played off in Toronto again this year, although they were played there last season. Toronto is evidently going to try and win the trophy this year or know the reason why, but they will have to have a greater advantage than playing on their own rink before they can down the boys. There will be an excursion up to the city on Friday and probably a big crowd will go up.

An interesting game of hockey took place at the rink, yesterday, when the Central Colts and the North Stars came together. The teams lined up as follows:

Central Colts		North Stars
Hall	goal	Bradburn
Grose	point	McFadden
Cameron	cover point	Martin
Roy	forwards	Hopkins
Foy		Smith
Ferguson		Brown
Kennedy		Roddy

Umpire—Harry King.
Referee—N. Lewis.

The Central Colts were victorious by three goals to two.

OVERCOME BY GAS.

An Employee of the Gas Company has an Unpleasant Experience.

An employee of the contractor who is putting in the improvements at the gas works met with an accident this morning which nearly cost him his life.

He was engaged, it seems, in completing the interior of a tank when a sudden influx of gas deprived him of consciousness. He was hastily removed by his comrades and taken to his lodgings, where he was revived with difficulty. The effects of the disagreeable experience will be some time in passing off.

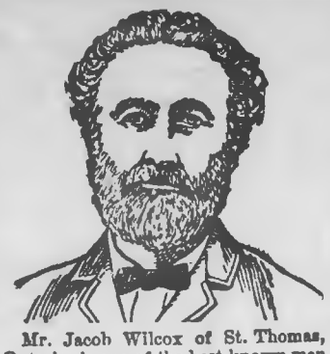
DIED.

LYNCH—In Peterborough, on Friday, February 21st, 1896, F. J. Lynch, aged 70 years. Funeral on Monday morning at 9 o'clock from his late residence, 269 Rubidge street.



Mr. Jacob Wilcox of St. Thomas, Ontario, is one of the best known men in that vicinity. He is now, he says, an old man, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has made him feel young again.

"About a year ago I had a very severe attack of the grip, which resulted in my not having a well day for several months afterwards. I was completely run down and my system was in a Terrible Condition.

I lost flesh and became depressed in spirits. Finally a friend who had been benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla advised me to try it and I did so. I continued taking it until I used twelve bottles and today I can honestly say Hood's Sarsaparilla has restored me to my former health." Jacob Wilcox, St. Thomas, Ontario.

The Passion Play

Excites the admiration of all who see it. It is the work of a German genius, the result of twenty years of study and labour—representing the birth, life and suffering of our Saviour. On exhibition all next week at 406 George street, Peterborough. Admission only 10 and 5c. Endorsed by the clergy and press everywhere.

The Market To-day.

There was plenty of beef on the market this morning, but that was about all as the roads are much drifted to allow of many farmers getting into town. Farm produce and poultry were very high in price. Butter brought 20 cents, eggs from 18 to 20c, chickens from 50 to 75c, turkeys from 75 to $1.50. There were no geese or ducks to be had.

The Same Here.

Our merchants, says the Lindsay Post, are fairly pining for the sight of a farmer's honest countenance, as they have been shut out of town for some days owing to the snow blockade. This morning a farmer living two miles out succeeded in breaking his way in, and was at once surrounded by a crowd of questioners, curious to know how he managed to do so. "Wall," he remarked, "some places my nags walked over the drifts, and some places they fell through, but I allus contrived to dig 'em out before they suffocated."

WHY WOMEN SUFFER.

Nine-tenths of all their troubles arise from disordered kidneys.

And it should be remembered that there is, absolutely, but ONE known and certain remedy for these troubles, and that is

WARNER'S SAFE CURE.

Are you wise if you suffer longer when CERTAIN RELIEF can be obtained?

OUR FREQUENT WINTER VISITORS.

The Pine Grosbeak Which the Absent Robin so Often Personates, by Popular Mistake.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Considerable curiosity has lately been aroused in town owing to the advent of an unusual visitor. Persons passing along Water street have had their attention drawn to the flock of strange birds feeding upon the mountain ash berries and have stopped to admire the bright hues of some of them, or to listen to the strange chattering of the flock. As the visitor is an old acquaintance of mine, I will take the liberty of introducing him to the town:—"Mr. Mayor, this is Mr. Pine Grosbeak (Pinicola Enucleator); Mr. Grosbeak, this is the Mayor of Peterborough, a gentleman noted for his hospitality, who, I doubt not, will extend to you the freedom of the town, together with his protection, upon reading your letter of recommendation:"

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION.

To the Mayor of the Town of Peterborough and others:

I am well acquainted with Pinicola Enucleator and can vouch for him as a Canadian citizen, well known and highly respected among the lumbermen of our northern pineries, where he makes his home. As, owing to the inclemency of the weather and the scarcity of food in his far northern home, the gentleman, with his family, has been driven to your vicinity, I trust you will extend to him the hospitality for which your community is so widely known. Permit me to add that the gentleman will make small demands upon the charity of your citizens, his only requirements being the few mountain ash berries which still cling to the trees in your gardens; and that in return for this privilege he will make ample compensation, enlivening the dreary winter by his bright hues, his lively chattering and his cheery presence.

In order that you may readily identify Mr. Enucleator, and distinguish him from the many impostors (such as the robin, who is often mistaken for him, especially in winter) who infest the country, I append the following description:

Male—Carmine red, paler or whitish on the belly, darker and streaked with dusk on the back; wings and tail dusky, much edged with white, the former edged with two white bars.

Female—Ashy grey, paler below, marked with brownish yellow on the head and rump; length 8 to 9 inches; wing 4¼ inches, tail 4 inches.

Habitat—Northern portion of North America, breeding far north in winter, south irregularly to the northern states in winter.

Nest in a bush, four feet from the ground, composed entirely of moss, containing four slate-coloured eggs tinged with green.

Young—Until a year old, clothed in a uniform of smoky grey.

They are fine, robust birds, of most sociable, gentle disposition. We have often watched them feeding in flocks, sometimes in places where food was not over abundant, but never noticed a quarrel among them, all being willing to share alike. In winter they are gentle and confiding, permitting one to walk among them, barely making room for him to pass.

The male love song is an exquisitely sweet and tender strain, and is sung in such a soft tone that it must be intended for one ear alone, for it cannot be heard a dozen yards away. The bird does not sing thus because he lacks strength of voice, for his winter song is loud and vigorous—just such a breezy carol as you might expect from a stalwart fellow who loves the north wind and who revels amid the snow.

LOCAL BAPTISTS WERE IN CONVENTION.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES DELIVERED YESTERDAY.

Revs. Laflamme and McDiarmid Address Large Meetings in the Murray Street Church.

On account of the extreme uncertainty regarding the possibility of Messrs. H. F. Laflamme and A. P. McDiarmid being present, the attendance at the Baptist convention yesterday afternoon was not as large as it would otherwise have been, but in the evening the church was filled to the doors.

The first speaker was Rev. A. P. McDearmid, missionary secretary of the Baptist church in Canada. He spoke on the spiritual aspect of missionary work. God's thoughts on the subject, he stated, should first be learned before the subject could be properly discussed or undertaken, as the minds of the people were warped very much on this question. Something, he urged, must have been radically wrong when such a sacrifice as the was needed to right the wrong. The world at present was steeped in sin to such an extent that it was repellant to the Almighty, who regarded the present generation as so many whitewashed sepulchres—beautiful without but within full of dead men's bones and uncleanliness.

There was no excuse, he argued, in God's sight for sin. If there was any excuse it would have been for the heathen, but as His presence was revealed to even the heathen through His works in nature, there was no escape for the sinners of any part of the world except by the one way. There was no distinction between sinners. None should be judged by the light or the law which they did not have, but there was no escape for any who transgressed the law of God.

There was nothing in the Scripture, the speaker stated, which confirmed the statement that the heathen would be condemned for refusing a Gospel of which they never heard, but they would be judged according to their light. The heathen had consciences, of their wrongs and by this measure would they be judged.

There was, therefore, no escape from condemnation for anyone except through the special provision which He himself had made through Jesus Christ.

God's thoughts about salvation was found in the sentence, "His name shall be Jesus, for he will save people from their sins." He was not to save them from the penalty of their sins, but from the sin itself. He had rescued us from Satan in order that we might consecrate ourselves to Him. If we did not do this we were utterly lost. Salvation was not the getting into heaven, but the entering into a glorious fellowship with God.

God's plan for the salvation of the world was to use the Christianized nations to convert the heathen. The speaker then enlarged on the awful responsibility resting on Christendom to-day, if God's plan for of the world were thwarted through the the inertness of those to whom the Gospel had been already given.

In urging his audience to consecrate themselves to Christ, he said:

Every true believer belongs to Christ, having been purchased by His precious blood. The recognition of this fact of Christ's property in us ought to be sealed by a definite act of unconditional surrender of ourselves to Him for His service. This should be a very definite transaction between the soul and its Redeemer. There are advantages in writing out and signing this vow of devotion of self to God. It invests the act with peculiar reality, definiteness and binding force. It is well, too that such a vow of consecration should from time to time be solemnly renewed.

If in the soul's purpose there is for fear of what a full dedication of self to God will require in the way of service and self-denial, it is clear that the heart and will are not fully right toward Him.

The consecration God calls for is entire consecration. "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." "All" means all, and not all with the exception of a few things which we prefer to leave outside of the sphere of this law of life in Christ Jesus. It includes the small and common-place things of everyday life as well as the great and extraordinary things. This law of the consecrated life—"all to the glory of God"—abolishes the distinction so commonly made between the

in a Christian's life. Eating and drinking, buying and selling, sweeping and plowing, as well as preaching and praying should be done in the name of the Lord Jesus. Thus every Christian, however busy his or her life may be has time for entire consecration. Consecration does not mean the running away from the duties of daily life, but the bringing of Christ into all the affairs of life. I beseech you, therefore, said he in conclusion, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service. And be not fashioned according to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God." Will you not at once respond to this divine call? Let this moment be marked by the full dedication of yourself to God? To refuse is to persist in the awful crime of robbing God.

REV. H. F. LAFLAMME,

a missionary home on furlough from the Telegu Mission, then made a brief addresss.

In opening the speaker thought that by the evidences of the present day a widespread heresy was pervading Christendom or else the indifference regarding the fate of the heathen was most widespread, as the interest concerning the work amongst the benighted of the world was not what it should be.

The heathen, he explained, were not the innocent people which they were imagined to be. A very few years residence amongst them taught one to lock up everything of value. The heathen knew when they did wrong, as well as did the Christians, though of course their consciences were not as finely developed. They also knew of a judgment to come, but still went on sinning and it was the work of God's people to point out to them the road to salvation and the result of the indulgence in wickedness. If we appear before the Lord Jesus Christ with the awful crime of the neglect of these heathen on our shoulders, will He receive us?

Just at this juncture several hundred of the

and their little friends entered the church and were also addressed by Mr. Laflamme, who soon had every one of the children thoroughly in sympathy with him in his description of "Child Life in India." His narratives of the little naked urchins were both amusing and instructive. The school life of young India received considerable attention at the speaker's hands, after which he gave a most interesting description of a Hindoo wedding in which the participants were only four and two and a half years old, respectively. The deplorable condition of the child-widows of India was then dwelt upon by the speaker, who explained that at the age of twelve years, if their husbands had died in their infancy, they were condemned to a life of the lowest and most debasing nature. It was to rectify such crimes that the missionaries were sent out to India. The idea was to get the children interested and win them for the Saviour. After the little ones were brought to the foot of the throne, it was far easier to reach the parents, whose curiosity was generally aroused before long by the wonderful Bible stories which the little ones repeated at home.

Laid Low by Indigestion.

I was so run down I had to give up work.

Scott's Sarsaparilla the kind that cures.

Indigestion or dyspepsia is the bane of thousands, and is one of the most depressing of afflictions. It arises from an impure or impoverished condition of the blood, which weakens the digestive and assimilative organs, rendering them incapable of performing their natural functions, and if neglected, the sufferer loses flesh, complains of exhaustion after slight exertion, and becomes rapidly debilitated.

Mr. Wm. W. Thompson, a prominent resident of Zephyr, Ont., in a letter dated Aug 12th, 1895, says: "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the fact that Scott's Sarsaparilla has caused a most remarkable change in my condition. I was so much run down I had to give up work and felt as if life were not worth living. Mr. Dafoe induced me to try Scott's Sarsaparilla, and after taking four bottles I am now feeling as I formerly did years ago, and I want to say for the benefit of those suffering from indigestion and feeling, to use slang phrase, 'completely knocked out,' don't despair until you give Scott's Sarsaparilla a fair trial."

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a blood food, it stimulates all vital organs to healthy normal action, enabling them to throw off all poisonous and debilitating humors. Sold by druggists at $1, but there is only one Scott's. The kind that cures.

Sold by J. D. Tully, Peterborough.

ON A BICYCLE TOUR.

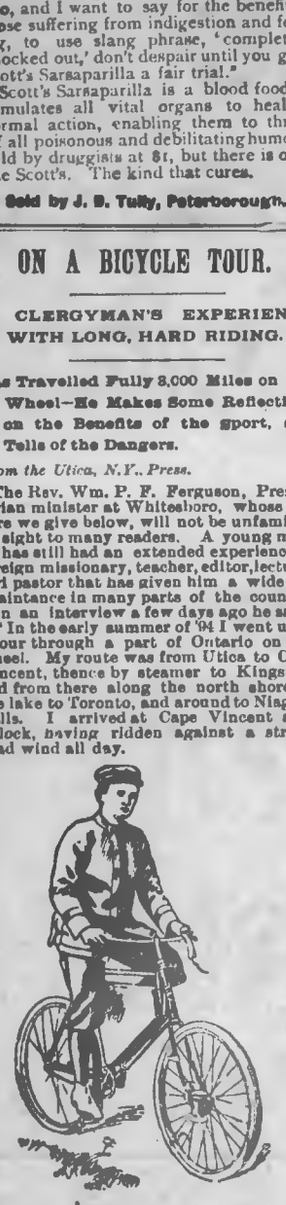
A CLERGYMAN'S EXPERIENCE WITH LONG, HARD RIDING.

Has Travelled Fully 3,000 Miles on His Wheel—He Makes Some Reflections on the Benefits of the Sport, and Tells of the Dangers.

From the Utica, N.Y., Press.

The Rev. Wm. P. F. Ferguson, Presbyterian minister at Whitesboro, whose picture we give below, will not be unfamiliar by sight to many readers. A young man, he has still had an extended experience as foreign missionary, teacher, editor, lecturer and pastor that has given him a wide acquaintance in many parts of the country.

In an interview a few days ago he said: "In the early summer of '94 I went upon a tour through a part of Ontario on my wheel. My route was from Utica to Cape Vincent, thence by steamer to Kingston, and from there along the north shore of the lake to Toronto, and around to Niagara Falls. I arrived at Cape Vincent at 5 o'clock, having ridden against a strong head wind all day.



"After a delightful sail through the Thousand Islands, I stepped on shore in that quaint old city of Kingston. A shower had fallen and the streets were damp, so that wisdom would have dictated that I, leg weary as I was, should have kept in doors, but so anxious was I to see the old city that I spent the whole evening in the streets.

"Five o'clock next morning brought a very unwelcome discovery. I was lame in both ankles and knees. The head wind and the damp streets had proved an unfortunate combination. I gave, however, little thought to it, supposing it would wear off in a few hours, and the first flash of sunlight saw me speeding out the splendid road that leads toward Napanee.

"Night overtook me at a little village near Port Hope, but found me still lame. I rested the next day, and the next, but it was too late; the mischief was done. I rode a good many miles during the rest of the season, but never a day and seldom a mile without pain.

"The winter came and I put away my wheel, saying 'now I shall get well,' but to my disappointment I grew worse. Some days my knees almost forbade walking and my ankles would not permit me to wear shoes. At times I suffered severe pain, so severe as to make study a practical impossibility, yet it must be understood that I concealed the condition of affairs as far as possible.

From being local the trouble began to spread slightly and my anxiety increased. I consulted two physicians and followed their excellent advice, but without result. So the winter passed. One day in March I happened to take in my hand a newspaper in which a good deal of space was taken by an article in relation to Dr. William's Pink Pills. I did not at that time know what they were supposed to cure. I should have paid no attention to the article had I not caught the name of a lady whom I knew. Reading, I found that she had been greatly benefited by the use of Pink Pills, and knowing her as I did I had no doubt of the truth of the statement that she had authorized.

The first box was not gone before I saw a change, and the third had not been finished before all signs of my rheumatic troubles were gone to stay.

"I say 'gone to stay,' for though there has been every opportunity for a return of the trouble, I have not felt the first twinge of it. I have wheeled thousands of miles and never before with so little discomfort. I have had some of the most severe tests of strength and endurance, and have come through them without an ache. For example, one afternoon I rode seventy miles, preached that night and made fifty miles of the hardest kind of road before noon the next day. Another instance was a 'Century run,' the last forty miles of which were made in a downpour of rain through mud and slush.

"You should think I would recommend them to others? Well, I have, and have had the pleasure of seeing very good results in a number of instances. Yes, I should feel that I was neglecting a duty if I failed to suggest Pink Pills to any friend whom I knew to be suffering from rheumatism.

"No, that is not the only disease they cure. I personally know of a number of cures from other troubles, but I have needed them only for that, though it would be but fair to add that my general health has been better this summer than ever before in my life.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred,) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

MANY WINDBAG POLITICIANS.

In the United States Are Now Devoting Their Attention to Spain.

Washington, Feb. 20.—For three hours and a half to-day the Senate was engaged in a debate on the resolution for the recognition of belligerent rights for the Cuban insurgents, and the alternative resolution for the recognition of Cuban independence. The debate was opened by Senator Call (Dem., Fla.), and was continued by Senators Cameron (Rep., Pa.), Lodge (Rep., Mass.), and Morgan (Dem., Ala.). Each speech in succession seemed to outstrip the other in patriotic fervor and in devotion to the Cuban cause, and the speeches attracted applause from the galleries. Senator Morgan declared his belief that Spain would not release her hold upon the throat of Cuba, and that she would rather lose the island as the result of war with the United States than yield it for a price or lose it through the success of the insurrection. At one point in his speech he exclaimed passionately that in a certain event it was "our duty to draw the sword, lay it on the table, and say to Spain, 'if you want to take it up, take it up.'" Mr. Morgan was not able to finish his speech, but will continue it at the next session. Session adjourned till Saturday, when President, pro tem., Mr. Frye is to read Washington's farewell address.

STILL TALKING ABOUT NANSEN.

Many Scientific Eyes are Now Peering Towards the Coveted North Pole.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 20.—At a meeting of the Geographical Society of St. Petersburg held here last evening Senator Semenoff, vice-president of the society, said it would be a premature action to deny that Dr. Nansen had made the discovery of the North Pole. He endorsed the views expressed by Baron Toll, the Russian explorer, who established the Nansen provision depots on the new Siberian Islands, who had said he was convinced that Dr. Nansen was returning by way of the provision depots, and thought it probable that he was lingering on the way in order to recuperate. To this expression, M. Semenoff added the information that M. Kouschnaroff, the Russian trader, who is also Dr. Nansen's agent, had organized a search of the Mammoth, Ivory and New Siberian Islands, and it was probable, he said, that the party had met a member of Nansen's party, perhaps Nansen himself.

TYPHOID LURKS IN WELL WATER.

Many Employes in the Oneida Community are Down with the Disease.

Albany, Feb. 20.—The State Board of Health to-day received word from the Oneida Community branch, located at Niagara Falls, stating that the community was having large number of cases of typhoid fever among its employes. Although the City of Niagara Falls is supplied with drinking water from the Niagara River, the community, believing the water might be defective owing to the stream receiving the sewage of Buffalo, has been getting its supply of drinking water from its wells. The State Board is asked to suggest some method of securing a better supply.

TRAFFIC IN THE ST. MARY'S RIVER.

The United States Authorities are Seeking to Control Their Vessels.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Traffic through the St. Mary's River has become congested by reason of the lack of regulations controlling the movement of vessels through that narrow stream. A bill was favorably reported to the Senate to-day directing the Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe rules and regulations governing the movements and anchorage of all vessels and rafts in that stream from Point Iroquois, on Lake Superior, to Point Detour, on Lake Huron, and instructing the Treasury Department to enforce its regulations by detailing men or revenue cutters for duty on that river.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

THEY COUNT BY THE SCORE

Yea, By the Hundreds, Those Who Have Been Cured of Dire Disease By South American Nervine.

A Remedy Widespread and Universal in Its Application.

Where Other Medicines Have Failed and Doctors Have Pronounced the Cases Beyond Cure, This Great Discovery Has Proven a Genuine Elixir of Life.

The Same Verdict Comes From Old and Young, Male and Female, Rich and Poor, and From All Corners of the Dominion.

If it is the case that he who makes two blades of grass grow where only one had grown before is a benefactor of the race, what is the position to be accorded that man who by his knowledge of the laws of life and health gives energy and strength where languor, weakness and anticipation of an early death had before prevailed? Is not he also a public benefactor? Let those who have been down and are now up through the use of South American Nervine give their opinions on this subject. John Boyer, banker, of Kincardine, Ont., had made himself a hopeless invalid through years of overwork. At least he felt his case was hopeless, for the best physicians had failed to do him good. He tried Nervine, and these are his words: "I gladly say it: Nervine cured me and I am to-day as strong and well as ever." Samuel Selys, of Meaford, was cured of neuralgia of the stomach and bowels by three bottles of this medicine. Jas. Sherwood, of Windsor, at 70 years of age, suffered from an attack of paralysis. His life, at that age, was despaired of. But four bottles of Nervine gave him back his natural strength. A victim of indigestion, W. F. Bolger, of Renfrew, says: "Nervine cured me of my suffering, which seemed incurable, and had baffled all former methods and efforts." Peter Esson, of Paisley, lost flesh and rarely had a good night's sleep, because of stomach trouble. He says: "Nervine stopped the agonizing pains in my stomach the first day I used it. I have now taken two bottles and I feel entirely relieved and can sleep like a top." A representative farmer, of Western Ontario, is Mr. C. J. Curtis, residing near Windsor. His health was seemingly completely destroyed through la grippe. No medicine did him any good. "To three bottles of Nervine," he says, "I attribute my restoration to health and strength." Neither man or woman can enjoy life when troubled with liver complaint. This was the sentiment and feeling of W. J. Hill, the well-known bailiff of Bracebridge. "I was so bad," says he, "that one of my medical attendants said that I was dying, but, thank God, I am not dead yet. From the first few doses I took of Nervine I commenced to feel better, and am to-day restored completely to my usual health." A resident of the Maritime Provinces, in the person of S. Jones, of Sussex, N.B., says: "For twelve years I was a martyr to indigestion, constipation and headache. The treatment of several physicians did not help me. I have taken a few bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say that I am a new man."

A shrewd observer of human nature has said: "The hand that rocks the cradle moves the world." How important it is, then, that health and strength should be made the lot of the mothers of this country. The women of Canada are ready by scores to tell of the benefits that have come to them through the use of South American Nervine. Mrs. R. Armstrong, of Orillia, wife of the colporteur, of the Bible Society of that town, suffered for six years from nervous prostration. Medical assistance did not help. "In all," she says, "I have taken six bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say this is the one medicine that has effected a cure in my case." Mrs. John Dinwoody has been for 40 years a resident of Flesherton, and has reached the allotted three-score years and ten. Three years ago her system sustained a severe shock through the death of a daughter. Nervine was recommended. She perseveringly took 12 bottles of medicine, with the result that she is to-day again strong and hearty. Hundreds of women suffer from impoverished blood and weakened nerves. "All vitality," says Mrs. J. Ballis, of Brampton, "seemed to have forsaken my system. I was unable to get relief from any source until I commenced taking South American Nervine. The results are most satisfactory—greater far than I could have hoped for." It came within the way of Mrs. H. Stapleton, of Wingham, to treat under the best physicians, both in Canada and England, for heart disease and nervous debility, but she failed to get any relief. "I was advised," she says, "to take South American Nervine, and must say I do believe that if I had not done so I would not be alive to-day."

Newspaper space is too valuable to permit of further additions to these earnest words of testimony from those who know just what they are talking about. In the common language of the day, they have been there, and are speaking from the heart. The dozen or more witnesses that here speak have their counterparts by the hundreds, not only in the province of Ontario, but in every other section of the Dominion. South American Nervine is based on a scientific principle that makes a cure a certainty, no matter how desperate the case may be. It strikes at the nerve centers from which flows the life blood of the whole system. It is not a medicine of patchwork, but is complete and comprehensive in its application.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigorous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Most women do not understand their own bodies, or the things that make them well or sick. The most frequent cause of sickness in women is the cause last looked for. A women will go to a doctor when she has a severe cold, or some acute digestive disturbance, but she hesitates and procrastinates when the trouble is with the distinctly feminine organism. And yet the latter is infinitely more serious. It is the most serious sickness that any woman can have. It is the most dreadful—the most dangerous. Its consequences are always serious, and serious right at the beginning because it is debilitating. It saps the life and strength and works on the nerves to such an extent that the whole body is disturbed. Appetite leaves, the color goes from the face and hollows sink into the cheeks. Irritability succeeds good temper and fretfulness takes the place of contentment. Little by little life becomes more and more miserable. The woman is killing herself with neglect just as surely as if she were taking deadly poison. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable examinations and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for 30 years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain and infallible cure for all derangements peculiar to women. Those who care to know all about it, and to receive the best medical work ever prepared for the general public are invited to send 31 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only and receive a copy of Dr. Pierce's 1008 page book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser." HER DRESSING ROOM.

A WOMAN'S INGENIOUS CONTRIVANCE FOR SEEING HERSELF.

As In a Looking Glass—A Home-made Pier Glass and Its Usefulness to the Careful Dressing Woman—Glass in Any Position and Hand Hands Free.

An ingenious woman, has hit upon a clever plan for seeing herself and her new gown as "ithers" see her.

She has recently moved into a flat, says the Detroit Free Press, which, although spacious and handsome, does not possess among its furnishings a long mirror or pier glass. One was absolutely indispensable to the unalloyed happiness and peace of mind of the fair mistress, so she found it necessary to put her wits to work temporarily.

The result is charming to a degree, and satisfactory in every way. In the first place, a looking-glass about three and a-half feet long by two and a-half feet wide was purchased, set in a plain frame of pine wood about four inches wide. This frame was entirely covered with blue and white cretonne, which also forms the wall covering in the pretty bedroom for which the mirror was designed.

The next step was to procure two large, strong hinges and fasten the mirror to the wall, just as shutters or blinds are put up to windows.

The spot chosen for this home-made pier glass is near a window and with the mirror easily adjusted to any angle and all the daylight there is upon it one can take in the details that go to make up the back of one's gown and the rear of one's bodice, to say nothing of back hair.

Then when not in use, the mirror swings back upon its hinges, where it looks like a, staid, respectable bit of furniture against the wall.

Another useful contrivance in the looking-glass line is a hand mirror, which is fastened to the back of a toilet chair. Every woman now-a-days sits behind her mirror while arranging her coiffeur, and the low toilet table with oval looking-glass and toilet chair are adjuncts of every well-appointed dressing room. The advantage of the glass fastened to the chair, is that it leaves both hands free to arrange the hair. The glass can be turned to any angle and in any position; indeed it is almost as useful as a lady's maid and much less bother.

TO MAKE BOILER FUR FLY.

Little Device to Accomplish That and also Soften Water.

One of the latest devices that has come into play in England is a curious contrivance for softening water and preventing the growth of "fur" in kettles and boilers. It is called the "octopus," and considering what it accomplishes, it is such an exceedingly simple little apparatus as to seem something of a wonder. It is briefly nothing but a small metallic disk, surrounded by a circular mass of vegetable fibre.

The principle that governs it is simple. "Fur," so called, is that yellow substance that lines old kettles and is often to be found in lumps at the bottom. Hitherto the only method of getting rid of this was to chip off the excrescences that kept continually increasing. This chipping naturally weakened the boiler or kettle, and after a time made it unfit for service. "Fur" has even worse effects than this, for it sometimes leads to the bursting of boilers by blocking up the pipes.

The new invention, a tiny little affair, is slipped into the vessel, and some unknown power of attraction in the vegetable fibres draws off all the fur from the inner surface of the metal to itself.

How Silk is Adulterated.

Some "improvements" in the treatment of silk are announced. Ordinarily silk is "weighed" by depositing tannate of tin on the fiber; the material receives a bath of tannic acid and then another of perchloride of tin, a repetition of this being made until an increase of the weight amounts to from 15 to 20 per cent., beyond which it is not considered safe to go in the case of silk intended to be dyed shades or to be bleached. Recently a German inventor has brought forward a process in which silica is the weighting agent. In carrying out this method three steps are described. First, the silk, raw or in any stage of manufacture, and either before or after dyeing, is worked for an hour in a bath of perchloride of tin; then, after squeezing and washing, it is worked in a warm solution of water glass or soluble silicate of soda, for about an hour, followed by washing, having also been previously passed through a solution of phosphate of soda. The operation may be repeated again and again, with no harmful effect on the fiber or on the subsequent dyeing, and in five operations the silk may be increased in weight some 100 to 120 per cent. The silk is now soaped, and, if already dyed, is cleared in an emulsion of olive oil and acid.

THE INTENSE HEAT CAUSES HEART FAILURE.

Act Wisely by Keeping Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Always Near by.

The beauty of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is that it gives relief immediately. The testimony of thousands who have used the remedy is that where even death was feared, within half an hour after using the medicine, the danger had passed away, and it was only a short time before the natural composure of the patient returned. The great risk with many who are troubled with heart disease is that they trifle with the disease, either by using medicines that are perfectly useless, or delaying treatment altogether. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the heart always gives ease, and in many desperate cases it has effected an entire cure. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Mistaken Ideas of Tenure.

It has been asserted by someone that every human being has a right to happiness. If that be the case, most of us miss it mightily—that's all we have to say. A good deal of our failure to be happy is our own fault, but much of it is undeserved and purely the fault of others. If we chose to stop and think, we would soon see, also, how we in turn inflict unhappiness upon others in a most uncalled for way.

When we find one of our friends in an irritable mood do we try to soothe him or go away and let him alone? Not by any means. We cast about in our minds to see what suggestions we can make that will irritate him a trifle more. This we do as a wholesome lesson, we profess. We want to teach him that there's no use in getting so cross about trifles. And what are we, that we should set ourselves up as mentors to teach anybody anything! Let them learn their own lessons from life. That is a better teacher than we could possibly be.

Half the unhappiness that comes into children's lives—nay, three-fourths, we may say—arise from the unkind teasing and irritation of those older—even their adult relatives. "Oh, Mary's so cross!" they say, and then they proceed to make her crosser, if possible, by every petty aggravation they can think of. This should be classed under the head of cruelty to children, we think.—Philadelphia Call.

Rheumatic Pains

Require no description, since, with rare exception, all at some time have experienced their twinges. Rheumatism is not easily dislodged, only the most powerfully penetrating remedies reach to its very foundations. The most successful treatment known, and it is now frequently resorted to by medical men, is the application of that now famous remedy for pain—Polson's Nerviline. It is safe to say that nothing yet discovered has afforded equal satisfaction to the suffering, and no matter how bad the case may be Nerviline is sure to cure it. Sold by all druggists and country dealers.

Biliousness and liver complaint, headache, etc., are cured by Burdock Pills.

Venezuelan Cocoa.

A thing to catch the eye and stir the curiosity of the slightseer by its frequency and strangeness of appearance is the native preparation of chocolate. The cocoa beans have simply been mashed to pulp in a stone mortar, squeezed into little balls and cakes between the palms of the hands and dried in the sun. The little gray-brown lumps contain no flour to fraudulently increase their mass; no alkalies to enable "instantaneous preparation" for drinking; no bullock's blood to correct the paleness of the flour; no vanilla and no sweetening. But the connoisseur in chocolate who mashes them, boils them well in milk and sweetens the beverage to his taste will have a rare delight such as he is not likely to find in any manufactured brand. The delicate natural bitter of the beans gives a charming piquancy; and when it comes to sweetening, the common brown sugar of the country (which is made in large sugar loaf shaped molds) seems to blend its rich cane flavor with that of the chocolate in a natural harmony as perfect as that existing between maple sprup and buckwheat cakes.

CARD OF THANKS.

Messrs. Cox & Davis, Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN: I wish to thank you for your promptness in settling the loss on my furniture, which occurred through the upsetting of my coal stove, on Friday night last at 10 o'clock. On being notified next day you were good enough to send over a man to settle the loss in order that I might be able to get the house cleaned up and thereby saved me much inconvenience. From my experience with your office now, it is a source of pleasure for me to feel that my insurance is with you, and I shall not forget to tell my friends.

Yours truly,
MARY ANN O'BRIEN.

VIEWS OF A ROMAN CATHOLIC PRIEST.

Rev. R. C. Lihmann, of St. Mary's R. C. Church, Hamilton, Ont., Tells of the Good Services of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

It is not the case that cold in the head or catarrhal difficulty is unknown in the summer season. Many are suffering today, and in some cases the disease takes the shape of hay fever. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is a most effective remedy in all such cases. Readers of this paper know of the many prominent clergymen of all denominations who have felt it their duty to recommend this remedy. Added to the recommendations of the Rev. Father Hinchey of Hamilton, comes that of the Rev. R. C. Lihmann of St. Mary's R. C. Church of the same city. Ever devoted to the interests of his parishioners, this faithful priest feels that he is doing them a kindness in telling them how this remedy benefitted him in the case of catarrhal trouble. It never fails to benefit anyone. Sample bottle and blower sent on receipt of two 3 cent stamps. S.G. Detchon, 44 Church street, Toronto. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

AN ORANGE RESOLUTION.

Adopted at the Late Meeting of the County Orange Lodge.

The Orange Sentinel publishes the following resolution, moved by Bro. J. E. McWilliams, Past County Master, and seconded by Mr. Robt. Weir, Past County Master, at the recent meeting of the County Orange Lodge. It will be remembered that according to the reports the resolution excited an animated discussion:

Whereas, it has been published in the press of this county and hence throughout the province, that Bro. C. W. Sawers, with what was then called "a number of Bro. Mackenzie Bowell's Orange friends," met on a certain occasion after the result of the late election of North Ontario was known, and there passed a resolution of congratulation to Bro. Bowell on his acquisition of another supporter to coerce and force separate schools on Manitoba; and

Whereas, the said Bro. Sawers has since written said press endeavouring to convey the false impressions that the said meeting was large, influential and representative, and truly voiced the sentiments of the Orange Order in this county: and

Whereas, our County and District Masters promptly repudiated all official connect on with said resolution; and

Whereas, Bro. Sawers appears to have violated the fundamental principle of our Order, viz.: "That we should be slow to take offence and offer none." Be it therefore

Resolved—That this County Orange Lodge hereby expresses its strongest condemnation of the said resolution, which does not embody the sentiments of our Order, and do most severely censure the unbrotherly, unwarrantable and unconstitutional effort made by said Bro. Sawers to degrade our Order, regardless of the consequences, and by using it for personal and political purposes That this County Lodge commend our executive officers in promptly repudiating said resolution, and that this County Lodge desires to express its warm approval of the loyalty to our principles manifested by our Sovereign Grand Master, M. W. Bro. N. Clarke Wallace, by his late actions, which speak louder than words, and which stand out in such marked contrast with the vacillating and time-serving expressions of R. W. Bro. J. L. Hughes, Grand Master of Ontario West, and Bro. Sawers.

IS CAPT. MILLER, OF THE 57TH BATTALION, A BRITISH SUBJECT?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—At the late annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge a resolution was passed condemning Mr. C. W. Sawers for his audacity in claiming that he and a few Orangemen who met in his office were the representatives of the Orange Society in this County. When the vote was taken on said resolution, out of a lodge of over one hundred members, besides visitors, Mr. Sawers only had three members and one visitor to support him, and two of the members had attended his meeting. This vote should show Mr. Sawers how much he is esteemed and respected in the Orange Order here.

At this meeting, also, Mr. Wesley Miller, for the want of something better to do, came to the defence of Mr. Sawers and made a personal attack on Mr. J. B. McWilliams, but if ever a man received a Roland for an Oliver, Mr. Miller did, for, to the surprise of many, the mask which he has worn so long was taken off and he was shown in his true colours. He was accused to his face of being a Yankee filibuster, of being in receipt of a pension from the American Government, although he had never smelled powder, that he had taken the oath of allegiance to the American Government, in which he had sworn to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to every Foreign Prince, State or Sovereignty, ESPECIALLY VICTORIA OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. It was interesting here to notice the look of dismay that came onto Mr. Miller's face and when he fairly wilted under the fire of words from Mr. Williams, (who by the way appeared to be ready on that day for all comers) I thought what would this man do under a fire of bullets.

Now, what I wish to know is, if a man drawing a pension from the American Government does not forfeit that pension when he takes the oath of allegiance to another country, and, if so, how can Mr. Miller be an officer in our volunteer force and an American subject? And if he has taken the oath of allegiance to Great Britain, how does he reconcile his conscience to his former oath when he has sworn to renounce forever all allegiance to Queen Victoria of Great Britain and Ireland?

Another matter that appeared to be a mystery to a few of the members that day was how Mr. Miller could reconcile his actions in coercing Manitoba after the obligation he had taken when joining the P. P. A., viz.:—"That no Roman Catholic should be allowed any part or parcel in the control of or occupy any position in our public schools or hold civic, political or military office in this country, and I believe that only by the removal of Roman Catholics from offices of public trust can justice, right and true Canadian sentiment be fully sustained, etc., etc."

Now, Mr. Editor, I claim to have done my duty in calling the attention of the volunteer force in this matter. In my humble opinion, Mr. Miller should not be allowed to remain in the volunteer force, especially at a time when the Americans are showing such an unfriendly feeling to Great Britain. Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain, yours truly,

CONSISTENCY.

Feb. 21st, 1896.

Weak Young Men or Women

Are seen everywhere. Heredity or overstudy renders them unfitted to cope with the responsibilities of life, susceptible to consumption or decline. Medicine has failed and must fail, for they need food. Take cod liver oil? No! Their poor stomachs rebel. Take emulsions? No! They are equally distasteful. Nothing will effect a cure but Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites. The oil, rendered palatable and easy of digestion, is quickly assimilated, and the maltine, equal in nutrition to the oil, and even surpassing it in energetic action upon the digestive processes, unite in producing increased weight, improved colour, and that elasticity and buoyancy which herald returning health. Maltine with cod liver oil has a remedial value ten times greater than emulsions. Try it.

SECOND CROP OF BARGAINS.

We start the Bargain Ball rolling for February in dead earnest. As there is a good deal of winter yet before us, it is unnecessary to point out the wisdom of buying now.

Our Stock-Taking is over—now for a month of lucky chances and snaps in mid-winter goods. An aftermath of Bargains for shrewd buyers—lines which we laid out during stock taking such as Serges, Cheviots, Heavy Tweeds and other Remnants, to be sold even at HALF REGULAR PRICES.

We don't want to carry winter lines past their regular selling season, so you may figure on getting pretty nearly your own way in prices.

You need the goods—we need the room they occupy—so there is mutual benefit all round in the selling of them.

Our New Spring Stock is wheeling into line, and we are glad to tell our lady friends that part of our programme for Spring is a NEW MILLINERY DEPARTMENT, of which we will tell you more in good time.

We don't "rest-up" during the winter months and take things easy until Spring. Business is full of worn-out, tired-out men who live almost wholly in the past and struggle for the success that never comes. And because of that they find fault with the times. While others are resting we're simply HUSTLING.

MR. SCOTT WANTED TO DIE

A HEADLONG JUMP INTO THE ROSEDALE RAVINE.

A Former Toronto Merchant Deliberately Suicides—One of the Saddest Cases in the History of This City — The Story of Strollers Who Witnessed the Tragic Act.

Toronto, Feb. 24.

James Scott, for many years a drygoods merchant in Toronto, deliberately suicided by jumping 120 feet to the ground from the highest of the Rosedale bridges at the second ravine, at about 11 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Deceased left his home at 90 Carlton-street shortly after breakfast and went out presumably for a stroll. His family never saw him alive afterwards. The suicidal jump was witnessed by several people, who were on the bridge and whose stories all show the act to have been premeditated.

When his pockets were searched to discover his identity, he had a paper with a paraphrase of Holy Scripture written in a clear hand on it, and containing the words, "What must I do to be saved?" to which was added, "I believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and, therefore, I am saved."

Dr. W. H. Howitt, 100 Carlton-street, an intimate friend of deceased, and who has been his medical attendant for some years, has had Mr. Scott continually under his care for the past 18 months, during which time he had been in a distressed state of mind, but the Doctor remarker, that latterly Mr. Scott had been much better and was almost cheerful. Dr. Howitt is of opinion that deceased was seized with an uncontrollable impulse to jump from the bridge.

Mr. Scott was 72 years of age, and came here from Peebles, Scotland, over 50 years ago. He was a handsome and dignified old gentleman, always scrupulously dressed, and bearing the air of a man well-to-do and living a happy life. His home at 90 Carlton-street is a beautiful place.

He leaves a widow, five grown up children, two sons, James and Robert, and three daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Charles Cockshutt, the others being unmarried. Mr. Robert Scott has been in England and sailed on Saturday from Liverpool for New York. He is, therefore, unaware of the sad death of his father.

Mr. Scott was a gentleman of the old school, and in business and financial circles he bore a reputation for unflinching probity. For 40 years he had been in business in Toronto. Years ago the firm was known as Scott & Laidlaw, and more recently as James Scott & Son, the old gentleman's two sons having been taken into the partnership after Mr. Laidlaw's retirement. The business in King-street was a large one in its day, and enjoyed gilt-edged patronage, selling the finer lines of goods.

Mr. Scott's increasing age prevented him taking a sufficiently active part in affairs to stem the tide of competition from the departmental stores, and the profits gradually decreased, until a year ago the firm decided to retire. A few months ago the stock was sold to W. A. Murray & Co., and Mr. Scott retired. He still had a generous fortune, however, and will leave probably $100,000.

Mr. Scott was a director of several financial and charitable institutions. He was a director of the Dominion Bank, of the Western Bank, North American Life Assurance Company, vice-president of the Farmers' Loan Company, and a member of several charitable and fraternal organizations.

One of Mr. Scott's unfortunate ventures was his investment of $40,000 in the Belt Line, for which he received no returns.

In religion Mr. Scott was a Presbyterian and had been a member of Knox Church since his arrival in the city in 1850, leaving him in all probability the senior member of the congregation at his death. He was for many years a member of the Board of Management, resigning only last year. At the morning service yesterday Rev. Dr. Parsons made a sympathetic allusion to the loss the congregation had sustained by the deplorable tragedy of Saturday.

Mr. Scott's Last Words.

Hon. John Beverley Robinson was one of the last to speak to the unfortunate man. About 12 o'clock the Ex-Lieutenant-Governor was crossing the bridge and met Mr. Scott, with whom he shook hands. In response to his greeting, Mr. Scott said: "I'm not a very well man. I'm not in good health." He seemed despondent, and Mr. Robinson advised him to go away for his health. When at the city end of the bridge, Mr. Robinson, glancing back, saw Mr. Scott standing near where he had left him.

Mr. Robinson relates how Samuel Morley, the famous London merchant and philanthropist, father of Arnold Morley, visited Toronto while he was Lieut.-Governor of the Province, and enquired particularly after Mr. Scott, with whom he had been connected for 30 years, and for whom he had a very cordial feeling of friendship.

THE BOOTHS AND THE ARMY.

A Likelihood That the Veteran General Will Lose Control in the States.

New York, Feb. 23.—Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth have relinquished their command in the Salvation Army. They made known this action in a "manifesto" issued yesterday, in which they take the ground that the step was forced upon them.

Herbert Booth, who has heretofore had charge of the Salvation Army in Canada, has taken possession of the office at the headquarters in this city, and it is understood, is now, temporarily at least, in command of the army in the United States.

By the general public this manifesto will be construed as indicating strained relations in the Booth family, which have heretofore been entirely unsuspected, and which may have an important bearing on the future relations of the Salvation Army in this country to the parent organization.

Commander and Mrs. Booth state that, "owing to conscientious feelings and private reasons, which were well known to the General," they were unable to undertake the duties of a foreign command, and made known in London their decision not to accept such an appointment.

But, they state, Commandant Herbert Booth, at midnight on Thursday, "with most positive and uncalled for precipitation, with the authority of International Headquarters, demanded that we hand over our keys and offices by 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning We had, therefore, no alternative, but to accept our peremptory dismissal."

After this statement of the manner in which Herbert Booth treated his brother, many members of the Salvation Army will find it difficult to yield to him that loving and loyal obedience which the best interests of the army demand.

After the meeting in the Charles-street house was over, Ballington and Mrs. Booth packed up all their belongings and early yesterday morning removed them from the headquarters in Fourteenth-street. They had not returned up to late last night at their home, in Montclair, N.J., and every one connected with the Army declared last night that they were ignorant of their whereabouts.

New York, Feb. 24.—Commander Ballington Booth of the Salvation Army last night announced to the members of his staff that he had decided not to relinquish command of the army in the United States, and that under no circumstances would he take orders from England. This was taken to mean that he will reorganize the army in this country on an independent basis, and it was received with cheers and other demonstrations of approval.

Herbert Booth's Side of It

Toronto, Feb. 24.

"Commandant Herbert Booth desires to state to the press of the United States and Canada that the reports current in the newspapers to the effect that he summarily demanded the handing over of his brother's commissionership in New York are incorrect. His presence and that of his sister, Field Commissioner Eva Booth, is accounted for by the fact that Commander Booth had, some weeks back, notified the International headquarters of the Army of his intention to resign, and had refused to take another command. Commandant Booth was on this account instructed by headquarters to proceed to New York and exert a brother's influence to prevent so serious a calamity and so irreparable a loss. This he did, in conjunction with his sister Eva and Colonel Nicol. They spared no effort affectionately to entreat the commander and his wife to accept one of the several proposals suggested by headquarters to postpone, if not prevent, the catastrophe. No demand of the character stated was made, but the necessity of a temporary withdrawal of the resignation was urged, as also a visit to England for the purpose of personal conference with the General. Commandant Booth wishes further to state that it is untrue he had any inclination or desire to succeed his brother in New York. The very opposite is the fact, as it is well known to Commander Booth, and as can be proved by documentary evidence in his possession and in London, some of it dating back before these difficulties arose. Beyond the duties of counsellor and brother above referred to, the commandant did nothing while in New York. He interfered in no way with that command, and refused absolutely to accept any responsibility for his brother's action. He returned to his post immediately he found that his efforts had failed, and is at the present moment absolutely ignorant of the nature of his next appointment."

STRATHCARRON BADLY INJURED.

Hundreds of Tons of Sugar Have Been Destroyed—She Encountered Furious Weather.

Louisbourg, Feb. 23.—(Special)—A 14-year-old boy here named McLean jumped from a loft and a pronged fork entered his lungs, causing hemorrhage. Death resulted in a few hours.

Divers find the damage to the steamer Strathcarron, Capt. Splatt, thirty days from Java, with 4000 tons of sugar, short of coal and provisions, more serious than anticipated, and they may cause weeks of delay. The steamship is now anchored safely in old Louisbourg's historical harbor, with four fathoms of water in her forward hold. Hundreds of tons of sugar were destroyed. The captain reports encountering terrific seas, furious weather, with hurricanes, and large quantities of drift ice. The steamer struck the reef in a heavy sea off the lighthouse ledge, without a pilot. The captain cabled the Glasgow owners, and the Halifax agents arrived to-day by a special train, promptly supplied by the Dominion Coal Company's line, known as the Sydney and Louisburg Railway.

Mrs. Maybrick May be Released.

London, Feb. 23.—It is probable that the Home Secretary will this week publish an announcement of the release of Mrs. Maybrick, who was convicted some years ago at Liverpool of poisoning her husband, and whose continued imprisonment has excited wide-spread sympathy here and in America.

THEY MET IN THOUSANDS

AND PROTESTED AGAINST THE COERCION OF MANITOBA.

Enthusiastic Torontonians Crowd into Massey Hall—Legislators and Citizens Joined Hand in Hand in Passing Resolutions in the Form of a Petition to Parliament Against the Remedial Bill.

Toronto, Feb. 24.

Five thousand three hundred persons crowded Massey Hall on Saturday night to protest against the Remedial Bill for Manitoba. Fully one thousand persons failed to gain admission. Never since the visit of Mr. Laurier, 12 months ago, has there been so much interest shown on the part of the citizens to be present at a political meeting. The great significance of Saturday evening's gathering is in the fact that amongst the hundreds of persons on the platform and the thousands in the body and galleries of the vast hall, were men of all political parties.

Supporting ex-Mayor Clarke were both Liberal and Conservative members of Parliament, also the distinguished leader of the Third Party, Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., M.P.; members of the Ontario Legislature, prominent professional and business men, and a very large number of prominent Orangemen. Seeing that the platform accommodated 450 persons, it is manifest how general the response had been to the invitation of the committee.

A series of strong resolutions was unanimously passed and a petition embodying their gist and the sense of the meeting was adopted to the Dominion Government.

A notable incident of the meeting was the groans and hisses evoked when letters of apology for non-attendance were read from Mr. Cockburn, M.P., and Mr. Coatsworth, M.P.

Mr. Mulock, M.P. for North York, moved the first of the series of resolutions, as follows:

1. The jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament in educational matters is exceptional and, while we may not be united as to whether such jurisdiction ought to exist, we are absolutely unanimous that it ought not to be resorted to except in cases of a gross and clearly proven abuse of the power of the majority in any province, and after all other efforts to remedy the grievance have been exhausted.

2. That in the case of the Province of Manitoba, no such abuse has been proven, but that on the contrary, the provincial authorities have alleged that their system is framed with a due regard to justice as well as efficiency, have courted investigation, and have declared that in amending the system from time to time they will endeavor to remedy any well founded grievance that may be found to exist.

The invitation to come here, continued Mr. Mulock, was worded in language breathing peace and unity. I responded in the spirit of that invitation, but first I consulted my political leader, Mr. Laurier. (Cheers.) In the same spirit, he answered, "I approve of your going to that public meeting. Take with you and tell to them a message." This message is to the effect that in Mr. Laurier's judgment he believes that the efficacy of conciliation is more powerful than the efficacy of force. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. D. Craig, M.P., seconded the resolution, stating that although a Conservative, he felt compelled to withdraw his support from the Government on this matter.

The resolution was then put and carried.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., received a great ovation on rising to move the second resolution, as follows:

That the proposed Federal measure will be difficult, if not impossible, to enforce, will embarrass the provincial authorities in their endeavor to maintain an efficient system of education, and will in all probability be productive of strife, confusion and costly litigation.

That a conflict between the Federal and provincial powers will arouse deep-seated discontent in Manitoba, and will tend to destroy the harmony which is essential to the successful working of Confederation, and that such a conflict ought by all honorable means to be avoided.

Mr. McCarthy said: I do not know very well how I am to introduce myself this evening, for, unlike my friend Mr. Mulock, I have not any leader to consult—(laughter and cheers)—and unlike my friend Mr. Craig, I have not felt it necessary to come here feeling that I ought to have consulted a leader. I am here, not because I have discovered, within the last few months, that this Manitoba question is a grievance, but because from the outset I have taken firm ground and I have held strong opinions, which I cannot feel are partisan opinions.

Turning to the immediate object of the meeting, Mr. McCarthy said: It has been conclusively demonstrated and is beyond dispute that when the Legislature of Manitoba passed the law, of which Mr. Joseph Martin was the author, and abolished the Separate school system, which had proved inferior to Public schools, the Legislature was within its rights, that the law which was passed was right; and, being right and constitutional, the question arises, how is it that the great Dominion of Canada is called upon to determine whether a school system of one of the provinces, which has been in existence since 1890 and been approved on two occasions by a practically unanimous vote, shall be interfered with by the Dominion Government?

Do the people of Manitoba, asked Mr. McCarthy, call for our interference? (Shouts of "No") Their vote two months ago gives the answer. Further, do the Roman Catholics of Manitoba call for our interference? ("No.") I say that the Catholic laity are better satisfied with the Public school system than with the pretence of education they got formally. (Cheers.) Who, then, is invoking our interference and rending this Dominion almost in twain in order that Separate schools may be established in Manitoba? The people who are doing it are the hierarchy, the SMALLER COUNCILS DESIRABLE.

Mr. Stratton's bill to reduce the number of members of city and town councils proposes a radical departure from old-time methods. It is, however, a step in the right direction. Probably the most serious objection to the bill is that the step is too big a one to take all at once. The Government have announced their intention of introducing a bill to reduce the size of county councils. A reduction in the membership of city councils is quite as much called for, and the Government should either incorporate Mr. Stratton's idea in their own bill or support the general principle embodied in his. As far as Toronto is concerned, we think the citizens would be better represented by a council of 12 members instead of 24. A reduction to one third would be too big a strain at once. A better idea to start with would be a reduction by one-third. Mr. Stratton's suggestion to abolish wards and have the aldermen elected by a general vote of the electors of the whole city would be more acceptable if this method of election were limited to one-half the members, the other half being elected to represent wards as at present. Toronto's council ought to consist of 12 members, six elected by the city at large and six elected by the wards. An election held on this basis would bring out a better class of candidates, and elevate the tone and increase the business capacity of the council.—Toronto World (Conservative.)

SIR CHARLES TUPPER doesn't carry anything very long on the slate when his own interests are concerned—he believes in prompt payment. Mr. McKeen, who resigned his seat to permit Sir Charles Tupper to run, has been appointed a Senator.

THE Dominion Finance minister proposes to borrow three million dollars to purchase arms for the Canadian Militia. This sudden interest in the volunteer force has a jingoish appearance. There is no present necessity for putting—at such an enormous expense—new arms into the hands of the volunteers. The volunteer militia has been so long and so shamefully neglected, that the first thing they require is re-organization from the bottom. Money now spent on expensive staff officers should be divided and a large share devoted to giving the volunteers proper opportunities for drill, without which they cannot be properly disciplined. And discipline cannot exist in a force which is excusably soured by official neglect and ill-treatment. There can be no esprit du corps where the members of the volunteer force feel and know, that their needs are ignored, and the money that should be devoted to thorough drill and decent clothing is wasted on a comparatively useless fuss and feathers department. Our volunteers are worthy of the best arms that can be provided, but they need something else worse—they need decent recognition at the hands of Government officials.

SOME OF THE MEMBERS.

The Toronto Evening Star in a resume concerning the characteristics of the principal members of the Legislature, says:

Then there is a class of young men who don't intend to remain humble private members in local politics their whole life long and are as energetic, enthusiastic and talkative as school boys. These men went into politics without much urging and expect to shine as noble lights in Canadian political history. In this class are Mr. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough, Col. Matheson, Lanark, T. W. Chapple, Uxbridge, and Mr. O. A. Howland, Toronto.

The constituents search through the long-drawn-out reports of the House, and often gaze in vain for the name of their member. They may think that he is not doing his work if they don't see his name frequently. This is a mistake, for the real work for the average member is done in committee, and very few men speak often, if at all. Besides the ministers Messrs. J. T. Garrow, E. J. Davis, J. R. Stratton and Jas. Conmee do the talking for the Government. Mr. Whitney does the heavy work for the Conservatives, and he is assisted principally by Messrs. Marter, Matheson and Willoughby. Mr. Joseph Haycock is alone among the Patron orators.

MORE DEVIL THAN HUMAN

Were the Masked Highwaymen Who Mortally Injured Paul Osman.

Shamokin, Pa., Feb. 23.—The most fiendish attempt at robbery ever brought to public notice here was perpetrated yesterday morning at Luke Fiddler Colliery. Paul Osman was actually boiled in steam by three masked men, and the doctors say he cannot possibly recover. The victim resides at Hickory Ridge, and when on his way home from Shamok'n, he was stopped near Luke Fiddler by the masked robbers. The highwaymen seized and ran him to a pipe close by, which emitted steam and boiling water from the mine. They told him that unless he gave up $100, which they said he had when he left Shamokin, they would boil him over the pipe. Osman begged his tormentors to release him, maintaining that he had no money. The robbers then held him over the escaping steam to torture him into submission. Osman was not over the steam a minute before large strips of skin came off his neck. He shrieked in agony for help, but his cries were unheard. He finally fainted from pain, and the wretches, thinking him to be dying, laid him upon a pile of planks and fled. Miners discovered the unfortunate man senseless an hour later. He was removed to his home and the physicians found that one side had been burned to the bone from his knee to the neck. He cannot possibly recover. The police are looking for the robbers.

Pearce enquiring if he is the owner of the old Cobourg Railway, or if it lapsed back to the owners of the land through which it runs. The enquiry is made with a view to having it assessed. The following accounts were ordered to be paid: Peterborough Hardware Co., wire for snow fence and one stone hammer, $3 87; John Duff, provisions for Jas. Healy, $5, and Patrick Burk, $3; John Brown, provisions for Jas. Healey, $5; Jeremiah Fitzgerald, cedar, $2.25; J. M. Drummond, registering births, deaths and marriages, $11.90; D. P. Council adjourned to the 16th of March.

COLDSPRINGS—OTONABEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.

Two of the most popular young people of Coldsprings, Miss Martha Mann and Mr. Robert S. Bennett, were united in marriage on Wednesday evening, Feb. 19th, by Rev. J. E. Trotter, of the Murray street Baptist church, Peterborough, at the residence of Mr. John Bell. Only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present. After the ceremony the wedding supper was served, and a few hours were then pleasantly spent in social intercourse. The bride's popularity was further proven by the handsome array of presents which she received. Many will take the opportunity of wishing Mr. and Mrs. Bennett very many happy years of wedded bliss.

How to Stand Properly.

The candidate for grace has to learn to stand properly before she is taught anything. She may not plant herself firmly on her heels. Her weight must rest on the balls of her feet, so that the heels are free to rise and fall. The stomach must be in and the chest must be out. When a girl can stand in this position on a chalk line and sway back and forth without losing her balance she has mastered the first principle of grace.

The Season's Depression.

"This weather is very trying for everybody," said the physician.

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "I don't see how my wife is going to bear up under it. When the sun doesn't shine it gives her the blues and when it does she says it's fading the carpet."

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. Black Death was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than either of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing, constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, and distress after eating. The little help that is needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Once used they are always in favour. The Clerk read the following letter from the County Clerk:—

Below I give you a copy of clause eleven of the report of the committee of the County Council on roads and bridges, which was adopted by the County Council when in session on the 1st inst.:

Your committee recommend that this county build the bridge on the concession line to the east of the bridge commonly called Steel's bridge, in the Township of Asphodel, provided the Township of Asphodel assumes said Steel's bridge and all liability with respect thereto and relieve this council therefrom.

E. PEARCE,
County Clerk.

Peterborough, 5th Feb., 1896.

Mr. Tudhope addressed the council, asking them to go on and build the bridge across the Ouse on the concession line east of Steel's bridge and have the concession line made fit for public travel, and the road at present used in lieu thereof closed.

Moved by Messrs. Oakman and McMillen that council will take proceedings to finish the new road on the concession line between the 2nd and 3rd concession on lot 6, so as to give Mr. Tudhope his land cut off by the road on the east half of his lot.—Carried.

The council agreed to go in a body on Monday, the 17th inst., at 2 p.m., to examine the ground.

Mr. Oakman gave notice that at the next meeting of council he would introduce a by-law rearranging the rates to be paid for the town hall by the different parties using the same.

Moved by Messrs. Oakman and McMillen, that the collector be directed to return his roll on or before the next meeting of the council.—Carried.

THE MEMBERS AT OTTAWA DON'T KNOW WHERE THEY ARE AT.

They Are Waiting Patiently for Something Easy to Turn Up—Does Sir Donald Smith Bring Peace?—What is Greenway Going to the Capital for?—Is Mr. Macdonell a Member.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—(Special.)—The situation is one of uncertainty and expectancy; uncertainty, because in these days of caucusing and conferring one can never foretell what a day may bring forth expectancy, because it is known that when Sir Donald Smith arrives here he will have important news to tell respecting a prospective change in the attitude of the Government of Manitoba on the school question. The most dangerous phase of this dispute is the prospective withdrawal, by the action of Parliament in legislating on this matter from Manitoba, of one of the principal subjects which the B.N.A. Act assigns to the provinces, the subject of education. In so legislating the Federal Parliament would be acting within its undoubted rights, but every right thinking man concedes what a boon it would be if such a contingency could be avoided. If Sir Donald Smith is therefore coming to Ottawa as the herald of peace, his message of goodwill will be gladly received by both sides of the House.

The other evening I mentioned that one side dreads and dislikes Remedial legislation as much as the other. The Liberals, especially the Quebec men, are in a blue funk over it. The Ministers are reticent respecting the conference which some of the Rouges have had with them; indeed, one Minister went so far as to deny that such a thing had taken place, but there is abundant evidence to prove that Messrs. Lavergne, Choquette and Beausoleil had a conference with three or four Ministers on this very subject on Friday. While looking towards the Ministerial benches for light, the Quebec Liberals are not idle in other directions. Last week they all signed and transmitted to Mgr. Begin, coadjutor of Cardinal Taschereau, a letter in which they begged him not to split up the Catholic contingent by the direct intervention of the hierarchy in the school dispute. It is said this letter warned Mgr. Begin that public opinion in Quebec is greatly excited on this question, that half the people of the province believed the Remedial Bill inefficacious; that Mr. Laurier may confidently he counted upon to render justice to the Catholic minority, and that the Catholic faith will be subjected to a great trial if the Remedial law is forced upon them. It is said that Mr. Tarte transmitted this letter to the hierarchy in the name of his colleagues.

A novel point has been raised as regards the right of Mr. G. H. Macdonell, M.P. for Algoma, to sit and vote in the House, and by some authorities it is thought that it may be necessary to pass a private bill to protect him from the pains and penalties attached to taking part in the business of the House without being a duly elected member. Colonel Amyot has given notice of a question, asking the date of Mr. Macdonell's election and of the return, etc. In 1891, the general date for the return of the writs was April 25, but it was some 20 days after the date ere the writ reached the hands of the returning officer for Algoma. It is now argued that the writ was dead when it reached the returning officer, and that that official should have made a special return and asked for a new writ. This was not done, however, but the election was held. Mr. Macdonell was returned and took his seat on June 3. The penalty for sitting unlawfully is $500 a day, and $2000 every time the offender votes. There would probably be no opposition to the passage of a special act to protect Mr. Macdonell, as there is no doubt whatever that he has acted with honest intent and in perfect innocence of any intention of wrongdoing. The question has come to the front by Col. Amyot's motion.

It is understood not to be the intion of the Government to introduce any legislation this session changing the law as regards the grain standard. the question is one on which such great diversity of opinion exists that the Government naturally desires to secure the fullest information on the subject, with a view to harmonizing the different interests involved. Then, besides, it looks as if very little legislation of a public character will go through this session, and with April 21 looming up the Government has enough work for Parliament to complete by the date named.

During the past two days Hon. J. F. Wood has received a number of representations regarding changes in the tariff. A Montreal firm has asked that duties on lamp chimneys, china ware and crockery be increased. A Western firm asks that castor oil of low grade be admitted free for lubricating purposes; low grade olive oil is within this category and castor oil is admitted to be a better lubricant. A Toronto manufacturer, who had previously represented that he could manufacture all classes of worsted yarns for Brussels and Wilton carpets now finds that he is not able to compete with the lower grades and asks that these be placed on the free list. He will confine himself hereafter to making yarns of higher grade.

G. B. H. Morin of St. Pierre, Montmagny, Que., who was doing a life sentence for murder in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, is now a free man. Lord Aberdeen signed Morin's pardon yesterday. In April, 1890, Morin was convicted and sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a friend named Roy. They were on a spree together and the murder was the result of a drunken row in an hotel. The trial was a long one, Mr. Choquette, M.P., defending the prisoner. Morin had three respites after the death sentence was passed. The case passed through all the courts and was before the Supreme Court here when the judges were divided, three for and three against. Finally Sir John Thompson recommended to council that the death sentence be changed to imprisonment for life. This was adopted by the Council, and approved of by His Excellency. Morin was sent to St. Vincent De Paul. After putting in five years he will now regain his liberty.

It is stated to-night that Premier Greenway may be expected here in two or three days.

Father Lacombe's letter still affords lots of talk. The venerable priest was in the Commons chamber and had a vigorous discussion with Mr. Choquette, M.P.

THE PRISONERS ARRIVE.

Jameson and His Fellow Invaders Have Arrived at Southampton.

Plymouth, Feb. 23.—The British steamer Harlech Castle, from Port Natal, Jan. 28, arrived here at 3.05 o'clock this morning, having on board 305 troopers who took part in Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal, and who were compelled to surrender to the Boers. These men were turned over to the English authorities by the Boer Government, and the former ordered that they be brought to England. The officers of the expenditure, including Dr. Jameson, are on the transport Victoria, which is expected to arrive some time during the night. Among the men on the Harlech Castle three were sick.

Scarcely before half-past 11 o'clock a tender went alongside the Harlech Castle. The troopers were all mustered on the deck of the steamer, and their transfer to the tender was quickly accomplished. It was thought that much enthusiasm would be displayed on their arrival here, as there is scarcely a doubt that their raid, illegal though it was, caused much popular admiration in England. The fact did not bear out the expectation. There was no crowd present to witness their disembarkation from the tender, and there was no cheering.

A majority of the troopers were attired in the police uniform of the British South Africa Company, but a number of them were nondescript garments. Overcoats and other clothing suitable to this climate were supplied to them, and they then looked far more comfortable than they did in the early morning. They are a hardy looking lot of men. Their ages range from 20 to 35 years. Many of them belong to some of the best families in England, having gone to South Africa, where they could do work which had they done it here would have caused them to be looked down upon by their acquaintances.

The representative of the United Press interviewed a number of the men. Their stories of the fight which ended in their surrender at Krugersdorp varied widely. Some of them stated that when they surrendered to the Boer force their ammunition had been exhausted, while others declared that there was no lack of ammunition. They all agreed that the Boers lost from 170 to 200 men killed, though this has been denied by the Boers themselves. One of the complaints that have been repeatedly made against the Boers' method of warfare is that they will not face their foes in the open, hiding behind trees and rocks, and picking off their enemies without themselves being seen. If they followed this method in their attack on Dr. Jameson's force, and it has been repeatedly stated that they did, it is hard to understand how their loss could have been so heavy as the troopers claim. One of the men, however, said that he had seen the official Boer return of their dead, and that this showed that 182 were killed.

In one particular all the troopers were in hearty agreement, and that was in denunciation of the Uitlanders of Johannesburg, who, they declared, had induced them to enter the Transvaal, and then did not dare to raise a finger to help them though they had a large and well-armed body of men, who, if they had been sent to Dr. Jameson's aid would have put an entirely different face on the affair. The men were very bitter in their expressions against the Johannesburgers.

Shortly after the troopers had been landed they were supplied with railroad tickets at the expense of the Government, and all were immediately shipped to their homes. Many of them are Irishmen and Scotchmen. Some have large interests in Mashonaland, and expect to return to South Africa when quiet is restored there. A number of the men said that the Gold Field of Mashonaland Company would give all of the party a bonus of $100 in London.

A large number of newspaper men are here. Their interest is centred in Dr. Jameson and the officers on the Victoria, and every effort will be made to secure interviews with them. It is thought, however, that the Government has made arrangements to prevent the prisoners from being talked to by the press representatives.

The transport Victoria anchored in the Sound at midnight. As soon as it was learned that she had arrived a boat that had been chartered by the press representatives put out to her. When the press boat attempted to run alongside the transport she was warned off, the warning being accompanied by the information that no communication would be allowed with the prisoners.

Several officers of the Victoria were on deck, and they were questioned at long distance regarding Dr. Jameson and his officers. They declined to give any information beyond the statement that all the prisoners were well and that Dr. Jameson was asleep. It is believed that for the present the precautions taken by the Government will prevent any of the prisoners being interviewed.

Paris, Feb. 21.—John L. Mr. Waller said: "I feel highly elated to find myself free after 11 months incarceration, under condemnation tof solitary confinement for 39 years, whichm was equivalent to eternity. I am in good health and scarcely suffer at all now from the Madagascar fever, which made such terrible havoc among the French troops in Madagascar. CECIL RHODES A HOO-DOO.

He is Bound for Delagoa Bay and Twice His Steamer Goes Ashore.

Port Said, Feb. 21.—The German steamer Kanzler, from Hamburg, for Delagoa Bay, which went ashore Jan. 31 near Amsterdam, and was floated the same day and proceeded, is again ashore at Ismailia.

She lies in a position which makes her an obstruction to navigation of the canal. Her cargo is being discharged. Cecil Rhodes, ex-Premier of Cape Colony, is a passenger on board the Kanzler.

London, Feb. 21.—The Government have approved the course pursued by the British South Africa Company, and have appointed Earl Grey to conjointly with Cecil Rhodes in the administration of the affairs of the territory controlled by the Company in South Africa.

How the Kidneys Talk.

They have a Language of their own.

Kindeys can't talk, but if you don't treat them rightly you will hear from them. They have a language of their own, and this is how they speak to you; You stoop or strain, ride too far, walk too much, work too hard and rest too little; then your back aches, and your head aches, and you ache all over.

Oh! you say, it's because I'm tired out. Now, this isn't true. It's because your kidneys are tired.

They can only do just so much and the lifting, stooping, straining or exciting has retarded their action.

The heart has pumped the blood into them faster than they could filter it. The filter is overtaxed and becomes clogged. They cry for assistance in the many symptoms that follow.

There is dull headache, backache, pains in various parts of the body, scalding of the urine, high colored urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the legs and all the other conditions that go with kidney disorders.

Why do the kidneys thus tell you their troubles in language so plain as to be unmistakable?

So that you may be warned in time. Will you heed the warnings?

If so, you will use Doan's Kidney Pills. Nothing starts the kidneys working so quickly. Remember "Doan's." It is the original kidney pill, the most reliable kidney pill, and the pill you can place full confidence in to cure you. For sale by

SENT UP FOR TRIAL

On Two Charges of "Unlawfully Wounding."

The Police Court was crowded this morning, when Jack McGee was placed in the box to be given a preliminary hearing on the charges of unlawfully wounding Wm. Bowman and John Arnott in the C. P. R. restaurant on Monday evening last.

Mr. John Burnham, Q.C., appeared for the prisoner, whilst the Crown was represented by Mr. R. E. Wood.

The prisoner declined to either elect or plead.

The evidence of Messrs. Bowman and Arnott was taken and was substantially the same as already published. McGee and his two companions entered the bar of the restaurant, McGee calling for drinks. On these being refused him he became blasphemous, and Bowman attempted to eject him. He clinched Bowman and Arnott attempted to aid the proprietor. The prisoner is alleged to have drawn a knife at this juncture and stabbed Arnott in the side, afterwards wounding Bowman in the neck with the same weapon. Both witnesses swore positively to their statements concerning the details of the fracas and the evidence of each was corroborative of the other's testimony.

The defence produced no witnesses, and the prisoner was sent up for trial on both counts.

DEATH OF J. D. P. RUBIDGE.

La Grippe Claims a Victim in an Old County Resident.

The death of Mr. John D. P. Rubidge, son of the late Capt. Rubidge, R. N., occurred on Saturday evening last at the age of 81 years.

The deceased took ill with la grippe last Monday and sank rapidly until his demise. A widow, four daughters and a son survive to mourn his loss. Of the children Mrs. Drayton resides at Gore's Landing, and John in Missouri. The rest live at the family residence, No. 291 Stewart street.

Mr. Rubidge was born in Wales and came to Canada when a mere child. With his parents he took up his residence in Otonabee, where he lived until seven years ago, when with his family he moved into town. He was very highly respected in both town and country.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 3 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery, the services being conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson.

—"The last time I heard Rev. D. J. Macdonnell," said a citizen, "was in Chalmers' church about a year ago. His message was a plain gospel story, told in charming language and fascinating style. He was a gentleman and a scholar; his life was pure and sweet. God has called home one of His choicest followers."

—That movement in Toronto in favour of the examination of the teeth of the public school children, with the object of checking, if possible, the remarkable tendency to premature decay, so generally seen, is a good one. The circumstances which cause such a rapid increase in the use of eyeglasses and spectacles by the young is also one which should be taken into consideration. Whether it be typography of the books used, the electric lights or the defects in the plan of lighting school houses, or something else, it is certain that the defective vision is rapidly increasing.

THE LATE REV. D. J. McDONNEL.

Memorial Services Held in St. Paul's Church Last Evening.

A service in memoriam of the late Rev. D. J. MacDonnell, of Toronto, was held in St. Paul's Presbyterian church last evening by Rev. Dr. Torrance. He took his text from II Corinthians, 5th ch., 1st verse, "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." At the conclusion of the sermon the speaker mentioned the names of a number of Presbyterian divines, who had passed away during the year and in direct reference to Mr. McDonnel, stated that in him the church had lost one of its best ministers. Only three days ago the sad news of his demise was received and the speaker doubted whether the death of any minister in Canada could have created a deeper and more widespread sorrow. The deceased had begun his ministry in St. Andrew's church here and though at that time only twenty-three years of age had given evidence of possessing those characteristics needful in the composition of a successful minister. The church under his charge had grown rapidly, and the people became inspired with a great love for their pastor. He accepted a call from here to Toronto, and there also his church prospered and grew, and in six years the congregation erected the magnificent church, the pulpit of which he occupied at the time of his death. In eleven years 360 families were members of the congregation and 837 were regular communicants. It was quite clear, therefore, that the minister who could achieve such a success must have been possessed of remarkable gifts and endowed with a great nobility of character. He was large hearted, unselfish, possessed of a high sense of honour and utterly incapable of a mean act. He was generous to a fault—generous in his quick response to a call for aid. Self-sacrificing, he never thought of his personal interests, but made the interest of the church his own. The congregation of any church in trouble always found a ready counsellor and willing helper in him, and amongst the ministry he was as popular and as much beloved as amongst the church members. He was endowed with a keenness of intellect sufficient to have made him great as a preacher and a scholar, but he devoted not his life to the acquisition of great knowledge or the composition of sermons, but rather to the forwarding of church objects. With his depth of piety he was a splendid type of the manly Christian. His devotion to Christ's person was ardent and his great desire was to forward His work upon earth. Of him it might truly be said:

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."

COBOURG'S NEW CHURCH BLESSED.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Performs the Ceremony.

The fine new Roman Catholic church, St. Michael's, Cobourg, was yesterday blessed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. The mass, incidental to the solemn and beautiful ceremony, was celebrated by V. Rev. Dean Murray, of Trenton, assisted by Rev. Father Murray, of Cobourg, as deacon, and Rev. Father Keilty, of Douro, as sub-deacon. After the first Gospel, Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Peterborough, preached an eloquent and appropriate sermon from the text—"Upon this Rock I will build my church"—St. Matthew, chap. xvi, verse 18.

There was a very large congregation present and the collection amounted to the handsome sum of $500.

The new church is of brick, and the exterior with two handsome towers in front, presents a striking and imposing appearance. In the northern tower is placed the bell. The interior is furnished complete, with beautiful stained glass windows, pulpit and seating, and is a splendid addition to the many new churches which Bishop O'Connor has dedicated to divine worship during his episcopate. The cost of the new church is $18,000, of which a large proportion is paid, and the new structure is a monument to the energy and zeal of Rev. Father Murray and the liberality of his flock.

After the mass an address to the Bishop was read by Mr. McColl, barrister, brother of Rev. Father McColl, of Ennismore.

The address was congratulatory and referred to his Lordship's late visit to Rome and to the new church. The Bishop made a suitable and eloquent reply to the loyal sentiments of the address.

At Vespers his Lordship preached an eloquent and thoughtful sermon.

This evening his Lordship will deliver an address in the new church, on the subject of his visit to Rome, and the collection will be devoted to the building fund of St. Michael's.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. George Dies is reported to be somewhat improved to-day.

Mr. George Matthews, president of the Matthews Pork Packing Company (limited), was in town on Saturday.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

ABOUT APPENDICITIS.

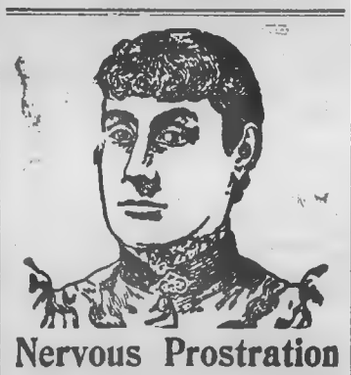
The Necessity of Resort to an Operation Questioned.

It is many a long year since so much unscientific and unnecessary butchery has been indulged in as is recorded in the treatment of appendicitis in the last few years, says the New York Ledger. Severe pain and certain symptoms that might be attributed to a dozen other causes are charged to appendicitis and a continuation of them suggests experiments to the minds of the doctors and the operating table looms up in the immediate future as the only hope for life.

There are yet many physicians who insist that operations of this sort are absolutely necessary, but it is a hopeful sign of the times that some of the more conservative and experienced doctors declare that only in exceptional cases is surgery positively necessary. As a simple home treatment several patients have been immediately relieved by drinking large quantities of pure salad oil. This appears to have a beneficial effect upon the entire lining membrane of the alimentary canal; the oil seemed to spread over the surface, allaying irritation and softening whatever food products may have lodged in the appendical sac.

The nonsensical theory put forth by one member of the medical profession that no infant was properly equipped for life until by surgical means it had been deprived of the vermiform appendix and thus fortified against future danger, is too silly to deserve a moment's consideration.

Millions of people have lived and died without ever knowing that there was such a thing, and the proportion of deaths that can by any possible means be attributed to this cause is extremely small. Some day doctors and patients will realize that a thorough washing out and cleansing of the interior of the body is quite as beneficial as the same process applied to the exterior. It is asserted by those who have had sufficient experience to entitle their statements to consideration, that the thorough washing out of the digestive apparatus by means of tepid water properly purified would prevent at least half of the diseases from which humanity suffers.



Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." Mrs. Dalton, 33 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because

Dr. Yelland's Illness.

The numerous friends of Dr. Yelland are naturally anxious concerning his serious illness. On Saturday night Dr. Ross, of Toronto, specialist, assisted by local physicians, operated upon Dr. Yelland for appendicitis, and the result was to show that the trouble was caused in the vermiform appendix by the seed of an orange. Dr. Yelland passed through the operation successfully, and the attending physicians were hopeful of a successful issue. His condition this morning was, however, not quite so favourable. Dr. Yelland is popular on account of his professional skill and agreeable personal qualities, and his many friends are very much distressed at his serious illness.

Death of Mrs. F. L. Somerville.

The somewhat sudden death of Mrs. Somerville, wife of Mr. F. L. Somerville, C. E. of the Trent Valley Canal office, and sister of Mr. J. W. Jenkins and the Misses Jenkins, is a great shock to the many friends of the family. The deceased lady, who was very highly beloved and respected, was the youngest daughter of the late George Jenkins and was born in Peterborough. On July 20th, 1887, she was united in marriage to Mr. Somerville. She has since that time resided in town, except two years spent in Lindsay. Her death leaves four small children motherless, and the bereaved husband and family will have the warm sympathy of their large circle of friends in their sad affliction. The funeral takes place to-morrow from the family residence, 334 Rubidge street, at three o'clock.

GRAND TRUNK EXTENSION TO YOUNG'S POINT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR: Will you kindly make room in your valuable paper for a few facts, which require to be brought before the public, and particularly the Grand Trunk Railway Co., regarding the extension of their branch line from Lakefield to Young's Point. As you are aware Mr. Editor great inconvenience is caused tourists and others in reaching their summer cottages on Stony lake; and also the people of Toronto who are contin ually grumbling at the very unsatisfactory accommodation provided for their speedy access to their cottages on Stony lake. This traffic would increase on the double had they direct rail to Young's Point, where the steamers would be able to connect with all trains, thereby lessening the time from Toronto to Stony lake to about five hours.

Now that the Grand Trunk Railway Co. have got a new manager, it is to be hoped, both for the benefit of the Company and the travelling public, that he will give this matter his earnest attention and at the opening of spring decide to extend the line to Clear lake, which distance is inside of five miles. In addition to the increased passenger traffic, there would be a very large quantity of freight, principally quarry stone, pulp and hard wood, which are plentiful in this locality. There is at present a very fine summer hotel, on the shore of Clear lake, within a few hundred yards of the village.

Excellent sport in fishing and very fine bathing grounds, in addition to an excellent park, as attractions, with such easy access from Peterborough, would make it one of the prettiest summer resorts in Ontario.

There is now a company formed principally of Toronto capitalists for the purpose of building a large summer hotel on Stony Lake during the coming summer, which will be a guarantee for a very large passenger traffic to Stony Lake. It is a well-known fact that if we had railway accommodation to Young's Point, the traffic receipts for the branch would increase to double what they have been in the past.

It is about three years since Mr. Macklin, engineer for the G. T. R., went over the proposed route with the writer, and he then pronounced it a very cheap road to build and assured me that the company would extend the line in the near future.

With the unlimited water power and the great facilities for manufacturing purposes, and the great necessity of a flour mill—which, unless there were railway facility for shipping surplus produce and bringing in western grain, will never be built—a paying freight traffic is assured.

I think the Board of Trade of the town of Peterborough should take this matter up at once, as the extension of the road would be a benefit to the town as well as to the whole community.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the valuable space in your paper, I remain,

Yours truly,

ENTERPRISE.

[The matter to which our correspondent calls refers is one deserving the attention of those concerned. The advantages he sets forth—both to the company and the public, from the construction of an extension of the Lakefield line to Young's Point, have been set forth before in these columns. That such a line has not before been built is not because the advantages claimed do not exist, but because the question has not been advocated with sufficient persistency. Persons in a position to know claim that on commercial grounds the building of the proposed extension would pay, and no one will be found to deny that it would add immensely to the popularity of our Northern Lakes as a summer resort. Their beauty and attractiveness are pretty well known, but these will not avail if easy access is not provided. A very Garden of Eden, as a summer resort would "waste its sweetness on the desert air," if it could not be reached with reasonable facility. The town of Peterborough is intimately concerned in the matter. We already derive no small incidental material advantage from the existing tourist travel to the back lakes, and the claims of our citizens who annually visit the Stony Lake waters are deserving of attention. It would seem to be the duty of the Board of Trade to take up the matter, and exert the influence it possesses in favour of the proposed extension. The Board is in a position to make its influence felt. Persistent and energetic effort would doubtless have a practical effect, and it is to be hoped that it is only necessary to call attention to the matter to result in something practical being undertaken.—ED. EXAMINER.]

An inter-rink match was played on Saturday afternoon between Skip Burnham's and Skip Allen's rinks. After an exciting struggle Skip Burnham won by the appended score:

The games which have been played in the Innes Medal competition have resulted as follows:

The Granites, as will be observed, are three points ahead and as it was arranged that the competition should be played off during the week they will, presumably, hold the medal for this season. Two matches yet remain unplayed, viz: Bradburn vs. Hatton and Kells vs. Hopkins.

A telegram was received this afternoon by Mr. W. E. Allen from Toronto, guaranteeing the ice to be in prime condition for the curlers to-morrow. A large number of citizens are expected to go up on the different C. P. R trains to-morrow.

HOCKEY.

The Lindsay Warder has the following to say of the H. Peterboroughs:—"There is one hockey team in Peterborough which has not the true sportsmanlike instinct and that team is the Peterborough Colts. Postponing one match is bad enough, but after promising to be on hand sure the next night, and then failing to appear, is a little too much. The Collegiate seven, whom they were to play, are justly indignant for not only were they put to a great expense in double advertising but the rink management and the public have lost confidence in the club, and it is not their fault. The plain unadulterated truth of the matter is that the Colts are afraid of the Collegiate team. If the Colts wish to redeem their reputation let them pay for the advertising and give a game here next week. As for the Peterborough seniors we entertain the highest respect and wish them success in the championship finals."

The boys should straighten this matter out.

SNOWSHOEING.

What is more delightful than a tramp of a few miles over the trackless, spotless country, with the glow and beautiful colour of perfect health? A man feels he is truly superior to all else of creation. In the United States people are beginning to realize the delights of the snowshoe, and snowshoeing is now becoming the most favored of out-door winter sports. Why should we who are born to the snowshoe let it be neglected for the less manly amusements of indoor life? The clerk in the store would feel the better for a few miles of a tramp in the evening after hours of confinement.

There are many people in Peterborough who, if an interest was aroused in this sport, would enter into it with zeal. What is needed, it is thought by some, is a thorough reorganization of the snowshoe club and dates arranged for tramps, stating the distances to be done—these tramps not to be afternoon teas or dances, but to be carried on under the management of the club in true sportsmanlike manner.

In Ottawa there is a club organized for ski running. (The pronunciation of ski is the same as that of the English word she.) These ski are the sort of snow-shoe used in Norway, and are now becoming very popular in this country. For pleasure they are very much superior to our web shoes, as the motion is simply a sliding one, and is therefore less tiring. They have the advantage also of being a toboggan as well as a snow-shoe. Any handy man or carpenter can make a pair of these ski, as they are simply slats of any tough, light wood. Ash, spruce or oak is generally used. A piece of the wood seven feet six inches long, four inches wide, and one and one-eighth inches thick, is taken. A distance of three feet four inches is laid off from one end, on the flat side chosen for the top; from this point on the top side the wood is tapered to the end from which the distance was measured, leaving the end three-eighths of an inch thick. This is the heel of the ski. Now, from the point first laid off the wood is tapered on the same side towards the other end, until, at a point three feet down the length from the point started from, the wood is left but three-eighths of an inch thich. From here to the end of the wood regains its original thickness; but from the point where the wood is thinnest, it is made to taper on the sides to the end, so as to leave the point about one-half inch wide. This forms the toe of the ski. Thus it will be seen that part of the ski—in front and behind—is thin horizontally, while the extreme front is thin perpendicularly or shaped like a boat.

Now, place the two ski, when made, on the floor, and lay off from the inside of each, at the middle, three-quarters of an inch, and concave these sides so as to leave the wood four inches wide at the thinnest part, three and three-quarters of an inch wide at the thickest part, and from there to heel it is the same width. This keeps the ski on a straight course, otherwise one would run over the other and get into a hopeless mess. Turn the ski over now, and by the straight side, with a plough-plane, make a groove about one-eighth of an inch deep, which when rounded with a gouge is about one-half an inch wide. This groove prevents the ski from slewing. It is now only necessary to bend up the toes and middle so the points will be about five inches from the level of the bottom and put on straps. The former can be done easily by boiling or steaming the ends in a large pot of water, and fastening them on a form or hanging them by the points over the rounds of a chair, or any other convenient way, and leaving them until dry. The middle may be treated in the same manner, and should be bent up about three-quarters of an inch from the general level. Care should be taken not to have any twist in the bend, as it will cause the ski to run crooked. The toe strap is put on at the thickest part of the ski, and may be of stout harness leather, or a strap made of rattan fastened in a mortice cut through the ski. This strap should be just large enough to allow the foot to go in, so it will not lift the ski when the heel is raised to the highest point. Old ski runners have a strap which runs from the toe around the foot, above the heel, as in an ordinary snowshoe, but for beginners it is better to have only the toe strap, as in coasting the toe can easily be withdrawn out of them in case of a fall. Any decorations one might wish to make on the ski are allowable, as some of them are beautifully carved.

Following these directions one can make a good serviceable pair of ski, which will do for either lady or gentleman, and will well repay one for the time spent in making them. Let us not be behind Ottawa or any place in taking up this new sport.

AN INCREASING WHOLESALE BUSINESS.

Mr. M. Carton's Wholesale Grocery House.

In December, '94, the EXAMINER printed a description of Mr. M. Carton's wholesale grocery business, Simcoe street, then just opened. There were at the time those who doubted that such a venture could be made successful and profitable, in view of the fact that it would have to meet the competition of wholesale firms in Toronto, Montreal and other cities, which have easy access to Peterborough by means of her splendid railway service in all directions. But experience has shown the contrary. Though beginning modestly a year and a quarter ago, Mr. Carton's business has grown and thriven till its transactions represent a turn-over at the rate of between $150,000 and $200,000 per year, with a steady and healthy rate of increase from month to month. And the fact that the greater proportion of this large amount is contributed by the retail dealers of Peterborough, is evidence of the highest form of confidence that can be given a business man—the patronage of the community where he is best known. Mr. Carton's trade is steadily widening, and has already extended to the towns and villages of the district, with indications of continued expansion. This fact shows that the right class of goods at right prices with fair treatment is sure to develop trade. The large sales of Belleville canned goods by Mr. Carton are a proof that quality begets demand. These goods possess a distinctive flavour and quality that accounts for their popularity with the trade.

A HEAVY MORTGAGE.

How a prominent farmer quickly lifted it.

A mortgage has been described as an incentive to industry, a heavy mortgage, as a sure sign of ruin. The last is particularly true, for if a mortgage is allowed to ran it will eat up the farm. In this connection Mr. Henry Fowler, of Huron writes: "From my boyhood scrofula had marked me for a victim and it seemed as if it had a life mortgage on my blood. I suffered fearfully with sores, and knowing my condition I have remained a single man. Doctor after doctor prescribed for me, and finally a Toronto specialist told me bluntly that my complaint was a deep-seated, incurable, blood disease. Sarsaparilla I knew was a good blood medicine, and I sent for a bottle of the best. Mr. Todd, the druggist, sent me Scott's Sarsaparilla, and I have stuck to it. It has lifted my mortgage, for to-day I am free from those horrible sores, my eyesight is not blurred, my tongue is not furry, and I have no irritation. I look upon Scott's Sarsaparilla as a marvellous medicine when it will cure a life long disease in so short a time."

Scrofula, pimples, running sores, rheumatism and all diseases generated by poisonous humors in the blood are cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla. The kind that cures. Sold only in concentrated form at $1 per bottle by your druggist. Dose from half to one teaspoonful.

Sold by J. B. Tully, Peterborough.

MARTER WAS ABSENT

He Did Not Question the Government as Promised.

IMPORTANT MUNICIPAL CHANGES

Proposed by Mr. Stratton's Bill—Reduction of the Number of Aldermen and Councillors—Should Loan Companies be Under Provincial License?

Toronto, Feb. 22.—Mr. Marter had given notice in the Legislature that he would question the Government yesterday with reference to the removal of James Massie from the position of Warden of the Central Prison. It was understood that the leader of the Opposition intended to take the Government severely to task for its action in this regard. Mr. Marter evidently made up his mind, however, at the last moment, that it was better to let sleeping dogs lie and failed to put in an appearance.

On Thursday, while delivering his speech upon the Budget, Mr. Matheson stated that the Government were taking a larger percentage from succession duties than did the British Government. He was taken to task by the Provincial Treasurer, who pointed to the English act to prove the falsity of this statement. Yesterday Mr. Matheson said he had looked into the matter and he was free to confess he was in the wrong and that Mr. Harcourt was right.

Mr. Crawford asked who were the shareholders in the Georgian Bay Ship Canal, how much stock each held, how much had been paid up and who were the officers and directors.

Sir Oliver Mowat said, in reply, that when the company had been granted a charter, the stockholders, officers and directors were known to the Government and that 10 per cent. of the stock had been paid into a chartered bank as security. He did not know whether the present stockholders were the same as when the charter had been granted.

Mr. Whitney moved for a return giving names of all applicants for the position of Registrar in the County of Brant and the County of Wentworth; the dates of all applications; the names of appointees, and dates of their appointment.

Sir Oliver Mowat said all such applications were confidential and he did not, therefore, feel at liberty to declare the names.

Mr. Macnish moved for a return showing (1) the number of coroners' inquests held in the province during the years 1893, 1894 and 1895; (2) the length of time consumed at each such inquest; (3) the object for which the inquest was held; (4) the cost of each such inquest.

Mr. Stratton introduced a bill to reduce the number of aldermen and councillors to one-third the present number in all cities and towns, and to abolish all ward divisions. The bill also provides that every municipal elector shall be entitled to vote for any number of candidates not exceeding the number of alderemn or councillors to be elected in the city or town, but no elector shall be entitled to vote more than once for any one candidate, and no person shall vote at more than one polling place in the city or town for which the election is held.

In cases when vacancies occur, the council shall have power to appoint a qualified person for the remainder of the current year.

Mr. McKay (Oxford) introduced a bill to compel companies loaning money on real estate to obtain an annual license from the Treasurer of Ontario, to be granted and renewed annually upon the company showing that the returns and statements required by law have been duly made, and upon the payment of an annual fee of $50.

The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is empowered to apoint an inspector of building societies and loan companies, to be atached to the Treasury Department, who is to visit the offices of every licensed corporation annually and report thereon to the Government.

The Treasurer may also direct a special examination into the affairs of the corporation, to be made by the inspector, and may further direct a special audit to be made by an accountant. When this audit is made at the request of creditors or shareholders they must deposit $2000 as security, and in the event of their charges proving unfounded, the costs are to be paid out of the moneys so deposited.

Penalties are imposed by the act for making false statements with regard to the company's affairs or false entries in the books.

Provision is also made for the inspector taking over the business of an insolvent company and winding it up.

Mr. Stratton introduced a bill to provide that before land is sold for taxes, notice shall be given by the Treasurer of the county, city or town, by registered letter to the persons appearing from the records of the registry office to be the owners or mortgagees. The Treasurer is to receive ten cents for postage for every parcel of land and the Registrar is to receive ten cents for every search made with respect to each parcel, and these costs are to be paid in the first instance by the municipality, and to be added to the taxes to be charged on the lands.

ITALY MUST SEND OUT MORE MEN.

It Seems to be Nip and Tuck With Her in Abyssinia These Days.

Rome, Feb. 21.—The Minister of War has received the report of General Baratieri, commanding the Italian forces in Abyssinia, in regard to the recent combats between the Italians and the rebel bands, near Adigrat. In those fights the Italians lost 97 killed, and from 80 to 40 wounded, and the enemy's losses were about equal to those of the Italians. The report was laid before the Cabinet, which to-day authorized Signor Crispi to send to Abyssinia immediately whatever reinforcements of troops may be necessary. Ten thousand men are already in readiness to embark for Massowah to join Gen. Baratieri's forces in the interior.

IT IS A REIGN OF TERROR.

Do the Rebel Sympathizers in Cuba Intend to Use Dynamite to Carry Out Their Ends?

Havana, Feb. 21.—The insurgent bands led by Quintin Bandera and Mayia Rodriguez are reported to be near Colon.

A detachment of troops near Jaguey Grande has had an encounter with a superior number of rebels. The troops stood their ground and fought tenaciously. The offical report states that the rebels lost nine killed and 15 wounded.

Col Arminan reports from Sancti Spiritus that the column commanded by him has had five engagements with the rebels under Serafin Sanchez on La Campana Hanche. The Spanish loss is placed at two wounded, while the rebels are said to have had many men killed and 20 wounded.

Maj. Poris reports that he has had an encounter at Cayo Bajuco, Province of Matanzas, with a party of rebels, resulting in the usual victory of the Spanish arms. The rebels, however, sustained no further loss than four men wounded, including their leader. The troops had a lieutenant, a sergeant and a corporal wounded.

Insurgnets have burned the cane on the estate near Limonan.

Another victory is reported by Col. Delgardo, who met a rebel force near San Juan des Yeras, some nine miles southwest of Santa Clara. Three rebels were killed. The Spanish loss was two killed and two wounded. The authorities have arrested Senor Cartro, director of the newspaper La Union of Manzanillo, in consequence of an article published in that paper, which is held to come within the topics forbidden by Captain-General Weyler in his recent proclamation.

Considerable uneasiness has been caused here by the discovery of a bomb with a burning fuse attached in the Henry Clay cigar factory. The discovery of the bomb was most timely, for in a short time the fuse would have burned out and the factory would have most likely been badly damaged. Whether the placing of the bomb was done by some rebel sympathiser or a dissatisfied workman, is not known, but there is an ever present fear among the authorities that the unknown rebel sympathisers in the city will attempt to inaugurate a reign of terror by using dynamite, with which the insurgents are said to be well supplied.

Later details of the attack by the forces of Gomez and Maceo Tuesday night on Jarfuco, an important town on the railroad, midway between Havana and Matanzas, show that the insurgents burned all the records and destroyed the Town Hall. The number of prisoners released by them before setting the jail on fire was 28. Altogether 30 buildings were burned.

Refugees who have arrived here from the Province of Pinar del Rio, state that the seaport town of Cabanas was burned by rebels Wednesday night. The gunboat Alerta fired on the insurgents, but could not prevent the destruction of the town.

LORD SHOLTO IS A CHUMP.

But if What Mrs. Mooney Says is True He Needn't "Work" Now.

San Francisco, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Addis-Mooney, mother-in-law of Lord Sholto Douglas, says that by the death of an uncle, Rev. Archibald Douglas, in London, Sholto will come into about $3,000,000. "We received the good news by cable, yesterday," she said. "It merely announced the death of Rev. Archibald Douglas and said that there was money for Sholto, but I know all about it. His uncle was a very wealthy priest, and Sholto is his sole heir. Sholto is now in the southern part of the state, but will be here in a few days. He knows nothing about his good luck yet. The cablegram came to our home in Oakland, and Lady Douglas, who is now with me, opened it. We will telegraph to Sholto to-morrow Of course Sholto and his wife will now give up the stage. Though they have made a big success, it would be foolish for them to work when they can live without working."

Mr. H. E. Hudson, Combermere, Severely Injured—Protruding Knot Entered the Body — Cured by a Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

Louisa's Sore Throat.

A teacher in an English school who had been much annoyed by truancy, has recently been stringent in enforcing the rule that her scholars, on their return to school after an absence, must bring her a note stating in full the cause of such absence, the note to be in the writing of a parent or guardian. The following is a note brought by one of her pupils after two weeks' absence:

"Louisa was absent monday, please excuse her.

"Louisa was absent toosday, she had a sore throte.

"Loulisa was absent wensday, she had a sore throte.

"Louisa was absent thursday, she had a sore throte.

"Lousia was absent friday, she had a sore throte.

"Read this over again for the next week."

A Leap Year Wail.

Leap year brings certain privileges more or less advantageous to womankind. This particular year of '96, however, has rather off-set its indulgences, by withholding some privileges which have always fallen to the lot of that portion of womankind who are schoolteachers. A study of the calendar shows that every single holiday this year falls on Saturday, except, of course, the Easter holidays which could not very well be changed. This arrangement, the Saturday holiday, affects only those in schools who always have Saturday. It looks now as if there will be few resting spells in the coming year. Old Father Time, when he shook his days together, in order to get in that extra one, surely forgot to look after the interests of some of us who need his favors.

Cheap, Efficient, Prompt.

A marvel of cheapness, of efficacy, and promptitude is contained in a bottle of that famous remedy, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Beware of substitutes offered for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—safe, sure and painless. Sold at druggists.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM IN A WONDERFUL MANNER.

James A. Bell, of Beaverton, Ont., brother of the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., prostrated by nervous headaches A victim of the trouble for several years.

South American Nervine effected a complete cure.

In their own particular field few men are beter known than the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., and his brother Mr. James A. Bell. The former will be recognized by his thousands of friends all over the country as the popular and able missionary superintendent of the Royal Templars of Temperance. Among the 20,000 members of this order in Ontario his counsel is sought on all sorts of occasions. On the public platform he is one of the strong men of the day, battling against the evils of intemperance. Equally well known is Mr. Bell in other provinces of the Dominion, having been for years a member of the Manitoba Methodist Conference and part of this time was stationed in Winnipeg. His brother, Mr. James A. Bell, is a highly respected resident of Beaverton, where his influence, though perhaps more circumscribed than that of his eminent brother, is none the less effective and productive of good. Of recent years, however, the working ability of Mr. James A. Bell has been sadly marred by severe attacks of nervous headache, accompanied by indigestion. Who can do fit work when this trouble takes hold of them and especially when it becomes chronic, as was, seemingly, the case with Mr. Bell? The trouble reached such intensity that last June he was completely prostrated, in this condition a friend recommended South American Nervine. Ready to try anything and everything, though he thought he had covered the list of proprietary medicines, he secured a bottle of this great discovery. A second bottle of the medicine was taken and the work was done. Employing his own language: "Two bottles of South American Nervine immediately relieved my headaches and have built up my system in a wonderful manner." Let us not deprecate the good our clergymen and social reformers are doing in the world, but how ill-fitted they would be for their work were it not the relief that South American Nervine brings to them when physical ills overtake them, and when the system, as a result of hard, earnest and continuous work, breaks down. Nervine treats the system as the wise reformer treats the evils he is battling against. It strikes at the root of the trouble. All disease comes from disorganization of the nerve centers. This is a scientific fact. Nervine at once works on these nerve centers; gives to them health and vigor; and then there courses through the system strong, healthy, life-maintaining blood, and nervous troubles of every variety are things of the past.

The man with a weight on his leg can't hope to win in the race. A man with a weight on his health can't expect to compete in life and business with those who are not handicapped. A man who spends two-thirds of his time in business, and one-third of his time being sick, cannot be expected to accomplish more than two-thirds as much as the man who attends to business all the time. If his brain is heavy, and his blood sluggish, because of constipation, he will not succeed in doing anything very well. Constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of all sickness. It isn't considered sickness by most people, but it is just the same. It is serious sickness, because it causes almost all of the ill-health of mankind. Symptoms of it are sallowness, listlessness, poor appetite, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, biliousness, and lassitude. Constipation can be cured easily and certainly by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are perfectly simple—perfectly safe. They are not at all violent in their action, and yet they are more certain than many medicines which are so strong that they put the system all out of order. The great advantage of the "Pleasant Pellets" is that they cure permanently. You don't have to keep on taking them. You don't acquire a "pellet habit." Take them regularly for a while, and you are cured permanently. After that, take them only when you find yourself suffering from indigestion. There are many medicines offered for the same purpose on which druggists make a bigger profit. For this reason, some druggists would rather sell the other things. If your own health is of more importance to you than the druggist's prosperity, you will insist on having what you ask for.

Kit's Lament.

Were you ever the victim of an ennui so terrible that you wondered why you went on living? Of course you were. You write to me every week the bluest of letters, filled with lists of woes that are positively chronic. It is awful, you know, when one has Nothing to do but work;

Nothing to eat but food;
Nothing to wear but clothes.
To keep one from going nude.
Nothing to breath but air;
Quick as a flash it's gone;
Nowhere to fall but off;
Nowhere to stand but on.
Nothing to comb but hair;
Nowhere to sleep but in bed;
Nothing to weep but tears;
Nothing to bury but dead.
Nothing to sing but songs,
Ah, well; alas! alack!
Nowhere to go but out;
Nowhere to come but back.
Nothing to see but sights;
Nothing to quench but thirst;
Nothing to have but what we've got;
Thus through life we're accursed.
Nothing to strike but gain.
Everything moves that goes;
Nothing at all but common sense
Can ever withstand these woes.

PEOPLE NEED NOT GET SCARED

If Perrine's Comet is on the Rampage and is Steering Our Way

New York, Feb. 21.—A Sun special from Boston says: Perrine's comet is advancing towards the earth at the prodigious pace of 1,600,000 miles a day, and unless it changes its course, it may hit the earth some time during Saturday, March 14, Prof. Leuschuer of the State University of California, has just completed his calculations of the orbit of the new comet, which was discovered by Astronomer Perrine of the Lick Observatory a few days ago. His calculations convince him that the comet will take a new course on March 1 and sheer away from the earth. If, however, the professor has made a mistake of a millionth part of a unit in his figures, the comet may strike us.

Prof. Pickering of the Harvard University was seen last night and asked if it were possible for the comet and the tarth to meet in collision. His reply was that such a thing was certainly possible. "In fact," he continued, "if the earth lasts long enough such a thing is practically sure to happen, for there are several comets' orbits which pass nearer to the earth's orbit than the semi-diameter of the comet's head, and at some time the earth and comet will certainly come together. Such encounters will, however, be rare. If we accept the estimate of Abinet they will occur once in 15,000,000 years in the long run."

As to the consequences of such a collision, Prof. Pickering said it was impossible to estimate, for want of such knowledge of the state of aggregation of the matter composing a comet. "If we accept the modern theory," he said, "and if this theory be true, everything depends on the size of the separate solid parts or particles which form the main part of the comet's mass. If they weighed tons the bombardment would be very serious, but, if, as seems more likely, the particles are as small as pinheads, the result will simply be a grand meteoric shower. Now," continued the professor, "although the possibility of that comet striking the earth is real, still the probability is not so great. So far as we know, the probability is not much greater than that of some other comets striking us."

WAGES ARE HIGH.

So Also are Living Expenses in the Transvaal—An Interesting Letter.

H. E. T. Haultain, writing from the Transvaal to a British Columbia paper, says:

"I see that several Slocan people are talking of coming here. Don't. Negroes do all the hard work in this country, while white men act as superintendents, so that a miner is a negro driver, which is a soft job for those who like it.

"Carpenters, masons and mechanics generally have no difficulty in procuring employment. They get from $125 to $150 a month, but expenses are very high.

"All plain drinks are two bits, and the climate makes you very thirsty. We have it from 107 to 117 in the shade already, and I have not seen the hot weather yet.

"When in London I told some city men about the Slocan Star and similar properties. They were astonished, and said if it were only in South Africa they could float such properties a dozen times over, but in Canada, no! the public would not look at mining ventures in Canada. This state of affairs will probably soon change, and London will be only too glad to take anything B.C. offers. Meanwhile, what you want are prospectors and prospecting companies or syndicates to open up the country, and you couldn't possibly have a better man than the Western American for this kind of work."

MISSOURI'S CARGO ON FIRE.

Is Run Ashore at Falmouth, England, to Fill Her Hold With Water.

Falmouth, Eng., Feb. 21.—The British steamer Missouri, from London, Feb. 19, for Philadelphia, has put in here with a fire in her hold. Latest advices are that the flames are gaining and it is expected that her entire cargo will be burned.

WHO MURDERED PEARL BRYAN?

A Probability That Jackson, Walling and Woods Won't be Convicted.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 21.—The case against Jackson, Walling and Woods, the alleged murderers of Pearl Bryan, is practically at a standstill. It may be said that the detectives have failed to fasten the guilt of the girl's murder upon the prisoners in a way that will warrant a legal conviction, although there is probably not a man here who believes them innocent of the charge. The hearing of the prisoners has been set for Feb. 27.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root. Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritive value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

CARD OF THANKS.

Messrs. Cox & Davis, Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN: I wish to thank you for your promptness in settling the loss on my furniture, which occurred through the upsetting of my coal stove, on Friday night last at 10 o'clock. On being notified next day you were good enough to send over a man to settle the loss in order that I might be able to get the house cleaned up and thereby saved me much inconvenience. From my experience with your office now, it is a source of pleasure for me to feel that my insurance is with you, and I shall not forget to tell my friends.

Yours truly,

MARY ANN O'BRIEN.

ecclesiastical authorities of the province of Quebec—(loud cheers)—who have recently put their pistol to the head of the leader of the Opposition, and demanded that he shall support the Remedial Bill with all his followers, or be driven out of power.

This is the authority which calls upon us to interfere with the educational system of one of our provinces. The pretexts put forward will not and do not bear investigation. You are told, forsooth, that the Privy Council, the highest judicial body of the Empire, had commanded the Governor-General to issue the Remedial Order, and had further commanded the free Parliament of Canada to pass a Remedial Bill, and as loyal people we were expected to bow down and obey the authority of the Judicial Council.

The Judicial Council had to consider a question of law, and of law alone. The question was whether the events that had happened give power to the Dominion Government to interfere, whether the Governor-General, under these circumstances, had the power to interfere. Surely everyone of us can understand that, even if the Ottawa Ministers have not been able to get it into their heads. (Laughter and cheers.)

If we should have to enter into a great struggle, and it looks something like it when we read Bishop Lebreque's mandement and Abbe Paquet's letter, which assert that the church is superior to the state, I am afraid we are on the eve of a struggle which I have seen coming. If that struggle is to shake confederation to its base, we must face it like men. (Loud cheering.)

The bishops of Quebec have thought it right to say that this great young province, the hope of the Dominion, is to have its life blighted by the re-establishment of Separate schools in order that the French system may be carried out. (Cries of "Never.")

The bishops have set their seal to that, and the bargain has been made. We cannot see it. We cannot read it, but we are not altogether fools. (Laughter and cheers.)

At this stage of the proceedings the chairman read letters of apology for absence from the meeting. Alexander McNeil, M.P., counselled "moderation, in which is strength." (Laughter.) Mr. Cockburn, M.P., pleaded "an important business engagement, which could not be deferred, required my presence in Montreal." (Cries of "That don't go.") "My views were plainly stated in the House of Commons last session. I hope that Manitoba herself will offer a solution of the present difficulty." (Groans and hisses.) Hon. Mr. Davies pleaded that another engagement prevented his expressing his views. Mr. Coatsworth, M.P., pleaded that the invitation telegram had been received too late. (Groans.) A number of other apologies had been received from members of Parliament and prominent citizens.

Mr. Joseph Martin seconded the resolution in a rattling speech.

The motion was then put and carried.

Mr. Clarke Wallace, M.P., was greeted with great cheering on rising to move a third resolution, which was as follows:

That, inasmuch as the difficulties involved in the attempt at Federal interference will fall upon the people of Canada, the people ought to have an opportunity of pronouncing on the policy before they are committed to it by the enactment of the Federal law.

And, therefore, that this meeting, in no spirit of hostility to the Catholics but with a sincere desire to see justice done to all classes and creeds of the community, protests against the passage of the so-called Remedial bill, as subversive of provincial autonomy, injurious to those for whose benefit it is ostensibly framed, and likely to evoke strife, to keep alive sectarian bitterness, and to impede the progress of the Dominion.

Mr. Wallace said he was delighted to have an opportunity of meeting the citizens of Toronto in that magnificent meeting, which represented not only the influence of the city of Toronto but of the whole Province of Ontario.

What is the record of the Ontario Conservative party? Has it not been for many years resistance of the Separate school system? Were we sincere when we were fighting that battle, or were the Conservatives a lot of hypocrites? We fought that battle honestly and sincerely; we believed that the Separate school system was an injury to the Roman Catholics and to the whole of the province. (Cheers.) And again the Conservatives of Ontario are going to fight straight on that line in reference to the Manitoba schools. We are going to fight against the proposal to establish in that province the Separate school system.

In conclusion, Mr. Wallace said he believed the people of Ontario would never sanction the machinery of the church being used to place on the statute book a measure obnoxious to the majority of the people of Canada. "I think this meeting will have a beneficial effect, inasmuch as it will remind the Government that there are Protestants in this province as well as Roman Catholics. We ask no favors, nor will we deny to any minority any rights to which they are entitled, but we do not consider Separate schools to be right or just." (Loud cheering.)

Mr. J. K. Kerr seconded the resolution, which was also carried unanimously.

In response to several calls, Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., also spoke to the resolution. While it has been remarked, said he, that there is no representative of Toronto here, I desire to say that Mr. Wallace and myself represent over 40,000 of the citizens of Toronto, and in us you have, at least, two representatives who intend to vote against this Remedial Bill, no matter what the consequences may be. (Applause.) I enter my protest as a Conservative and as a Canadian. As a Conservatives I took occasion to tell my leaders that I could not vote for this bill when it came up in Parliament. I will vote against it for the many reasons given to-night and for the additional reason that I don't want to interfere with the great province of Manitoba in its educational legislation and I don't want to interfere with the greater Manitoba that is to be, and which is to be the hope of our country. I went to Parliament five years ago to try and do something for the development of our country, and ever since this question, like a spectre, has hovered over the House and driven every other matter into the background, so that we have been doing nothing but beating time. If you once open the door to questions of this kind, you will be asked to keep it open for every other province, and year in and year out there will be nothing but this race and creed question. Bar the door once and forever. (Applause.) I am ready to put up the bar. (Applause.)

I have what I think is a solution of this question. It is this: Let the leaders of the two parties, Conservative and Liberal, meet and agree to keep this question out of the House, and agree that the provinces shall settle such questions themselves, and you will never hear of it again. If Mr. Bowell and Mr. Laurier would meet and decide upon that course, a solution of the question could be reached at this session and all this trouble be avoided. There will be meetings like this all over Ontario, and the Government at Ottawa must be influenced by the voice of Ontario, which will be what the voice of Toronto is to-night. There is nobody trying to force this legislation but one class in Quebec. The Maritime Provinces, the Northwest, Ontario, none of these want it. Nobody wants it but the hierarchy of Quebec, backed by sections of the Liberals and sections of the Conservatives of that province, and the Government, which foolishly committed itself to that question without consulting the party as it should have done.

The duty of the Government is to take the voice of the people and to trust the people. If the people declare in favor of Remedial Legislation, then the Government will have some reason for attempting to carry it out. But until such time as the people have so declared it is not desirable that the Government should undertake to do something contrary to the constitution of the country which it pretends to uphold. I shall take occasion, later on, to oppose the bill in Parliament and to do what I can to defeat it.

As a practical corollary to the passing of the above resolutions, the following petition to Parliament was adopted, amid great cheering:

This mass meeting of the citizens of Toronto, which cannot be unrepresentative of the Province of Ontario, respectfully asks the Parliament of Canada to express to those who are forcing the Manitoba Remedial Bill upon Canada, our desire for a continuance of British connection and Confederation. We are anxious for the increase of the glorious, inspiring and unifying impulse of patriotism, and for a better mutual understanding between the elements which, if welded together, will create a nation; but, while we are sincerely loyal to Great Britain and the constitution, we desire to be true to ourselves.

The Remedial Bill we consider unnecessary, unjust and imprudent. Under the circumstances it will benefit no one and injure all. It is in variance with the principle of provincial autonomy and of a united and harmonious citizenship; an intrusion (whether carried or defeated) into the home and heart life of the Dominion; destructive of the national ideal; a bone of contention and a source of weakness to us all, no matter of what race or creed.

We ask you in our united names appended, with a Canadian voice given to each of the many names, to appeal to whatever force has made this measure a possibility, to stay its hand.

We extend our hand in peace, brotherhood and affection, saying that such an opportunity—surrounded as it is with contentions and aggravated by importunities—never before was offered to unite the provinces of Confederation. If it is refused, such an opportunity may never offer itself again. That the contest, if persisted in, may be final, we do not deny; if it is avoided by those whom we have been led to believe instigated it, we will have reason to thank God and open our arms more widely, more eagerly than ever before to embrace all our fellow-citizens as brothers.

That in the past we may not have been without error is immaterial; that now we are sincere, reasonable and within our rights, should be enough to make our position tenable, and our proffer of unquestioned fraternity important to all, individually, as well as to the welfare of Confederation, and to those "splendidly isolated isles" of which we are so proud and to the empire of which Canada claims to be no unimportant part.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pills Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

THE BILL IN THE BALANCE

SPECULATION OVER SIR DONALD SMITH'S MISSION.

The Venerable Knight is Canny When the Details of His Conference with Premier Greenway Are Spoken of—Several Pertinent Questions Asked—Who Did Sir Donald Represent?

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—(Special.)—Everybody was on the tiptoe of expectation to-day with reference to a possible change in the school situation. Sir Donald Smith, accompanied by his medical man, Dr. Stewart, arrived from Winnipeg this morning. The venerable knight is vastly improved in health, as compared with ten days ago. There was a sprightliness about his movements, which seemed to indicate a degree of satisfaction, possibly in the outcome of his visit to the Prairie Capital. To all and sundry who spoke to him in reference to the school question, Sir Donald had only words of hope, although he was not prepared to enter into any details. Your correspondent had ten minutes' chat with Sir Donald this afternoon and gathered from him that the prospects for an amicable solution of the difficulty were very bright.

Speaking to your correspondent, he remarked: "I found an unquestionably better feeling prevailing in Winnipeg. The people there seemingly realize the gravity of the situation, and I have every reason to believe that an entirely satisfactory solution of the school difficulty is possible. The question is one for the application of common sense, and viewed in this light there should be no difficulty in reaching a solution. Mr. Greenway is a man of shrewd common sense, and I believe is prepared to do what is right."

"It is a pity that previous efforts for a compromise were not more successful long ago," your correspondent observed.

"Indeed it is," Sir Donald replied, "but as I have already said, I see no reason why a satisfactory solution should not now be reached.

"The report was current here yesterday that Mr. Greenway would likely visit Ottawa soon. Do you know if that is so?" the knight was asked.

"I have good reason to believe that Mr. Greenway will be here shortly," Sir Donald replied.

Your corespondent then gently pressed the member for Montreal West to indicate what, in his opinion, Mr. Greenway was prepared to do, and at once Sir Donald was as dumb as an oyster. He wanted to talk about the weather, or the winning ways of Winnipeg newspaper men, or other topics not quite so interesting, but as to what Mr. Greenway would offer he was silent. Sir Donald, during the afternoon, saw some of the Ministers, had a private confab with them, and at 4.40 o'clock for Montreal.

Two questions are on the lips of politicians to-night. One is, Who asked Sir Donald to go to Winnipeg to act the part of a friendly intermediary at this critical time? The other is, How far has he been successful, and what proposals, if any, has he to submit to the Federal authorities? As to the first question, it is abundantly clear that the aged knight was not charged with a direct commission from the Government. The more reasonable view is that he took advantage of his visit to Manitoba to seek to bring about an amicable settlement of the school question. What he has accomplished yet remains to be divulged; but sufficient information has leaked out to indicate that what he has achieved gives promise of a happier solution than Federal interference. In fact some members to-night go so far as to predict that the Remedial Bill will soon be but the memory of a thing that threatened grave political difficulties in the Dominion. What can Greenway do and remain consistent with his pronounced attitude? is being asked, and answer is made that he might abolish the present provision for religious exercises in the Manitoba law, and enact an amendment that will allow religious teaching by all denominations at stated hours of the day; and, in addition, make the text books satisfactory to the representatives of the Catholic minority.

Such modifications as these would be enough to kill and bury the Remedial Bill, but if Premier Greenway is in a particularly generous mood he might go further and pass an act permitting the establishment of Separate schools by any denomination, the same to be under Government control with respect to the standard of education. This would do away with the cry of class privileges and be eminently satisfactory to the Catholics. It is conceded to be highly desirable that the province should retain complete control of its educational system, but, in order to do this the Manitoba Government certainly must act; otherwise there will be Remedial Legislation, sooner or later.

On the other hand the hierarchy must not be too exacting. If they demand the full pound of flesh, they will incur the danger of losing both the shadow and substance of their cherished privileges, for the temper of Parliament is such that too much pressure will add to the already strong aversion to the Dominion meddling with provincial affairs and jeopardize the possibility of securing the passage of the relief measure.

Apropos of the prevailing talk and excitement on this question here, it is not a little curious that none of the Cabinet Ministers, to whom your correspondent broached the subject, would admit so much as that they knew by whom Sir Donald had been commissioned. The list of those approached includes the Premier himself. Moreover, Sir Mackenzie's rather meagre replies to further enquiries left it to be understood that, so far as he knew, Sir Donald Smith had not brought back a compromise proposal from the Greenway Government. This intimation was more surprising that the Premier had at the moment left Sir Charles Tupper's room with Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. Messrs. Costigan and Ouimet, and word had gone around that the conference was for the express purpose of discussing an offer of settlement, which Sir Donald Smith had brought back from the Manitoba Government.

But all the same the spirit of compromise and settlement is in the air, and this has led to a feeling of apprehension among the French Conservatives that the Government may be induced, as they say, "to trust Mr. Greenway too far," that the spirit of conciliation may lead the Government to extremes in the matter of concessions for the sake of avoiding even the appearance of intractability.

"Let Mr. Greenway compromise on the basis of the Remedial Bill," they say. "To withdraw it upon any undertaking short of its adoption by the Legislature of Manitoba would be to surrender every right for which we have so long and anxiously contended. The bill is moderate enough in all conscience. The Manitoba Legislature is now in session. Let the Provincial Government take the manly course of placing their good intentions beyond doubt or cavil."

Speaking with one of the representative members from Quebece on this subject to-night, he remarked to your correspondent that it would be simply suicidal for the Government to withdraw the Remedial Bill now. While the measure was not as satisfactory as he would have liked, yet the was prepared to accept it and he knew that the bishops also accepted it, although not going quite as far as they would have liked.

The impression that at all events the Manitoba Government has receded from the harsh, unyielding position which has brought about the present condition of affairs is strengthened by the news which comes from Winnipeg of to-day's doings in the Legislature. A private despatch states that Attorney-General Sifton has given notice that he will move a resolution calling upon the Legislature to deprecate Federal interference in local educational concerns and expressing a willingness to remedy anything in the existing school law which bears harshly upon the Roman Catholics of the province. This savors of an eleventh-hour repentance, but it is hopeful, nevertheless.

PROTEST FROM MANITOBA

ATTORNEY-GENERAL SIFTON HAS GIVEN NOTICE

Of a Strong Resolution, which will be Passed by the Legislature of the Prairie Province—A Declaration that the Remedial Bill is Unnecessary—Any Wrongs will be Righted.

Winnipeg, Feb. 24.—(Special.)—In the Legislature to-day Attorney-General Sifton gave notice of a resolution protesting against the passage of the measure by the Federal Parliament re-establishing Separate Schools in Manitoba. After reciting the various steps taken in the controversy the resolution proceeds:

"Therefore, be it resolved, that this House notes with cordial approval that the advices of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, in his order-in-Council, dated Dec. 21, 1895, did decline to recommend the re-establishment of State-aided Separate Schools and in said document did earnestly repeat to the advisers of His Excellency the invitation extended by this House to them to make a full enquiry before asking Parliament to legislate, and did also suggest that the scope of the enquiry should be sufficiently wide to embrace all available facts relating to the past or present school systems;

"That it sincerely regretted that these repeated and earnest invitations for an enquiry have been absolutely ignored by the advisers of His Excellency, who propose, without complete information themselves, to ask coercive legislation from Parliament, a great majority of whose members are necessarily without full knowledge of the facts relative to the past and present school systems of Manitoba;

"That, in amending the school law from time to time, and in the administering of the school system of the province, it is our earnest desire to remedy any well-founded grievances, and to remove any appearance of inequality or injustice that be brought to our notice, and to consider any complaint which may be made in a spirit of fairness and conciliation;

"That it is admitted by all competent authorities that the system of Separate Schools for the minority established and carried on under Dominion legislation, cannot be made effective without active and substantial co-operation and assistance of the Provincial authority;

"That, since the order-in-Council of Dec. 21, 1895, which st forth the policy of the advisers of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, the policy therein set forth has been submitted to the electors of the province, with the result that the people have, in the exercise of their franchise, approved of the policy thus set forth by an overwhelming majority;

"That, while the constitutional rights of the Dominion Parliament to deal with the question in some way is not denied, it is confidently maintained that the central authority ought not to interfere with the province, except in a case of the most urgent necessity, and only as a last resort, and after the clearest possible case has been made out of flagrant wrongdoing on the part of Provincial authority.

"That no case has ever been made out for interference with our school law by the Dominion Parliament, which will justify the said Parliament in overriding the well recognized principles of Provincial autonomy, the principle maintenance of which is essential to the satisfactory operation of our constitution;

"That this House doth, therefore, most solemnly protest against the passage of the Remedial Act, which has been introduced into the House of Commons of Canada, and doth hereby declare:

"(1) That the said act is not rendered necessary by any facts which have up to the present time been disclosed in reference to the school system of this province;

"(2) That the said act has been brought before the House of Commons without a proper investigation of facts;

"(3) That the said act will not, nor will any legislation which is coercive in its character, and directly opposed to repeatedly expressed views of the large majority of the people of this province, bring about a harmonious and satisfactory solution of the question;

"(4) That the said act will confer no substantial or useful advantages upon the minority; but, on the contrary, will prove to be deceptive and disappointing in its practical educational effects;

"(5) That the said act is an unnecessary and unjustifiable attack upon the constitutional rights of the Legislature and the people of Manitoba, and indirectly upon the rights of the Legislature and the people of every province of the Dominion, and a violation of the principle of provincial autonomy which is without precedent in the history of the Dominion."

THEY DEFY THE GOVERNMENT.

Springbank Settlers will Construct Irrigation Works on Elbow River.

Winnipeg, Feb. 24.—(Special.)—The settlers of Springbank, who were refused the privilege last year of constructing irrigation works on Elbow River, a charter having previously been granted to the Calgary Irrigation Company, are again agitating for their rights. The Tribune, in a violent article, defies the Dominion Government to stop the settlers from proceeding with work which, it says, is to benefit their own lands. Several warlike letters are also published in the same paper, stating the intention of the settlers to proceed with the work in defiance of the Federal Government. One writer says: "Any further representation on behalf of our people directed to the Minister of the Interior we regard as utterly futile, and for the present we have only this to say to Hon. Mr. Daly, Minister of the Crown, representing the party which heretofore the majority of us have supported, that if at any time in future we can procure means to construct an irrigation ditch on the municipal plan, through a joint stock company, or in any way that commends itself to our judgment, we propose to build it and to use the waters of the Elbow River and Jumping Pond Creek to irrigate our land, and we do not care whether we secure Mr. Daly's authorization to do so or not."

Lithograph Artists on Strike.

New York, Feb. 24.—The general strike of lithograph artists, ordered by the National Lithographic Artists' and Engravers' Insurance and Protective Association of the United States and Canada, began this morning. It is stated that about 500 designers of advertising pictures are out to-day in this city, and some twenty-five firms are tied up. How the strike had effected the concerns throughout the rest of the country and Canada is not yet known.

CHEAPER THAN PATCHES!

Are the Boys' Suits we are making up during the tail end of winter

The short ends left over after the season's business are just as good as the rest of the web was but are only long enough for Suits for the Boys and Pants for the Men.

We sell these Remnants for little or nothing, and make the cutting and making cost less than usual in order to clear them out of the road of the New Spring Goods coming in.

Mending and Patching is dreary work for a woman at best. You'll likely need the Pants as badly as the Boy needs the Suit.

CANADA'S FARM EXPORTS.

(Ottawa Journal.)

Probably the great majority of Canadians will be glad to see Parliament accept the recommendation made yesterday by the committee on agriculture. The committee advises the spending of $300,000 under the guidance of Prof. Robertson, the Agriculture and Dairy Commissioner, to initiate an export trade to England in meat. Prof. Robertson says that to kill cattle here and send the beef to England in cold storage will pay better than sending live cattle. If this be so, the sooner and the more effectively Canada tries it, the better. The export of live cattle has been enormous, and if we can do better by sending meat instead, not only getting more money for it in Britain but causing more business on this side of the ocean in the preparation of the meat, it will be a very good thing for Canada. And under Mr. Robertson, the country will have confidence that money given from the national treasury to make the experiment will be properly spent.

Very remarkable has been the development in recent years of Canadian farm and dairy exports to Britain. From butter, cheese, eggs and cattle large profits have been made through the British markets that were not supposed possible a few years ago. Both our farmers and our shippers have been getting educated into new and profitable ways with rapidity and apparently permanent effect. The Experimental Farm with its results and officers direct and indirect, has been one of the very best things this country ever went into, and the public feeling at present is, we think, to wish more power to its elbow, and to be willing to furnish the grease.

BRITAIN'S POSITION.

New York Commercial Advertiser.

There is no more commanding or more interesting factor in the grand game of European politics than the naval strength of Great Britain. Since the days of Nelson England has had altogether unique position among the militant nations of the world.

Her diminutive army has been no more than sufficient to garrison the multitudinous outposts of her empire. Eight German or French or Russian army corps—a mere detail of the military forces of either of these great bayonet-bearing nations—could crush the whole array of red-coated British regulars by sheer weight of numbers if brought face to face with them on the battlefield.

Yet in later days England has been the haughtiest and most arrogant power of Europe, making and breaking treaties virtually as she pleased, snatching Egypt as a choice morsel of plunder out of the gauntleted hands of France, driving the Russian legions back from the gates of Constantinople by a paper threat, forcing the imperious Kaiser with his four millions of soldiers, to stand before mankind in the attitude of a schoolboy who has insulted his master, and has been soundly punished for his impertinence.

The source of this marvellous display of power is patent to all. For more than a half century no fleet either of war or merchant vessels could venture more than three marine leagues from shore without England's permission. The largest continental armies were helpless in front of the guns of the British warships. With an empire of the seas more absolute than any which is recorded in history, England has been able to build up a commerce of almost incalculable proportions, and to dominate European and Asiatic affairs by her admitted power to destroy the navies, merchant shipping and seaports of her rivals.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. Black Death was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than either of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing, constipation. It makes people listless, causes dissiness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, and distress after eating. The little help that is needed is furnished by Dr. Pearce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Once used they are always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Send 21 cents in one cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

LOCAL W. C. T. U. NOTES.

A tobacconist says:—"While I endeavour to keep the law, other dealers sell, orders or no orders. I am thus placed at a serious disadvantage in trying to live up to what I believe to be right. Many a boy comes in here and puts his copper or nickle on the counter and asks for cigarettes, but I always send him about his business. He gets his cigarettes just the same, however."

The use of tobacco in any form is hurtful but cigarette smoking is by far the most injurious. Cigarettes are made from inferior tobacco; stumps thrown away by the smokers (perhaps a smoker with a contagious disease) are gathered, and used largely in the manufacture of cigarettes. This being poor tobacco, saltpetre is freely employed to keep it from becoming musty. Saltpetre is highly injurious. When analyzed a cigarette is found to be strongly impregnated with opium. The paper wrapper has lead or arsenic, sometimes both, in it.

A physician remarks: "Cigarette smoking is decidedly injurious, producing weak heart and nervous diseases. The injurious effects are not confined to the smoker, but are transmitted to his posterity." Another eminent doctor says: "I have seen boys who used tobacco in any form not only defective in bodily development, but most markedly defective in mental development, and therefore more susceptible to moral degradation and less susceptible to moral development. Another effect of tobacco is palpitation or irregular action of the heart."

From another authority we quote the following: "In boys or young lads the use of tobacco is a more serious matter. It is not only an unnecessary indulgence, but in the imperfectly developed condition of their frames the depressing effects of the drugs, especially on the heart and digestive organs, not infrequently is disastrous to the health during life, and by its effects upon the heart especially, may shorten life in a very distressing way. The worst effects, however, are upon the morals of the young, seen so often in habits of gross self-indulgence, dissipation and sensuality. As to the effects of the cigarette apart from those of tobacco, I will not venture to say more than that it is probable that the former contains some other intoxicant beside tobacco. The rapid growth in favour of the cigarette seems proof that it contains some substance the pleasures from which are felt to be greater than those from tobacco."

ENNISMORE.

(Bobcaygeon Independent.)

The roads running east and west, are completely filled up, owing to that frightful storm we had last week.

Mr. Fobert, Chemong Park, gave his annual ball to his friends of Ennismore. It was quite a success. A large party of dancers came over from Young's Point, accompanied by such jolly people as the Misses Kearney, Mr. and Mrs. Brook, J. P. Young, Jas. Johnson and others.

We had a wedding out here last week which was a very pretty affair. If there is anything in the saying, that the bride is a happy one upon whom the sun shines, one young couple were exceedingly fortunate Tuesday 11th. At St. Martin's church, Ennismore, by the Rev. W. J. McColl, Miss Susie Geary, daughter of Mr. Wm. Geary, and Mr. William Corbet, of Verulam, were joined in matrimony. The bride who was one of Ennismore's fairest and most popular daughters, looked her prettiest, and Miss Maggie Geary, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, whil Mr. I. R. Stewart, of Bobcaygeon, assisted the groom.

After the ceremony had been performed Miss Scollard played the Wedding March as the party left the church.

On reaching home they partook of a delicate and sumptuous wedding breakfast. A toast, wishing the newly-wedded couple long life, happiness and prosperity, was heartily drank, to which Mr. Corbet made a becoming reply. The Misses Gearys from Peterborough, Miss Lilly O'Brien, cousin of the bride, Miss Maggie Fobert, Mrs. Waters, and Miss Corbet, sister of the groom, were among the invited guests.

The presents were numerous, and were both beautiful and useful.

LITTLE ONES WELL DRESSED!

Many Mothers Know How To Do It.

Economical and thrifty mothers buy little new clothing for their boys and girls, yet the little ones are always well dressed. This is the result of using Diamond Dyes in the home, which give all the new colours with but little trouble. Suits for boys and dresses for girls, that are faded and discoloured, are quickly transformed into new garments by the magical working of Diamond Dyes. To insure good and perfect results, see that your dealer gives you the Diamond Dyes; take no others.

BUT THE GIRLS WILL BE SORRY.

To Know That St. Valentine's Day No Longer Exists in England.

New York, Feb. 24.—The Sun's London correspondent says: This year marks the practical disappearance, unnoticed and unmourned, of what only a little time ago was a much observed anniversary. St. Valentine's Day no longer exists, as far as England is concerned. The hideous penny monstrosities were the last to disappear, and they have scarcely been seen in the shops this year. The report of the Postoffice Department settles the question of the complete innocuous desuetude into which the popular observance of the festival has fallen. The postoffice employes say that the mails on Feb. 14 were no heavier than on any other day.

Cheap, Efficient, Prompt.

A marvel of cheapness, of efficacy, and promptitude is contained in a bottle of that famous remedy, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It goes right to the root of the trouble, there acts quickly but so painlessly that nothing is known of its operation until the corn is shelled. Beware of substitutes offered for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—safe, sure and painless. Sold at druggists.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND NATURE'S TRUE CURE.

The King of Dyspepsia Medicines.

The acknowledged king of dyspepsia medicines! This high position has been gained by Paine's Celery Compound after years of grand successes in every province of the Dominion. Our ablest legislators, our most eminent judges, the clergy, medical men, business men, and thousands in humbler callings, unite in proclaiming the grand and curing virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. It has cured the worst cases of dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach troubles, after the established formulæ of the medical faculties failed to do the work. Mr. George A. Wiltse, of Athens, Ont., says:—

"I want to add my testimony in favour of your valuable remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, which I have been taking for over a year for dyspepsia and severe pains in the neck and back of head. Your medicine has produced a complete cure in my case, and I have recommended it to several friends, who claim they have received great benefit. I can testify, therefore, in all honesty, that your Paine's Celery Compound is a very valuable medicine."

WHO IS HE?

A Genuine Business Knave.

WHAT IS HIS OBJECT?

Profit, and that Without Regard to Your Life.

YOUR CONDITION REQUIRES PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

The Wily Substituter Tries to Induce You to Take Something Else That Pays Him Larger Profits.

BEWARE OF DEALERS WHOSE GOD IS UNHOLY LUCRE.

Who is he? Just a business knave, known as a "substituter!" A business substituter is a person who, with dishonest intentions, puts, gives, or, by specious and false arguments, induces a person to take some article in place of what is distinctly asked for.

The "substituter's" prime object in business is profit first and last, without any regard to your condition of health or life.

Are you prepared to risk your life by submitting to the wiles and treachery of any substituter?

Your first duty is "self-preservation," by taking care of your body—ridding it of the diseases and troubles that make life a burden to you.

Your condition demands the use of Paine's Celery Compound, that health-restoring medicine that has cured thousands of men and women who suffered as you now suffer.

When you are thoroughly and honestly convinced that Paine's Celery Compound is your sure hope, see that you get it when you ask for it. There is no other medicine that will so promptly and effectually meet your sufferings. Paine's Celery Compound always works a perfect cure.

Do not for one moment listen to the deceptive arguments of the retailer, whose only God is unholy lucre. See that the bottle and cartoon show the "stalk of celery," and the name "Paine's;" other preparations are spurious and endanger life.

Mr. H. E. Hudson, Combermere, Severely Injured—Protruding Knot Entered the Body—Cured by One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

A Commissioner in B. R.

GENTLEMEN,—Having used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam in our family for years I have no hesitation in saying that it beats everything else we ever tried for coughs and colds in children as well as grown up people. It relieves that tight binding sensation in the chest. We would not be without it for anything. WILLIAM ANDREW, Commissioner in B.R., Balmoral, Man.

THE CHANGE TAKES PLACE

A NEW COMMANDER FOR THE S. A. IN THE UNITED STATES.

But It's All in the Family—Instead of One of the General's Sons it is a Daughter Who Will Hold the Reins of Office, Assisted by Mr. Booth-Tucker—An Unfortunate Trouble.

New York, Feb. 24.—Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Tucker have been appointed to succeed Ballington Booth and his wife as commanders of the Salvation Army in the United States.

Commander Ballington Booth yesterday was approaching the frame of mind of Martin Luther when he flung his inkstand at the devil, or of King David when he expressed his opinion concerning the veracity of "all men."

But it was only after several hours' deliberation that he determined to put forth this statement of certain matters which have been so distorted in accounts from other sources that it amounts to passing the lie between the commander and his father's "minister plenipotentiary."

The statement which the deposed commander handed out reads as follows:

"It was furthest from our intention to enter into any controversy regarding our action; but certain erroneous statements having been made public through the press it is only right and just both to the movement and to ourselves to submit a correction.

"First—Colonel Nicol states:

"'It is untrue as reputetd that Commander Herbert Booth peremptorily demanded that his brother hand over the keys and property of the army.'

"The best denial to this is the following quotation which we wrote down from the final episode in the discussion on Thursday last.

"'After having said (a) we should only have the Sunday to farewell and (b) they had inquired about the property and found it could be arranged at short notice.

"'The commandant finally said there are two propositions which I am empowered to place before you.

"'1. That you withdraw that letter to London.'

"'We replied, 'No; we will not.'

"'2. That you go to England on Saturday.'

"'We replitd, 'Not except upon our conditions.'

"'Very well,' continued Commandant Herbert, with emphasis, 'in that case all I have to say is I demand that you hand over your keys and portfolio by 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.'

"'I replied, 'We shall require to have the authority of the chief of staff' (referring to London headquarters.)

"'That you can have before 12 o'clock, for I am empowered to give you the alternative.'

"'I replied, 'Then you shall have the keys and the offices by 10 o'clock to-morrow.'

"'We at once rose, but neither the Commandant, Commissioner Eva nor Colonel Nicol demurred at this decision, and the only after words exchanged were, 'Good night.'

"'Did not silence give consent?"

"Second—Col. Nicol further states: "It is equally untrue that he ever dismissed Commander Ballington Booth. Neither Commander Herbert Booth nor any other officer possesses such power. That power is only vested in the General.'

"We have always understood that the power if dismissal of territorial officers is vested in the General. But the Commandant led us to believe that he and the other representatives had come fully authorized, and said they were backed with a definite brief from London. Colonel Nicol said to us, directly after seeing Commissioner Eva, that we 'must be prepared for the worst.'

"Third—after leaving our keys upon our respective desks and vacating headquarters, at 3 o'clock, Friday morning, we retired for consultation; which resulted later in the day in our expressing by cablegram to London that we had received our dismissal from the hands of the commandant and that any further negotiations had closed.

"Fourth—After the above deplorable circumstances, I here declare on Mrs. Booth's and my own behalf that we cannot under any conditions whatsoever accept proposals from London, nor enter again under the authority or government of International Headquarters in England.

"Mrs. Booth and myself bitterly regret that we have not even had the opportunity of saying a loving farewell to our immediate staff and faithful officers—to say nothing of the thousands we still dearly love on this wide field.

"(Signed) BALLINGTON BOOTH."

A decided anti-English feeling has manifested itself in the ranks of the Salvation Army in this city. The end looks ominous for the American army. General Ballington Booth's friends are numerous and very loyal to him. They were about the 14th-street headquarters in goodly numbers all day and were open in their avowal that unless the English officials of the army left Ballington Booth in command there would be a revolution in the ranks.

F. De la Tour Booth-Tucker, the new commander, is 43 years old. He belongs to an old English family, and before he joined the Salvation Army was a resident Magistrate in the Punjab District in India.

Eight years ago he became interested in the army, and after investigation decided that only by its agency could the heathen millions be converted to Christianity. He threw up his commission and entered the ranks of the Salvationists as a cadet.

He went to England, and after a stay there of about a year, returned to India to evangelize the native.

The ex-Magistrate donned the garb of the inhabitants of the country, went barefooted and begged his bread as a traveling preacher among the Gingaratis, one of the native tribes. It was mainly through his efforts that the army got a foothold in that vast country.

He rose rapidly, and now holds the position of Foreign Secretary. His sister was a distinguished writer, who wrote under the signature of A.L.O.E.

Five years ago he married Emma Booth, the second daughter of Gen. Booth, and sister of Ballington Booth. She is very active in army work, and is lady principal of the organization's training schools.

A CLOSE SHAVE

A TALK WITH THE MAN WHO EXPERIENCED IT.

People really do not know how often the angel of death hovers over them. Mr. R. P. Watkins, 173 Bay st., is a barber by trade, and gave our representative this short history of his escape from the disorder which was rapidly carrying him to his grave. Mr. Watkins is a skillful and experienced man, and is now enabled to exercise his skill from morning till night, where before he was unable to regularly follow his chosen calling. This is Mr. Watkins' story as related by himself.

"For over three years I have been troubled with what the doctors said was Bright's Disease, was getting rapidly worse, and could scarcely attend to my business. My ankles were swollen, the pain and heat in my back were almost unbearable, the urine was of a dark wine color, and it used to dribble away continually. I had to rise 9 or 10 times each night to void the urine, and consequently lost nearly all my sleep. The scalding heat and pain in passing the urine were painful and distressing beyond my feeble power to describe. People who did not know my trouble used to laugh at my frequent visits to the urinal. My hands and feet were always cold and clammy, and I suffered severely from palpitation, shortness of breath, and was, in fact, almost a total wreck. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from Messrs. E. Hooper & Co., and improved at once. I have used two boxes and feel like a new man; can now work right along and at 12 p.m. feel like working right ahead. Had I not got those pills I feel that I would not have been working to-day. My words only faintly express the dreadful condition I was in, and the wonderful cure made by Doan's Kidney Pills."

WANT TO KILL THE SULTAN.

Rumors Current that an Attempt will be Made on His Life.

London, Feb. 24.—The Standard will to-morrow publish a despatch from Constantinople, saying that no steps whatever have been taken by the Porte to inaugurate the reforms that were promised for Armenia and Macedonia. Nobody conversant with the Yaldiz Palace methods expects that any reforms will be instituted during the Sultan's lifetime. The despatch further says that persistent rumors have been current for several days that an attempt will be made on the life of the Sultan on the occasion of his annual visit to Constantinople proper on Feb. 28 to kiss the Prophet's Mantle.

Open Air Skating Soiree.

Last night the open air skating rink, Riverside Park, was the scene of a delightful society event, a charming soiree a glace. Mr. Hampden Burnham entertained a party of his friends consisting of about 75 ladies and gentlemen at a skating party. The party consisted of a select coterie of our best dames demoiselles and gentlemen patineurs, who enjoyed the occasion very much indeed. The rink was illuminated with coloured lanterns, and during the evening hot tea and coffee and light refreshments were served. Skating lasted from eight to eleven, and all who had the pleasure of being present enjoyed the most delightful out door entertainments since the frost and snow took possession of the tennis courts.

DEATH OF BRIDGET RYAN.

Heart Failure the Cause of Her Sudden Death Yesterday.

The Lindsay Post contains the following further particulars concerning the death of Miss Bridget Ryan, to which a reference was made in yesterday's Examiner:—"About two weeks ago Miss Bridget Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, estimable citizens of Peterborough, arrived in town on a visit to her friend, Miss Julia Murphy, of Ops. Since then the young lady enjoyed herself at many social gatherings in town and country, and became a great favourite owing to her winning disposition and ability to make friends. Yesterday, as usual, she attended high mass at St. Mary's church with Mrs. Murphy and family, and afterwards promised Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Hurley that she would spend several days of this week with them in town. Last evening Miss Ryan retired at the usual hour, occupying a bed with Miss Bridget Murphy. The latter arose about eight o'clock, but did not call her friend, who was apparently in a deep sleep, but at nine o'clock she was summoned to breakfast; as she did not respond Miss Julia ascended to her chamber and shook her, but without avail. Fearful that something was wrong, Miss Murphy called the rest of the family, when the painful discovery was made that life had fled. It appears that Miss Ryan was subject to spells of weakness induced by heart disease, and Dr. Poole, who was at once summoned, espressed the opinion that she had passed away suddenly owing to a very severe attack. The friends of the young lady were at once notified by telephone of the melancholy occurrence, and Mr. John Ryan, of the Edison Works, and Miss Kate Ryan, teacher, arrived on the 1.45 mixed train to make the necessary arrangements. The body will be taken to Peterborough this evening on the 8 o'clock express. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the hearts of many friends of the deceased young lady, and deep sympathy is felt for the suddenly bereaved parents."

The funeral takes place from the family residence 199 Dalhousie street to-morrow at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral.

HOCKEY.

"Toronto," says the Globe, "will have a superabundance of what is called championship hockey this week. To-night, at the Granite rink, Upper Canada College and the Wellingtons will contest the City League championship, while to-morrow night the "big fellow," Queen's and Stratford, will strive for senior honours at the Mutual street rink, and Friday will bring along what will probably be the best game of the series, at least the teams have given greater evidence of being more evenly matched than any of the others—the final for the junior championship between the Granites and Peterborough. This is the third time in as many consecutive seasons that these two teams have come together in the last round, and on two occasions victory has rested with the eastern seven, once by a large score and last year by 8 to 7, in what was conceded to be the hottest game played in Toronto that season. The Granites this year are stronger than they were 365 days ago, and if reports are to be believed, Peterborough, if anything, has retrograded in strength."

If this Toronto scribe and his friends are foolish enough to wish to back the Granites to win, they will find plenty of accommodation when the Peterborough boys land in Toronto on Friday.

Another Grant for the Sougog.

Lindsay steamboat men are rejoicing over the news that Sir Oliver Mowat has placed $3,600 in the estimates for the deepening and widening of the Sougog between the locks and the Wellington street bridge, in compliance with the prayer of the petition forwarded last year by the town council. It will be remembered that the departmental engineer visited Lindsay last fall to take the necessary measurements and soundings, and it will be seen that the government have lost no time in dealing with his report. We understand that in addition to the river channel being deepened and widened ample turning room for two or more boats will be provided by dredging away the banks on the north and south sides, which will then be protected by crib-work. It is thought that the estimate will be ample to make a first-class job of the work, and thus put an end to the many annoying blockades that were a feature of last season's occupancy of the town wharf.—Lindsay Post.

REV. FATHER SCOLLARD HONOURED BY THE E.B.A.

A FAREWELL RECEPTION TENDERED HIM.

Address and Presentation—A Feeling Reply—Complimentary Addresses—An Entertaining Programme.

In view of the removal of Rev. Father Scollard to North Bay, the Emerald Beneficial Association, of which he has been the honoured chaplain for years, tendered him a farewell reception at the Catholic Association rooms last night, and the enthusiastic character of this farewell must give the reverend gentleman a striking evidence of the love and esteem in which he is held; and not only by the members of that order, but by the congregation generally, which was numerously represented by the large company that crowded the hall, and even the antechambers.

Upon the platform were seated the guest of the evening, Rev. Father Scollard, Ven. Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Rev. Father Phelan, and Rev. Father Cainan, J. J. Daly, president E. B. A.; W. J. Devlin, chancellor; James Drain, insurance secretary, A. L. Giroux, past financial secretary; M. H. Quinlan, chairman of the Separate School Board, and L. M. Hayes, barrister, High school representative.

Mr. J. Daly, President of the E.B.A., occupied the chair, and explained that the object of the gathering was to pay a tribute of respect to their reverend Chaplain, Rev. Father Scollard, who was about to leave them, and he thought by the large attendance that the audience sympathized with the E.B.A., in their desire to do honour to their departing chaplain.

He then introduced a short programme:

A well-performed performed pianoforte duet by Misses Anna Young and Louisa Sullivan.

A harmonica and banjo duet by Messrs. Hickey and Talbot was re-warded with a hearty encore.

This was followed by a recitation by Miss Lily Simons, "The Exile's Wishes," which was so excellently given that she was compelled to respond to an encore—"Dearest and I."

Mrs. Geo. Ball and Miss Lynch sang a vocal duet entitled "The Minute Gun at Sea," which was excellently performed.

Mr. D. Gordon sang in fine style a baritone solo.

At this point Mr. Jas. Drain read the following address:

Rev. and Dear Father Scollard, Parish Priest of North Bay:

We, the president, officers and members of St. Peter's Branch, No. 21, E.B.A., having learned with feelings of mingled gladness and sorrow, that it has pleased His Lordship, our beloved Bishop, to move you from amongst us to another station in this extensive diocese, we deem it our duty before your departure to present you with this feeble but sincere expression of our reverence and regard.

Our joy arises because of your promotion to a position of increased dignity and responsibility in the exercise of your sacred mission—a position for which your piety, devotion, energy and zeal in the cause of our holy religion so eminently qualify you. Our regret is caused because we shall lose the great advantage of your fatherly advice and counsel, which it was your custom to give to our association at all times and further that we shall miss you from our meetings, where your pleasing presence always inspired confidence and encouragement in the advancement of the good work of our society, which has in a marked degree increased in numbers, prosperity and efficiency under your fostering care and chaplaincy.

Although looking upon your departure and consequent loss of you as chaplain of our branch with feelings of most sincere regret, we, as Emeralds, feel that we have been honoured by having you as our chaplain, so very highly honoured as to merit appointment of parish priest of so important a parish as that of North Bay, and it is the unanimous opinion of this branch that in making the appointment His Lordship had in his mind the ever-to-be-remembered lines of the poet, A. P. Graves, and that, considering the large number of priests to select from, not only in the Cathedral, but also in the extensive diocese of Peterborough, His Lordship came to the conclusion that:

Of priests we can offer a charmin' variety,
Far renowned for larnin' and piety,
Still I'd advance ye without impropriety,
The Emerald's chaplain's the flower of them [all.

But, reverend father, while we shall in a very especial manner miss you from amongst us our beloved and devoted chaplain, we recognize that your absence from this diocesan parish will also be felt by his Lordship and clergy as well as by the Cathedral and outside congregations—indeed by the people of Peterborough, we believe, who may have had the pleasure of your acquaintance or observed your meek and modest movements in our midst whilst in the discharge of your necessary duties.

The knowledge of these facts, reverend father, gladdens our hearts and lightens the burden of our sorrow.

Although our social and brotherly relations now cease, perhaps only for a time, yet, reverend father, believe us that you will be ever present in our prayers and we humbly ask you father, that when offering to God for our sins the holy sacrifice of the mass, you will at the solemn moment bear our dear society in your mind and commend it to the protection of Almighty God.

And as a further though very inadequate testimony of our simple reverence and esteem, we beg to present for your acceptance this pair of gauntlets, which may some time serve a useful purpose in your northern clime, and, in conclusion, wish you from our hearts every blessing, sincere God-speed to your new home, where we pray you may enjoy good health and a long and happy life in the performance of the arduous duties of your sacred office.

Signed on behalf of the E. B. A.,

J. W. Fitzgerald,
Thos. Cahill,
A. L. Giroux.

Peterborough, Feb. 24th, 1896.

At the proper time Mr. A. L. Giroux advanced and presented Rev. Father Scollard with a beautiful pair of otter fur gauntlets.

In reply Rev. Father Scollard who seemed deeply moved at the evidence of respect he had received, thanked the members of the E.B.A., for their flattering entertainment and farewell address. As chaplain he felt that he had not at all times given the the duties of the office all the attention they deserved—had not been present at all the meetings, but he knew that the society's interests were in good hands. He highly appreciated the address and entertainment which he felt had received the co-operation of the congregation. During the five years of his priesthood in Peterborough he had striven to do his duty as he saw it, though he felt that he had not always lived up to his ideal of the priesthood, and on this account this reception entitled him to feel all the more flattered. Referring to the handsome present made for which he gave his hearty thanks, he had intended to handle his new parishioners gently—with kid gloves—but the E. B. A. had equipped him for handling them with even a softer material. While he appreciated the flattering demonstration of the evening, it only emphasized the kindness he had received from the E. B. A., the congregation and the citizens generally during the last five years. He again returned his thanks and bade the company farewell and prayed the blessing of God upon them.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey, in a brief address, expressed the pleasure it gave him to join in the graceful tribute to Rev. Father Scollard. But he thought he had misunderstood the object of presenting the gauntlets. The E. B. A. knew that Father Scollard had a warm heart, and according to the old proverb, they wished to put his hands in the same condition. (Applause) He was sure this evening would often bring Peterborough to the mind of Father Scollard. He wished him all possible success, and was sure that he had the qualities of heart and mind to do his duty in North Bay as he had done it in Peterborough.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick felt that the congregation was losing a zealous priest and that the clergy was losing a fellow priest, who had won their love and respect.

Mr. M. H. Quinlan said that all united in endorsing the beautiful sentiments of the address, which were the feelings of the E. B. A. and Separate School Board. He was sure that the respect of St. Peter's and E. B. A., which Father Scollard enjoyed, was a reflection of the feeling of the citizens of the town generally, irrespective of creed.

Mr. W. J. Devlin paid a hearty tribute to the fidelity of Rev. Father Scollard's services towards the E. B. A. His wise counsel was highly appreciated.

The musical programme then continued, Miss Louisa Sullivan performing a violin solo, "Irish Airs," and in response to an encore the appropriate selection "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot."

Miss M. Ball sang, with good taste, "If the Waters Could Speak as They Flow."

Messrs. Hickey and Talbot greatly pleased the audience with a harmonica and banjo duet.

Mr. D. Gordon sang, by request, "Calvary," and this number brought a delightful evening to a close.

The accompaniments of the evening were played by Miss Minnie Begley, Miss Lily Hurley and Miss F. Sullivan.

Before separating "God Save the Queen" was sung by the audience, and as the audience passed out nearly all had an opportunity of personally bidding Rev. Father Scollard farewell.

On Sunday at St. Peter's Cathedral, in the course of his sermon at 10 o'clock mass, Rev. Father Scollard feelingly referred to his departure from Peterborough, speaking of the regret at severing the associations he had formed with fellow-priests and congregation during the past five years. Though the separation was hard he bowed to the call of duty in compliance with His Lordship's appointment.

Rev. Father Scollard, leaves for North Bay, by the 5.12 G.T.R. train, on Thursday evening, followed by the hearty good wishes for success of St. Peter's congregation and the citizens generally.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realized more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." Mrs. C. Crompton, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

It is with general and deep regret that it will be learned that Dr. Yelland's condition shows no improvement; in fact, his medical attendants are forced to the conclusion that there is no hope of recovery. Earnest expressions of regret at the dangerous condition of the genial and clever young physician are heard on every side.

Obituary.

The following is clipped from the Rochester, N. Y., Post Express of Thursday last:—"Mrs. Jane Cole, wife of Mr. Gregory Cole, died this morning at her residence, 78 Jones street, at the ripe old age of 82 years. She is survived by her husband and five daughters—Mrs. Joseph Lannin, of Peterborough, Canada; Mrs. Thomas Lannin, Mrs. William McDonald, Mrs. R. H. Bryant and Miss Jennie Cole, of Rochester, and two sons, William, of Chicago, and Gregory, also of Rochester. Deceased leaves sixteen grand-children and eight great-grandchildren." She lived in Peterborough about seventeen years ago, where she was well known and highly respected.

These aided by other pulmonary agents present the most scientific and efficacious remedy ever discovered for the relief and cure of hoarseness, cough, bronchitis, croup, asthma, incipient consumption, and all other throat and chest troubles. Pinemalt contains no nauseants. In winter cough of the aged it gives prompt relief. In chronic cases ask your druggist for Pinemalt and Hypophosphites, instead of plain Pinemalt. Mesmerist Lee.

Prof. Lee, the laughing success, again greeted a Peterborough audience last evening. There was a fair attendance, and those who went were well repaid for their money and trouble. He opened his entertainment by tracing the art of hypnotism from its earliest existence. The professor experienced some difficulty in getting subjects to operate upon—as is usually the case the first night. The crowing feat of the evening was reached when he put his manager, Mr. F. R. Lenman, in a state of catalepsy. When that gentleman was in that state, Mr. Lee put his feet on the back of one chair and his head on the back of another one, got a large plank and put it on the legs of his subject, and then got two well built young men to sit upon each end; the professor then stood in the middle of the plank and "teetered" the young men. The professor did this to show the wonderful strength of the body when in such a state.

AN ADDRESS BY REV. ARCHDEACON TIMS.

He Spoke to the Congregations of St. John's and St. Luke's Last Evening.

Last evening the school house of St. Luke's church was filled to the doors by those anxious to hear Ven. Archdeacon Tims speak of his missionary experience amongst the Indians of the Blackfoot reserve.

The occasion was that of the joint annual Diocesan Missionary meeting of the congregations of St. John's and St. Luke's. Rev. J. C. Davidson made a brief address in which he stated that last year between the two churches, $350 had been contributed to Diocesan Missions. This money, as well as that contributed from other churches went to swell a fund to provide salaries for the ministers in those missions which were not self supporting. During the last year or so the Mission Board had become much more aggressive and taken far more interest in the subject. The Bishop had appointed a commission to visit every mission and this work had been completed in January and concerning the whole matter would be submitted for discussion at the next meeting of the Synod. Mr. Davidson congratulated the congregation of St. Luke's on the mission work which they were doing at their own doors in Keene and Allandale. He spoke for some time concerning the difficult task of those who undertook to collect for the missions, and asked those present to exercise thoughtfulness in the reception of the collectors whose work was at no time of the most pleasant. In conclusion the speaker referred in highly complimentary terms to the Women's Auxiliary and its work in connection with missions. It had done much to familiarize the public with the work in the mission field, and through them the name of Archdeacon Tims had become almost a household word, and Miss Symonds also well known. Mr. Davidson then introduced the Archdeacon, who opened his address by an interesting reference to the legends of the Blackfoot Indians and their ideas concerning the creation. His vivid description of the horrors of the sun dance was almost too much for the nerves of some of the ladies, especially when he entered into a minute description to which some of the braves subjected themselves. These sun dances, the Archdeacon stated, were a great hindrance to the propogation of Christianity, as a society amongst the Indians known as the Black Soldiers compelled every member of the tribe to be present at these heathen festivals. If a family did not wish to attend these soldiers took down their tents and carried them off to the scene of the sun dance and to reclaim them the owner had to be present. If the members of a family showed a disposition to resent this interefference by force, their habitation was totally destroyed.

OF THE TORTURES

The great difficulty, the Archdeacon explained, in imparting Christianity to Indians was their language. It had taken two years of constant study before he was able to deliver a halting address in Blackfoot. During this time he had resided amongst the Indians and studied six hours a day regularly.

The habits and customs of the Indians on the death of a relative appear to consist in a touching solicitude concerning the loneliness of the departed in the trip to the Happy Hunting Grounds and a desire to send some one to keep them company on the journey. The Archdeacon had from death by happening to be around at the time of the demise of an Indian, whose relatives wished to provide him with a travelling companion for the trip. The faith of the Indians in their Medicine men is absurd, as the greatest confidence is placed in their advice, which is at all times most nonsensical from the standpoint of one having the benefits of civilization.

During the last five or six years many difficulties had been overcome and now great advances were being made especially with the young. Boarding schools had been erected and now 74 children were in attendance and on Sundays a nice service was held with over a hundred adult Indians present. Four of the girls who were in the boarding school were confirmed and and five years ago they had not heard the word of Christ except as used by the traders in the indulgence of profanity. In concluding his address the Archdeacon asked for aid in carrying on the work amongst the Indians and stated that a great many collectors had consented to give him their assistance.

HOCKEY MATCH

A very exciting hockey match was held at the rink on Tuesday evening last week between Keene and Lakefield junior hockey teams. Play was commenced shortly after eight o'clock, Keene had great advantage over the home team in size, in fact over half of their men were seniors, but the home club gave them all they wanted to do, and if they had only played a little more together they could easily have defeated them. In the first half Keene scored two goals. Lakefield put the puck through once but the referee did not see it and so would not allow it. In the second half Lakefield scored one goal but could not get anymore though they had the puck around Keene's goal nearly all the time. E. Bloomfield played a good game for Lakefield while J. Miller played the star game for Keene. Following are the players:

J Richie	Goal	W Wagner
R Dickson	Point	H Moore
J Dickson	Cover Point	E Bloomfield
F Quinn, W Brown, J Roach, J Miller	Forwards	R Murdoff, R Bloomfield, R English, W Watson

CURLING.

On Friday afternoon a very close and exciting match was played by two of our local rinks, the old men of the club vs. the young men. The personel of the rinks and score are as follows:

BARN FELL IN.

On Thursday last, February 20th, the barns belonging to Mr. Geo. A. Bickell, of Smith, fell in from the weight of snow on them. The barn was very large, being 109 feet long and 30 feet wide. The barn is a total loss, but nothing else was damaged except a buggy which was pretty badly smashed.

SNOW BLOCKADE.

There was quite a blockade of the roads in this neighbourhood in every direction for two days this week. The train was unable to come in, mails delayed, and business completely demoralized.

R. Graham & Son are noted for their excellent tea. They carry a large stock and great variety of Japan, Hyson, India and Ceylon teas. Being direct importers, they are enabled to sell at lowest prices.

The Christian Endeavour Society of the Presbyterian church held a very good meeting on Friday evening last, a number of excellent papers being presented on the subject, "Loyalty to Our Church." There were a number of visitors present and a contingent from Peterborough was expected, but owing to the state of the weather they did not put in an appearance. After the meeting a social time was spent, refreshments being served.

FORESTERS' ANNUAL SERMON.

On Sunday morning last the members of Court Lakefield, No. 43, C. O. F., assembled in their hall to the number of 40 or 50 and marched to the Presbyterian church, where the pastor, Rev. A. C. Reeves, preached an eloquent sermon, suitable to the occasion, taking for his text, Matthew 23rd chap., 8th verse, "One is your Master even Christ, and all ye are brethren."

In the course of his remarks he stated that the Foresters were a good society of men banded together for the mutual improvement and help of the needy. Ministers were often asked to preach to different societies, but he knew of nothing in this society but that what was good. The Foresters are banded together to relieve the needy and help those who are in distress. They call each other brother. This title is taken from the Scriptures.

There is a similiarity between this society and the early Christians. The early Christians were dispersed and persecuted and they established a community with a common fund out of which the needs of the brethren were supplied. They called themselves brethren in the Lord. There is a strong resemblance between this common fund of the early Christians and that of the Foresters. They should also try and emulate the courage, endurance and love of the truth as practised by the early Christians. The much used phrase, "The Brotherhood of Man," is descriptive of the Order of Foresters. Ye are members one of another, and stand in that relation to one another. Christ is our brother. He believed in the brotherhood of man, healing the sick, relieving the distressed, his companions being the publicans and sinners. Let each of you live close to Christ, who will stick to you closer than a brother.

As a brotherhood remember that one is your Master, even Christ. Unless Christ and his principles are maintained in your order it cannot be a success. He made the forests, the glades and the glens, therefore He is your Master, also your Brother.

There are three great principles which lie at the foundations of your Order, they are Liberty, Benevolence and Concord.

The first is Liberty, a rich heritage gained after long years of struggle, and considered as one of our greatest possessions.

The second is Benevolence; this really means wishing well, but by actual usage it consists in doing well. Benevolence implies gratitude and a benevolent spirit. We should always be kind and benevolent to our fellow man.

The third is Concord, a sentiment of brotherly love called charity. How pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity and harmony.

Jesus Christ is your Master, for he inculcated the three great principles of your order, Liberty, Benevolence and Concord. He said, "Love all men, even your enemies." Let us do this through the duty of Benevolence and the bond of Concord.

The brethren then returned to their Court room, when they passed a very hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Reeves for his very instructive sermon.

Weak, Nervous Women.

One to whom a night's rest was unknown.

Strength and good health restored.

I was subject to frequent attacks of nervousness that seemed to sap all my vitality and left me in a state of weakness and misery. I could not relish food and such a thing as a good night's rest was unknown. Incapable of any exertion and with an ever present tired and despondent feeling. Medicines that I took did not do any good; it was a case of gradually becoming weaker and weaker. Hearing of Scott's Sarsaparilla and its success with similar cases to mine, I used it, and from the first few doses began to get better, appetite returned, got natural and refreshing sleep. I grew stronger, in fact life seemed to be fanned into activity.—Lottie Graham, 174 Crawford Street, Toronto.

For any weakness of the nerves, pale and sallow complexion, loss of appetite use the best blood and nerve remedy extant, Scott's Sarsaparilla. Insist on getting Scott's—imitations do not cure.

A MILLION PER CENT.

HOW A BOSTON MAN MADE IT THE OTHER DAY.

Abraham White $90,000 Ahead on His Bond Bill—His Wife Even a Bigger Winner—$20,000 Won on the Turn of a Postage Stamp.

Any man in the United States, no matter how poor, had a chance to get rich by means of the Government bond issues. Probably not a dozen poor men in the whole of that country took advantage of it. Abraham White, the Boston man who has gained wealth and notoriety by his bid for $5,000,000 of Government bonds, practically without a dollar in the world, was one of the lucky ones. On an investment of 44 cents in postage stamps he secured the option on $1,500,00 of bonds, and at the market price the deal stands him $9,000 profit, or 204,054.45 per cent. on his capital. Mrs. White, however, eclipsed her husband in her investment, for with the expenditure of two cents in postage she secured an option on $500,000 of bonds, representing a profit of $20,000 at the current price of the day, or 1,000,000 per cent. on her investment, and that's why the millionaires and bankers are interested in these two young people.

It is a singular fact that White and his wife, though without a cent or any security to put up other than their options on the bonds for which they bid, are to-day worried by offers of millions of dollars' worth of gold by the most conservative bankers and the wealthiest financiers, and they smilingly return the editor's answer to the poet's offer, "Declined with thanks."

At first some of the financiers expressed surprise that the Government should allow White and his wife to bid at all, and they were more than astonished that they should be given an option on $1,500,000 and $500,000 of bonds respectively. Some of these gentlemen were so angered that they wrote Secretary Carlisle that White was a young and reckless adventurer, and couldn't fulfill the requirements; but that is just where they got fooled. White was next threatened that unless he let them "come in" on the deal they would use their influence with Morgan and Carlisle and have the bids of himself and wife thrown out.

White got a little scared, and borrowing of a friend sufficient money to pay his fare and expenses to Washington, he sent a telegram to his wife that he had gone to consult with the Treasurer of the United States, and silently he slipped out of the city and the next morning he presented himself at the Treasury Department bright and early. He sent in his card to Secretary Carlisle, and was granted an interview, and came away with an autograph photograph of the Secretary as evidence of the amicable relations that had been established between himself and the Treasury Department. Next day he was back in Boston and made his payment with the sub-treasurer for his bonds, having secured $1,500,000 in gold of the Hancock National Bank at a quarter of 1 per cent. The bank, by the way, was a big bidder for bonds, and got left in the distribution, having over $5,000,0000 in gold on hand.

"I was threatened with all sorts of things," said White. "One man told me Morgan would have my bid thrown out, as I was irresponsible, but if I would accept $47,000 for my bid on $800,000 of bonds, and my wife would sell her option on $500,000 of bonds for $20,000, everything would be fixed all right.

"I had just as much right to bid for those bonds as Morgan or anybody else. Anybody who would take the pains to read the Treasury circular could see that there was no penalty for putting in a bid, and, providing I could secure the gold, my bid was just as good as Mr. Morgan's. I talked with the representatives of the syndicates, but they spoke so disparagingly of the proposed loan that I knew they wanted the bonds and were simply playing a game of bluff. I was then determined to put in a bid, and, the more I thought over the matter, the more bids I put in, until I had bids for $5,500,000 of bonds. I simply saw my opportunity and took advantage of it, and I can get all the gold I want.

"My bids cost me just 44 cents in postage, and I could sell out to-day for $9,000. I intend to hold on to the most of my bonds, for I expect to see them go to 125 before many days. They cost me on the average 111 3-8, and at the market price I can get all the money I want on them. I am satisfied of one thing, that every man stands an equal show with this administration, and that this talk about the influence of syndicates on the Treasury Department is all nonsense. One man's gold is as good as another's there."

White is only 32, a rugged sort of a chap, of bright appearance, about medium height, with hair of auburn hue, and a beardless, but very strong face. He was born in Galveston, Texas, and at 13 began to shift for himself. White has sold $200,000 of his bonds for 117, but he holds on to the rest with a 125 grip. Mrs. White thinks she will realize $30,000 by her deal on a postage stamp, and she proposes to complete her musical education and her husband is anxious that she should, as he says she has a splendid voice. She doesn't appear over-elated at her good fortune.

Outgrown Friendship.

Is there anything more distressing in life than a friendship outgrown? This doesn't mean one that has been broken off through some difference of opinion, some misunderstanding that a few words could have set right, or an estrangement the result of a hasty temper that prompted ugly words and untruthful, bitter sentiments; no, a friendship outgrown is the unhappy product of too much worldliness on one side or the other. Perhaps education would be the better word, or a knowledge of the world a more comely phrase, but whichever pleases most the outcome of the same never varies.

Red Tape in France.

In France there is a woman who will be drafted for service in the French army next year. She is not an Amazon, either, but owing to the mistake of her parents or god-parents, she was erroneously registered at her birth as a male child. The officials are cognizant of the blunder, but official red tape makes it necessary for her to present herself for service.

How Books Get Valuable.

Anything—a printer's error, the author's private or public troubles, a freak on the part of its last distinguished possessor—may run up the price of a book by leaps and bounds, and set all the cranks on the prowl. Books have been run after merely because they were barbarously mauled by their owners. A late eminent Shakespearean scholar used to tear "out of volumes in his possession all the matter which he considered of insufficient interest." And we are assured that "there were recently at large persons bearing all the outward semblance of sane humanity," who bought up the mutilated volumes at high prices. The illustrious Charles Darwin, being a practical man, untroubled by any sentiment about books, as such, had a savage habit of cutting his bulkier volumes into halves. These fragments should fetch long prices.—London Daily News.

Census of the World.

A general simultaneous census of the world for the year 1900 is asked for by the International Statistical Institute. It can be taken if slight modifications in the time of their regular censuses are made by the chief countries of the world. Portugal, Denmark, the United States, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium, Hungary and Sweden will regularly take their censuses on different days of the year 1900. Holland on the last day of 1899, Norway on the first day of 1901 and Great Britain, France and Italy later in that year.

Prof. Swing and His Tailor.

"Make me a nice, easy coat," said the noted pulpit orator of Chicago to his tailor one day shortly before his death, "one that's loose and roomy enough for me to stretch up in and grow eloquent over, you know."

"Yes, I understand," said the tailor, with a twinkle in his eye: "you want me to make you one gesture size."

"That's it, exactly," exclaimed the divine, as he laughhed at the tailor's merry pun; "one that I can just Swing myself in."—Chmicago Journal.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

A Favored Patient.

Dr. Liddell's morning levees were crowded beyond description. It was his pride and boast that he could feel his patient's pulse, look at his tongue, sound him with a stethoscope, write his prescription and pocket his fee in a space of time varying from two to five minutes.

One day an army man was shown into the consulting room and underwent what might be termed the instantaneous process. When it was completed the patient shook hands with the doctor and said:

"I am especially glad to meet you, as I have often heard my father, Col. Forrester, speak of his old friend Dr. Liddell."

"What!" exclaimed the doctor. "Are you Dick Forrester's son?"

"I am, sir."

"My dear fellow," exclaimed the doctor, "fling that prescription into the fire please, and sit down and tell me what is the matter with you."

TEN YEARS TROUBLED

With Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia---Suffered Greatly and Found No Relief in the Scores of Medicines Prescribed.

South American Nervine Was Recommended, and Before Half a Bottle Was Taken Relief Came.

Have Since Improved Rapidly, and Am Now Completely Cured—So Says Mr. David Reid, of Chesley, Ont.

What ills come to humanity from a disordered liver! Henry Ward Beecher has said that it was impossible for a man to hold correct spiritual views if his liver was out of order. The liver is so important a part of the mechanism of man that when it ceases to work with ease the whole man is unable to do his work aright. Can we not appeal to thousands, nay, tens of thousands, for a verification of this fact? Certainly it is, that Mr. David Reid, of Chesley, Ont., felt that the enjoyment of life had been taken from him, through the unhealthy condition of his liver. For ten years he says he was troubled with liver complaint and dyspepsia. Employing his own language: "At times my liver was so tender I could not bear it pressed or touched from the outside. Had tried a great many remedies without any benefit. Was compelled to drop my work, and being worse than usual, I decided as a final resort to try South American Nervine, which had been recommended to me by friends who had been cured by it. I got a bottle from A. S. Goodeve, local druggist, and commenced taking according to directions. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to go to work again, and I have improved steadily since. I can conscientiously recommend South American Nervine to any suffering from dyspepsia or liver complaint." This is Mr. Reid's story as he tells it in his own words. Were it thought necessary it could be corroborated by a host of witnesses. Mr. Reid has lived a long time in Chesley, and his case was known to be a very bad one. But that makes no difference to Nervine. This great discovery rises equal to the most trying occasions. Let it be indigestion, the most chronic liver trouble, as with Mr. Reid, nervous prostration, that makes life miserable with so many, sick headaches, that sap all the effort out of man or woman, Nervine measures to the necessities of the case. It is a great medicine and thousands to-day in Canada are happier and healthier men and women, because of its discovery. There is no great secret about it, and yet there is an important secret. It operates on the nerve centers of the system from which emanate all life and healthfulness, or if disordered, sickness, even death. Nervine strikes promptly at the nerve centers, hence, as with Mr. Reid, where ten years' use of other medicines had done no good, less than a bottle of Nervine brought about encouraging results, and a few bottles cured.

THE old man who looks out at the world with clear and healthy eyes cannot help feeling great gratification at the thought that his children and his children's children have inherited from him no weakness nor tendency to disease. The healthy old man is the man who has throughout his life kept his digestion good and his blood pure. Once in a while you find such a man who has never taken any medicine. That man has lived a perfectly natural life. Not one in a thousand does do it. Sometimes very slight indiscretions or carelessness pave the way for serious sickness. The germ theory of disease is well authenticated, and germs are everywhere. This need make no difference to the perfectly healthy man. Germs go through the healthy body without effect. They are hurried along rapidly and thrown off before they have time to develop or increase. Let them once find lodgment or let them find a weak spot, they will develop by the million and the blood will be full of them. Instead of rich, life-giving properties, the blood will be a sluggish, putrid tide of impurity. Instead of giving strength to the tissues, it will force upon them unwholesome and innutritious matter, and the man will lose flesh. The more flesh he loses and the weaker he becomes, the more susceptible he is to disease. His trouble will become complicated and serious consequences will follow. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the only medicine that absolutely and infallibly cures all blood diseases, and almost all diseases are blood diseases. It isn't a medicine for some one particular so-called disease. It is a medicine for the whole body. It forces out all the germs of disease, replaces impurities with rich, red blood, feeds the tissues and makes strong, healthy flesh.

Expecting Too Much.

Proprietor—You go by here with your nose in the air, as if you didn't owe me a d[illegible]r!"

Young Hings—Well, great Scott! do you want me to have it amputated and trail it behind me 'cause I do?

His Uncertainty.

"Hurt ye much, Uncle Enoch?" inquired Jay Green of Farmer Squanch, who had inadvertently fallen off a load of hay, landing heavily and in an awkward heap on the ground, and was now sitting on a convenient stump and gingerly pawing himself over in search of fractures.

"Wal, no, I guess not," replied the old man. "But it makes me feel considerably mystified."

"You don't mean mystified, do ye, Uncle Enoch?"

"Yep, that's jest exactly what I mean! Ye see, I've been feelin' kinder poorly for several days, and jest before I started to town with this load of hay I took a powder for the holler sensation in my head, a pill for the pain in my knee, a capsule for my lung trouble an' some pellets for my liver, an' put a good big plaster on my weak back. Wal, that jolt shook me up so that the plaster is now down in my left shoe, an' if the rest of them remedies have been knocked as far out of place as the plaster was I'm sorter mystified as to how they are goin' to git back to the p'ints they were destined to benefit."

TABLE LINEN.

The Newest Styles, Fancies and Effects in Napery for 1896.

New styles for napery always make their appearance with the advent of the new year. Among the new designs which command attention is the fleur-de-lis in Empire style. On a smooth satin damask surface are woven the miniature fleur-de-lis forming a narrow panel a yard wide, through the centre of the cloth. Around this is a border of the species of lily known by that name. This narrow border rests on the table, and on that portion which falls below the board are festoons of the flowers in a pattern describing deep scallops. The linens come in complete sets, consisting of breakfast, luncheon and dinner cloths, with napkins in three sizes.

What ranks as the newest pattern of the season is that of a graceful plume scattered promiscuously over a plain damask cloth, the gorder of which is formed of Prince of Wales feathers arranged in a garland.

Hemstitched cloths are never out of style and grow more diversified in design and mode of embellishment each year. Several successive rows of hemstitching, which form the panel of a dinner cloth, are done in a stitch indicating a lattice work. Under this a suitable ribbon for the "pink tea," the "violet luncheon" or the "chrysanthemum dinner," may be placed to advantage.

The selections of plain damask denotes a taste for quiet elegance. It is considered chic, and no weave in this respect can supplant it. The moral designs are not conventional, and mosaic patterns are seen in tea cloths, either supplying the entire decorative scheme or furnishing the border for polka-dot panels.

Irish linen damask is the most durable; that of an ecru shade is unbleached and is considered even a more advantageous buy. Shrewd shoppers purchase the out-of-date designs in a heavy quality of linen for the same price that an inferior grade in novelty patterns will bring.

No fixed rule as to what constitutes a linen outfit has been established, and the number of pieces used in laying the table depends largely upon the resources of the individual and the style kept up by the hostess.

Flax has been at a premium for the past year, and the Irish peasant and the Scotch agriculturist failed to produce the expected crop last year, hence there is a raise in the price of linen.

Frock for a Girl of 14.

The dress illustrated is of olive-green wool checkered with black and tan color, and has dark green velvet for the standing collar and the shoulder straps, which are caught at the ends with steel buttons. The skirt has a wide gored front and straight back; it is thirty-two inches long and three yards and five-eighths wide around the bottom, and is lined with percaline, with narrow strip of crinoline in the bottom. The skirt is joined to the bottom of the waist, under a belt of the dress material. The waist is made alike at the front and back, and is fastened behind.

FROCK FOR A GIRL OF FOURTEEN.

She was Too Sharp for Them.

The other day a stylishly-dressed woman stepped from a coach in front of a big dry goods store in New York and, proceeding to the fur department, selected a seal wrap worth $300. In payment she tendered a check for $1,000, which the saleswoman took to the office. A messenger was dispatched to the bank and he was told that the check was good. Meantime the woman pretended to be indignant, demanded a return of the check, would accept no apologies and drove away. Presently she returned and said she had allowed her temper to overcome her, and ordered the cloak wrapped up. She was given $700 in change and disappeared. A second visit to the bank disclosed the fact that the woman had withdrawn the $1,000 she had on deposit there, and that the check was worthless.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root. Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritive value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

The Deacon Underdone.

There was once a deacon on Cape Cod who heard early one morning that there had been a wreck on the beach near his house. He hurried down with a couple of pillow cases; filled one with sugar, hid it under the bank and went on to look for more groceries. While he was gone a neighbor came along on the same errand, caught sight of the pillow case, emptied it into his own bag and refilled it with sand. By and by the deacon returned empty-handed and carried off his pillow case without noticing the change. In fact, he filled his sugar bowl and tried to sweeten his coffee before he found out how badly he had been treated. Then he was so indignant that he confessed afterward, "I was almost wicked enough to wish there might never be another wreck on this here coast again."

CARD OF THANKS.

Messrs. Cox & Davis, Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN: I wish to thank you for your promptness in settling the loss on my furniture, which occurred through the upsetting of my coal stove, on Friday night last at 10 o'clock. On being notified next day you were good enough to send over a man to settle the loss in order that I might be able to get the house cleaned up and thereby saved me much inconvenience. From my experience with your office now, it is a source of pleasure for me to feel that my insurance is with you, and I shall not forget to tell my friends.

Yours truly,
MARY ANN O'BRIEN.

TO REVISE THE SCHOOLS ACT.

Minister of Education Introduces a Bill for This Purpose—Mr. Crawford and the Manitoba Schools.

Toronto, Feb. 25.

The Legislature met for a few minutes yesterday afternoon and went through the ordinary routine business.

None of the petitions referred to anything which has not already been covered.

Hon. Mr. Ross introduced a bill with reference to the consolidation and revision of the Public Schools Act. The second reading will be on Thursday next.

Sir Oliver Mowat introduced a bill with reference to the Act concerning assignments and preferences by insolvents.

Hon. A. S. Hardy in reply to an enquiry, said that the Director of Mines was a member of the Royal Commission, but that his reports were sought after the world over, and that some people were good enough to say that they were the best reports published.

Mr. Crawford was not prepared to go on with his motion, but he gave notice of the following for next Wednesday:

"That the Legislative Assembly of Ontario feel deep interest in all that concerns the well-being of every part of the Dominion of Canada.

"That the people of this province, believing in the principle of provincial rights, rejoice that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council of Great Britain declared the Legislature of Manitoba acted within their judicial rights in abolishing the dual system of schools and establishing a single national system of education in lieu thereof in the Province of Manitoba.

"That we regard the legislation now being contemplated by the Dominion Government and known as the Remedial Bill, the object of which is to abolish the national system of Manitoba and restore the old dual system in its place, unfavorably.

"That this Legislature cannot but look upon the legislation which is being promoted at Ottawa as an attack upon the legislative rights of a sister province and as a measure fraught with grave danger to the peace and prosperity of Confederation; and, consequently, we hope, even yet, that the Dominion Government will decide to abandon the course it is at present following, and to leave Manitoba to manage her own educational affairs in the way that seems best to the people of that province."

Mr. Gibson (Huron) gave notice of a bill to amend the Consolidated Assessment Act of 1892.

Mr. Chapple gave notice of a bill to amend the Municipal Act.

Mr. Dickenson gave notice of an order for a return of all correspondence by any official of the Corporation of the City of Hamilton with the Crown Lands Department or any official thereof, relating to any question affecting the rights of the said city or any persons to certain portions of Burlington Beach; also a copy of the instructions given to G. H. Jones, Esq., provincial land surveyer, as to defining the limits of any holding, either leased to said city, or sold to any individual occupant; also a copy of plan of survey made by the said Mr. Jones; also a copy of the original as well as the subsidiary lease granted to the said City of Hamilton by the Department of Crown Lands.

Dr. Bryce yesterday received a letter from Parry Sound asking the Provincial Health Board to interfere in regard to a contagious outbreak in that town. Two of the local physicians declared the disease to be diphtheria, and two held it was not. As a result the local Medical Health Officer had been unable to enforce the regulations called for in case of a diphtheria epidemic.

Deputy Attorney-General Cartwright and Mr. McIntosh, secretary to Hon. Mr. Gibson, were both well enough to resume their duties yesterday.

It is said that Mr. James Massie, ex-Warden of the Central Prison, has not yet received his commission for his registrarship. It is alleged that his appointment, which, so far, is only temporary, will not be made permanent until the Public Accounts Committee has sat on the case.

The following is a summary of Mr. Ross' full bill amending the High School Act:

Owing to the large number of persons who come up to the annual departmental examinations it is proposed to establish an Educational Council, to whom the duty of preparing examination papers, reading the answers of candidates and reporting the results would be assigned. The necessity for some additional machinery of this kind will be apparent when it is stated that last year 3333 persons were examined at the departmental examinations in July, esides 17,023 candidates at the entrance examination, about 5000 for the Public school leaving examination and nearly 3000 more at the different professional examinations at the School of Pedagogy, the Normal Schools ond County Model Schools. For these different examinations 729,800 examination papers were printed and despatched to the different centres at which examinations were held, entailing an enormous amount of work and responsibility on the officers of the department.

It is proposed to appoint a council composed of 12 persons, four appointed by the Education Department, four by the Senate of the University, and four by the Executive of the Educational Association of the Province, and to this council will be assigned, under suitable regulations, the duties heretofore discharged directly through the Minister of Education, with power to report results, consider appeals and judge the standing of all candidates for certificates.

The bill amending the Public school Act contains one or two other provisions worthy of notice. The old provisions in the law, whereby Boards of Public and High School Trustees were prevented from uniting for the joint administration of educational affairs of a city, town or incorporated village, are abolished, and School Boards are at liberty to form such a union if they so desire.

The most important change, however, in in the means proposed for the maintenance of Public schools. As the law now stands, Public schools are maintained by a Government grant, a county grant, an assessment over the whole township of $100 for each school in the township, and an assessment upon the section concerned for such additional sums as may be necessary for school purposes. It is with regard to the county grant that a change is proposed. As a matter of fact, each township is taxed by the county for the grant which it receives through the County Treasurer, so that what was intended as a county grant is a township grant. To remedy this condition of things and to provide more generously for weak schools, it is proposed in the new bill to collect by a uniform rate over the whole county the sum of $50 for each rural school in the county.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism — consumption — skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

WERE THE MEN DECEIVED?

Jameson's Troopers Were Told They Were on Humane Duty.

London, Feb. 24.—A representative of the United Press obtained to-day an interview with one of Dr. Jameson's troopers, who arrived at Plymouth from Port Natal yesterday morning. The man, whose name was Odea, said that he had spent eight months in Matabeleland as a member of the mounted police. About the end of the month of December he was in a state of convalescence from an attack of fever, his temperature at one time having been as high as 105. He had been almost without food or water for a week and was lying in a tent in a greatly debilitated condition when a sergeant came to him and asked him if he wanted to lose his place in the mounted troops. Odea replied in the negative, whereupon the sergeant ordered him to appear on parade with his comrades immediately, which he did. Prior to the start of Jameson and his followers for the Transvaal, which took place at night, Odea did not hear Dr. Jameson read a letter as he is alleged to have read one, but says he gathered that the purpose of the expedition was to protect the women and children of Johannesburg.

Odea belonged to the advance troops. He did not see Dr. Jameson after the night of their leaving Mafeking, nor has he seen him to this day. He supposed that Jameson rode in the middle of the troops. The men hurried forward, riding at the rate of 10 miles an hour, with not more than five hours rest in two days. They were sometimes able to get snatches of sleep on horseback. They had sufficient rations to last them until the evening of the second day. A party of 50 Boers met them, and began a desultory fire upon them, to which Jameson's followers replied. They had several skirmishes with Boers before reaching Krugersdorp, where the Boers succeeded in enticing Jameson's forces from the sheltered hillocks into the open veldt, while they themselves remained under cover.

Odea expressed the belief that Jameson, himself, hoisted the white flag. Anyway, if he did not personally hoist it, the white flag was raised by his orders. When the party surrendered, Odea still had ten rounds of ammunition and many of the others had not exhausted their supply. After his surrender, he said, the men were fairly well treated. They were taken to Pretoria, where a loaf of bread and a quarter of a pound of meat a day was given for each man. At first he believed that all the officers of the expedition and the non-commissioned officers, with the rank and file, were to be shot. He heard afterwards that the Volksraad had rejected a proposal to shoot them by a majority of two. Eventually the men were taken to Port Natal, where they were free from the moment they went on board the Harlech Castle.

REDUCING THE MACHINERY OF GOVERNMENT.

The Montreal Star says: "Hon. Mr. Hardy, Sir Oliver Mowat's lieutenant, has introduced a bill purposing to reduce the size of county councils in Ontario. This is a practical effort to relieve one section of the Canadian people of its far too heavy burden of government machinery. We pay altogether too much for the management of our public business. The national "staff" is too heavy. It is awful to contemplate how many people have a hand in governing each mild and simple hearted citizen of this great Dominion. A dweller in an Ontario township, for instance, is ruled over by a township council, a county council, a Provincial Legislature and a Dominion Parliament; and each of these bodies has a retinue of clerks and sheriffs and judges and registrars and attorneys and assessors and tax collectors and gaolers for his especial behoof. Mr. Hardy's reduction promises to be a serious one. The London Advertiser says that in the case of Middlesex it will mean a drop from a council of 48 to a council of 13. The Act is of a local option character, and is not to come into force except by vote of the people of the county. Ontario is plainly determined to get rid of as much unnecessary governmental machinery as possible."

In our own county we have a county council of 23 members, and fifteen municipalities with, excluding reeves and deputies, 60 councillors to which are to be added 13 members of the Town council, and four parliamentary representatives, a total of 100 persons to look after the interests of a population of about 38,000. Some of the county councils have as high as fifty members and the average of the forty-six counties and districts of Ontario is, at least, twenty-five. Add to these an army of fifty township councillors each, and we have a grand total of 3000 municipal representatives, not counting the councils of incorporated towns, cities and villages, numbering about 125; and these averaging six each will make the total number of municipal representatives in Ontario about 3,700. In addition to these we have nearly 200 members of the Dominion Parliament and Legislature of Ontario, which brings up the total of municipal and parliamentary representatives of Ontario to nearly 4,000. This is for our province alone. The Dominion Parliament consists of 215. Quebec has, counting Legislative Council and Assembly, 97 members; Nova Scotia, 59 members; New Brunswick, 59 members; Manitoba, 38 members; British Columbia, 33 members; Prince Edward Island, 43 members; Northwest Territories, 22; a grand total of 566 parliamentary representatives to do the business of five million people. And when it is remembered that the actual cost every year of all this host of legislators is, with an average of $300, nearly three million dollars for sessional indemnity alone, not to count the cost of legislation, it will be seen that we are pretty thoroughly governed, not to say over-governed. Then the legion of municipal representatives is to be reckoned with. And this fact is to be taken into account also, that every representative means the expenditure of money. No member of a council or legislature is so humble or obscure, or so modest, that he will not bring about some expenditure of money to justify his place in a representative body. A glance at the figures, which are not, perhaps, complete, as the representation in all branches has been increased since the records quoted from were compiled, will show that we are grievously overgoverned, a condition which makes Mr. Hardy's bill in reference to county councils and Mr. Stratton's bill in reference to town and city councils decided steps in the right direction.

A despatch says there is lack of water ower at Ottawa. There will be no lack of wind-power in Ottawa when the debate on the remedial bill comes on.

The country does not enjoy a rampant degree of prosperity under the management of the present government. If encouraging the farmers by buying butter at 20 cents per pound and selling it at 14 cents is taken as an example, of the prudent management of public affairs by the present government, it is no wonder that the country is plunged in debt and that with all their extravagant high taxation, we are four millions short of our extravagant expenditures. Yet there are people that claim that their policy is the only one for the country and then ask the country to give them another five years' chance of committing political grand larceny.

MR. STRATTON'S BILL.

Brantford Expositor.

Hon. A. S. Hardy's is not the only bill dealing with municipal reform that is now before the Ontario Assembly. Mr. Stratton, of Peterborough, has re-introduced, revised and improved his bill of last session giving cities and towns power, on receiving the assent of the ratepayers, to reduce the number of aldermen by about one-third, and to have the entire number elected by the people as a whole. Every municipal elector may vote for a number of candidates not exceeding the number to be elected, but no one is to vote more than once for any candidate, and no person is to vote at more than one polling place in the same city or town.

Mr. Stratton's bill will no doubt provoke an interesting discussion, but in its present form the Expositor is not prepared to hold up both hands for it. His plan, if put into operation, should have the effect of keeping out of our councils many inferior men that the ward system lets in, but it offers a great danger of political or other rings getting absolute control of the municipal government. We would prefer a modified system, by which a number of the aldermen, say one-half, would be aldermen (or councillors) at-large and the remainder be returned by the wards.

SOME CALL IT A BACK DOWN,

How the Sifton Resolution is Viewed by People in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 25.—(Special.)—Political opinion here as to the meaning of the resolution proposed in the Legislature, protesting against the Remedial Bill now before the House of Commons, is very diversified. Most Conservatives state that it is the first step in the complete backdown of Premier Greenway. Their ideas are that as Mr. Laurier has no hope of defeating the Government on the second reading of the bill, the game of bluff may as well end and the inevitable be accepted. Others believe it is only a dodge to induce the Federal Government to withdraw the Remedial Bill, for the present session, so that Mr. Laurier can remain behind the lines of Torres Vedras until after the general elections. The Liberals, however, maintain that the resolution means exactly what it says and is calculated to aid Mr. Laurier and his supporters at Ottawa in defeating the coercion measure.

The Provincial Ministers are very guarded in their utterances. In an interview Premier Greenway said: "It would appear that it is a very carefully worded document, seeing that both sides are able to take comfort out of it."

Mr. Sifton says: "I fancy those who look upon it as a backdown cannot have read the document."

Mr. McMillan: "I don't think it will be looked upon by many people as a backdown."

Mr. Watson: "The wish must be father to the thought of any person who sees a backdown in the resolution. The Government has, by Order-in-Council, taken certain action, and it is to have this action endorsed by the House that the resolution is proposed."

One of the Ministers also said Sir Donald Smith received no promises of concessions, and that the Manitoba Government cared not a button how the politicians at Ottawa were affected.

The U.S. Venezuelan Commission.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Venezuelan commission has received an intimation from the Royal Geographical Society of England, through Clements R. Markham, its president, that all the maps and records of that society will gladly be placed at the disposition of the commission. A courteous reply has been sent declining for the present the offer, in view of the willingness already officially expressed by both the British and Venezuelan Governments to furnish all necessary information.

Burial Permit for a Living Child.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 24.—On Saturday morning the infant daughter of George C. Herbstrieth apparently died, after having been ill since its birth, and its parents called an undertaker, who arranged for the funeral, even getting a burial permit from the Board of Health. When he went to put the baby into a casket the child yawned, opened its eyes and showed unmistakable signs of life.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

A HINT TO YOUNG FOLK.

THEY ARE APT TO BE CARELESS WHERE HEALTH IS CONCERNED.

A Statement From a Young Lady Who Neglected a Cold, and was Brought Almost to Death's Door—It May Serve as a Warning to Others.

A great many people, and especially young people, are too careless of their health. They will sit in a draught when they know they are taking cold, and in numerous other ways show their indifference to the rules that govern health, realizing, sometimes when it is too late, the serious cost of their carelessness. Never neglect an illness no matter how trivial it may appear. It is to this class of persons that Miss Annie Ramsdell, of Whitehead, N.B., wishes to speak. In June, 1895, she says, I contracted a cold, but did not take anything for it, thinking that it would soon pass away. In this, however, I was disappointed and I finally realized that it had settled on my lungs, and I was obliged to take to bed. A doctor was called in and he said I was a very sick girl, which truth it is needless to say I had realized before he was sent for. At the outset his medicine helped me somewhat, but the improvement was not lasting and I found myself growing weaker and weaker. At last I reached that stage when I dispaired of getting better. My appetite had almost entirely failed, I was reduced nearly to a skeleton, had a hacking cough and suffered from headache and fluttering or palpitation of the heart. As a matter of fact both myself and friends thought I was at death's door. While in this condition I read in a newspaper of a case similar to mine cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I procured a supply and by the time I had taken six boxes I was almost completely recovered. My appetite had returned, a healthy colour came back to my face and my cough ceased troubling me. I am still occasionally using Pink Pills, and my recovery through their use has made them hosts of friends in this locality, who look upon what they have done for me as a little short of miraculous. I am so grateful for what Pink Pills have done for me that I freely give your permission to use this statement in any form you please in the hope that it may bring new hope to some similar sufferer.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, rich blood, and in this way strike at the root of disease, driving it from the system, often restoring the sufferer to health after all medicines had failed. They are a specific for all diseases due to a poor or watery condition of the blood or debilitated nerves. The reader should bear in mind that the genuine Pink Pills are never sold in loose form by the dozen, hundred or ounce, but are always put up in round wooden boxes, the wrapper enclosing which, bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." All others are worthless substitutes offered only because the dealer makes a greater profit on them. See that the trade mark is on every box, and under no circumstance accept anything but the genuine.

The Grand Trunk Called It Off.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—The fight between the Eastern and Western roads over the Grand Trunk's 25-cent grain tariff, which has been in effect since Feb. 1, was temporarily ended yesterday by Chairman Midgeley giving notice that the tariff would be cancelled March 15. Mr. Midgeley did not take this action, however, until after he had been requested to withdraw the rate by General Manager Hays of the G.T.R., who authorized its issuance.

Two Hundred Chinese Killed.

London, Feb. 25.—The Times will to-morrow publish a despatch from Shanghai saying that the Anhui troops at Kiang Yin, 95 miles from Shanghai, mutined recently. The magazine was blown up. Two hundred persons were killed and many wounded. The troops killed a captain and imprisoned a general, who is now awaiting death. The foreign instructors at Kiang Yin are safely protected by the Hunan troops.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. Black Death was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than either of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing, constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, and distress after eating. The little help that is needed is furnished by Dr. Pearce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Once used they are always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Constipation Cured.

GENTS,—I was in very poor health for over four years, and the doctor said it was constipation. Not wanting to spend too much cash, I got three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters and took it regularly. I can certify that I am now in the very best of health and feel very grateful to B. B. B.

LOOKS LIKE DEFEAT.

Government Has No Majority for the Remedial Bill,

Which Will be Lost on on the Second Reading Conference Between Premier Bowell and the "Doubtful" Members—How the Conservative Side of the House sizes Up in Detail.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special.)—An interesting gathering took place in the Privy Council Chamber this morning, when Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Charles Tupper met a number of Conservative members who were supposed to be "doubtful" in their support of the Remedial Bill. Among those who attended were Messrs. Carpenter, Coatsworth, Corbould, Carscallen, Boyd, Bennett, Davin, Hutchins, Henderson, Ingram, Guillet, W. W. McDonald, G. H. Macdonell, Marshall, McGillivray, Mara, McKay, Pridham, Wilson and Wilmot. The result of the meeting was to show a great diversity of opinion on the part of the gentlemen present. Some expressed themselves as in favor of Remedial legislation, others were opposed to it, while others are still within the category of doubtful. The conference broke up at 1 o'clock

The position in regard to the Remedial Bill now is that 20 Conservatives from Ontario and three outside of Ontario have signified to the Government that they cannot vote for the second reading. Twenty-one Conservatives from Ontario are willing to vote for it, three are absent, and 12 are doubtful, though of the doubtful ones most of them will be against the bill, notwithstanding the efforts of the Government to hold them.

The 20 Conservatives from Ontario who declared against the bill are: Messrs. Bennett, Calvin, Carscallen, Cockburn, Craig, Denison, Henderson, Hodgins, Hughes, Hutchins, Ingram, Maclean, McGillivray, McNeill, Rosamond, Smith, Sproule, Tyrwhitt, Wallace and Wilson.

The three Conservatives from the provinces outside of Ontario who have declared against the bill are: Messrs. Weldon (New Brunswick), Davin (Northwest) and Ross (Manitoba).

The Conservatives from Ontario willing to vote with the Government are: Messrs. Bergin, Boyle, Cargill, Carling, Carpenter, Cochrane, John Ferguson, Grant, Guillet, Haggart, McKay, McLennan, Masson, Metcalfe, Northrup, Read, Robillard, Boome, Stevenson, Tisdale and Wood.

The two absent members from Ontario are Messrs. Corby and Montague, and Speaker White will not vote.

The doubtful members from Ontario or those who have not declared themselves, are: Messrs. Burnham, Coatsworth, Fairbairn, C. Ferguson, Macdonell, Marshall, Miller, Moncrief, Pridham, Ross, Ryckman and Taylor. Outside of Ontario the doubtful are: Wilmot (New Brunswick), Corbould and Mara (British Columbia), Boyd and McDonald (Northwest Territories.)

The Government's best available majority on any party question is less than 40. If the Opposition vote solid against a second reading of the Remedial Bill, as they declare they will, with one exception, and 20 out of the 23 Conservatives who have declared against the bill, not to mention half a dozen of the doubtful Conservatives, who will certainly go against the bill, the Government will be defeated.

All sorts of rumors were in circulation to-day with reference to the situation. It was said that the Government is specially desirous of securing the second reading of the Remedial Bill, as it will then be a pointer to Mr. Greenway that the bill will become law. When this stage is reached, report has it that rather than allow the Federal interference to take place, the Manitoba Premier will proffer a measure of substantial justice to the Catholic minority of Manitoba. This is the story which is mentioned in some quarters to-day, although there are many who discredit it. Then, it is represented that some of the waverers could quite conscientiously vote for the second reading and express their disapproval of the bill at the subsequent stages, that is in committee on the third reading. This would be contrary to Parliamentary usage, as voting for the second reading would certainly imply an acceptance of the principle of the measure.

The Opposition are credited with the intention of moving amendment after amendment, which will enable their men to talk any number of times and that, in this way, the time of Parliament will be wasted until April 25 arrives. In Conservative circles it is said to-night that in the event of the second reading not taking place by the 1st week in April, or, indeed, substantial progress being made in committee of the whole, the Government will at once close the work of the session by dissolving the House. Every day seems to show what little likelihood there is of the measure of 112 clauses passing the House, except after a strenuous fight. By the rules of the House it is possible in committee of the whole for a member to talk as long as he likes and as often as he likes, and under these circumstances the Liberals will avail themselves of their undoubted right.

MR. LAURIER MAKES AN OFFER

To Pass a Three Months' Supply From July 1 to Pay Official Salaries.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special)—It is said to-night that Mr. Laurier has made an offer to Mr. Foster to permit three months' supplies to pass the House without opposition in order that the public services of the country may not be at a standstill upon July 1. This means, of course, that the main estimates for the next year will not be passed by this Parliament.

Ten representative citizens of Lowe Township, including Fathers Foley and Blondin, interviewed the Minister of Justice to-day and urged that $2000 of indebtedness, recently incurred by sending the militia into the Township be incurred by the Government. The total charge is $5000. Mr. Dickey promised that the matter would receive the careful consideration of the Government.

LIBELLING SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Editor McConnell of Halifax Gets Himself Into Trouble—Criminal Proceedings.

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—(Special)—A most sensational incident was the publication to-day in The Montreal Herald of a special despatch from Halifax, of what purports to be a copy of an open letter addressed to Dr. Weldon and C. H. Cahan, ex-leader of the Conservative Opposition in the Local Legislature, and signed by Mr. McConnell, editor of The Halifax Chronicle. Mr. McConnell calls on the two gentlemen named to make good certain charges, which he alleges they have been circulating freely in Nova Scotia and elsewhere to the effect that Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., was guilty of improper action.

The letter itself reads as follows:

To Richard C. Weldon, M.P. for Albert County, N.B., and Charles H. Cahan, ex-M.P.P., Halifax:

Gentlemen,—A considerable number of citizens have been informed by you during the last month that Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., the present Secretary of State, had been guilty of gross malversation of office on a former occasion, when a Cabinet Minister, whereby he dishonestly obtained $40,000, and that as a consequence of such conduct he has not been entrusted since by the Ottawa Government with any important financial transactions in London, notwithstanding that the creation of the office of High Commissioner was sought to be justified by the plea that he would be available in London to transact such business for the Government.

I, in common with many others, venture to think that, in view of the aspirations cherished by Sir Charles and the tremendous injury to Canada such a man could inflict if given larger control of public affairs, and especially if placed, as he undoubtedly desires to be, in charge of one of the large spending departments, you will be but doing a public duty, however distasteful to yourselves it may be, if you give the public the authority for your statement, noted above, which has been made so freely and unequivocally and to so many persons.

*Some citizens have asserted that an ex-*Minister of Finance, Sir Leonard Tilley, has expressed his willingness to Dr. Weldon to substantiate the charge. Another staunch Conservative, the editor of The Atlantic Weekly, recently declared editorially that "it would be a crime before high heaven" to make Sir Chas. Tupper Premier of Canada, and it is understood that this strong statement was based, in part, on his belief that Sir Charles was guilty of the charge repeated on various occasions by you. Still another Conservative editor, whose name is withheld for the present, has repeatedly made similar statements.

Under all the circumstances, it is manifestly proper, not to say imperative, that the complete facts in connection with this statement should be declared as soon as possible, so that such a grave matter may be dealt with as the interests of the country demand.

Respectfully yours,
ROBERT M'CONNELL.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 24.

As soon as The Herald arrived here there was a great rush to see the paper. The attention of the Secretary of State was called to the article, and he at once took legal advice regarding it. Sir Charles was informed that the letter was distinctly libellous, and, accordingly, he telegraphed to Donald MacMaster, Q.C. of Montreal, to enter an action for criminal libel against The Montreal Herald, and to Borden & Ritchie, the leading firm of Halifax lawyers, to take similar action against The Halifax Chronicle, in which paper McConnell's letter also appears to-day.

Your correspondent sought out Dr. Weldon to-night and asked him if he had anything to say in regard to the matter. He replied, "You are authorized to say, so far as I am concerned, that Mr. McConnell has been imposed upon by false and slanderous statements."

Halifax, Feb. 25.—The open letter from R. McConnell, addressed to B. C. Weldon, M.P., and C. H. Cahan, ex-M.P., calling on them to substantiate statements they are alleged to have made reflecting on the honor of Sir Charles Tupper, has caused considerable talk in political circles.

In an interview to-day, Mr. Cahan said: "The statements attributed to me in The Morning Chronicle were never made by me, and for at least three or four months prior to the publication of the article referred to in The Atlantic Weekly, I did not have any communication, directly or indirectly, with the editor of that journal in reference to any subject whatever, nor did I know of that article until I saw it published in The Morning Chronicle. Nor did I ever make any statements to the editor of that journal, or any one connected therewith, upon which that article was or could be based."

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

Early in the fifties Neard determined to make a break for liberty. He got as far as Ohio before he was arrested. He succeeded in deceiving his captors as to his identity and made for Canada, and got safely across to Windsor.

HE WROTE TO HIS WIFE IN BLOOD.

The Horrible Work of the Spanish With Juan Gomez Just Dead.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 23, via Key West, Fla., Feb. 24.—Cubans here were not surprised when they read in yesterday's cable messages that Juan Gualberto Gomez, ex-editor of La Lucha, arrested here last February and sent to Ceuta, Africa, for life imprisonment, for political reasons, was dead.

Indeed, it is barely a month since Gomez' wife, who was then in Havana, received a letter from him written in blood, telling her that she would soon be a widow; that he was in double chains in a foul, unlighted dungeon, compelled to sleep upon the damp earth; that his only food was a pint of bean soup twice daily, and that he was being gradually tortured to death by inquisitorial instruments frequently applied by his jailers in their efforts to wrench from him confessions implicating Julio Sanguilly in the conspiracy which developed into the Cuban revolution, or force him to state the location of arms and munitions hidden by Antonio Maceo and himself in Matanzas Province several years ago. In closing his letter to his wife, Gomez said:

"However great my torture, neither will I make false charges against Sanguilly, who is innocent, nor divulge Maceo's secret. I will die first, commending thee, my poor wife, to the charitable sympathy of my countrymen and the protection of God."

The dead Cuban, though a negro, was of unusual intelligence and of the highest education. He was an orator as well as a journalist. He resided for years in Madrid as private secretary to Labra, the Spanish liberal leader and National Senator, and had many admirers upon the peninsula as well as in his native island. He was the principal agent of Marti and the Cuban Junta of New York in Havana just previous to the breaking out of the present revolution, and when arrested was leaving the city for the woods, with documents in his possession which were afterwards used as evidence to convict him.

"And age is a time of peace So it be free from pain."

Old Age AND ITS Infirmities.

The descent of the hill of life should be gradual and easy. The decline of life should be free from care and sickness and pain. So it would be in the great majority of cases were the prime of life lived according to Nature's rules. But in the struggle for wealth and fame, swimming against the strong tide of competition, health is neglected. We live too fast, work too hard, drink too much, sleep too little, keep our nerves on the jump all the time.

Then the Kidneys give out. They can't stand the terrible strain to which they are being subjected.

As a result the blood is not properly filtered. It passes through the system unpurified, and carries disease to every organ of the body.

That terrible affliction of old age, Rheumatism, seizes on the joints and makes life unendurable with suffering.

Muscular weakness, tiredness, depression, irregular heart action, and shortness of breath follow in its train.

Perhaps there is suppression of urine, frequently it scalds, and often there are brick red deposits in it.

The remaining years of life instead of being peaceful, happy and free from pain, are one continuous round of suffering.

Is there no help or hope this side the grave?

A thousand times YES.

Doan's Kidney Pills are the great remedy for all those ailments that arise through diseased or disordered kidneys.

They're the old people's friend. They relieve their sufferings, cure their diseases, and infuse new health and hope and happiness into their life.

THE LATE DR. YELLAND.

The death of Dr. Yelland, which took place at two o'clock this morning, comes as a shock, not only to his relatives and personal friends, but to the community generally. A week ago he was actively engaged in the practice of his profession, apparently in robust health, with the promise of a long and successful career, for he was one of the most skilful and conscientious medical practitioners in Peterborough, and to-day he lies cold in death. Last Friday he was prostrated with agonising illness, and, as the symptoms indicated inflammation of the vermiform appendix—appendicitis—it was decided to perform an operation. The result of the operation disclosed the correctness of the diagnosis. An orange seed had become impacted in and had penetrated the walls of the appendical sac, setting up conditions that neutralized the benefits expected from the operation. From that time the patient began to sink and as mentioned, this morning at two o'clock death ended Dr. Yelland's hopeful career. Last evening he realised that his hours were numbered and he set his worldly affairs in order and bade the long farewell to his relatives and friends, and thereafter continued to sink till death closed the scene.

Albert Edward Yelland, M. D., who was born Oct. 25th, 1864, was the youngest son of Mr. Wm. Yelland, Mayor of Peterborough. He was born and reared in Peterborough and educated in the Public and High Schools and at Trinity University, from which he graduated in medicine in 1886. After taking a post graduate course in the old country he began the practice of his profession in Peterborough and pursued it with phenomenal success. His skill and the attentiveness and care bestowed upon his patients achieved a success that placed him at the age of only thirty-one years in the front ranks of the medical profession; and, in hundreds of homes where his professional ministrations brought health, and his modest bearing and invariable kindness won him respect, Dr. Yelland's death will be long and deeply mourned. Not only did he enjoy high popularity and a deserved reputation for professional skill, but in the community generally his personal popularity was great. Always living in town, his good qualities of character had ample opportunity for the recognition they received. He was popular with his school mates and while diligent in study he found time to actively engage in athletic pursuits, and in the championship days of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, Albert Yelland was the best player of the team that brought the pennant to Peterborough. The same quality of alertness, thoroughness and energy that he showed in this capacity contributed to his success in his after career, and the like popularity and success he won in early years widened and solidified as he advanced in life. Dr. Yelland was twice married—the first time to Miss Zetta McColl, of Springville, and about three years ago to Miss Eliza Blackwell, who with one child, survives him. Dr. Yelland was a member of Peterborough Masonic Lodge and of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters. He has held the position of gaol surgeon for several years, and was reappointed at the January session. He was also town physician, and in both capacities, and in his general practice, exhibited those professional qualities that make the sad and sudden ending of a most promising career a matter to be deeply deplored. His bereaved wife and relatives, as well as the wide circle of close personal friends his geniality made for him, have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community, town and country, in their great affliction.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, corner of George and Murray streets, at 2.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

DIED IN TORONTO.

The Funeral Will be Under the Direction of the Oddfellows.

Mr. Joseph Phillips, of Mark street, Ashburnham, has finally succumbed to the injuries received on the 11th of April, 1891, whilst working on a building on Gilmour street. It will be remembered that a part of the scaffolding giving away, on which Mr. Phillips was standing, and he was standing, and he was thrown violently to the ground, sustaining severe injuries to the right side and head. Mr. Phillips was born in Dorsetshire, England, 1824 and came to Canada in 1850, settling in Peterborough. Shortly after coming to town he espoused Mrs. Mary Ann Way. He leaves three sons:— Sidney, George and Henry, and five daughters viz; Mrs. Carlow, of Toronto; Mrs. Duffin, Toronto; Mrs. W. Gibbs, of Peterborough, and Misses Euphie and Kittie, who have been residing at home.

Mr. Phillips died in Toronto, where he was being treated for brain trouble. His remains have been brought to town, and the funeral will take place from the family residence on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the direction of Otonabee Lodge, I. O.O.F., of which the deceased was a member.

WEDDING BELLS.

Celebration of the Nuptials of Miss Minnie Mann and Mr. Leonard Turnbull.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at the residence of Mrs. A. Mann, No. 209 Dalhousie street, when her daughter Miss Minnie, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard Turnbull, of Hartney, Manitoba, brother of Mr. J. C. Turnbull, of town.

The ceremony was performed at half past seven by Rev. J. C. Trotter in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride was very prettily costumed in French silk of a mixed shade of pale blue and fawn, and was assisted by Miss Lillie Minore. Both carried most fragrant and beautiful bouquets of Marechal Neil roses.

The groom was supported by Mr. Stanley Robinson of South Monaghan.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the guests present partook of a most inviting wedding breakfast.

The groom was a former resident of Monaghan and is well known in town. He is at present the proprietor of a ranch in the vicinity of Hartney, whither the young couple will repair next week, after spending a few days in town.

Mrs. Turnbull, through her connection with Baptist church work, is widely known and most popular amongst her large coterie of friends, from amongst whom she will be greatly missed. Her absence will be especially felt in the Park street Baptist Sunday School, in which she took a warm interest and taught a class.

HOCKEY.

The Peterboroughs went to Trenton yesterday and administered to the team of that town their first defeat of the season, downing them by the score of 8 goals to 2.

The teams were composed as follows:—

Peterborough.		Trenton.
E Wasson	goal	W Nolan
C Poussette	point	B Fellon
S Adams	cover point	B McCauley
Montgomery, W Phelan, R Davidson, J Parsons	forwards	H Fellon, W E Fellon, F Fellon, G Nolan

Mr. George Hopkins accompanied the team to Trenton and acted as umpire. Mr. Ernie Goldsmith, who was also present, was chosen as referee.

The only two goals scored for Trenton were put through by Nolan. The goals for Peterborough were scored by Parsons, Phelan, Davidson, Poussette, Phelan, Phelan, Davidson and Poussette.

The Trenton team is a heavy one and are fast, but lack the necessary combination work to make them winners.

The local boys cannot speak too highly of the way they were treated in Trenton. They were met at the station, escorted to the hotel, put up at the hotel, taken to a minstrel show, and treated to a banquet afterwards, and if Trenton sends a team up this way, they can have the best in the town.

MR. STRATTON'S SPEECH IN THE BUDGET DEBATE.

"A Clear, Logical and Well Put Exposition."

The Globe in its report of the Legislature's proceedings yesterday afternoon, says:—

The House did a good day's work to-day, holding the first night sitting of the session, and getting well through the budget debate, which will probably be completed on the next day on which it is taken up. Dr. Meacham spoke first in the afternoon, presenting the case from the standpoint of the Opposition, and Mr. Stratton, the able representative from West Peterborough, followed with a remarkably clear, logical and well put exposition and defence of the principles upon which the government of the country is carried on.

The Globe thus summarizes

MR. STRATTON'S REPLY.

A burst of applause greeted Mr. Stratton as he rose to reply. He was inclined, he said, to give the hon. gentlemen opposite credit for their indomitable courage in attacking the Government stronghold. They were like the British soldier—they did not know when they were defeated. The reply to the attack of increased expenditure was that the supply was given for the demand. The demands of the Province required it, and that was what kept his hon. friends on the Opposition benches. The Conservatives criticized the expenditures on the pioneer and agricultural farms, the asylums, agricultural matters in general, and colonization roads, but he was willing that they should adopt these as planks in their platform, and the Government would stand by the result. Comparisons with Quebec in respect to expenditure were unfair because of the difference in population. There had been a marked difference in the expenditure in various departments. The expenditure for education in Ontario for the year was $693,000, compared with $389,000 in Quebec; for hospitals and charities, Ontario $190,000, and Quebec $42,000; for repairs and maintenance of public buildings and public works, Ontario $470,000, and Quebec $491,000. In Ontario the expenditure per head was $1.79, while in Quebec it was $3.81, and Ontario has given $2 for education to every dollar given by Quebec. Besides these expenditures a good deal had gone toward defending the attacks of the friends of the Opposition on disputed territory. Regarding the assets of the Province, the new Parliament buildings, the new Mimico, Orillia and Brockville Asylums were much more valuable than forests of timber in the north country. The Ontario Agricultural College was a very useful institution, and was as good as a University, lacking the classical education.

There were only 184 square miles of timber limit disposed of per year, and were the practice discontinued what would become of the thousands of men who now earn their living in the lumber woods? As to the request of the previous speaker for a sheet showing the assets of the province, that was utterly impossible. The increasing temperance sentiment throughout the province was such that should the decision of the Privy Council be against the Government in the prohibition case it will be their duty to still further reduce the number of licenses issued. The Opposition complained that the Government reports were growing larger, but if they were any smaller the charge would probably be that there was something to conceal. The School of Pedagogy, which had been assailed by the Opposition, was an excellent institution for the training of men and women who were to take charge of the education of the young. Mr. Stratton concluded his able speech by complimentary references to the work of the Government, in the course of which he mentioned the campaign waged by the P.P.A. in he las election.

"What is the P. P. A.?" asked Mr. Whitney.

"Oh, you've got two of them over there," was the ready reply from Mr. Conmee.

Mr. Stratton finished at a quarter to six. Mr. Miscampbell rose to continue the debate, but the Speaker left the chair.

Y.P.S.C.E. NOTES.

Paragraphs of Local Interest to Endeavourers Supplied by the County Union and Epworth League.

The World's Christian Endeavour Prayer Chain; subject of prayer for February:—"For all young converts who have recently been brought to Christ, that they may be strong, unselfish, winsome Christians. That they begin at once to show their love to Christ by working for Him."

PRESBYTERIAN.

At the union meeting held last week Rev. A. MacWilliams, of St. Andrew's, gave an excellent address, of which the following is but a condensed report. His subject was "The Ministry of Gifts or of the Spirit." He showed that, in the Jewish Church, the priesthood, the time and order of service to the minutest detail were all arranged by God. This priesthood and economy ended when Christ ascended, Christ himself being the only priest. The Christian church was not organized by Christ. He taught no form of church government. This was left for the Apostles, who had no successors in office. These Christ commissioned and empowered to infallibly organize the Christian church. Their commission was "Go and make disciples of all nations." They received the power when they were baptized with the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost. They began their work that day and as Peter preached 3000 were converted, soon again 5000. The many thus converted at Jerusalem and in other parts created a special need. They required immediate care—teaching and government, etc. These teachers could not be provided for by the usual method of education. The needs were immediate, therefore God met the necessity by providing a special ministry until such times as suitable ministers could be provided by the usual methods of education. Therefore God prepared men and women for this special work by His holy spirit. The holy spirit gave to some the power of prophecy, to others prayer, to others interpretation, etc. Now, regarding this special ministry of gifts which was for a special purpose, the speaker showed that sometimes these gifts accompanied the laying on of the Apostles hands, often not; that he gifts were very diverse; that they were real tongues not as some say inarticulate sounds; that the gifts were not given to advance Foreign Mission work; that these ministers were not ordained to office by the laying on of hands, the possession of the gift being their only credential that they were a minister of God; that women also received this supernatural gift and were ministers under this ministry of gifts, while they were not ordained presbyters in the later ministry that followed the ministry of gifts; that the spirit was subject to the proprieties, therefore everything was to be done decently, orderly and to edification; that this ministry was temporary to meet a felt want; that it can never return again, as the conditions can never again return. Therefore, those that ask us to return to the condition of the church in the early days of the Apostles, know not what they ask; that condition can never again return. The Apostles left us a different ministry before they passed away—the ministry of the elders and deacons. This the Presbyterian church believes and follows.

SALEM E. L. OF C. E.

Although for some time past our meetings have not been reported, we are glad to be able to say our society is still endeavouring to work for Christ and the Church. Though at times, owing to the weather, the attendance has been small, we have always felt the presence of the Master with us. This week we were favoured by having with us Miss Bathgate, of St. Andrew's Society, Peterborough, who addressed the meeting briefly, but in a very pleasant and instructive manner. The usual prayer and praise meeting was held, Mr. H. S. Armstrong favouring us with a solo, "Jesus a Place to Hide Me In." I think we cannot estimate the power of song when it is used for the honour and glory of God. There are some, I think, in every society who have the power to sing and who have not as yet taken an active part in helping on these meetings. Why not use this power? It will help you. We would suggest that if any member who knows of such a one would bring them forward and encourage them, it may form a link in the endless chain that reaches out into eternity.

FORMAL OPENING OF GRACE CHURCH.

THE INTERIOR IS BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL.

It is Exactly Suited for the Purpose for Which it is Intended—The Dedicatory Sermon was Delivered by Rev. S. J. Shorey.

Grace Church was formally opened yesterday afternoon when the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. J. S. Shorey, of Lindsay, in the presence of a large congregation composed chiefly of residents in the vicinity.

A full description of the church was given some time ago in the EXAMINER, suffice, therefore, to say that the new church is perfectly adapted for the purpose it is intended to serve. The interior is bright and cheerful, prettily tinted and with the woodwork grained in natural colours. The plans were drawn by Mr. Wm. Blackwell, the contractor being Mr. H. C. Stabler. Mr. J. H. Greer supplied the electric light fixtures, and the benches were the product of the Peterborough Canoe Company's factory.

As the text for his sermon

took the verse "What mean ye by these stones," from Joshua iv. chap., 6th ver.

He explained that as the stones were to stand as a memorial of the dividing of the waters of Jordan, so when the children of the future should ask concerning the churches "What mean ye by these stones," "What is the fundamental meaning and intention underlying the erection of these churches, it could be pointed out to them that they indicated a clear and definite belief in an Almighty God, who created the universe. "What mean ye by these stones?" We believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth. They also indicated a clear and definite belief in the Divine revelation.

These stones or buildings also stood for a rescued humanity.

"Rescued humanity" does not mean men brought out of the mire and their feet placed on the rock. This is an entirely inadequate conception of the term. Salvation was not provided merely that a man might escape the consequences of his sins and get into heaven by the skin of his teeth. It means far more than that. The verse, "In the name of Jesus of Nazareth rise up and walk," applied to the case and illustrated more fully what was required, viz., to rise up and be a man—a man in all that is in the word. God, said he, is much more glorified by a Christian leading upon earth than by empty expressions of gratitude and a mean life.

A man to be all that God wants him to be must have, continued Mr. Shorey, what the Methodists call a new birth. But no matter what it was called, the Scriptures clearly pointed out that there must come to all who would be saved, a time when a change in the mode of living must take place—a time when a regeneration was needed.

Again referring to his text the speaker argued that it would be well to be in a position to say to future generations that the churches were not erected for Presbyterians or Episcopalians, but for the one great purpose of the regeneration of man. In explaining the meaning of "the stones" to the children there would be no need of beating around the bush. In other things self-aggrandizement might be the primary object of a great work, but this was not the case with a church, as when one of those Holy edifices was dedicated, when the walls lifted themselves up in the sight of humanity, there was only one purpose in view—raising men up and bringing them nearer the throne.

MAY GOD GRANT,

said he in conclusion, that these stones may teach men what is God's will and how best to accomplish it, feeling that the responsibilities, which they carry are God's compliments.

Rev. W. R. Young, the pastor of the George street church, then made a few explanatory remarks concerning the cause of the erection of the church. He stated that the George street Sunday school had become very much crowded and though partition after partition had been removed still the crowding continued and at last after discussing the subject it was decided to build a northern branch to the Sunday school and to select the lots for the most suitable site. Whilst arranging about the price a temporary business depression passed over the country and the matter was allowed to drop for the time being. Last November, however, the question was again taken up. The present site was purchased for $700 from Mr. Geo. A. Cox, who reduced the price upon hearing of the object for which it was to be used. The George street Sunday School gave $300. Mr. Joseph Flavelle presented them with a $60 organ. The children collected $75 and, including other items, the total amount subscribed

AMOUNTED TO $1,308.

The outstanding indebtedness now amounted to $842, as the total cost of the new church was $2,150. An opportunity would be given those willing to subscribe towards the building fund to do so at a later date.

The usual dedicatory exercises were then proceeded with, the following members of the Building Committee being present:—Messrs. D. W. Dumble, Benj. Shortly, Thomas Morrow, Henry C. Stabler, George Powell, Frank Mason and A. E. Dixon.

During the afternoon assistance in the services were rendered by Rev. J. J. Rae, of the Charlotte street Methodist church, and Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's.

The services in connection with the opening which were held in the evening proved very interesting. The attendance was very large, the building being filled to its utmost capacity. The George street choir very ably assisted in the proceedings. The chair was occupied by ex-Mayor Kendry, who called first on Rev. Mr. McWilliams, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Mr. McWilliams congratulated the George street congregation on the undertaking which they had just accomplished and which he said proved the progressive nature of the church. He also dealt with the appropriate name applied to the church, viz, "Grace," a name or a word, he said, which no progressive church could do without, and to have a church with such a quality you must have a pastor

GRACEFUL, SUCCESSFUL AND EDUCATED.

A Sabbath school, also, was a strong pillar in a church. He said he did not mean young children but included the parents.

At the head of all must be a superintendent full of zeal and tact. We must also consider, said he, the Ladies' Aid, Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and Epworth League, which are great helps to a church. These things all working together ought to make Grace church one of the most progressive churches in Peterborough.

Rev. S. J. Shorey of Lindsay, gave a very interesting address, dealing particularly with man's rapid progress in this present age and some of their failings. In the course of his remarks, he particularly dealt with men who preferred a church free of debt, and free of everything that would make any work for a number of years, where they could sit and fold their arms, and let things run along smoothly, and also spoke of men who after years of work wanted to take a rest and spend the remainder of their lives in ease. Mr. Shorey said life was a period of toil—the rest came afterwards.

Rev. Mr. Limbert, of Lakefield, gave a very able address, dealing with the improvements of the present day and the fault-finding of men towards the earth and some of its natural elements. He briefly illustrated the latter point by telling of a man who had often wondered why it was that a pumpkin grew on such a slender stalk when the small acorn grew on the large and stately oak, but, as it happened, he had an opportunity of lying under an oak tree when an acorn dropped upon his eye. It was then that he realized that everything had its proper place in life, for had it been the pumpkin that dropped the results would have been a trifle more disagreeable. This, he said, was a lesson to those who had often said if they had the making of this earth, it would have been much different.

Rev. E. Cragg also made a few most interesting remarks in reference to the new church.

Rev. W. R. Young, pastor, dealt with the object of the new church and its financial condition. He then proceeded to solicit further subscriptions, which, including the evening collection, amounted in all to about $250.

THE COB-WEB SOCIAL.

A Very Pleasant Evening With the Y. M. C. A.—A Jolly Crowd.

At 8 o'clock last evening, the Y. M. C. A. rooms were filled with as jolly a crowd of young men as ever entered its doors. After a short time of social intercourse and acquaintance-making, the gong rang as a signal for to begin the unraveling of the cob-web, which event furnished all that could be desired in the way of amusement for about an hour.

When the time alloted to this part had expired, it was found that there were still several contestants in the field, and it is a question with the judges as to who is entitled to the leather medal.

At this point all were invited to the second floor to partake of the very bountiful repast provided by the ladies. The evening was enlivened throughout by music and friendly sociability.

The attendance of 250 young men with the young ladies of St. Paul's Y. P. S. C. E. aggregated about 300. Much credit is due the Y. P. S. C. E. of St. Paul's (to whom the Association is indebted for this event) for the manner in which all the details were carried out.

The next affair of this kind will be given by the Y. P. S. E. of the Murray street Baptist church, which will materialize about March 17th. Look out for it.

His Face was a mass of Blotches.

But now his skin is clear as a year old babe's.

Scott's Sarsaparilla his Salvation.

Nothing blights existence like the knowledge that our appearance is repellant to those with whom we come in contact, nor is there any relief like that of feeling that the disfiguring causes have been removed. Says Mr. William Alger: My face on one side was a mass of blotches, some of which were constantly full of matter. I run a bake shop doing my own work, but my face got so bad that customers drifted away. Then I hired a man and went to a doctor. He said my blood was in a horrible condition. I sold my business and moved to the city where Scott's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me. The first bottle did me much good, and after taking five bottles my skin is as clear as possible, and not a sign of my previous disfigurement. I say Scott's Sarsaparilla is the best blood medicine going and am speaking from experience.

Pimples, blotches, boils, ulcers and all diseases arising from vital exhaustion and impure blood are radically cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla, a concentrated compound of the finest medicines ever known. Your druggist has it at $1. But get Scott's. The kind that cures.

COSTUMES FOR LENT.

WHAT LADIES MAY WEAR DURING THE SOMBRE SEASON.

Details of Quiet Confections—Kid and Satin Decoration—Tucked Skirts—How to Freshen Old Gowns—Some Valuable Hints.

New York, (Special.)—The gowns at present being made up and which will make their first appearance during Lenten weeks are a compromise between winter and spring, suitable to the demi-season.

Much French broadcloth is used, in rich browns, blues, greens and violets, with here and there a costume in the superb "eminence" purple, so becoming to women of the red type.

Trimmings for these run chiefly to bodice decorations of white satin, spangled in jet or gold, or embroidered in elaborate threads, introducing silk figures in Persian colors, or in the tone of the gowns. White dressed kid, worked with colored silk and shaped into vests, revers, collars and cuffs, is seen on a few of the handsome gowns.

One splendid visiting costume of "eminence" cloth, just imported by one of our smartest dressmakers, had bands of the white kid running loosely over a blouse bodice of violet chiffon. The chiffon was accordion plaited, and the kid bands were left plain at the centre, and outlined with a jet thread inclosing a narrow vine of purple violets.

The effect was very charming, and the lucky purchaser of this fine rig would have the satisfaction of knowing that a newer thing could not be found in New York.

For the skirts of the cloth gowns there is an arrangement of big tucks that is effective and easily managed. The tucks are three inches deep and three in number, but the front and back breadths of the skirt alone show them. A novel point is that no stitching appears at the outside of these tucks. The folds are pressed and caught down underneath, which gives to the loose surface a look of elegant simplicity.

A skirt of light unfigured wool, or one of solid silk, so tucked, is an agreeable change after so many plain flues, but if made of cloth, the material, of course, needs to be of a very fine quality to admit of the extra weight occasioned.

Gowns of cloth or silk that have begun to show winter service are being rejuvenated with smart little basque bodices of brocaded silk. The basques are rippled, or in flat coat tails, and there is commonly a vest of chiffon or white satin and may be revers of the same.

At the waist, in nine cases out of ten, a narrow belt of gilt or silver braid that fastens in front with a miniature buckle, girdles the brocaded bodice becomingly. Again the belt will be of jet and the revers of black satin, outlined or barred at the top with rows of jet. But whatever the material of the bodice, whatever the color, white satin stocks reign supreme as the finish for the throat. The very heaviest quality of ribbon is chosen for these, and in a rich ivory tint, and at the back spreads a great round bow in four loops and two ends, which is so huge that it hides quite half of the head.

Fur wraps, of course, cannot yet be entirely discarded, but gowns are dropping their skin trimmings as if by magic, and there is a very spring-like look about some of the new mantles.

The capes are very short, were "collets" in some instances, and there are some very full little affairs of black or colored velvet, with pale silk linings and fluffy chiffon fixings about the neck, that are charming. These are in one or two full flounces and in all cases the chiffon is black, with sometimes small black ostrich feathers falling softly over the big neck ruche. The collets are shaped much like the chinchilla collars worn during the winter.

Instead of the high collars of these, however, the black chiffon ruche tops, the velvet article with adorable becomingness, and there may be an upper collet of plisseu chiffon with big rosettes each side of the front and floating stole ends.

All of these new shoulder trappings are delightful, and the woman must be plain indeed whose looks would not be enhanced by one.

For throats past the flower of youth they are gracious aids to softness, seeming even with fluff and furbelow, to smooth out the lines in tired faces. On certain pale dark types, red mouthed and subtly grave, they are coquettish to a degree that baffles description.

It is useless to talk of spring coats as a fixed finality, even as late as this, for one never knows what women are going to wear until the time comes to wear it. However, the shops have bloomed out in smart light coats lately, loose and tight fitting, and many of them reaching barely below the hips. One loose model in pale covert cloth, here shown, is advised as a becoming design for slight figures.

It is girdled trimly into the waist with a narrow belt of yellow leather, and the skirt pictured with it is of checked wool in two shades of brown.

Another suit combination to be worn during Lenten days consisted of a plain skirt in green and brown novelty wool and a short cape of plain green cloth.

Very beautiful hairy wools are being shown for stylish street gowns, and these are made up simply, with the bodice with short basques, and often a wide girdle shaped belt and stock of velvet as the only trimming.

The late hats are taking on an airy look, indicative of the approach of spring, though naturally, it is too early for shapes and material to quite decide themselves. Lenten headgear, nevertheless, is very smart and here and there demure simplicity lends itself becomingly to the season. Many of the small, round hats, and those on the sailor order, with narrow brims, are made of a satin braid in which a course straw one is introduced. Big loose roses, in a vivid pink, touch them up becomingly against the hair at the back or under the brim at the side. On the outside, there is a tendency to run a vast gauzy bow across the front of all the small brim hats, with spreading wings behind it, and in the centre little curled aigrettes like a pheasant's crest. NINA FITCH.

The Land of No Divorce.

South Carolina has for a long time held a unique position as the only State in the Union which refuses to grant divorces for any cause whatsoever. South American Nervine.

The Great Health Restorer of the Century.

Sickness Cannot Cope With It.

Has Cured the Worst Cases on Record.

Cures at the Nerve Centres and Thus Cures Permanently.

A Wonderful Specific in All Cases of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Nervousness and General Debility.

Has No Equal as a Spring Medicine.

There is a great deal of uncertainty in the methods adopted to remove disease. Doctors are not free from this kind of thing themselves. The poor patient has to put up with a good deal of experimenting. The discoverer of South American Nervine takes too serious a view of life to play pranks of this kind. He does not think that these human bodies of ours should be fooled with. He has recognized that they are subject to disease, but, by scientific methods, he has learned that just as the watch is to be put in perfect repair only when the main-spring is kept in running order, so with the individual, he remains in perfect health only when the nerve centres are kept healthful and strong.

What disease is more distressing than indigestion or dyspepsia? Some simple remedy may be given to cause relief for the moment. Nervine is an indisputably successful remedy for the worst cases of indigestion, because it reaches the source of all stomach troubles—the nerve centres. Indigestion exists because the vital forces have become diseased and are weakened. Nervine builds up the nerve centres, from which come these forces, removes the causes of indigestion, and then builds up the health completely.

How many systems are run down through nervousness. A stimulant may give ease, but it will not cure nervous troubles. Nervine has cured more desperate cases of nervousness than any other medicine anywhere. And it does so for the same reason that it cures indigestion. The nerve centres are deranged, or there would be no victims of nervousness. Nervine rebuilds and strengthens the nerve tissues, and hence its marvellous powers in diseases of this kind.

In the spring of the year the strongest suffer from general debility. The blood, through neglect, has become impoverished, and the whole system gets out of order. We speak of it as a spring medicine. Nervine restores the exhausted vital forces that have led to this tired, don't-care, played-out, miserable condition. No one can take a bottle of Nervine at this season of the year without disease quickly giving way to abounding health.

The moral is plain, simple and readily understood. If you would not trifle with disease, then you will take South American Nervine, which will not trifle with you.

Why is one woman attractive and another not? It isn't entirely a question of age or features or intellect. The most admirable and attractive thing about an attractive woman is her womanliness. Everybody admires a womanly woman. Everybody doesn't realize just what it is that makes her womanly. She must have health, of course, because without it she would lose the brightness of her eyes, the fullness of her cheeks and her vivacity. Health brings all these things but health means more than most people think of. Real health must mean that a woman is really a woman. That she is strong and perfect in a sexual way, as well as in every other. That she is capable of performing perfectly the duties of maternity. Upon her strength in this way depends to a large extent her general health, her good looks and her attractiveness. Some women are born stronger than others. Some are born with what is called "constitutional weakness." It is easier for some women to retain health and strength than it is for others. Some seem able to do anything they like, whenever they like, without serious results. Still, there is no reason why women should not enjoy perfect health. Those who do not, need only take the proper precautions and the proper remedy to become perfectly well and strong. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. It is absolutely certain. There are some who have neglected themselves so long that a complete cure is next to impossible, but even these will find comfort and improved health in the use of the "Favorite Prescription." It has cured hundreds of women who have received no relief whatever from years of treatment with good physicians. It is absolutely unique in the history of medicine. Such a remedy can be discovered only once. There is nothing in the world like it, nor has there ever been. Hundreds of things that every woman ought to know, are contained in Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, which will be sent absolutely free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only. SOME FRENCH MODELS.

An indoor gown of light grey cloth, shown in the illustration, is made in princesse shape, the bodice smooth-fitting, and slashed at the front, as also are the sides of the skirt, to give place to insertions of blue and green mirror velvet. The edges of the slits are trimmed with narrow passementerie caught with tiny velvet bows. A full collar is of the velvet, and also a ruffle about the elbow below the drooping sleeve puff.

A mouse-colored cloth gown has a vest of old-rose velvet covered with guipure lace in the short bodice, framed in a wide collar of the rose velvet uncovered. The collar is square like a yoke across the back, descends in points at the front, and connects with square epaulettes, the whole being edged with narrow Alaska sable fur. Lace-covered velvet cuffs ornament the sleeves.

A Nile-green silk evening gown is made with a short flaring skirt and a decollete bodice with a draped front; wide applique lace is draped to form a little bolero caught with ribbon knots on the front and to extend out in epaulettes over the puffed sleeves. A ribbon strap is caught to the skirt with knots midway around it, and the ribbon belt finishes in a bow on the side.

Flowered English velvet with a cream ground and violet design is the material of the skirt of another gown. The slightly pointed bodice is of white silk, trimmed with pearl and amethyst beaded galloon, and edged with a chiffon puff at the low neck. The puffed sleeves are of violet velvet.

A tailor gown of dark blue cloth has two stitched bands of the cloth encircling the skirt, one at the bottom and one half-way up. The short slashed coat is piped with white, and opens with an angular revers collar upon a white cloth vest. This vest is cut across near the top, leaving a square opening to be filled by a dark blue plastron and collar. Cut-steel buttons and clasps ornament the coat.

A dark green cloth gown has a very simply designed round bodice, the front opening on a vest of the cloth, with a flat fold on either side, the folds connected across by brandebourgs. Black mohair braid descends in a pointed strap from the shoulder, on the front, and out over the sleeves, and a band of the braid borders the skirt. A mauve chiffon ruche is in the neck and wrists.

A brocaded taffeta gown in torquoise and black has the silk employed for skirt and sleeves, while the bodice is of a black fancy velvet. The open front of the bodice is slashed to form three bands, which cross a vest of pleated pale blue mousseline de sole, topped by a stock-collar, with choux at the sides. A mousseline drapery bands the sleeves at the elbow.—Harper's Bazar.

BEAUTIFUL LACES.

New and Effective Designs for Trimming Spring Gowns.

Lace has now taken its place as an accessory for all costumes, and become as it were a part of the garment itself. This season the newish designs are marvels of beauty, not only in pattern, but in texture. These delicate fabrics seem to rival even the ages when lace work ranked with all its splendor for vestments and formed with silk and satin, its chief adornment.

This season the most fashionable is known as the Venetian. Its pattern is in the form of a circle of discs, each disc being padded like that of the true French embroidery. In each centre is a series of knots and threads. It has a well finished top and bottom, is of fine cotton, washable, and is an exquisite trimming for any material.

Next in style is the Mecklin. Its decided pattern is of a thick combination of laces and conventional designs ending in a deep point. This lace is peculiarly adapted for the popular dressy bodice and so splendid in its effects that it could be worn for any season—even long after it has ceased to be in fashion.

Among the new trimmings is the lace Batiste. It is a sort of appliqued cream-colored cotton affair, in which a chain-stitch forms the edges and holds together the leaves and flowers of this elaborate design. As a centre scheme there is a ring in which tints of cream cotton thickly button-holed form an excellent stay.

This season the Fedora has made its appearance more beautiful than ever. It is woven in different patterns and of quite a number of widths. Both edges are well finished in scollops and so well finished that no heading is required. Its patterns are of festoon dots, conventional designs, flowers and wreaths, all denoting a combination of French effects. It grows finer in texture each year, appearing more silk-like and bringing generally in price from $1.25 to $35.

Chantilly lace has revived and the market overflows with this admirable net, both in white and black. The black seems to be heavier and in set figures of various lines and dots, all of which are popular in favor. These pretty confections which cover the laces have been used largely for the shoulders. Yet black lace of all sorts and kinds takes a leading place in new costume.—Mrs. Olive Bell Bunce.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root. Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritive value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

A Reproof.

Trotter was visiting in London and having been there before, knew his way about. On taking a cab at one time, and fixing the price for the distance, he noticed that the driver seemed to be a new recruit and uncertain how to reach his destination, driving in and out various streets.

"Are you lost? Don't you know the location?" asked Trotter, through the hole in the roof of the hansom.

The driver looked down with an expression of sadness.

"Do you think I'd lose myself in London, sir," he replied "with only an eighteen pence fare?"—Harper's Monthly.

Scored One on Marshal Suvaroff.

The Russian Marshal Suvaroff was famous as a jester, and was fond of confusing the men under his command by asking them unexpected and absurd questions. Thus, one bitter January night, such as Russia only can produce, he rode up to a sentry and demanded:

"How many stars are there in the sky?"

The soldier, not a whit disturbed, answered coolly:

"Wait a little, and I'll tell you." And he deliberately commenced counting: "One, two, three," etc.

When he had reached 100, Suvaroff, who was half frozen, thought it high time to ride off, not, however, without inquiring the name of the ready reckoner. The next day the latter found himself promoted.—Lippincott's.

PRICES OF CHEESE NOT LIKELY TO ADVANCE THIS SUMMER.

A Dealer's Return from a Trip to England—The Market Overstocked—New Zealand and Australia Strong Competitors—The Butter Trade.

Mr. G. W. Gray, the well known cheese man, says the Kingston Whig, who went to England last November, returned to the city this week. He had a very pleasant trip and spent most of his time in London and Liverpool. In an interview Mr. Gray said he combined business with pleasure. He had power to sell cheese at the best price he could get. He found the market dull and buyers independent, and the cause of this was that the supply of cheese is big. It comes into England from all sources. The buyers know that there are large quantities of cheese in Canada, and that they will have no difficulty in getting supplies. A large portion of the cheese that is being received in London comes from New Zealand, though the supply from this source was not as large in 1895 as in the years previous. The buyers do not have to depend entirely upon getting cheese from other countries, because a great deal of cheese is made in England. With cheese from Australia, New Zealand, Holland, France and the English and American, there is as much cheese as the market needs.

"Do you think the price of cheese will advance this year?" Mr. Gray was asked. He said that judging from the general outlook the price will not be any better this year, and he could not say that prices would be as good as those received last year. The prices paid in the past have not been warranted, and dealers have lost money, and they say they will not run risks in future.

The cause of the trouble in the cheese business is that the competition has been too keen among local buyers and the prices have been beyond profitable prices.

Mr. Gray does not think matters could be adjusted by factorymen forming a combination, and sending men to England to sell their cheese. This scheme would take an enormous amount of money to maintain, and in the end would not likely be a success. This project would certainly be a mistake.

A valuable suggestion was offered to Mr. Gray by a dealer in cheese in London, Mr. W. Gunn, brother of Mr. Alex. Gunn, of this city. He said the best way to develop the Canadian cheese trade would be to ship the cheese steadily during the season; then dealers could always depend upon having stocks that were most in demand. The same plan could be applied in the shipment of butter. If this were adopted better prices would be got for butter and cheese than are now received.

Cheese is quoted in London now at from 36 to 48 shillings per cwt., and good butter from Australia and New Zealand sells at from 94 shillings to 114 shillings. The butter is shipped from Victoria in square pine boxes, each containing 56 lbs. The butter is put up in a clean and tasteful way, and is very popular.

Canadians have begun to ship butter to England, but there is a drawback in the trade that must be corrected. The butter made here is not suitable to the taste of the English people. It is too highly salted. Butter received from Sweden, Denmark and Brittany is almost saltless, while the butter from Victoria is not nearly as salty as the Canadian make.

Another feature of the trade that needs to be referred to is that Canadian butter shipped to England is not put up in as attractive a style as butter received from other countries. The butter from Canada must be put up in packages in a tempting way, or else it will not hold a good place in the market.

A great many hams are shipped to England from Canada, and because they are not well put up, they hold a second place to hams from Ireland that are fixed up to suit the trade.

Trade in London is fairly brisk, and there is plenty of employment for men.

Mr. Gray noticed particularly that when dealers in London spoke about Canadian goods they called them "American," so that the United States gets a good deal of credit that belongs to Canada. As a rule, Englishmen do not realize that Canada is a great country. Mr. Gray assured them that Canada was not only a great country, but that it was a nation totally independent of the United States. Some of the influential citizens were glad to hear that Canada had offered to put 100,000 men in the field in case of war between England and the United States.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

Council Meeting.

(From Our Own Corresponden

The Council met at the Town Hall at one o'clock, on Monday, Feb. 24. All the members present.

The minutes of the meeting of Feb. 10th were read and confirmed.

An application was received from Fred. E. Wilson for the office of Collector for 1896 at a salary of $35. No action taken.

The statement from the Collector's roll, as returned to the Township Treasurer, was received, showing the amount uncollected with abatements and remissions, which balances the roll for 1896.

A communication was read from the County Treasurer, setting forth the arrangement made by the County Council regarding the over-due interest account of the several townships. Received and referred.

The committee appointed at last meeting to consult a solicitor re grant for opening road on 8th concession, reported having referred the matter to Mr. J. Burnham, Q.C., of Peterborough, in whose opinion, as herewith read, there was no authority for a Council to grant public money under such circumstances to said road, without assuming future liability therefor. This report was received and the committee discharged.

Mr. O. Carver appeared, asking to have a ditch opened on con. 11 at N. Lun's creek.

Moved by Messrs. McIntosh and May, that the account from the County Treasurer be referred to the Reeve and Clerk for examination.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Johnston and McIntosh, that the statement of uncollected taxes for 1895 be received and adopted and the clerk is hereby instructed to notify the defaulters therein.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Hunter and McIntosh that the Reeve and Councillors Johnston and May be a committee hereby authorized to arrange for opening a ditch on 11 con., as per request of Mr. O. Carver.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and McIntosh, that for the purpose of the more efficient repairs and maintainence of the roads therein it is desirable to commute at the rate of 50 cents per day the statute labour in that portion of the township defined as "all the property lying eastward of the line from north to south, dividing township lots No. 11 and 12, and that the clerk is hereby instructed to prepare a bylaw accordingly.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Hunter and Johnston, that the clerk make enquiries as to the cost of procuring a road machine for the purposes of this municipality.—Carried.

The appointing of pathmasters, road commissioners, poundkeepers, etc., was postponed until the meeting of Monday, April 6th, 1896.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease,—rheumatism — consumption — skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

THE PASSION PLAY.

Sunday School Children Should all Attend and Witness it.

During the next few weeks the Peterborough public will have an opportunity of witnessing a most life-like reproduction of the Passion Play or Life of Christ Upon Earth The scenic effects are all produced by means of a wonderful mechanism and as the lecturer proceeds with the tale of Christ the narrative is illustrated by the moving of most lifelike figures across the stage in the performance of their several duties. The little figures are of composition and arranged on wires and through the wondrous mechanism connected with the production of the play, at regular intervals they advance to the foreground, uplift their hands or move their heads as the lecturer explains the purport of the scene, and then turning around move quietly off behind the scene. The story begins with the watching of the shepherds by night and the sudden appearance of the Star of Bethlehem, then the wise men of the East pass by on their camels and so this beautifully illustrated narrative of the life of Christ proceeds until the last sad days of the Saviour upon earth. Every Sunday school child in town should be sent by his or her parents to view this wonderful illustration of the familiar Bible stories at No. 406 George street.

THIS LAST RAILWAY PROJECT

To Parallel the C. P. and G. T. From Montreal to Windsor With an Electric Line Meets With Opposition.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—(Special.)—An interesting session of the Railway Committee was held this morning, when the bill to incorporate the Canadian Electric Railway and Power Company was under consideration. The promoters of the project include the following gentlemen: Castle Smith, London, England; James Kerr Osborne, Lyman M. Jones, Geo. W. Beardmore, Wm. H. Cawthra and Edmund Bristol, all of Toronto. The latter was present on behalf of the bill. The promoters sought power to construct and operate an electric railway from Montreal to Windsor, passing through Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Toronto, Hamilton and London, and to build a branch from Toronto to Suspension Bridge, and branch lines of not more than 25 miles' radius. The capital stock is fixed at one million and a quarter, and the scheme is declared to be a work for the general advantage of Canada. The head offices are to be in Toronto.

Mr. Haggart made the important announcement that it was not the intention of the Government to interfere with the Ontario practice regarding electric railway lines, and that their operations would be left to the province. It would have to be considered whether Parliament should allow two of our main lines from Montreal to Detroit to be paralleled. The Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific had just emerged from a hard struggle, and a third line would greatly hamper them.

Mr. Wainwright of the Grand Trunk Railway was heard shortly in a vigorous protest against the passage of the bill.

Mr. E. Bristol explained that the scheme was a bona fide one, and that it would largely develop local traffic. The time limit for the building of the line was placed at five years. He also pointed out that the company did not ask one cent of subsidy, but only the charter.

Several members spoke very strongly against the bill, as being likely to kill the two great roads of Ontario. Both the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways were unable to pay dividends under existing conditions, and could never stand such competition. An understanding was finally arranged by which the measure was allowed to stand over for further consideration.

It is likely the bill will be amended so as to charter a company to build an electric line from Kingston to the Falls instead of the above.

The bill to incorporate Queenston Heights Bridge Company, the promoters of which are George Gooderham and T. G. Blackstock of Toronto and A. Fraser of Niagara Falls and others, passed committee, with some unimportant amendments. Mr. Countsworth had charge of the bill. Mr. Blackstock also appeared for it.

FATAL EXPLOSION AT QUEBEC.

Arsene Consigny Instantly Killed While Experimenting With Acetylene Gas.

Quebec, Que., Feb. 26.—Between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon an explosion occurred at the shop of Nicholas Consigny, on St. Joseph street, by which one man was instantly killed and another seriously injured. Nicholas and Arsene Consigny, who are experienced machinists in electric apparatus, were experimenting on the manufacture of acetylene gas in order to reduce its cost as a luminary, and had just loaded a six-inch iron pipe with gas fluid, when it exploded with great force. The pipe was put in a tub of water when it was found to be leaking, and Arsene, without paying any attention to the gauge, lifted the pipe for the purpose of locating the trouble, when th eexplosion took place. The gas fluid struck him with great force in the right eye, and penetrated to the brain. He dropped dead on the spot. The tissues and the brain substance were reduced to a pulp, while blood flowed from the nose, ears and mouth. His brother Nicholas was thrown against Arsene, striking him on the head with great violence. Nicholas also received a very severe shock from the explosion. His injuries are not fatal. A priest and doctors were promptly on the spot. Rev. Cure Gauvreteau notified the widow of the sad affliction which had overtaken her. The deceased leaves a family of three children. The Consignys are hard workers, and devoted much time and labor to inventions, especially in electric appliances.

ANOTHER WARNING TO BOYS

To Keep Away From Trains in Motion—How Young Blackwood Was Killed.

Almonte, Ont., Feb. 26.—Thos. Blackwood, aged about 10 years, and son of Robert Blackwood, was killed here this evening by attempting to get on a train while in motion. He and two or three companions were playing near the C.P.R. track at Wylie's grist mill, while a freight train was passing by at a slow speed. He attempted to get on a car, his foot slipped and he fell under the car, the wheels passing over the lower part of the body, nearly cutting him in halves.

THE NOBLE INVESTIGATION.

Captain Dunn of the Cruiser Petrel Speaks in Favor of the Firm

Collingwood, Feb. 26.—The investigation into the charges against the Noble Bros. was resumed this morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Johnston still held to his ruling, and Mr. Osler retained the position taken yesterday. Judge Johnston, however, proceeded to take evidence, and about 20 witnesses who had been subpoenaed by the Government were examined. Among those examined were Messrs. Jas. Clarke, Goderich; A. Montgomery and J. Mackay, former agents of the Buffalo Fish Company, and Capt. Dunn of the D. G. cruiser Petrel. The evidence of the latter, which was expected to be very damaging to the Nobles, was quite a surprise, Capt. Dunn stating that the firm had caused very little trouble during the six years he has been in the service on the lakes. All the evidence of the subpoenaed witnesses of the Crown being in, Mr. McFadden presented a list of parties whom he might wish to summon to a future sitting of the commission. Mr. Osler objected to proceeding until all the evidence of the Crown was in, and an adjournment followed. The place where the commission will sit again will be agreed to by the parties interested, but it is thought that it will be Massey.

GOLD AT THE BOTTOM OF IT ALL.

The British Arbitration League Deals With the Transvaal Troubles

London, Feb. 26.—At the annual meeting of the Arbitration League this evening a resolution was adopted expressing joy at the rapid, almost marvellous, progress of the movement for the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration for the settlement of differences between Great Britain and the United States, and the hopeful prospect for the speedy achievement of the project. There was adopted also a resolution declaring that the lust of gold and fraud was at the bottom of the present troubles in the Transvaal and elsewhere, and denouncing the unrighteous practices adopted for the gratification of this lust.

SCOTT JACKSON MAY YET HANG.

For the Murder of the Unfortunate Girl Pearl Bryan.

Cincinnati, Feb. 26.—Scott Jackson, in an interview with a reporter at the jail this morning, confessed that he had had improper relations with Pearl Bryan. This is the most important confession of the prisoner since his imprisonment. Ever since his arrest Jackson has declared against the overwhelming facts that his relations with Pearl Bryan were absolutely honorable, and that his sole purpose in having her come to Cincinnati and undergoing a criminal operation was to protect his friend, Wm. A. Wood. Thursday is the date set for the hearing in the Police Court of the case of Jackson and Walling.

CANNOT PHOTOGRAPH THE BRAIN

Edison Says it is Out of the Question—A Big Experiment Soon.

Orange, N.J., Feb. 26.—Thomas A. Edison is fitting up a room in his laboratory for the trial he expects to make to secure a shadowgraph of the human skull. The inventor says he has succeeded in making tubes that will answer his purpose, and in a day or two will have everything ready. He added that getting a photograph of the brain was out of the question, but is confident of getting a shadowgraph of the skull bone.

HE WANTS $20,000 FOR AN EYE.

Why Albert Hayball is Suing the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Road.

Detroit, Feb. 26.—Judge Smith of Pontiac took up for trial the case of Albert Hayball against the D., G., H. & M. Railway Company for $20,000 damages. Hayball worked at an iron planer in the repair shop of the company, and says he had frequently complained that the machine was out of order. He kept at work, however, and claims that a fragment of iron flew into his eye on account of the imperfect working of the tool. The company's claim is that the machine was not out of order, or, if it was, the plaintiff should not have worked around a machine which he knew was imperfect.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Rev. S. A. Steel of Nashville, Tenn., Addresses the Gathering at Berlin.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—The Epworth League convention had a grand open meeting last night in Trinity Methodist Church, which was crowded to its utmost capacity, and many were turned away. The chief attraction was the Rev. S. A. Steel of Nashville, Tenn., who delivered a masterful lecture on "Heroes of Methodism." Throughout his discourse he kept his audience spell-bound, and at the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks in behalf of the league was tendered him, which was responded to heartily. This morning Dr. Steel again addressed the league on the "Invasion of Canada," being the peaceful coming of American Epworth Leaguers. A sunlight prayer meeting was held this morning at 7 o'clock, led by Rev. A. E. Smith of Plattsville. The day was occupied by the various questions affecting the welfare of the league.

Attempts Being Made to Bribe Quebec Liberals

To Vote for the Remedial Bill, But They Will Support Mr Laurier's Policy in Spite of Government Offers of Return by Acclamation Now the Premier Was Slighted in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—This correspondence contained the statement several days ago that another big row was impending among the Government and their supporters over the Remedial Bill. The Ministerial press are beginning to discover this, judging by to-day's issues of those papers. The Government are bound to go down under the Remedial Bill, as Sir Hibbert Tupper foresaw and predicted long ago. As a last refuge for the discredited majority the Liberals from Quebec are being aproached with bribes to desert their position and vote for the bill. Certain Quebec Bleus have been told off to approach certain Quebec Liberals and offer them re-election by acclamation if they vote for the bill. If in this the Government could seduce a dozen of Mr. Laurier's followers they could afford to suffer the defection of their own followers. But the Quebec Liberals are made of beter stuff, and one of those so approached authorized your correspondent to say that the Quebec Liberal members are a unit in favor of Mr. Laurier and his policy. Stories of disaffection in the Liberal ranks are being circulated by Conservatives, but it is a forlorn hope and they know it. Never in the history of Parliament have the Liberals been so united, so loyal to their leader and so contented, and the Ministerialists cannot secure any comfort from them in their own discontent and disaffection. The Liberal members can neither be bribed, cajoled nor coerced into supporting a measure that the Government's own followers will not upport. Mr. Laurier is watching every move on the other side, and is fully alive to the situation, and his friends throughout the Dominion will not be disappointed in him in this emergency.

The latest humiliation for Sir Mackenzie Bowell was rather painful to witness to-day. At the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association votes of thanks were moved to those official friends of the association present in the order of precedence, beginning with His Excellency the Governor-General. By precedent, etiquette, good taste and everything else, the First Minister should come second, and the association so intended, but Major Sam Hughes, M.P., was bound to further the Tupper boom if possible, and, being entrusted with the moving of the Tupper resolution jumped to his feet ahead of Col. Massey, whose turn it was, and made his motion, accompanying it with a speech of fulsome flattery, in which he ascribed the spirit of loyalty existing in Canada to Sir Charles Tupper. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, thus slighted, received a far warmer reception than his Secretary of State. The acting High Commissioner, in the course of his speech, alluded to that spirit of loyalty which, he said, had existed in Canada "for centuries." Everyone knows Sir Charles Tupper to be a very old man, but it will be a shock to the promoters of the "boom" to learn that he has existed for centuries. The antipathy of a prominent Parliamentary Conservative, Dr. Weldon of Albert, to Sir Charles Tupper has been made prominent within the last few days, and, when the Baronet rose to a question of privilege in the House to-day, Dr. Weldon remained silent in his seat, content to allow Sir Charles to read a very ambiguous note from him of three lines, enclosing a copy of a brief statement sent to the press. A Conservative member of Parliament said to your correspondent last month: "If Sir Charles Tupper becomes Premier, I will go straight into Opposition," and he is a man of his word. There is no confidence in Sir Charles Tupper in the Maritime Provinces any more than there is in Ontario.

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—(Special)—The most interesting feature of this afternoon's sitting of the House was the statement made by Sir Charles Tupper, who, rising before the orders of the day were called, said he desired to ask the indulgence of the House to draw attention to a matter which he considered of great importance. He referred to an article in yesterday's Montreal Herald containing an open letter addressed by Editor McConnell to Dr. Weldon, M.P., and C. H. Cahan, M.L.A., of Halifax, which Sir Charles proceeded to read. Continuing, he said that he had addressed a letter to Sir Leonard Tilley, which had not reached him, when the following telegram was sent by Sir Leonard to him:

"St. John, N.B., Feb. 26.

"Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., Ottawa:

"The use of my name in McConnell's letter is without the slighest warrant, as Dr. Weldon can confirm. No statement to Dr. Weldon or any other person in reference to the charge made against you was ever made by me.

"(Signed) S. L. TILLEY."

Sir Charles proceeded to read a letter which he had received from Dr. Weldon, which enclosed a copy of the statement made by Dr. Weldon to the newspaper correspondents last evening, in which he said that McConnell's charges were founded on false and slanderous statements. To complete the record, Sir Charles read the denial from Mr. Cahar which appears in to-day's papers. He concluded by stating that he had instructed his solicitors to proceed criminally against the publishers of these false and malicious statements. (Cheers.)

After recess the Act respecting the sale of railway return tickets (Mr. McLennan, Glengarry) was given a second reading. The bill provides that the railways must issue second-class return tickets at the proportionate reduction allowed on first-class return tickets. Mr. McLennan said it was only fair to the poor man that he should be allowed a return ticket at the same proportionate rate as was allowed the rich man traveling first-class.

A FARMER'S INSTITUTE TALK.

A GREAT MEETING AT SELWYN.

A Supplementary Meeting of the West Riding Institute—Excellent Practical Addresses—A Well Managed Session.

A supplementary meeting of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute was held at Selwyn on Feb. 25th, with the president, J. F. Davidson, in the chair. The delegates appointed to address this meeting were Messrs. Page, Patten and A. W. Peart. The two former were not present and the vacancy was filled by Mr. Joseph Yuill, of Carleton Place.

The first speaker was Mr. Yuill and the subject chosen for him to speak on was "Ensilage Corn and the Silo." In preparing a field for a crop of corn he cultivated as for any other crop, and manured at any time in the fall, winter or early spring. He advocated planting several varieties of corn and not to depend on one kind, and plant, when the thermometer registers 60 degrees, two inches in the ground. The corn should not be planted closer than three feet and a half and should be planted in hills and always cultivated the same way in the row and thus the small rootlets would not be injured to any great extent. A silo holds fifty pounds to the cubic foot, if it is twenty feet high, and if higher it will hold more, as the pressure is greater. He advocated the round silo, built thirty feet high, and he thought concrete or stone would make a very satisfactory silo.

He thought it advisable to sow a field of mixed grain, cut it green and cure as hay; then cut this up and mix with the ensilage. The different kinds of corn recommended by Mr. Guill were for small varities; Comptons early and Lonfellow, and for larger varieties, thoroughbred White Flint and Red Cob. In feeding a diary cow, he considered 40 lbs. a day sufficient. He said that frost did not hurt corn for the silo, as it only does away with the surplus water that is in the corn.

MR. A. W. PEART,

of Burlington, then followed with an address on "apple culture" and handled his subject in a very able manner. He did not like a gravelly subsoil but preferred one of a more loamy nature. In planting an orchard, thirty feet was too close, for, as the trees got older, their extending branches interlaced and thus it was very unhandy to cultivate the orchard or to pick the apples. Thirty-five to forty feet apart was the proper distance. In selecting get good, strong thrifty nursery stock as it will prove the cheapest in the end. and also get it free from insects; for instance the oyster shell bark louse. Sometimes the roots are knotty and are objectionable to plant, as it will spread to other trees. In planting dig good large holes and put in some of the top soil first, cut off all broken roots, and cut in an oblique direction. He said a nursery tree would lose about one-half in digging, therefore it is is necessary to cut back the top also to a certain extent.

Plant two to three inches deeper than they were in the nursery, as it will make the tree stiffer in the ground, also head the trees 3½ to 4½ feet from the surface. Different trees have different habits of growth, therefore it is necessary to judge as to the length. In heading the young tree cut off the weaker limbs, and head the tree out of from three to five branches, so that if one is lost it does not hurt the head of the tree. It pays to take care of the apple tree from the start. Shallow cultivation is necessary for fruit trees as well as for root crops, as we require to keep up the capillary attraction to sustain the growth of the trees.

The ground in the orchard can be made use of by growing a root crop and garden stuff until the young trees commenced to bear. Pay particular attention to the pruning of the young trees so as as to form a well balanced top and cut out all cross branches.

Mr. Peart could not recommend varieties suitable to our locality, as conditions of soil and climates are very changable, but he advised the farmers to visit their neighbours' orchards and select the varieties that have done the best with them. In his district he had the Greening and the Baldwin. The varieties marketable in Great Britain were the Baldwin, Greening, Northern Spy and the Russet. He thought that in the future the Northern Spy would bring the highest price. The packing is an essential point; pack those of uniform size together and the large and small together. He said apples that will not stand inspection should not be placed on the market. Insects were very injurious to the apples, such as the codling moth. There were two or three crops of these in the season. He recommended spraying with Paris green, and spraying before the fruit turns down. Another insect is the oyster shell bark louse. It hatches about the end of May, and it has the same effect on the trees as the lice have on the cattle. Remedy: Just after they are hatched spray with kerosene emulsion and wash the trunk of tree. He said there were two classes of insects, those that suck and those that eat.

The canker worm was also very destructive to apple trees. There was one species that worked in the fall and another in the spring. Spraying was also necessary to destroy these. Another insect, we had to contend with, was the borer. It works into the bark and wood, and very often gets into the heart of the tree. The spot is the chief fungus we have to contend with. Wet years are favourable to it. The remedy for this is Bourdeaux mixture and spray before leaves come out. He said that trees that were top grafted came into bearing from two to three years earlier. The best tree to graft on is the Talman Sweet.

Mr. Peart also spoke on fertilization of apple blossoms. He said some varieties of pears, berries and grapes gave no fruit. He said it was the observation of practical fruit growers that certain varieties of apples do not give the crop they would if planted with other trees. He said if Spies were planted in a block, they would not do as well as if planted amongst other trees.

Mr. H. Garbutt asked which was the best sprayer to obtain.

Mr. Peart advised getting one with a good agitator and a good nozzle. The best was the Virmorel or the McGowan. The best pump is one with brass cylinder, a brass plunger and a brass nozzle.

Mr. J. G. Galvin thought that spraying was very essential in this district, and spoke of the benefits to be derived from it. He also thought it profitable to graft, and spoke of the best varieties suitable to this locality.

Mr. Yuill then followed with an address on "How to Improve an Exhausted Farm." Before starting his address, he gave a few practical points on the management of poultry. He said if poultry were properly managed, they would give a profitable return. He advocated the stamping of every egg with the farmer's name and post office address, then if they shipped good fresh eggs the tendency was that they would obtain a better price.

In renewing a run down farm he would first sow two crops of buckwheat, plough both crops down, then follow with a light crop of barley ane seed down. Keep the stock off this, then the next year take off a crop of hay and the second crop plough down. He thought barley was the best to seed down with after the second crop of clover was ploughed down. Then he would follow with a root crop or a crop of corn and then follow this with another grain crop and seed down.

This brought the afternoon session to a close.

It might here be remarked that the ladies turned out to the meeting in almost as large numbers as the men and it stands to reason that the farmers' wives should take advantage of these meetings as they will generally take away more information and put it to better use than the men will. This is also the first place the writer ever attended an Institute meeting where the ladies provided tea and the committee that arranged for this meeting is to be congratulated on the success they have had.

EVENING SESSION—7.30.

The meeting opened with a short address by the President. He spoke on the depression in agriculture and he said the only way in which money could be made was to lessen the cost of production. He recommended soiling along with pasturing.

Mr. Benson, of Lakefield, then followed with a song and delivered it in his usual humorous manner.

Mr. Yuill then addressed the audience on the "Care and Management of Dairy Cattle." He said he commenced with the young calves. He used box stalls for cows that are coming in and he never allowed the calves to suck the cows. He had his cows come in in the fall and at the age of from two to two and a half years old, as they would make better dairy cows than if left till they were three or three and a half years old. He recommended feeding only twice a day, as the cattle will do better than if they are fed oftener. Keep the stable at 60 deg., as it is better for the cows, and do not turn the cows out in cold weather. Mr. Yuill never lets his cows out during the whole winter, and finds he has better results by so doing. He has a dairy and makes butter, and makes it in the granulated form, using one ounce of salt to the pound of butter. His customers like it in this proportion, but he recommended making it to suit the customer.

Mr. Roberts of Selwyn gave a reading entitled "The Northern Farmer," and held the attention of the audience very forcibly.

Mr. Peart gave a short talk on small fruits, and then gave an address on "Leaks on the Farm." He said the farmer required to be a specialist in order to be successful. Some of the leaks were hard to stop—one was inattention to business. The man found in the heart of the business was the man that usually succeeds. He thought it was the duty of every farmer to keep a set of books, as it tends to make the farmer more economical. Lack of system caused a cerain amout of leakage. There were two classes of expenditure, viz. productive and unproductive. He said a great many farmers left their machinery out all year round and his advice was, to build proper implement houses as they would be the cheapest in the end. He thought the farmer should practice liberal economy. The tendency of some farmers was to stay at home and refuse to obtain new ideas. They should go away from home and see the progress of others as it was time they were becoming enlightened as to the scientific methods of agriculture. He thought the time was past for the farmers of this province to grow grain for sale, as it was impossible for us to compete with other countries, and we were draining our soil of its fertility by so-doing. We should go into dairying or some special branch of farming. He said the farmers neglected the education of their children. The farmer should be an educated man, and he advised the young men to make good their opportunities and not to leave the farm, as the professions in the cities are completely overcrowded, but instead take a course at the Ontario Agricultural College, and they would never regret doing so.

Mr. M. Sucee then gave a song which delighted the audience so much that he had to give a second song, which was also enjoyed.

Mr. Galvin gave a neat address and urged the farmers to become members of the Institute. Many responded to his request. He also said that dairying would be the future occupation of the farmers in this district, and advocated the use of the Babcock test.

Mr. Yuill gave a short address on butter making, and the essentials necessary to produce a first class article.

Mr. Benson gave another comic song.

Mr. E. McIlmoyl closed the evening's programme by a well selected reading, and after singing "God Save the Queen," the meeting closed, having had two very successful sessions.—GEORGE Y. PAYNE, secretary, pro tem.

MILLBROOK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A serious outbreak of diphtheria has occurred here, and so alarmed have the authorities become that the public school has been closed down for an indefinite length of time. No particular cause can be given for the present outbreak, but there has been considerable comment of late as to the sanitary condition of the closets in the basement of our public school. Mr. Hampton, the principal of the school, in a recent issue of our local paper, however, denied that there was any ground for complaint, but the fact that the seven children who have been stricken down with the disease have been regular attendants of the school, leaves some grounds for an investigation. Out of the seven cases one death has occurred, Master Harry Craig, the twelve year old son of Mr. Jos. Craig, having passed away on Tuesday morning. Five of Mr. Geo. Lock's children were taken down with it on Sunday, and Master Harry Pickup, son of Reeve Pickup, is slowly recovering.

A number of Millbrookers had a rather thrilling experience last week, and no doubt they will long remember the basket social at Mr. Maxwell Henry's. About thirty young people, including the members of the Presbyterian church choir, left on Wednesday evening to take part in a basket social in aid of the Presbyterian church at the residence of Mr. Maxwell Henry, about five miles south of here. The drive there was a most pleasant one, but after the entertainment was over the roads had become so drifted and the night so stormy that the return trip was impossible. They accordingly had to stay all night with Mr. Henry, thinking that when morning came they would be able to get home safely. Morning came and the storm still kept up and showed no signs of ceasing. Thirty-four persons, besides Mr. Henry's family, sat down for breakfast and the same thirty-four sat down for dinner. As the storm still showed no signs of abating, they thought it best to make a start for home some way or other, so they decided to walk to Carmel station, about one mile and a quarter away. After ploughing through many fields, the whole party, including twelve or fifteen girls, arrived at the station and waited patiently for the half past four train. As Carmel is a small station without any telegraphic communication, no word could be got to the storm bound adventurers that not only was the train they expected cancelled, but also the local. Night came on no train passed through. Several times they would hear the whistle of a locomotive and a rush would be made for the platform, but would be disappointed to see a snowplough, and even this would be going in the wrong direction. Next morning about twelve o'clock a passenger train steamed into the station and brought the party home to Millbrook after an absence of nearly two days. Plenty of food was got at a farm house near Carmel station, so that the party were not at all hungry.

Miss Mabel Davidson, the champion fancy skater will appear in the Millbrook skating rink on Wednesday night.

In a four rink match on Friday night Port Hope curlers defeated Millbrook by twenty shots.

Rev. Mr. Johnston occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church on Sunday last.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism — consumption — skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

thinness

The diseases of thinness are scrofula in children, consumption in grown people, poverty of blood in either. They thrive on leanness. Fat is the best means of overcoming them. Everybody knows cod-liver oil makes the healthiest fat.

In Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil the taste is hidden, the oil is digested, it is ready to make fat.

When you ask for Scott's Emulsion and your druggist gives you a package in a salmon-colored wrapper with the picture of the man and fish on it—you can trust that man!

TROUBLES IN THE S.A.

Ballington Booth Squeezed Out of the Family.

He Will Give an Answer to His Supporters on Saturday Whether or Not He Will Head an American Branch of the Army—Headquarters Must Deal With His Lawyers.

New York, Feb. 26.—The sentiment in the Salvation Army Headquarters, in West Fourteenth street, throughout the day, was one of uncertainty. No one cared or dared to speak definitely about the situation. The effort was made to convince inquirers that all trouble was ended. But notwithstanding this there was a very evident nervousness on all sides concerning Commander Booth's promise to appear at Headquarters next Saturday and there make known his final decision—"whether to surrender his accumulations in the name of the organization, in the name of the Army, or to stand by his rights and organize a new army with the property which would belong to those who remained faithful to the American branch.

Saturday, therefore, is the day toward which all the members of the army and those who act as its officers are looking with the greatest interest. So intense was this feeling that it almost developed into an open quarrel in one of the corridors of the building in the afternoon. Two members of the American corps had called to make inquiries about Commander Booth. They were met by Brigadier Brewer and Colonel Nicol, and at once began a discussion concerning Mr. and Mrs. Booth's absence. Colonel Nicol declared that Commander Booth's statement that conveyed the impression that General Booth, his father, had removed him because the American Army had become too American was utterly erroneous.

Commander and Mrs. Booth issued another statement yesterday. Here it is:

"We feel it is almost useless for us to attempt to formulate a reply to the many statements that have been made and the many views that have been furnished during the last few days. This will be the better understood when we explain that we are worn through loss of sleep, overwhelmed with letters and perplexed by the trying course of events.

"First. We wish to explain our presence at the Army Headquarters yesterday by saying that our most prominent and faithful staff officers naturally wanted to see us again and to hear from our lips the side of the case which had been withheld from them. As this was a private session, naturally some inaccuracies have appeared in the press.

"Second. In a published statement to our officers and friends, which has found its way into the press, Colonel Nicol states: 'For days and nights these three mediators employed every possible argument, appeal and entreaty to beseech the commanders to visit England,' etc. We affirm emphatically that this is erroneous. We had promised Colonel Nicol that we would consider the matter of going to England, but no time for consideration or reasoning was granted, and, though overwearied in body and mind, and were besieged with threats, calumny and misrepresentations of our motives. We were forced to immediate decision, and, though Colonel Nicol cabled repeatedly to London, showing them the disaster that would follow this policy, they persisted in it, and the interviews culminated in the peremptory action of Commandant Herbert Booth, which in this circular they again repudiate. All we can add in this matter is that the policy of the international headquarters, particularly through their representatives, was not considerate or conciliatory; on the contrary was attended with ungenerous insinuations, misrepresentations and an arrogance most damaging to their own interests.

"Fourth. We have not yet made over the properties of the Army, as we shall naturally seek legal advice. We have informed international's representatives in New York that all communications from now on must be through our lawyers.

THE AWFUL ROSEDALE LEAP.

Another Toronto Man Suicides by Jumping From the High Bridge

Toronto, Feb. 27.

Arthur Joseph Long, head waiter at the Albany Club, deliberately suicided yesterday afternoon by jumping from the second Rosedale bridge. Death resulted immediately, the body being horribly mangled. Deceased had been employed at the Albany three years. He roomed at the house of Mrs. R. Woods, 163 Victoria-street, where Coroner Greig last night found a sealed letter addressed to Bertram W. Long. It was dated Feb. 25, and was written by deceased, who said that he was sick and despondent, that all hope had gone, and he hoped that he would be forgiven for the disgrace he was about to bring upon the family. In addition to the letter, the suicide left his watch and a number of trinkets to be given to his brother.

The tragedy occurred at about 3.30 o'clock, in identically the same spot where Mr. James Scott met his death on Saturday. Long walked across the bridge two or three times, on one occasion speaking to James O'Neil of 4 Pine-terrace, who was cleaning off snow in front of Mrs. G. B. Reid's residence at the north end of the bridge. Mrs. Reid was in her sewing room and noticed the young man, who, after speaking to Neil, walked to the centre of the bridge, climbed the railing and jumped from the top. Twice his body revolved in the air, and he fell upon his feet and rolled over on his side. Mrs. Reid telephoned to the police and the patrol wagon was sent to the scene.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Matters of Interest Picked Up in Provincial Halls on Wednesday.

Toronto, Feb. 27.

Toronto, Feb. 27.—(Special.)—Though there was little talk, a great deal of important business was transacted at the Legislature yesterday. Several important bills passed the second reading and were sent on to be fought out in committee.

Mr. McKay (Gifford), moved the second reading of his bill to change the hour for municipal nominations from 12 o'clock noon to 1 o'clock. After a sharp debate, during which party lines were broken, the bill passed.

Mr. Reid's bill to transfer the townships of Portland and Loughborough from Addington to Frontenac County for agricultural purposes, met with general support. Hon. Mr. Dryden said the bill had the sanction of the Government, because it would be useful to the citizens of the districts named. He took pleasure, therefore, in doing all he could to see the bill become law. The bill was read a second time.

Mr. Garrow's bill respecting disputes concerning boundary lines was read a second time; as also was Mr. O'Keefe's to amend the Ontario Voters' Lists Act and to amend the Assessment Act.

Mr. Crawford was prepared to go on with his resolution dealing with the Manitoba school question, but allowed the matter to stand at the Premier's request. Sir Oliver said the subject was important. He wished every member to have sufficient time to consider what action should be taken. The Premier was, perhaps, aware that there was a split in the Opposition camp upon the question. Mr. Howland has prepared a lengthy amendment to Mr. Crawford's resolution, which will devide the Opposition forces. Mr. Crawford's resolution means "hands off Manitoba," while his colleague, Mr. Howland, will ask the House to say, on the contrary, that the course of the Dominion Government is both wise and just. Mr. Marter, the leader of the Opposition, seems to be on the fence. It is rumored he will support Mr. Howland's amendment, but he will not state definitely as yet. It is well-known he is looking, wishing for, and probably has good reason to expect a Senatorship. The Conservatives of Ontario are tired of him. The authorities at Ottawa may make use of him if he can manage to keep the party together in Ontario for a few months longer and are willing to reward him by making him an honorable, with a life salary of $1000 per year if he will do their work.

In order to secure this position, however, he will be called upon to secure the adoption of Mr. Howland's amendment. Mr. Howland has returned from Ottawa, where he was in consultation with Premier Bowell. It is not probable that Mr. Crawford's motion will be reached again until early next week, when the matter will be forced to a vote.

Mr. St. John and Mr. Gibson (Huron), continued the debate upon the Budget.

The following bills were introduced and given a first reading:

An act to amend the Assesment Act, Mr. Gibson (Huron), amends the form of the oath to be made by the assessor at the end of his roll and requires him to swear that he has assessed real property at its actual cash value as it would be appraised as payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, except as to lawns and farm lands in cities, towns and villages, for the assessment of which special provision is made in the Assessment Act.

An Act to amend the Ontario Architects Act, Mr. Garrow. The principal change made by the amending Act is that no principal is to be entitled to demand of or receive from any student any premium or money condition whatever, as a condition of accepting such student as an apprentice.

An Act to amend the Municipal Act, Mr. Hobbs, provides that in case of a council of any city having a population of 30,000 or over, and not exceeding 80,000, shall pass a by-law affirming the expediency of a new division of the city into wards, reducing the number of wards by at least one-third, the Lieut.-Governor may, by proclamation, so divide the city, and afterwards four aldermen are to be elected for each ward. The term of office in the class of cities mentioned is extended to two years, two aldermen for each ward retiring annually. The Act further provides for the re-division by the council upon the petition of 300 freeholders, the new division to be based as far as possible upon the assessed value, population and territorial extent, and in all cases where the new division is to reduce the number of wards by one-third or more, four aldermen are to be elected for each ward in the manner provided in the preceding clauses of the Act. If the council neglects or refuses to make a sub-division according to the petition, a commission may be issued by the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council in the same manner as at the present time provided in the case of cities of 100,000 or over.

An Act to authorize cities to hold polls for municipal elections on New Year's Day, Mr. Hobbs, enables the council of any city by by-law, not later than the 15th of September, to provide that nominations shall be held on Christmas eve, or on the preceding day, when Christmas day falls on Sunday, in which case the polls shall be opened on the following Monday.

An Act to amend the Municipal Act, Mr. Chapple, repeals the provision which allows a person residing within two miles of a municipality to be elected to the council and substitutes the words, "in an adjoining municipality in the same county, so that while a person must quality for municipal offices upon property for which he is elected, he need not be a resident of that municipality so long as he resides in the same county."

An Act to amend the Public Libraries Act 1895, Mr. Hobbs, provides that, in cities, towns and incorporated villages, where a petition has been presented by the Board of Management of a Public Library or Mechanics' Institute, praying for the appointment of a Board of Management by the council, if a Public Library Board has already been appointed in such municipality, the municipal council shall appoint such Board of Management of the Public Library or Mechanics' Institute, after presenting such petition.

An act to amend the Act respecting mills and milldams, Mr. Stratton, provides that the apron now required by law to be constructed in dams on streams down which lumber is brought or in which salmon or pickerel abound, shall be eight feet wide by an inclined plane of 12 feet to a perpendicular of 6 feet, instead of, as formerly, 18 feet wide by an inclined plane of 24 feet 8 in. to a perpendicular of 6 feet.

PATRONS ARE YET EXCLUSIVE.

Leader Haycock's Resolution Voted Down by the Grand Association.

The Grand Association of the Patrons of Industry last night decided not to extend the list of those eligible for membership in the order.

Mr. Haycock, leader of the Patrons in the Local Legislature, brought in a motion to the effect:

"That the Patron constitution be so amended as to admit all classes and professions who believe in the necessity of the existence and extension of an independent party in this country. * * * and to abolish all pass words, signs and pledges, beyond the acceptance of our platform and principles, as being more fully in the interest of our people than are the platform and principles of any other existing party."

The discussion over this resolution was long and warm, but when, at midnight, the question was put to the meeting, the motion was lost by a two-thirds vote.

The liquor question also came up for discussion yesterday. Upon the suggestion of a sub-lodge, it was resolved to submit the matter of prohibition to all the sub-lodges of the association. If 90 per cent. of these sub-organizations vote in favor of prohibition, it will be made the fourteenth plank of the party platform.

Upon the motion of A. Gifford, seconded by J. Lockie Wilson, the Grand Association endorsed Mr. Mulock's bill before the Dominion House, the object of which is to fix the rate of interest on overdue contracts at 4 per cent., instead of 6 per cent.

The election of grand officers takes place to-day.

ELECTRICITY

Its marvellous advances.

An interview with a prominent electrician and inventor.

Mr. D. C. L. Ferguson, of the Eclipse Electric and Manufacturing Co'y, 211 Church st., Toronto, consented to be interviewed by our representative the other day. Mr. Ferguson said: "To see me now you would not fancy that I had undergone severe hardships and battled with disease, yet such is the case, and were it not for the events I am about to relate I would not now be able to prosecute further scientific researches.

"I have been troubled with my kidneys and liver for the past 10 years. During the last 4 years I have been growing worse rapidly, until I was almost unable to work. I have been treated by doctors and taken a large variety of medicine without benefit. I had constant pain across my back, at times almost unbearable, especially at night. My urine was wine color as if mixed with blood, and with much sediment, burning sensation when venting. I felt tired and dragged, and it was with the utmost effort I was able to work at all. Seeing the Doan Kidney Pill Co. advertisement, I thought I would try one box of their pills on the principle that it would do no harm to try again, so I got one from W. S. Robinson, Druggist, 532 Yonge st. I have not quite finished that first box, but am happy to say it has proved the best experiment of my life. I improved from the start and there has been a rapid improvement daily, until I am to-day a well man. Pain all gone. Urine natural in color, no sediment. I am stronger, and able to work as well as ever I did. I cannot be too thankful for the result of my trial of Doan's Kidney Pills. I would be glad to tell anyone who suffers as I have done, how I was before, and how I am after taking Doan's Kidney Pills, if they will call at my place."

Canada Life Assurance Co.

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business in Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows:—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nearly 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life.

ITS RATES ARE THE LOWEST AND PROFITS THE LARGEST.

Intending Assurers would be consulting their own interests by getting figures and facts from the undersigned before placing their risks elsewhere.

FAREWELL REMEMBRANCES OF REV. FATHER SCOLLARD.

St. Peter's Cathedral Sanctuary Boys Present Him With an Address and a Cane — His Farewell Visit to the Schools.

Last evening the Sanctuary Boys of St. Peter's Cathedral met at the parlours of the parsonage and presented Rev. Father Scollard with the following address, which was accompanied by the gift of a handsome gold-headed cane:—

To Rev. Father Scollard:—

DEAR FATHER,—We, the Sanctuary Boys of St. Peter's Cathedral, have heard with feelings of sincere and unaffected regret of your departure to labour in another portion of the Lord's Vineyard, and that the bond of affection which has for the past five years so closely and intimately united us is about to be severed. We cannot permit you to take your departure from our midst without first expressing to you the deep and lasting obligation we are under for the noble watchfulness, unceasing care and words of counsel and encouragement which you have always displayed and extended to us as Sanctuary Boys. While sincerely regretting the severance of the bonds of affection which have sprung up between us, we congratulate you that our good Bishop has, as a merited reward of your zealous labours, deemed it proper to grant you a more extensive field of operation for those eminent talents with which God has endowed you, and that in going to North Bay you carry with you our sincere and hearty wishes for your future welfare, and also the assurance that our prayers will ascend from our young hearts to the throne of God to grant that your future may be crowned with the same success that has attended your labours in Peterborough.

In conclusion we ask you to accept this small token as a further assurance of our good wishes.

Signed on behalf of the sanctuary boys,

Master K. Dolan read the address and Master P. J. Kelly made the presentation.

Rev. Father Scollard made a suitable and feeling reply.

Yesterday afternoon Rev. Father Scollard visited the Convent school, and this morning the Lake street and the Central schools, and gave brief farewell addresses to the teachers and pupils.

This afternoon also the young ladies of the convent school, visited the parsonage and presented Rev. Father Scollard with a graceful and dutiful address, together with a beautiful dressing case.

The reverend gentleman with all the natural regret that he must feel at his departure, must yet feel great consolation in the many evidences of the hearty appreciation of his work in Peterborough, and of respect and affection for his person and office.

THE CALL APPROVED.

The Hamilton Presbytery Sustains the Call to Rev. A. McWilliams.—A Deputation to Come to Peterborough.

A despatch from Hamilton, dated Feb. 25th says that a special meeting of the Hamilton Presbytery was held to-day, when the call from Wentworth church, this city, to the Rev. A. McWilliams, of Peterborough, was considered. It was stated that the call was unanimous, being signed by 358 members and 62 adherents. The call was sustained, and the clerk was instructed to forward it to the Rev. A. McWilliams. A deputation will attend a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery on March 17th to press the call.

[Rev. Mr. MacWilliams informed a representative of The EXAMINER, this morning, in reference to the above, that he had arrived at no decision in the matter. The matter of his accepting or declining the call was, in relation to the interests represented by the Presbytery of Hamilton, as well as those of his own Presbytery and congregation, in such a position as to preclude the possibility of his making a personal decision.

McGEE'S TRIAL.

It Will Take Place on Monday Next.

The trial of John McGee on the charges of unlawfully wounding Wm. Bowman and John Arnott will begin on Monday next before Judge Weller at the Court House.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Goldsmith was in Belleville yesterday.

Mr. Harry Phelan, is confined to his room through the effects of a severe attack of la grippe.

Mr. Wm. Byers, a prominent carriage maker of Gananoque, well known to many business men in town, died on Monday.

Mr. Dan Simone has accepted a position with Marks Bros., and is at present with them in Lindsay. Dan is without question the best dance and knockabout artist in Canada to-day, and in securing him Marks Bros. have greatly strengthened their company.

Mr. J. J. Turner and his son Achilles returned yesterday after a two months' visit to England. They came home by the "Laurentian," of the Allan Line, and experienced in the eleven days the roughest passage Mr. Turner ever had. As the ship was rolling badly Mr. Turner was hurled across the deck, and received an injury to his knee from which he is still suffering. There was beautiful weather in England when he left, and the contrast presented by our piles of snow was marked. Mr. Turner combined business with pleasure, and didn't neglect business. While waiting for a delayed train in Montreal he took an order for three awnings.

HOCKEY.

The Belleville Intelligencer says: "The Peterborough team played rag with Trenton last evening before 700 spectators. The score was given as 12 goals to 2, but a party from this city who stood near the Trenton goal says 25 goals would nearer express the score made by Peterborough. The Trenton team, our informant states, resorted to a kicking and a bluff game, and 'Biddy' Filion threatened the referee if he did not decide in Trenton's favour. The Trenton people are to be credited with supporting their team so well. The Peterborough men are a swift lot, and if the Granites of Toronto down them on Friday they will have to play a better game than in previous years."

The Toronto Globe publishes the following account of the final match in the senior series, last night:—

"Queens! Queen's! Queen's!" So shouted the little knot of the loyal supporters of the zebra-striped hockeyists from Kingston last night at the Mutual street rink, Toronto, with all the strength of their lungs, when the game commenced. At that time most of the crowd were ostensibly "rooters" from Stratford, but when it became apparent that it was a case of "Queen's first, Stratford nowhere," the cheers for Kingston increased in volume gradually, and before the first half was over it was hard to locate a Stratford man. The result of the game did not disappoint public expectations, but the majority of the local hockeyists had a hope concealed somewhere about their clothes, engendered no doubt by the defeat of Osgoode T. A. C., that Stratford would give the bloated monopolists of the O. H. A. championships a close game—one that would warrant them in believing that something good can come out of the west. But the first few minutes of the game showed the fallacy of this reasoning, as the Queen's men got around the ice like vital sparks, while Stratford, in comparison, were painfully slow. The first part of the game consisted of a series of individual rushes; no combination play was attempted by either side, and what could be called really scientific hockey was conspicuous by its absence. But this state of affairs did not last long as the Queen's men soon got their bearings, and cries of "Now they're off!" which invariably heralded a combined rush on their part, were frequent. With beautiful precision and dash the whole line would swing down the ice, the puck flying from one player to another until it settled on McKay's stick and whizzed through the air in the direction of Stratford's goal. The little golden-haired lad is the best shot that has been seen in Toronto this year, his lifts being marvellously accurate and speedy. There is not a weak spot on the Queen's team, every man is a star.

It must not be thought that Stratford is a weak seven, as they are the reverse. Queen's outclassed them. Their forward line are a good lot of players, steady and sure, and at times displayed some fast work, but their passing was woefully inaccurate, being apparently of the "I-don't-care-where-it-goes" kind. Considering what sort of players their defence was pitted against, they played a splendid game. Ewing stopped many rushes in his usual reckless fashion, and all through put up a hard, desperate game. His lifts were rather weak, seldom going far up the rink. In that respect, Gibson at point did not show up very well, but he was always in his place, and that counts for a great deal. It was a case of a fast team, with a "bargain day" supply of the fine points of the game, against an aggregation which relied upon its weight to carry it through. Except for periods in the first and second halves, the game was free from roughness. Referee Martin displayed a thorough knowledge of the game, and his decisions found favour with both teams."

THE LINDSAY GAME.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I see by the last issue of the Lindsay Warder that the hockey team of the Collegiate Institute of that town are complaining about the H. Peterboroughs not fulfilling an agreement to give them a match week before last.

A serious misunderstanding evidently exists or else the Warder is wilfully misrepresenting the matter. The H. Peterboroughs agreed to give the Lindsay Collegiates a match on Wednesday, Feb. 12th, but as the Kingston team were delayed in getting into Peterborough until that evening, the local seven could not get away and telephoned the Lindsayites in explanation. The explanation was satisfactory, and the Collegiates asked the Peterboroughs to come over the following evening. This was agreed to, but as the train for Lindsay, which usually leaves here at five o'clock for that town, did not pull out until five hours later on the date in question, there was no use in the boys going over. Since that time nothing further has been heard from the Lindsay Collegiates, much to the disappointment of the local boys, who were most anxious to give them a game.

The reference of the Warder to the matter is characteristic of the manner in which that journal is usually conducted, and the Peterborough boys do not attribute the splenic utterances of the Warder to the members of the Lindsay Collegiate team. The H. Peterboroughs are open for a match on any date.

Yours truly,
H. S. M.

CURLIANA.

The following letter has been sent to the Mail and Empire by G. H. McIntyre, the secretary of the St. Mary's Club. It advocates a testimonial to Mr. J. S. Russell for his services to curling, and the suggestion will, no doubt, meet with a ready acceptance:—

TO THE CURLERS OF ONTARIO:—

GENTLEMEN,—You play a game you have many reasons to be proud of. It is a game that is health-giving and wholesome in its tendencies, and open to both young and old.

Unfair play and professionalism find no place in it. For success it demands a combination of a true eye and well-trained hand, sobriety, patience, good-temper, self-control, and steadiness of nerve. Few games have in them so much of what is really good and valuable, and so little of the undesirable. The enthusiasm of curlers for their game is proverbial.

It gives needed exercise to the professional and business man, the accountant, the clergyman, at a season when other means is denied them, and it makes no serious demand on either time or purse. Curlers then should be quick to recognise and appreciate anything that improves the game, or broadens interest in it. I feel I am safe in saying that no man in Ontario has done as much for curling as Mr. J. S. Russell, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Curling Association. Curling existed here before the advent of Mr. Russell, and would, from its inherent qualities, have grown in favour. But without him it would not have achieved the splendid success of its present position.

The chief implement of the game, the curling stone, was formerly but a crudely shaped block of granite, compared to the beautifully finished, symmetrical, true-running stone of to-day. This evolution of the curling stone is almost entirely due to his years of thought and experiment. Every curler knows the improvement in play, and the enlarged possibilities that have come with the improvement in the stone. Mr. Russell has for many years filled the office of Secretary-treasurer, and to that position is attatched a salary. There is a labour of duty and a labour of love. For the faithful and conscientious performance of the duties of his office he is paid, inadaquately perhaps, but still in accord with the financial position of the association.

For the labour of love that has prompted him these many years to do so much entirely outside and beyond his official duties, until the expression "Mr. Russell will think of and attend to it," is on the lips of curlers in every constituency, his reward has been the wonderful success of the game, and the gratitude of those who play it.

This gratitude should now, I think, take some tangible form, either by testimonial or presentation, that would be a permanent token to him of our appreciation of his work.

What say you curlers of Ontario? Is my proposition not timely? Instructions to your club representatives to bring the matter up at the next meeting of the association will, I think, be the best method for properly carrying it out; in the meantime an expression of your opinion will show the state of feeling.

Yours very truly,
GILBERT H. MCINTYRE,
Secretary, St. Mary's Curling club.

"My wife has been a sufferer from catarrh for the past four years and the disease had gone so far that her eyesight was affected so that for nearly a year she was unable to read for more than five minutes at a time. She suffered severe pains in the head and at times was almost distracted. About Christmas, she commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and since that time has steadily improved. She has taken six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and is on the road to a complete cure. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I cheerfully recommend it." W. H. The Horse-Racing Business.

No attempt has yet been made to collect money for the the horse races to be held on the ice on the Little Lake. The feeling is not very strong that an ice meeting should take place. Some horsemen are of the opinion that it would be better to abandon the idea of having racing on the ice, and look for larger purses for a meet to be held in connection with the celebration of the Queen's Birthday.

Mr. Macdonnell's Estate.

The will of the late Rev. D. J. Macdonnell, was filed for probate in the Surrogate Court yesterday. The executors are Messrs. Geo. M. McDonnell, Q. C., of Kingston, a brother, and Robt. S. Smellie, of Toronto, a brother-in-law. The estate is worth $19,500, made up as follows: $15,000 in life insurance, $2,400 in stocks, $500 in cash, $1,000 in household effects and $100 in a cemetery lot. The will was dated July 14th, 1891. Codicils were dated later, the latest, however, being dated March 11th, 1891, some years prior to the death of Mrs. Macdonnell. The estate goes entirely to the family, with specific instructions as to the education and maintenance of the children. Various valuable and interesting books and some personal trifles are distributed among the children of the deceased pastor.

"Hands Across the Sea."

This is what the Ottawa Journal, Feb. 25, says of the great melo-drama "Hands Across the Sea": "The play at the Grand last night drew a full house, but no better than it deserved, for Hands Across the Sea," as presented by Maurice Freeman and his company proved well worth seeing. The play itself gives all the necessary material for an interesting melo-drama, and the unravelling of the plot sustains the interest throughout. The acting is all good, Mr. Freeman as "Jack Dudley," the hero, is strong. The play relies more on its own merit of action than on scientific effects, though the scenery was good. The play is full of life and introduces many starling situations, yet not too startling to appear unreal. "Hands Across the Sea" will be reproduced to-night, and should be greeted by a good house again." The play will be presented in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday next.

Children's Aid Society.

Caring for the neglected children of the land is surely a work which appeals to the moral sense and feeling heart of every well-conditioned man and woman. Nothing is more pitiful than a child of tender years, not merely lacking parental care and guidance, but actually growing up under criminal surroundings, which inevitably must work its ruin. How many instances are there of this nature in this town and vecinity the local Children's Aid Society nows. Although but in its inci the new society is doing grand work. The measure of its labours will be the measure of the support and encouragement it receives from the generpublic. The devoted men and women at its head want their hands strengthened. The harvest is plenty and the labourers indeed, only too few. Let those who have taken hold of the work feel that their mission is recognized as a God-given one, worthy of help in a tangible way and pregnant with possibilities for lasting good, present and prospective, to individuals and to humanity at large.

LENTEN SERVICES.

At St. Luke's and St. John's Churches.

At St. Luke's last night that was a good congregation. Rev. C. H. Marsh, of Lindsay, gave the special address, founded upon St. Mark, chap. 1, ver. 12 13, "And immediately the Spirit driveth Him into the wilderness: and He was there in the wilderness forty days tempted of Satan and with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered unto Him." The speaker dwelt upon the importance of the lesson taught and urged his hearers to practice self denial and abstention from luxuries. The beautiful example of Christ's resistance of temptation were strikingly portrayed.

Rev. H. Symonds took Rev. Marsh's services in Lindsay last night.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Last night the special address was given by Rev. J. E. Reid, of Uxbridge, on the subject of "the practical advantages of the Book of Common Prayer." He pointed out the advantage of having a common form of prayer. It saved the minister from the influences of moods engendered by passing circumstances. It conduced to reverent worship and assisted in fulfilling the injunction in reference to doing all things "decently and in order"; the other advantages of a liturgical form of worship, permitted by the use of the praper book were pointed out. The speaker quoted the opinions of many eminent ministers of other denominations, some of whom gave the book of Common Prayer the next place to the Bible. He thought that churchmen should be thankful for the prayer book. There was a good attendance of the congregation.

A TALK ON BIRDS.

Interesting Meeting of the Natural History Association.

The regular meeting of the Natural History Association was held Tuesday evening. After the routine business of the meeting had been completed, the subject of "Birds" was very ably discussed by Mr. Elcome. He described the external anatomy, method of measurement and the classification of birds according to both English and American ornithologists. He made practical use of a nicely mounted specimen, as well as a diagram to illustrate his lecture. Mr. Fife continued the same subject, dealing with the skeleton of the bird and contrasting it with that of the cat. A very pleasant evening was spent and two new members added to the roll.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BIBLE SOCIETY.

Rev. J. E. Starr of Toronto, formerly of town, who had been brought to town for the purpose of addressing the members of the Bible Society was then introduced to those assembled by Sheriff Hall.

After expressing his pleasure at again meeting a Peterborough audience, Mr. Starr stated that he supposed that the object of the meeting was to express an appreciation of the Bible as the word of God and as such to make it acceptable and accessible to the inhabitants of all lands. There never was a time during which the Bible was subject to such severe criticism as during the past two or three decades he said, and at present there is a contagious feeling of scepticism in the air, such as to make many fear that the belief taught them in their youth is at fault and will not stand argument. To such an extent has this feeling spread that many expect to see all the good old Bible truths dispelled and the authenticity of the book disproved. Those of us, however, continued the speaker, who have gathered here have escaped that contagion. There is no fear in our hearts concerning the Bible and this evening our faith is, I think, and we are capable of appreciating this good old book to a greater degree than ever before.

STRONGER THAN EVER

Never before was there so much cheap literature and cheaper talk concerning the authenticity of the Bible, but it was only an indication of the sovereignty of the inspired book, as is the foam at the prow of a steamer a proof of the steamer's sovereignty over the waves.

The Bible works, continued the speaker. Other books may sparkle and please and instruct, but the Bible lifts. It imparts new impulses and gives new energy.

The influences of the reign of the Greeks, the Romans, the Norman and even the Gauls is noticed in our civilization, but besides these there is known to have been one other influence greater than all, which has left its imprint on our present day civilization. There are some people so refined that they are able to look upon the Bible and express their open contempt for it. But what, demanded he, do they owe their culture to but to this old book, which has made it possible for them to possess refinement and culture, as to it more than to any other influence we owe our civilization, so it has stimulated study. It has so our nature that all over this land are to be found great institutions erected for the benefit of mankind—the blind, the deaf, the sick and the insane. Then there is the transformation which the Book has wrought in our character. Without a knowledge of the Bible, our national character must have been coarse indeed. So fine is our conscience now that the people instantly rise up and pronounce condemnation on all injustice. The Bible has lifted our people up to a level where the moral sentiments have away; nay, more, where the moral sentiments have the ascendency. So well has this old Book done that it can do more. It can lift us up to a level where the moral sentiments shall have the supremacy. It can lift the kingdom and state, through the help of this society, to a level which will make them a fitting annex to the Kingdom of God.

HARMONIZED AND SOFTENED

The Bible is identified with the truest kind of progress. It is most conservative, and at the same time most radical. Like the ship that is bounding on its way over the sea with a valuable cargo under its natches, so does the Bible push onward through the advancing ages, keeping in advance of the keenest criticism of science and at the same time preserving intact its precious cargo, so precious to you and me.

The speaker then dealt with a number of the discoveries of modern science, and pointed out where such things had been prophesized by the prophets. Science thought an amazing discovery had been made when the weight of the atmosphere had been determined, the old Psalmist had been singing that "God giveth the air its weight." That light made music was also thought to be another wonderful discovery, but does not the Scriptures say, "The incomings of the morning, the sunrise, the outgoings of the evening; He maketh them to sing." Many thought that the ancients imagined that the earth was flat and stationery, but Isaiah speaks of "the outlet of the earth," and wrote that "the Eternal God sits upon the circle of the earth." In advance of the most wonderful discoveries of the present day the grand old book foretold it all.

BUT FOR YEARS

The speaker then went into the question of Bible criticism, and mentioned a great many instances where the critics had been confounded by the discoveries of science. As for instance: It was said that the Bible was only a tradition, as the art of writing was not known in the days of Herodotes, but some archæologists in search of specimens had unearthed libraries in Egypt showing that writing was understood thousands of years before the advent of Moses. A number of similar cases were also instanced where the sceptics had been confounded in their arguments.

Mr. Starr concluded his interesting address by stating that the good old book paved the way for man to eternal rest. Every man at a certain time in his life felt weary and wanted rest; freedom from sin and condemnation. He turns to the Scriptures and finds the words of the Saviour, "Come unto Me and I will give you rest," and coming he finds it and is taken by the hand and led into peace and rest for evermore.

A most hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Starr on motion of Rev. Dr. Torrance and Rev. W. R. Young, B.A., at the close of the meeting.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Rheumatism of 20 years' standing radically cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. Sarah Browning, an estimable resident of the Ambitious City, was for twenty years a sufferer from acute rheumatism, and her restoration to health is so remarkable that we present the case for the benefit of our readers, many of whom are doubtless sufferers from this painful complaint which arises from blood poison. Mrs. Browning says: "I used only one bottle of Scott's Sarsaparilla and received such benefit that I continued taking only at intervals for two months. That is seven months ago, and the pain has not returned. I had spent a fortune in various "treatments" and was told by one medical man that a cure was impossible as I had suffered so long."

Scott's Sarsaparilla cures by making and keeping the blood pure. It increases flesh by digesting flesh-forming foods. It is the most successful medicine in the world to-day, for dyspepsia, nervous troubles, rheumatism, sciatica, syphilitic afflictions, pimples and all diseases originating in a foul condition of the blood. Dose from one half to one teaspoonful.

JAMESON IS ON BAIL.

Transvaal Invader Cheered in London.

What the Charge is Against the Doctor and His Companions—The Bow-street Justice Dwells Upon the Great Gravity of the Crime—He Lectures the Defendant on Behalf of the People.

London, Feb. 25.—Dr. Jameson, with his officers, was taken off the steamer Victoria by a police launch, which reached Waterloo pier at 6.30 p.m. A large crowd had gathered at the pier and when Jameson appeared he was loudly cheered. The party entered two omnibuses which conveyed them to the Bow-street Police Court, the cheering crowd running alongside the vehicles throughout the journey. Upon their arrival at the Bow-street Police Court Dr. Jameson and his comrades were promptly arraigned before the Magistrate upon formal charges. After hearing evidence briefly the Magistrate adjourned the examination for a fortnight, releasing Jameson and the others upon their own recognizances of 2000 pounds each.

Fourteen others were charged with Dr. Jameson with having made war upon a friendly state. Jameson and his companions were loudly cheered as they entered the court room and there was a renewal of the popular enthusiasm after the party got inside, the Magistrate being unable to put a stop to the demonstration. The party were again cheered as they left the court and were followed after they got outside by a great crowd, who repeatedly gave expression to their enthusiasm in cheers.

The exact charge preferred against the prisoners was that "The defendants, in the month of December, 1895, in South Africa, within Her Majesty's dominions, without license of Her Majesty, did unlawfully prepare a military expedition to proceed against the dominions of a certain friendly state, to wit, the South African Republic, contrary to the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act of 1870."

After the bare evidence of the arrest of the prisoners had been submitted and formal statements had been made by counsel relative to the conduct of the case, the sitting magistrate, Sir John Bridge, remarked: "No graver offence could be charged against these men. It is a crime of the highest possible gravity and must be so regarded by every person who considers the risks of performing the offence. It involves, first, the danger of a battle at the time, in which many lives may be lost and many homes desolated, besides the greater danger, the offence being continued, of producing a state of war between countries at amity with one another."

After deciding upon the amount of bail to be furnished, Sir John Bridge addressed the prisoners, begging them for their own sakes and the sake of the country to absent themselves from any place where their presence would arouse public excitement. He further asked them not to assemble together more than they were obliged to do, and to otherwise avoid anything that might possibly disturb the public peace. Both requests were remarkable, coming from a judge on the bench to defendants before him, and showed very decidedly that public opinion is strongly in favor of the accused, and that fears are entertained of a public demonstration. The judge knew, as Jameson and his party must have known from the reception accorded them to-day, that they had but to show themselves in a public place to receive an ovation.

The magistrate appeared astounded and angry at the cheering that greeted the prisoners on their entrance into the court room. When the cheering was renewed on their departure, he sternly cried: "If you wish to bring the name of England into contempt, that is the way to do it."

The defendants departed in cabs and private carriages, the crowd roaring itself hoarse as they drove away.

In its issue to-morrow Truth will claim to have excellent authority for the statement that President Kruger of the South African Republic possesses the fullest and clearest evidence of the complicity of Cecil Rhodes ex-Prime Minister of Cape Colony, in Dr. Jameson's raid.

Mr. H. E. Hudson, Combermere, Severely Injured—Protruding Knot Entered the Body—Cured by One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

GOT ADVICE GRATIS.

THE FATE OF THE MAN WITH A SIMPLE COLD IN HIS HEAD.

London Judy Tells All About It In Verse—The Various Remedies Suggested and the Ultimate Effect all Sorts of Things.

He had a cold, a simple cold,
Located in his head.
He did not call a doctor in,
But asked advice instead
Of all his friends and neighbors, who Knew just what should be done
In any such emergency.
They gave it—by the ton.

Said one: "Rub tallow on your nose,
In mustard soak your feet;
Keep sniffing eucalyptus and Drink lots of whiskey neat.
You must not think of going out,
But stay in bed and nurse Yourself a bit." He did so, but
The next day he was worse.

Another said: "Go out of doors,
Take heaps of exercise;
Don't sit and shiver by the fire,
For that is most unwise.
The poison's in your system, so
You want to work it off."
He did as he was told. Next day
He had a beastly cough.

A third declared: "The water-cure
Will quickly put you right.
Just wrap yourself in soaking sheets,
And sleep in them all night.
Then if you're feeling feverish,
Take cold baths all day long."
He did. Bronchitis supervened,
And both his lungs went wrong.

Then they advised all sorts of things,
Hot bottles, turpentine,
Beef-tea, pills, leeches, poultices,
Massage and cocoa wine,
Draughts, embrocations, lozenges,
Electric batteries,
They will effect a cure, no doubt—
Unless the beggar dies.

The Home-Made Hair Cut.

A man with the remains of great personal beauty entered a compartment on the District Railway and, with a sigh of great physical exhaustion, removed his hat and sank back into a corner seat. He had a spot or two of blood on his collar, sticking plaster on both ears, his forehead and the bridge of his nose, while his hair was cut very close in patches, as if to make room for surgical dressings which had been lately removed.

"Been in a railway accident?" asked the inquisitive passenger who sat opposite.

"No."

"Or run over?"

"No, sir."

"Been at a anarchis' meetin', perhaps?"

"Oh, dear, no!"

"Ah, I know—playing football?"

"I never played in my life."

"Well, with an injured air, "I give it up."

"I don't mind telling you, if you want to know. The fact is, I've been trying to economize, and let my wife cut my hair this morning, and I'd sooner pay five shillings a time than let her do it again."—Punch.

He Wanted It Sent.

The old man with long chin whiskers laboriously wrote out his telegram and handed it to the receiving clerk.

"Will that go right away?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the clerk, as he counted the words and laid the telegram on the operator's desk. "Twenty-five cents, please."

The old man paid the money, but still hung around the office, and every few minutes he drifted to the window and glanced in the direction of the operator.

"Say," he said at last, "when are you going to send that there telegram?"

"It's been sent," replied the clerk.

"You're a liar," retorted the old man, hotly. "You think you can fool me 'cause I'm from the country, but I've got eyes, an' I kin use them. That telegram's lyin' on the desk over there yit, an' the feller you give it to ain't done nothin' but just read it an' play on that ticker. I want it sent to the feller whose name is writ on it, an' durn quick, too."—Chicago Post.

ARE THE BOERS DANGEROUS?

An Anti-British Resolution Passed by Kruger's Pet Organization.

New York, Feb. 25.—A special cable from Cape Town, South Africa, to The World, says: The political association of Rusenburg, in the Transvaal, President Krugers pet organization, has adopted resolutions substantially as follows:

"Whereas, public opinion in England regarding Jameson's treacherous attack shows that Great Britain is the arch-enemy of the South African Republic; and whereas the English as a people are the sworn foes of the Dutch Africanders, as is proved by the efforts of the former to humiliate the Boers, and to destroy them; therefore, resolved, that there should be no fraternizing between the Boers and the English.

"Resolved, that the Boers must prepare for continued and even more serious strife.

"Resloved, that the Transvaal Government may count upon the members of this society as being prepared to seal their words with their blood."

London, Feb. 25.—The Globe learns that there have just been shipped from Antwerp between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 rounds of ball cartridge and 46 tons of ammunition for field artillery. The artillery ammunition was consigned to the Transvaal Government. Large exports of ammunition are also being made from Hamburg.

The College Senate Will Investigate the Cause of the Big Fight.

Kingston, Feb. 25.—The Queen's College senate will investigate the cause for the big fight yesterday in the college, when a door was smashed down and a melee with clubs, brooms and fists ensued. The members of '98, with their supporters, objected to the trial of one of its membrs by Concensus iniquitates, because of the alleged partizanship of one of the officers of the court. The '98 men were overpowered, the trial proceeded, the victim convicted and fined. There is much excitement in college circles over the affair.

THE EYES OF THE WORLD
Are Fixed Upon South American Nervine.

Beyond Doubt the Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

WHEN EVERY OTHER HELPER HAS FAILED IT CURES

A Discovery, Based on Scientific Principles, that Renders Failure Impossible.

In the matter of good health temporizing measures, while possibly successful for the moment, can never be lasting. Those in poor health soon know whether the remedy they are using is simply a passing incident in their experience, bracing them up for the day, or something that is getting at the seat of the disease and is surely and permanently restoring.

The eyes of the world are literally fixed on South American Nervine. They are not viewing it as a nine-days' wonder, but critical and experienced men have been studying this medicine for years, with the one result—they have found that its claim of perfect curative qualities cannot be gainsaid.

The great discoverer of this medicine was possessed of the knowledge that the seat of all disease is the nerve centres, situated at the base of the brain. In this belief he had the best scientists and medical men of the world occupying exactly the same premises. Indeed, the ordinary layman recognized this principle long ago. Everyone knows that let disease or injury affect this part of the human system and death is almost certain. Injure the spinal cord, which is the medium of these nerve centres, and paralysis is sure to follow.

Here is the first principle. The trouble with medical treatment usually, and with nearly all medicines, is that they aim simply to treat the organ that may be diseased. South American Nervine passes by the organs, and immediately applies its curative powers to the nerve centres, from which the organs of the body receive their supply of nerve fluid. The nerve centres healed, and of necessity the organ which has shown the outward evidence only of derangement is healed. Indigestion, nervousness, impoverished blood, liver complaint, all owe their origin to a derangement of the nerve centres. Thousands bear testimony that they have been cured of these troubles, even when they have become so desperate as to baffle the skill of the most eminent physicians, because South American Nervine has gone to headquarters and cured there.

The eyes of the world have not been disappointed in the inquiry into the success of South American Nervine. People marvel, it is true, at its wonderful medical qualities, but they know beyond all question that it does everything that is claimed for it. It stands alone as the one great certain curing remedy of the nineteenth century. Why should anyone suffer distress and sickness while this remedy is practically at their hands?

The dream of Ponce de Leon was that he might discover the fountain of perpetual youth. He died searching for it. The fountain he was looking for was an impossibility, unnatural and chimerical. The nearest thing to the fountain of perpetual youth is a fountain of perpetual, perfect health. Health keeps people young. Sickness makes them old. Health means first of all, strength and regularity in the digestive functions. Put indigestible matter into the stomach and it is likely to find lodgment in the bowels. It will stop their action. Poisonous, refuse matter, which should have been thrown off, is retained in the body, and as it cannot go any place else, more or less of it gets into the blood. That's constipation. It is such a wonderfully simple thing that people do not regard it seriously. They let it run on, let it grow worse, become chronic, and show itself all over the body in fifty ways before they consider it important. Constipation causes nine-tenths of all human ailments. Its first symptoms do not seem very serious, but even they are very disagreeable. A few of them are sour stomach, flatulence, heartburn, distress after eating, foul breath, coated tongue, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sick and bilious headaches, general lassitude and debility. When any of these symptoms show themselves, you should immediately take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, according to directions. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules, made on purpose to cure constipation. They do this perfectly and quickly, and they are the only preparation in the world that will do it. There are plenty of medicines that will give relief as long as you keep on taking them, but you can't stop. They don't cure; they give merely temporary relief. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets give immediate relief and produce a permanent cure.

THE MODEL MAN.

It lies not in rank or power,
Or wealth, but in God's gracious plan,
Unfolding as He does, the flower,
The model man.

It is not in the rank and file
Of vaunt victorious, nor in state,
But God's true goodness all the while
That makes man great.

Who hath the goodness to forgive,
And ever seeks the bad to shun,
'Tis he alone can truly live,
The model one.

'Tis this that makes the model man,
To know the love, and kiss the rod
Of Christ, and live His blessed plan—
Our life in God.

IMPORTANCE OF CREDIT.

An Anecdote of "the Street" Which Is Like an Illumination.

An anecdote has been recently told illustrating the benefit of mercantile character, which, especially in a time of financial depression, is of more value than gold or coupons.

Years ago a young man landed in London with nothing but a plan for securing subscriptions to a promising business enterprise, and a letter of introduction to an eminent banker who was one of his father's oldest friends. He needed credit, and could do nothing without it. So he presented himself and his letter to the banker, who asked him into his private office.

There the Englishman put his friend's son through a searching examination to see if he were worthy of confidence, and if his scheme should receive favorable consideration. Satisfied with the result of the interview, the gentleman offered neither aid nor the benefit of his name by taking shares in the corporation the young man represented, but simply said:

"Meet me on 'change at 1 o'clock to-morrow."

When they met, the city magnate took the unknown young man familiarly by the arm and walked up and down in sight of everybody, chatting with him pleasantly, and then said: "Good-day!" The following noon the two met again and walked together as before.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" asked the banker, with a shrewd smile a few days later. "Are you making progress in the sale of your stock?"

"I am," answered the young man. "I don't understand the reason why, but everybody seems willing to listen to me. I have done better than I feared. No one has given me a single rebuff."

The respectful and cordial personal consideration shown him by one of the most trustworthy moneyed men in London put the stranger into a position where everybody had confidence in him. Those two interviews on "the street" gave him a standing which several years of mercantile struggle might not have achieved.

Credit is necessary on 'change, but character is better than credit.—Youth's Companion.

Nursery Pictures.

In the ideal nursery the wall decoration is not neglected. It is a somewhat curious fact that while so much attention is given to the sanitary condition of this room that one is apt to overlook one of its most important aesthetic features.

An English artist complains that his entire childhood, as far as art was concerned, was a blank, and that this loss never in after years could be entirely made up to him. Rosa Bonheur gives an amusing account of her admiration when a tiny child of a rudely painted bear's head, which served as the sign of a butcher's shop. She shared in that common childish fault of running away and was found at this butcher's shop gazing admiringly at this crude work of art swinging in the breeze.

Childhood is the most impressionable period in life. It follows that if art is entirely eliminated during these years that it is hardly to be supposed one will in after years conceive a sudden passion for it and appreciate the great masters. Photographs, mezzotints, photogravures and other cheap reproductions brings the works of the best artists within the reach of all, and simple frames can be obtained at a trifling cost. There seems little excuse for the neglect of this important part of a child's education.—Philadelphia Press.

Pope Leo's Reading.

The Pope's favorite poets are Vergil and Dante. He knows a great part of both by heart, and takes pleasure in quoting them. When Father Michael, the apostolic prefect to Erithrea, was taking his leave, with the other Franciscans who accompanied him to Africa, His Holiness recited to them, with great spirit, Dante's canto upon St. Francis.

The Pope reads the newspapers, passages of interest being marked for him by readers in order to save time.—The Century.

A Delicate Insinuation.

Mrs. Pesterd—Well, what is it?
Hungry Hickey—Wotever you say, kind lady. It's leap year.—Judge.

He Got an Answer.

For grave speeches of importance delivered with weight, Bismarck was, of course, most celebrated. When annoyed he nearly always adopted a jesting tone, which must have sounded to his frightened friends much as if the tiger in the menagerie had greeted them with a cordial handshake before devouring.

"Do you mean to break the convention of Gastein?" bluntly demanded the Austrian Ambassador, Count Kurolyi, of the Prussian Minister-President.

"No," replied the latter, with great directness, "but even if I did so, do you think I would be such a fool as to tell you?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Able Editor.

The village wag thought he would have some fun with the mild-mannered young man who had recently taken charge of the country paper.

"I say," he said, coming into the office excitedly, "there's a man on the street looking for you with a club."

The young editor looked up pleasantly.

"Is that so?" he inquired. "We make special reductions to clubs. How many subscribers has he got?"

Whereupon the wag felt that he had barked up the wrong tree.—Truth.

Timely Persiflage.

"I don't believe you are gold," said the Watch to the Watch Chain. "You have a gilty look."

"You come off," replied the Chain. "You are troubled with wheels."

Mrs. Boston—Is my daughter's cold better, doctor? How did you find her temperature?

Doctor (absently)—Just above the freezing point.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root. Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritive value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

THE CHEESE BUSINESS.

Do the Middlemen Make All the Profit?—Mr. Gallagher's Idea Spreading.

A meeting of the Leeds Dairymen's Trade Protective Association was held in Lansdowne recently, at which several matters of interest to dairymen in general were fully discussed. The Association was formed for the purpose of protecting the cheese-makers and to try to secure better prices. There appears to be a feeling prevailing that the middlemen are making too much profit, and the Association will make an effort to secure closer dealings with the English consumers. The chief point discussed was whether it would be advisable to send an agent to England. The general tenor of the meeting appeared to be in favour of this scheme, and a representative of the Association will probably be sent.

The question of cheese inspection was also dealt with, and the attending dairymen were all decidedly opposed to Montreal inspection. Several favoured inspection at the factories, while the majority appeared to be in favour of building a large storage house at Brockville, and having the cheese inspected there when it was sold at the Cheese Board. The dairymen were unanimously in favour of branding the cheese on the cheese itself, and not on the box. Canadian cheese, it was said, was sold in England as English cheese, and brought from 3 to 4 cents per lb. more than it would if sold as foreign cheese. It is thought that when the English consumer finds that he is using Canadian cheese and that the quality is as good or superior to the English cheese the cheese-makers will reap the benefit of this difference.

One Honest Man.

Dear Editor:—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially I will mail in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell, and want no money, but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness, I promise you perfect secrecy and as I do not wish to expose myself either, please address, simply: P. NORWOOD NEWS NOTES.

From our own Correspondent.

J. Clysdale was visiting friends around town last week.

J. G. Keffer last Monday moved into one of the new houses put up by H. G. Buck.

D. A. Fraser, who has for some time been ill with an attack of inflammation of the lungs is recovering rapidly, and will be able to attend to business in a few days.

A Campbellford gentleman is feeling a number of capitalists on a proposal to build an electric railway between Campbellford, Warkworth, Hastings and Norwood, returning by way of Havelock.

F. Birdsall and Chas. O'Blelly were representatives of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Fairs and Exhibitions held in Toronto last week.

The recital given in Havelock last Friday by the pupils of Mrs. F. E. Perney, assisted by Mr. Code, is reported a success.

Last Sunday, the anniversary services were held in the Presbyterian church here. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Summerville delivered an address in the morning, basing his remarks on 2 Sam. 17th. In the evening the Rev. Mr. Lucas addressed the congregation, taking as his text the fifteenth verse of the 132 Psalm. The freewill offering, which was taken up for the purpose of reducing the church debt amounted to a sum, which considering the inclemency of the weather and bad state of the roads, preventing many from being present, is considered very good.

Rev. Mr. Lucas delivered an address in the Methodist church on Monday evening and in the Presbyterian on Tuesday evening. His subject on Monday evening was "Queer things in Australia," and on Tuesday "Shots from the muzzle of a gun." Both lectures were well attended proving very instructive as well as entertaining.

Next Sabbath morning the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be partaken of in the Presbyterian church here. Preparatory services will be held on Thursday evening.

On Wednesday evening last a very interesting and closely contested game of hockey was played on the rink here. The rival teams were the Collegiate Institute team of Peterborough and the Norwood seconds. The game was close from start to finish and devoid of all rough play. The visiting team did the best combination play and the home team was weak on the defence. The game at the close really stood 6 to 6, but the referee who had not marked the goals as they were scored, gave the match to the P. C. I., on a score of six to five.

The teams lined up to referee Code's whistle as follows:

P. C. I.		Norwood.
J Hamilton	goal	A Anderson
C Pousette	point	W Stewart
R Thorne	cover point	F Clancy
C Graham	forwards	F Hendren
H King		R Cameron
J Watts		D Pettigrow
W Ackerman		C Pengelly
B Rickey	umpire	W Cameron

F G Code—Referee.

At half time the score stood 3 to 3. They were put through in the following order:

Game.	Time.	For	Scored by.
1	2 min.	P. C. I.	King.
2	3 "	Norwood II	Cameron.
3	11 "	P. C. I.	King
4	3 "	Norwood II	Pettigrew.
5	7 "	Norwood II	Hendren
6	4 "	P. C. I.	Ackerman.

SECOND HALF.

Game.	Time.	For	Scored by.
7	10 min.	P. C. I.	Thorne.
8	2 "	P. C. I.	Graham.
9	3 "	Norwood II	Cameron.
10	3 "	P. C. I.	King.
11	5 "	Norwood II	Cameron.
12	2 "	Norwood II	Pettigrew.

The eleventh goal was the one which the referee missed in his calculations.

On Friday evening, the 28th, the second grand masquerade carnival will be held in our rink here. Every effort has been put forth to make the evening a success. Many and valuable prizes are offered for those in costume. The races will be especially interesting. A gold medal is offered for the mile race, for which the following entries have been received: McGuire, Havelock; Ridpath, Lakefield; Insley, Trent Bridge; Bell, Peterborough. There is also a half mile race for a silver medal. The event which promises to be of most interest is the matched race between Harold McGregor and Russell Pearce for one mile. Both are fast skaters, and public interest and money are about evenly divided.

Mr. and Mrs. Wynn, of Peterborough, were in town last week.

J. Fraser, of Hastings, visited his parents, who reside in this village, this week.

Miss Hall, of Tweed, visited her mother for a couple of days this week.

Miss B. Roxburgh is making an extended visit with friends in Toronto.

Arrangements are being made to have a match played here between the Norwood II. and Peterborough II. on Wednesday, the 4th of March.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

STRANGE WINGED VISITORS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Permit me, through your columns, to apply for information from some member of what is irreverently called the "Grub" or "Bug Society." A lady tells me that she noticed, yesterday, two strange birds perch for a moment on the branches of a honey-suckle shrub (Lonicera Tartarica) near her sitting room window. The birds were of a dove colour and of large size. The lady's description—the colour, the abnormal length of the bill, and the crest—suggest the hairy woodpecker (picus villosus) but the other circumstance of size weakens the force of this suggestion. Is it possible that the birds noticed were either the blue bird (sialia sialis) or the blue jay (cyanurus cristatus)? Would some obliging member of the "Bug Society" favour me with an opinion? I don't know much about birds; just enough to be anxious to know more.

Yours very truly,
IGNORAMUS.

A CAMPBELLFORD YOUTH IN TROUBLE.

He Only Wants to get Back Home—A Young Man's Plight.

Last evening, says the Kingston News, a young lad in a somewhat crippled condition applied to the police for shelter. He gave his name as Joseph Seignieur, and his age as 18 years. On being asked by a reporter, who happened to be present when he came in, why he was in such a condition, he said that his father was manager in a woollen mill in Campbellford, Ont., and had placed him to work in the mill for his board and a small allowance of pocket money. Not satisfied with this, he made up his mind to try work elsewhere. A little less than two months ago he struck out for better or for worse, and laid his course for Kingston. He remained over one night in the police station. The next day he tried his utmost to procure work in the hosiery mill and the cotton mill, but without success. He then went to Cape Vincent, thence to Watertown, Malone and around to Brockville. But no work turned up. While on his way to Brockville his feet became badly frozen, which laid him up for nearly a week in that town. When able to proceed he started for this city, and arrived here last night. He still has to walk in a limping fashion.

"Where are you going after you leave here?" queried the reporter.

"Straight to my home in Campbellford," he replied; "I have had enough of travelling about."

He is a rather good-looking youth, with an innocent face and manner, although he appears to have suffered great hardship since leaving home.

JOHN McNAUGHTON'S GREAT CLEARING SALE.

Big Bargain Boom in Boots and Shoes.

The clearing sale of the boot and shoe stock is still going on at his store, corner Bethune and Sherbrooke streets. The decided bargains offered are attracting numerous buyers. Those in need of first class boots and shoes for men, women and children should not miss this great sale. The stock must be cleared out, and the prices are made low, very low, for that purpose.

Ontario G. T. R. Divisions.

It is understood that the new general superintendent of the Grand Trunk, Mr. McGuigan, contemplates making some changes in the divisions of the road in Ontario. When the three district superintendents, Messrs. D. Morrice, W. R. Tiffin, and James Webster, met Mr. McGuigan in Montreal this week, a proposed rearrangement of the districts in the different divisions of the road was gone into. The matter was considered for the greater part of the day, and was not concluded when the district superintendents left for home. The proposed new arrangement will probably be definitely made in the course of a few days, however.

Cheap, Efficient, Prompt.

A marvel of cheapness, of efficacy, and promptitude is contained in a bottle of that famous remedy, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It goes right to the root of the trouble, there acts quickly but so painlesaly that nothing is known of its operation until the corn is shelled. Beware of substitutes offered for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor—safe, sure and painless. Sold at druggists.

We thus secure the picked stock of the firms that will make great sacrifices for ready money. Thus we are enabled to sell Clothing to our patrons at prices below the cost of manufacture.

It would be a strange thing if we could not sell cheaper! Ordering goods as we do in tremendous quantities, and taking advantage of manufacturers dull seasons enables ust o undersell, and hardly a day passes without fresh proof of this fact.

IN THE LOCAL HOUSE

Continuation of the Debate on the Budget.

A PATRON BACKS THE GOVERNMENT

Much to the Chagrin of the Opposition Leader, Mr. Marter, Who Makes a Fierce Attack—When the Government House Enquiry Will Make a Report.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—Mr. Marter had but cold comfort yesterday. He grumbled at the policy of the Government, but became positively angry with the Patrons and utilized all his power of invective against Mr. McPherson, who he charged with having betrayed his constituents.

Mr. McPherson took the floor with the avowed purpose of finding fault with the Government policy. He devoted his remarks to reviewing its course regarding agriculture, and finally concluded an hour's speech by stating that Hon. John Dryden was the most capable Minister of Agriculture upon the continent of America, and that his policy was the best that could be framed.

This caused the leader of the Opposition great pain. He charged Mr. McPherson with having betrayed the confidence of those who had elected him. He wanted to know if he had been instructed by the Patrons in caucus to act as their mouthpiece and give their support to the Government. Laughter from all sides of the House was the only answer Mr. Marter received.

Sir Oliver Mowat moved that a select committee of this House be appointed to consider all questions relating to Government House and Government House property, and the further question of the future maintenance or the discontinuance of the maintenance of Government House by the province or otherwise, and to report thereon; and that such committee consist of of the Attorney-Genreal and Messrs. Bronson, Dryden, Ferguson, Haycock, Howland, Macnish, Macpherson, Marter and Whitney.

Mr. Marter said he saw no objection to the motion, but would like to see some provision made that the committee should report this session.

Mr. Haycock moved in amendment that the committee should report on or before March 20 next.

Sir Oliver agreed and the motion carried.

A big batch of private bills was introduced. Among those to which some general interest attaches are the following:

Mr. Paton's bill making municipal by-laws concerning auctioneers' licenses unnecessary, except so far as they fix the fee. Mr. Murtrie wants county councils to have the power to improve roads and highways out of the general expenditure. Mr. Chapple has a bill providing that the cost of fence-viewers' awards shall be charged on the collector's roll against the property affected. Mr. Howland has a bill making good all the transfers of property by married women since 1873, notwithstanding the fact of their husbands not having joined in said transfers.

Mr. Thomas Gibson of East Huron continued the debate on the Budget. He began by explaining some Central Prison expenditures complained of by hon. gentlemen on the opposite side, and proceeded to make a brief comparison between the management of the Ontario Agricultural College and the Experimental Farm at Ottawa. He entered into a mild criticism of the way the Education Department was conducted. He thought the work of the schools should be less on the one hand and more thorough on the other. Referring to the Crown Lands Department, he calculated that from 8 to 11 per cent. of the earnings from the woods and forests alone paid the whole expenses of the department.

Mr. Beatty of Leeds followed. He proceeded at once to deal with the question of timber supply as a source of revenue. He gave some estimates of the timber still standing and figured it out that the same rate of cutting of the past eight years, if carried on for the next six years, would exhaust all the timber of the licensed districts. Even at the department's own approximation of the total timber standing, which he thought was altogether too large, the whole supply would be exausted in 50 years. He complained that considerable tracts of new land had been cut up into townships and sections that were really not worth the cost of survey. He believed in extensive surveys, but thought they should be confined to places where settlement would speedily follow the surveyor.

Mr. D. M. Macpherson of Glengarry (Patron) followed. He proposed at the outset to point out some flaws in the legislation of the province, and to suggest some remedies. The first thing he could find fault with was the material given by the Education Department for the development of the minds of the scholars of the province. There was too much of it, and it was not all well adapted for reception by the minds of the children. But it was with regard to agriculture that he had most to say. Here are some of the figures which he sumbitted to the House. They are interesting. There are 22 millions of acres of land in this province, of which 11 millions are arable. The loss of the average crop value of the past five years was $2.75 per acre, or 300 millions of dollars for all the arable land. The average land value per acre in 1884 was $36; in 1894, $26, a falling of $10 per acre in 10 years, or a total falloff of $100,000,000. The increase of mortgage indebtedness in the past 10 years was $200,000,000; add to this the decrease of farm values in 10 years ($100,000,000) and you have $300,000,000, exactly the amount of the falling off of crop values. He did not blame the Minister of Agriculture for this, but he did think that the Government should adopt some plan whereby the practical results of the combined effects of increased capital, increased labor and increased skill would show in this country. The great difficulty, he declared, was that the question of profitable production was not give sufficient consideration, and he offered his services free, in any capacity, to assist in doing something to gain for it the attention it deserved.

Mr. Marter accused the previous speaker of having failed to point out any of the flaws or weaknesses he started out to show in the Government's actions. Instead, he appeared actually as the apologist of the Government he was elected to oppose. He would like to know if the matter had been brought up in the Patron caucus and if the member from Glengarry had been set up as the mouthpiece of the party. If so, he was glad to know that the mask had fallen off and that the country could see where the Patrons stood.

Mr. Marter proceeded to criticise the expenditures of the province in recent years and suggested some directions in which savings might be made. Don't give away the people's money in useless gratuities. What did A. T. Stuart of Hamilton do for a gratuity? Why was Mr. Houston removed from the library, except to make room for a friend of the Government? Why was Mr. Noxon brought down from Oxford and placed over the Central Prison industry? The commissions since 1871 have cost $96,000. The Fees Commission alone cost $13,000, and yet it has been of so little use that the Government, so far, had taken no notice of it. Greater facilities should be given the Public Accounts Committee to get at the detailed expenditures and so keep a check on those making these expenditures.

The public institutions might be more economically managed. The expenditures on asylums increased from 1872 to 1893 16 1-2 per cent., on the Central Prison 40 per cent., on the Institution for the Blind, 34 1-2 per cent. and on the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb 11 1-2 per cent. The adoption of the system of tendering for supplies would, he declared, mean an annual saving of thousands of dollars. He declared that the province was drawing on its capital at the rate of a million dollars a year, and if a great fire swept over our timber lands, there would be nothing left to stand between the Government and direct taxation. Referring to the Government boast that the annuities were drawing no interest, he gave figures to show that for every dollar borrowed, $2 would be required to make repayment.

Mr. Marter dealt at some length with the alleged surplus, and with some of the assets claimed by the Government, and when he had concluded at 6.20, the House rose.

THE JOCKEY CLUB'S BILL.

It Will Likely Pass With Amendments Inserted as a Compromise.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—(Special)—Ontario horsemen are greatly interested in the bill to incorporate the Canadian Jockey Club, which will be up in committee to-morrow. A large deputation, representing Quebec and Ontario sporting interests is here to promote the measure, which will, among other things, legalize betting on race tracks throughout the Dominion. Among those here are John Davies of Windsor, William Hendrie, sr., of London, William Hendrie, jr., of Hamilton, Robert Davies of Toronto, Dr. Sinclair of Chatham and Adam Beck of London. There is opposition to the scheme from the town of Windsor, where a race track was established last summer, bringing hundreds of American bloods across the river from Detroit. Sol. White, ex-M.L.A., has been sent to oppose the passage of the bill.

With a view to harmonize the different interests likely to be affected, Mr. Sol White and the supporters of the bill had an interview with Mr. Dickey this afternoon. Certain amendments were agreed upon, of a permissive character, by which the provisions of the bill will only apply to those associations which become affiliated with the Jockey Club. The bill now stands a good show of passing the committee.

Chloroformed by Burglars.

Buffalo, Feb. 27.—Burglars entered the house of Henry Kreitner at 623 Carroll-street some time Monday night or early Tuesday morning, and after chloroforming the inmates, carried away $180 cash and diamonds to the value of $250. There is no clue to the thieves.

The Revolution in Nicaragua.

New York, Feb. 25.—The officials of the Central and South American Telegraph Company have received the following despatch about the revolution in Nicaragua from the manager of that company's office at San Juan Del Sur: "Revolution broken out at Leon. Liberals of the Departments of Leon and Chinandega are determined to overthrow President Zelaya. Extent of the movement unknown, but believe to be serious."

To Censure Mr Bayard.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The resolutions censuring Ambassador Bayard for the utterances contained in his late speeches at Edinburgh and Boston, which were adopted several weeks ago by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, were reported to the House this afternoon by Mr. Hitt (Ills.), the chairman of the committee.

WOULD MEAN A ROW

Consequently the Government Caucus Was Called Off.

WHAT M'CARTHY WANTS TO KNOW

About Sir Donald Smith's Mission to Winnipeg—Was He Acting on Behalf of the Federal Government as a Mediator?—Interest in the C.P.R. Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—The situation remains intensely interesting. The anti-Remedial Conservatives are making a stiff fight and are very cocky over it. Things, they say, are coming their way, and they are certain of bringing the Government to terms. They caused a caucus to be summoned for to-morrow, which they desired to hold without the presence of the Ministers. Late this evening strenuous efforts were being made to call it off—the fear was openly expressed that there would be a general row between the Remedialists and the antis, and both sides are in a fighting mood. Then the French-Conservatives declared they would not attend. This is the situation to-night. Sir Charles Tupper is going round with a little red book containing the list of members. In this book Sir Charles has the Remedialists marked in blue pencil and the antis in red, and he never parts with it. He carries it with him everywhere about the House. A letter was received to-night from Archbishop Langevin of St. Boniface, in which His Grace says he accepts the Remedial Bill. Later he hopes to get more, but he accepts the bill as it stands. He also says that Sir Donald Smith came to Winnipeg on an "official" mission, but that he did not accomplish much. In this connection Mr. D'Alton McCarthy to-night gives notice that he will on Monday next inquire of the Government: (1) Was Sir Donald Smith authorized on behalf of the Government to negotiate with the Premier or Administration of the Province of Manitoba with reference to or on the subject of the school law of that province? (2) If yea, has Sir Donald Smith made any report with respect to such negotiations? (3) Or did Sir Donald Smith voluntarily or otherwise undertake to act as mediator between the Government of Canada and the Government of Manitoba or to negotiate with the last-mentioned Government on the subject referred to in the first preceding question? (4) If yea, has Sir Donald Smith made any report in respect of such mediation or negotiation? (5) And what in either of the supposed cases was the substance of Sir Donald Smith's report?

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMONS.

Dr. Weldon Denies That He Had a Quarrel With Sir Charles Tupper.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—(Special.)—In the House this afternoon Dr. Weldon called attention to a statement in The Mail and Empire of yesterday, that there has been a long-standing feud between Sir Charles Tupper and himself. After having read the article, he said: "If there is a long-standing personal quarrel between us, I do not know of it."

Sir Charles Tupper—I am equally ignorant of it.

Mr. Mills—Where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise. (Laughter.)

Mr. Dickey stated in reply to Mr. Choquette that the Government had no knowledge of the letter alleged to have been sent to Sir John Thompson by the Northwest bishops asking if the Northwest Legislature had power to impose Protestant inspectors on Catholic schools and expressing a fear of such a course being carried out.

The Budget debate was resumed by Mr. Stairs, who dealt with the charge of the Liberals that sugar refineries were yielding immense profits at the expense of consumers. He said as a matter of fact, the profit upon actual cost of the Maritime Province refineries was about 6 per cent. This, he held, was certainly not exorbitant. Previous to this the refineries had been run at a loss.

Mr. Fraser (Guysboro), dilated on the evils of protection and the benefits of free trade in England. In his opinion Canada ought to follow England's example.

After recess the debate was continued by Mr. Campbell (Kent), who dealt chiefly with the question of reciprocity.

Mr. Edwards (Russell) spoke chiefly on the question of the export duty on logs and contended that Canadian lumber was not necessary to the United States and that if an export duty was imposed and McKinley duties on Canadian lumber imported into the United States thereby brought into force, it would inflict serious injury on the Dominion.

Mr. McShane (Montreal Centre) entertained the House with a description of the means taken by the Conservatives to defeat him, contending that he was opposed by men who were making fortunes out of the N.P.

After a speech from Mr. Grieve the House adjourned at 12.30.

PATRON CANDIDATES.

Twenty-Five of Them in Caucus—Grand Association Officers

Toronto, Feb. 28.

A caucus of the 25 Patron candidates for the Dominion House was held in Toronto yesterday, and Mr. J. Lockie Wilson was chosen chairman of the campaign organization, which was formed.

The Patron Grand Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Grand President, C. A. Mallory; vice-president, T. O. Currie; Grand Trustees, J. Lockie Wilson, A. Gifford and Fergus Kennedy; Secretary-Treasurer, L.A.Welsh; Grand Sentinel, J. W. Patton; Grand Auditors, William Valens and James Moodie. A resolution in favor of uniform taxation and the abolition of all exemptions was adopted, and it was decided to memorialize the Dominion Government to abolish the deposit required of candidates for the House.

Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1896.

IN regard to the Mail's eulogy of Sir Charles Tupper, in reference to the charge of malversation, "that the war horse is without a blemish" the Hamilton Herald very patly remarks that it must also be put to Sir Charles' credit, that "while he may be without a blemish he is not now without a bank account."

WITH a brand new comet rushing towards the earth at the rate of a million miles a day, the Dominion Government, to parody a suggestion of the Montreal Herald, in view of the results of the bye-elections, may justly claim that something at least is coming their way. But it is not a comet that the Government has most to fear. They are threatened with something far more concrete and dangerous—a Manitoba blizzard.

A TORONTO despatch to a contemporary speaks of the prospective entry of Sir Oliver Mowat into Dominion politics whenever the next general elections take place. If, says the Montreal Witness, Sir Oliver could assist in the establishment of an administration for the Dominion as honest, incorruptible, efficient and economical as that which he has for more than twenty years given Ontario, he would double the debt the Dominion owes him for his already inestimable services in the cause of good government. With Sir Richard Cartwright and Sir Oliver Mowat in a Cabinet, Ontario would be represented by here ablest public men.

THE Montreal Herald of Thursday says: —The appearance in the Herald on Tuesday of an open letter by Robert McConnell, of the Halifax Chronicle, charging Messrs. Weldon, M. P., and Cahan with making statements reflecting upon the honour of Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., is sincerely regretted by the management of the Herald. The gentlemen to whom the communication in question was addressed have specifically denied its allegations and their denials we are bound to and do fully accept. The publication of this letter was, under the circumstances, an error, and unjustifiable, and our apologies for it are due and are hereby tendered to Messrs. Weldon and Cahan, and to Sir Charles Tupper.

THE Montreal Star refers in a complimentary way to Ontario's surplus of over $5,000,000, and contrasts it with Quebec's debt of about $30,000,000 and its Government's search for more ways of levying taxes. It finds that Ontario gets along with $128,900 for legislation, but this item costs Quebec $198,688. Civil government also shows a slight increase for Quebec over Ontario. But when we come to education, Quebec can only afford $379,540 to Ontario's $702,686; while Ontario spends $983,552 for public institutions, charities, and hospitals, in contrast with which Quebec votes $330,438 for "charities, including lunatic asylums." Quebec's total estimate stands at $4,935,449, while Ontario totals only $3,483,365. Ontario is well governed.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease;—rheumatism — consumption — skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

BELMONT

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A sad accident occurred at Rockdale, on Feb. 25th. Little Maggie Deshane, a child fifteen years old, was out in the woods with her brother who was falling trees, and in some way got under a falling tree, and one of the limbs hit her on the neck and rendered her unconscious. Her brother ran for assistance and when they arrived they had great difficulty in raising the tree off the child. She was carried to the house and Dr. Jeff, of Havelock, was summoned, but he entertained small hopes of her recovery and on Wednesday night, Feb. 26th, the child died.

Little Maggie was an intelligent child who attended the Rockdale school where she will be much missed by her companions. The sympathy of the whole township is extended to the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

Mr. Ira Brown, a former resident of Rockdale favoured his old home with a visit last week. His many friends were pleased to see him back again. He is a pastor in the Free Methodist church, and is stationed near Kingston. He favoured us with a number of eloquent sermons at Victoria church while he was with us.

The Free Methodists are still holding their revival services at Victoria, and they are quite successful.

Rumour is afloat that Miss Anderson, the esteemed teacher of Preneveau school, will resign the 1st of May. She will be very much missed by the young people of that locality. Miss Anderson will begin a course in law at Toronto next summer. We wish her the greatest success.

Miss Hannah Young of Rockdale, attended the convention at Belleville last week.

REVOLUTION MAY SPREAD.

The Nicaragua Flame Will Probably Reach Over All Central America—Guatemala is Ripe for Trouble.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 27.—There are signs that the revolution in Northern Nicaragua may spread all over Central America. It has a distinctly religious cast and the Leonites can count on the aid of the clergy not only in this republic, but in the four other republics as well. The clericals fear the growing popularity of the United States in Latin America, and also fear American control of the canal. The growth of American ideas here is regarded as tending to extend liberalism, which the clergy desire to stamp out.

The New York priests whom Zelaya banished are said to be fanning the flames of the revolution. The Liberals have no confidence in the ostentatious display of sympathy for Zelaya by leading Conservatives in this city. It is believed that it is only a device to lull apprehensions and give the revolution time to grow. President Zelaya cannot hope for aid from the Conservatives, the richest, most influential people in the country. It is now known that some of the leading military officers adhere to that party. Conservatives leaders have been growing suspicious of Zelaya, whose desire to assume a dictatorship has been apparent, although denied by his friends.

All the influence of the highest social classes is thrown against Zelaya, whose attitude against the clergy has incensed them. It is openly asserted that the clerical party throughout Central America expects to gain control of all the Governments and restore the ancient privileges of the church. Guatemala is ripe for revolution, owing to the deep-seated dissatisfaction of the people with the military rule of Barrios, whose humble extraction and record for cruelty have turned the upper class against him.

President Bonilla in Honduras, is showing liberal tendencies. He would be likely to give more power to Congress and to become merely the executive, but his party (Clerical), insists on his retaining supreme dictatorial powers. Zelaya is exceedingly apprehensive, as the revolution in Nicaragua shows every sign of increasing strength. President Cutierrez, in Salvador, has just reorganized the military department on the Guatemalan frontier, and is prepared for any trouble.

THE IMMIGRATION CONVENTION.

Three Hundred Delegates in Attendance at Winnipeg—Several Papers Read.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 27.—(Special)—About three hundred delegates and as many other citizens attended the immigration convention to-day, which was opened by addresses of welcome by Lieut.-Governor Patterson on behalf of the province, and Mayor Jameson on behalf of the city. Speeches were made on a variety of topics bearing on the main question of immigration. Most prominent of these were Premier Greenway's on "Manitoba as a Field for Immigration"; Hon. T. M. Daly, Minister of the Interior, on "The Most desirable classes and best means of attracting them," and D. R. McGinnis, secretary of the Northwest Immigration Association, St. Paul, on "Methods and results of efforts in the Western States." Full reports of the proceedings will be published in pamphlet form and circulated as immigration literature. The convention continues to-morrow.

THE PIONEER

A SIMCOE COUNTY MAN WHO HAS AN INTERESTING HISTORY.

At 263 McCaul st., in this city, lives Mr. Samuel Kilgore, a vigorous specimen of those sturdy pioneers to whom the rapid development of this Province is mainly due. Mr. Kilgore relates, with pride, how he cleared the land on which Judge Gowan (now Senator Gowan), had his house built, and how himself and that honorable gentleman together laid the corner stone and deposited a box with various coins, etc., within the corner stone at the time. With his own hands also he cleared the land on which stands the Barrie High School, which numbers among its ex-pupils such names as Wm. Lount, Q.C., and D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C. Mr. Kilgore has served as reeve and councillor also in the township, and his sterling integrity and sound judgment give great force to his words. A few words from him will be sure to be of interest. Mr. Kilgore says:

"The dull aching pains around my loins and in the small of my back indicated to me several years ago that my kidneys were affected. I had to get up frequently at night and my rest was broken accordingly. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Gilpin's drug store some time ago, and they did wonders for me. They gave me relief almost immediately. The annoying pains around my back fled. The trouble in urinating was felt no more. My stomach, though foul, became sweet, and my whole system became so regulated that I looked back, with pleasure, to my boyhood days when pains and aches were unknown to me. I am now over seventy-three years of age, and Doan's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful medicine I ever took. After having given them a fair trial I can heartily recommend them to any one with kidney or stomach troubles."

Mr. Mulock's Bill to Reduce the Legal Interest Fails.

BANKERS AND TRADERS OPPOSED

It Was Claimed That There Was No General Demand for Such Legislation in Canada—A Resolution to Compromise at Five Per Cent. Was Lost.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—(Special)—There was an interesting session of the Banking Committee this morning, when Mr. Mulock's bill on interest was considered. The bill provides that when interest is payable by the agreement of parties or by law, and no rate is fixed by such agreement, or by law, the legal rate shall be 4 per cent. per annum. Letters were read from the Council of the Montreal Board of Trade from the Ottawa Board of Trade and from the Winnipeg Board of Trade, protesting in each case against lowering of the rate of interest from 6 to 4 per cent., as detrimental to the best interests of the Dominion commerce.

Mr. Z. A. Lash, on behalf of the Toronto bankers, was heard on the question, and added reasons why the reduction should not be allowed.

Mr. B. E. Walker of Toronto was also heard. There was no general demand, he said, for the present legislation. It was a mistaken conception of the case that bankers wanted to get in as large a rate of interest as possible. This argument was not founded on truth, for among those acquainted with the business it was acknowledged that such cannot be done. There was a natural rate of interest and attempts have been made for a thousand years to fix one, but never with the slightest degree of success. By referring to the United States system he showed how undesirable the change would be in view of the experience in that country. On the $30,000,000 loaned by the Bank of Commerce, which he represented, to farmers and solid business men of the Dominion, the rate was, as a rule, 6 per cent. The average of all its transactions was 6 1-4 per cent.

Mr. D. R. Wilkie of the Imperial Bank opposed the bill on behalf of the Toronto Board of Trade.

Mr. Foster said that when the bill was before the House he had expressed the opinion that it might be well to consider the measure in committee. Having listened to the discussion which had taken place and heard the views of the gentlemen who had spoken, he had come to the conclusion that the earning power of money was about as represented by the current rate of interest, and under these circumstances he did not think it would be well to make any change.

Mr. Mulock and other gentlemen having addressed the committee, Mr. Wallace moved, seconded by Mr. McGillivray, that the rate of interest be 5 per cent. On division this amendment was negatived by 31 yeas to 13 nays. The bill was then thrown out.

THE REFORMERS OF OXFORD.

Mr. S. H. Janes Will Support the Candidature of Sir Richard Cartwright.

Ingersoll, Feb. 27.—The South Riding of Oxford Reform Association held their annual meeting at Mount Elgin to-day. The meeting was a fair representation of the Reform party in the riding. Sir Richard Cartwright was present and addressed the convention on the questions that are now prominently before the country, and the stand he and the party have taken in regard to them. Mr. S. H. Janes, who opposed Sir Richard for the nomination at the recent convention held for that purpose was also in attendance and addressed the convention, giving his aquiescence in the nomination made, and assuring the constituency that his hearty suport would be given to the candidate chosen by the party.

Andrew Dunn of the Township of North Oxford was elected president of the association; J. E. Fergusson of Ingersoll, vice-president; and W. H. Hare of Tilsonburg secretary-treasurer. Besides the gentlemen above refererd to, addresses were also delivered by Messrs. Dowler of Tilsonburg, Schell of East Oxford and Mr. Andrew Pattullo of Woodstock.

During the meeting a resolution was unanimously carried disapproving of the Remedial Bill now before the House, and heartily approving of the policy of Mr. Laurier in dealing with this measure.

BAD NEWS FROM AUSTRALIA.

The People are Dying From Heat—How Two Hundred Miners Starved to Death—Destitution is Terrible.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 27.—The steamship Miowera has arrived from Australian ports. Mail advices are to the effect that besides terrible storms and awful destruction to marine property along the Australian coast, the weather on land has been unprecedentedly hot and the death rate from sunstroke excessively high. In a great many sections the crops are ruined. In Queensland 112 in the shade is the recorded temperature, and in many places in Australia the thermometer reached 125 in the shade. Startling statistics are to hand of death from heat.

On one day previous to the sailing of the Miowera 30 people were interred at Sydney. So great was the demand for graves that managers of cemeteries had to engage a number of assistants. Nearly all those who succumbed were infants and aged people. In the crowded commercial centres citizens are walking the streets all night. There is a mad rush from the city to the country. Records are coming in from north, east, south and west of the terrible heat. Sheep and cattle are dying in droves for want of fodder and water. In Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria the heat has never been so excessive. Men, women, children and horses drop down in the street and die before assistance can reach them. To add to the distress, scarlet fever and other epidemics prevail in many localities.

The newspaper columns are crowded with the reports of the rush from the gold fields of Coolgardie, which during the past six months have claimed upwards of 200 victims by starvation or water famine. So many of the gold seekers have found death instead of fortune that a panic among the prospectors has resulted, and every mode of conveyance is now called into requisition to transport from Western Australia those who a few months ago were mad to reach there.

A party of Newcastle miners who have returned to Sydney report hundreds of men starving at Perth and unable to raise money to get back to Sydney. At Kalgourlich terrible destitution prevails, and the road leading from that place back to civilization is strewn with skeletons and marked with the graves of those who have perished in their desperation to reach the nearest station.

EVA WRITES TO THE ARMY.

The Temporary Commander Says Her Heart is Broken Over the Retirement of Ballington Booth.

New York, Feb. 27.—Commander Eva Booth to-day issued a circular, which was sent broadcast among the field officers of the Salvation Army, in it she says in part:

"Now that the General has appointed me to the command of the United States, until the arrival of the new commissioner, I hasten to place myself in your hands in this season of deep and heart-rending sorrow, to be of what service God can enable me to push forward the salvation of souls. It has given me untold comfort in this terrible storm to receive assurances of loyalty from the brigadier divisional and field staff. Every hour brings us from all parts of the field testimonies of the sorrow felt on the one hand, and unswerving loyalty on the other. I will, therefore, confine my first letter to you to expressing a few heartfelt feelings suggested by the circumstances of the hour:

"Do not be influenced to a final decision on the whole case until the General's return to England, when he will decide upon the issues involved.

"Be true to your pledges. Stand by the Army. Be careful to avoid encouraging any party or personal feelings.

"Have faith in God. Give me your trust. I am alone. My heart is broken. Rely upon me as your sister and comrade in this holy war for God, America and the world."

HYDROPHOBIA MEANS DEATH.

A Young Girl Suffering From the Terrible Aftermath of a Dog's Bite.

Brown City., Mich, Feb. 27.—Ida, the young daughter of Fred. Lotz, a farmer living near here, is suffering from hydrophobia and her death is a question of a few hours.

Some time ago the girl was bitten by a savage dog, owned by a neighbor named Regan. The wound healed and nothing serious was thought of it until Monday of this week, when symptoms of hydrophobia began to be manifested. The girl became violent yesterday and to-day her attendants were obliged to strap her down on the bed. There is no hope for her recovery.

Saved From the Wreck.

New York, Feb. 27.—The steamer Algonquin, which arrived to-day from Jacksonville, brought in the crew of the schooner Harriet C. Kerlin, Capt. Thomas Dutch, which sailed from Savannah, Feb. 12, for Baltomore, and was wrecked in a terrific hurricane off Cape Hatteras.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

DOESN'T ENGLAND WANT CANADA?

Sir Montgomery Moore Makes a Rather Remarkable Statement in Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 27.—(Special)—Sir Montgomery Moore, in speaking of the troubles between England and the United States, made to-day quite a remarkable statement: "No doubt Canada will be more or less of a temptation to the United States, but so long as Canada desires to retain British connection, so long can she count upon the whole of the power of England to defend her. If, on the other hand, Canada should deliberately decide to either be annexed or to set up independent housekeeping, there would not be a shot fired by England to prevent her working out her destiny according to her own desires. That is the feeling in England now."

ADOPTED CHAMBERLAIN'S IDEA.

The Imperial Government Will Take Fridays to Consider Estimates.

London, Feb. 27.—The House of Commons adopted the proposal made some days ago by Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, to so alter the procedure of the House that Fridays, heretofore devoted to the discussion of the private members' bills, should be henceforth devoted to the discussion of the Government estimates. This is a drastic alteration in the procedure, involving a time limit for the discussion of the estimates. The proposal had its origin in an article written a few years ago for The Nineteenth Century by Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, now Secretary of State for the Colonies, entitled "Shall We Americanize Our Institutions?"

THEY COUNT BY THE SCORE
Yea, By the Hundreds, Those Who Have Been Cured of Dire Disease By South American Nervine.
A Remedy Widespread and Universal in Its Application.
Where Other Medicines Have Failed and Doctors Have Pronounced the Cases Beyond Cure, This Great Discovery Has Proven a Genuine Elixir of Life.
The Same Verdict Comes From Old and Young, Male and Female, Rich and Poor, and From All Corners of the Dominion.

If it is the case that he who makes two blades of grass grow where only one had grown before is a benefactor of the race, what is the position to be accorded that man who by his knowledge of the laws of life and health gives energy and strength where languor, weakness and anticipation of an early death had before prevailed? Is not he also a public benefactor? Let those who have been down and are now up through the use of South American Nervine give their opinions on this subject. John Boyer, banker, of Kincardine, Ont., had made himself a hopeless invalid through years of overwork. At least he felt his case was hopeless, for the best physicians had failed to do him good. He tried Nervine, and these are his words: "I gladly say it: Nervine cured me and I am to-day as strong and well as ever." Samuel Elyea, of Meaford, was cured of neuralgia of the stomach and bowels by three bottles of this medicine. Jas. Sherwood, of Windsor, at 70 years of age, suffered from an attack of paralysis. His life, at that age, was despaired of. But four bottles of Nervine gave him back his natural strength. A victim of indigestion, W. F. Bolger, of Renfrew, says: "Nervine cured me of my suffering, which seemed incurable, and had baffled all former methods and efforts." Peter Esson, of Paisley, lost flesh and rarely had a good night's sleep, because of stomach trouble. He says: "Nervine stopped the agonizing pains in my stomach the first day I used it. I have now taken two bottles and I feel entirely relieved and can sleep like a top." A representative farmer, of Western Ontario, is Mr. C. J. Curtis, residing near Windsor. His health was seemingly completely destroyed through la grippe. No medicine did him any good. "To three bottles of Nervine," he says, "I attribute my restoration to health and strength." Neither man or woman can enjoy life when troubled with liver complaint. This was the sentiment and feeling of W. J. Hill, the well-known bailiff of Bracebridge. "I was so bad," says he, "that one of my medical attendants said that I was dying, but, thank God, I am not dead yet. From the first few doses I took of Nervine I commenced to feel better, and am to-day restored completely to my usual health." A resident of the Maritime Provinces, in the person of S. Jones, of Sussex, N.B., says: "For twelve years I was a martyr to indigestion, constipation and headache. The treatment of several physicians did not help me. I have taken a few bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say that I am a new man."

A shrewd observer of human nature has said: "The hand that rocks the cradle moves the world." How important it is, then, that health and strength should be made the lot of the mothers of this country. The women of Canada are ready by scores to tell of the benefits that have come to them through the use of South American Nervine. Mrs. R. Armstrong, of Orillia, wife of the colporteur, of the Bible Society of that town, suffered for six years from nervous prostration. Medical assistance did not help. "In all," she says, "I have taken six bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say this is the one medicine that has effected a cure in my case." Mrs. John Dinwoody has been for 40 years a resident of Flesherton, and has reached the allotted three-score years and ten. Three years ago her system sustained a severe shock through the death of a daughter. Nervine was recommended. She perseveringly took 12 bottles of medicine, with the result that she is to-day again strong and hearty. Hundreds of women suffer from impoverished blood and weakened nerves. "All vitality," says Mrs. J. Fallis, of Brampton, "seemed to have forsaken my system. I was unable to get relief from any source until I commenced taking South American Nervine. The results are most satisfactory—greater far than I could have hoped for." It came within the way of Mrs. H. Stapleton, of Wingham, to treat under the best physicians, both in Canada and England, for heart disease and nervous debility, but she failed to get any relief. "I was advised," she says, "to take South American Nervine, and must say I do believe that if I had not done so I would not be alive to-day."

Newspaper space is too valuable to permit of further additions to these earnest words of testimony from those who know just what they are talking about. In the common language of the day, they have been there, and are speaking from the heart. The dozen or more witnesses that here speak have their counterparts by the hundreds, not only in the province of Ontario, but in every other section of the Dominion. South American Nervine is based on a scientific principle that makes a cure a certainty, no matter how desperate the case may be. It strikes at the nerve centers from which flows the life blood of the whole system. It is not a medicine of patchwork, but is complete and comprehensive in its application.

A Lecture by Rev. Mr. Symonds.

A strong committee of ladies, representing all the church denominations, have undertaken to dispose of tickets for a lecture, which they have requested Rev. Mr. Symonds to deliver on the subject, "Martin Luther and the German Reformation." He has consented, and the lecture will be given in St. Paul's church, on Monday evening March 23rd. His well-known ability to deal with the subject in a most interesting and instructive manner, guarantees a large attendance. A choir, formed of members of the different town choirs will furnish music and will render some of Luther's hymns. Mr. A. C. McCallum is preparing a series of maps to illustrate the lecture. The tickets have been placed at 25cts each. The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to some object of which Mr. Symond approves. Apart from the great treat the lecture assures, the spirit of Christian unity the occasion involves, is one that all are sure to sympathize with. Rev. Dr. Torrance will occupy the chair.

57TH BATTALION.

The Annual Meeting of the Officers held Last Evening.

At the annual meeting of the officers of the 57th Battalion of Peterborough Rangers last night, a number of communications were received from outside regiments enquiring as to the acceptability of their presence here on the 24th of May.

The annual reports were received from the different committees and found to be most satisfactory, as was the condition of the books of the Adjutant.

The question of illuminating the shed and the officers' quarters by electricity instead of gas, was considered in detail, and the change will probably be made.

The Adjutant is the permanent secretary-treasurer of the Battalion, and the following committees have been appointed for the year:

Regimental Committee—Capts. Mason, Miller and Hill.

Band Company—Major Langford, Capt. Lech and Lieut. Mills.

Mess Committee — Surgeon Halliday, Major Langford, Capt. Mason and Capt. Hayes.

Rifle Committee—Major Edwards and the Captains of the six Companies.

The standing of the different companies in the competition for the Regimental cup is made up as follows, showing "E" company, Capt. Miller commanding, as the winners:

Echoes From the Toronto Millinery Openings.

DR. YELLAND'S FUNERAL.

It was Attended by the Most Representative Citizens of the Town and Country.

The last obsequies attendant upon the death of the late Dr. A. E. Yelland took place this afternoon, when his funeral was held from his residence on George street to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The services were conducted at the house by Rev. H. Symonds, of St. Luke's church and ministers of all other denominations in town were in attendance.

The pall bearers were Dr. McGrath, Dr. Caldwell, Dr. Greer, Dr. Moher, Dr. Scott and Dr. Carmichael, and the cortege was probably the largest which has followed the remains of a Peterborough citizen to the cemetery, and during the day hundreds took occasion to visit the late residence of the deceased and pay a last mark of respect to the remains of one who was so universally respected and beloved among the citizens in general. As the cortege proceed slowly down George street the sidewalks were lined with citizens, who uncovered as the hearse passed by, and the blinds on the shop windows were drawn.

The order in which the funeral procession was formed was as follows:

Rev. H. Symonds.
Pall Bearers.
Hearse.
Chief Mourners.
Members of Town Council, and Town Officials.
Members of Police Force.
Membe s of Fire Brigade.
Private Citizens.

The hearse had arrived at the cemetery before the funeral had been entirely formed and had left the late residence of the deceased. It is estimated that it was over three miles in length.

Amongst those from a distance who were in attendance were Mr. Herbert Bell and Mr. Charles McKee, who are attending University in Toronto; Dr. Bradd, of Omemee; Mr. Bradburn, Omemee; Rev. Mr. Roberts, of Belleville, and Dr. Couch, of Warsaw, as well as a number of others.

There were 268 carriages in the funeral procession of Dr. Yelland this afternoon, the largest procession, an old resident says, he ever saw in town.

The floral tributes were most magnificent and profuse, a number of tables being covered with the wreaths, crosses and anchors which were sent with the most heartfelt sympathy of the donors for the bereaved widow.

Amongst the emblems sent were those of the town council, the Masonic fraternity, the attending physicians, Drs. McGrath, Caldwell, Scott, Greer and Carmichael; the Peterborough Fire Brigade; Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters; Mrs. O'Donovan and staff of the Nicholls Hospital; Dr. U. M. Stanley, chairman of the Medical Board, and Mr. Thos. White, High Secretary of the Canadian Order of Foresters, and the Nicholls Hospital. Besides the tributes enumerated a large number were also received from the personal friends of the deceased.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. YELLAND.

A Special Meeting Last Night—A Resolution of Condolence — The Council to Attend the Funeral in a Body—A Graceful Tribute to the Departed Physician.

A special meeting of the town council was held last night, when there were present Councillors Best, W. White, Hughes, Denne, Mills, Weir, Graham and J. White.

Upon a motion of Mr. Moore and Mr. Graham, the chair was taken by Mr. Best. The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

Councillor Best upon taking the chair briefly stated the sad reason for the calling of the meeting. He referred to the widely lamented death of a dutiful town official, the late town physician, Dr. A. E. Yelland. He felt sure that every member of the council felt the loss of one of the rising professional men of the town deeply.

Mr. Moore, before moving the resolution which he had in his hand, wished to place on record the high esteem in which the late town physician was held in the town. Here was a young man of great promise and marked ability cut off in the prime of life. It was a reversal of the old proverb, "The old are taken and the young left." This time it was the old that were left. Dr. Yelland, in his office of town physician, had given every satisfaction, and this was only a repetition of what the general community had received at his hands. As a mark of respect to the deceased gentleman and to show our sympathy with the family, he presented the following resolution:

Moved by Mr. Moore and seconded by Mr. Denne and

Resolved,—That the Council of the Town of Peterborough, at this special meeting convened for the purpose, do give expression to their sincere sorrow upon the death of Dr. Albert E. Yelland, Town Physician, and a son of our present Mayor, and extend to his widow and father the Council's deepest sympathy in this their hour of grief and sorrow by this most sad affliction.

That the members of the Council avail themselves of this opportunity to place on record an acknowledgment of the conspicuous abilities of Dr. Yelland and of the eminently satisfactory manner in which he discharged his duties to the town.

That, as a mark of respect, this Council attend the funeral in a body.

That this resolution be inscribed on the minutes of the Council and copies sent to Dr. Yelland's widow and father.

Before the resolution was put to vote Mr. Hughes stated that it was with the deepest regret that the people of the town heard of the death of Dr. Yelland. He could hardly realize it on account of the suddeness with which it came. Hardly a week ago the doctor had been driving around town. The council regretted it more deeply because he was a worthy official and a son of our esteemed Mayor. He sympathized greatly with the widow and family.

Mr. Weir, in endorsing the sentiments of the previous speakers, said that he knew the doctor personally and considered him a model young man.

The resolution was unanimously carried by a standing vote.

The council then adjourned and will meet this afternoon at 2.15 o'clock to attend the funeral in a body.

Dry Goods and Carpet Stores.

Owing to the quantity of ice formed on the roof, the water caused by the thaw poured in on Sunday afternoon and evening and before it was noticed several thousand dollars worth of goods were soaked through with water. The damaged goods were spread out over the store to dry. This means a loss to us as our insurance does not cover any damage by water.

ON TUESDAY MORNING

WE WILL COMMENCE

A Great Clearing Sale of Damaged Goods.

These Goods consist of LADIES' COTTON NIGHT GOWNS, LADIES' COTTON BLOUSES, LADIES' UNDERWEAR, WHITE QUILTS, TABLE LINEN, WHITE COTTONS, CRETONNES, SHIRTINGS, FLANNELS and TOWELS, CARPETS, CRUMB CLOTHS, MATS, RUGS, RUG FRINGES, OIL CLOTHS.

It's a poor Wind that blows Nobody good.

This sale will afford an opportunity to our customers to get Goods, (none the worse by being wet), at prices lower than the goods were made for.

As the Damaged Goods were mostly all New Spring Stock, the advantages of this sale are thereby greater in the favour of the buyer.

Everyone should see our Display of New Spring Dress Goods, Black Sicilians and Crepons, Print Wrappers and Ladies' Underwear.

It is a strange fact that the human mind has always held to the immortality of the soul and yet it has always doubted it. Were the belief not true, the doubt would long since have vanquished it, for nothing but truth can endure constant questioning.

Rev. Father Scollard's Departure.

Rev. Father Scollard's popularity entailed upon him considerable difficulty in leaving town. He was unable to escape several deputations armed with addresses and presents and to the very last moment the members of his congregation stayed by him. Last evening at the G. T. R. station several hundred members of the congregation of St. Peter's assembled to wish the reverend gentlemen farewell and God speed on his journey.

Fire at Bobcaygeon.

About three o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the rear of P. Halloran's tailor shop, in the northern quarter of the village. Being a frame structure, the flames spread rapidly, and before the fire company had succeeded in getting the fire engine in position, the furniture warerooom of Mr. Geo. Byng, adjoining the tailor shop, was also beyond hope of saving. The firemen confined their efforts to saving the large brick block on the south side of the burning buildings and were, fortunately, successful.

PENDING PROVINCIAL LEGISLATION.

Bills of Public Interest Introduced into the Legislature.

On Wednesday the following bills, whose provisions are briefly described, were introduced:

IN THE MATTER OF MILL DAMS.

Mr. Stratton introduced a bill to amend the Act respecting mills and mill dams. It provides that the apron now required by law to be constructed in dams on streams down which lumber is brought, or in which salmon or pickerel abound, shall be eight feet wide, by an inclined plane of twelve feet to perpendicular of six feet, instead of as formerly, eighteen feet wide by an inclined plane of twenty-four feet eight inches to a a perpendicular of six feet. The Act further repeals the special provision contained in section 13 of the Amended Acts as to the construction of aprons in dams on the Otonabee river.

AMENDING THE ASSESSMENT ACT.

A bill by Mr. Gibson (Huron) proposes to amend the form of the oath to be made by the assessor at the end of his roll, and requires him to swear that he has assessed real property at its actual cash value as it would be appraised as payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, except as to lawns and farm lands in cities towns and villages, for the assessment of which special provision is made in the Assessment Act. It also repeals the provision made in section 28, enabling the council by bylaw to enact that lawns, paddocks, etc., shall be assessed like other ground.

REDUCING REPRESENTATION.

A bill to amend the Municipal Act, by Mr. Hobbs, provides that in case a Council of any city having a population of 30,000, or over, not exceeding 80,000, shall pass a by-law affirming the expediency of a new division of the city into wards, reducing the number of wards by at least one third, the Lieutenant-Governor may, by proclamation, so divide the city, and afterwards four aldermen are to be elected for each ward. The term of office in the class of cities mentioned is extended to two years, two aldermen for each ward retiring annually. The Act further provides for the redivision by the Council upon the petition of 300 freeholders, the new division to be based as far as possible upon the assessed value, population, and territorial extent, and in all cases where the new division is to reduce the number of wards by one-third or more, four aldermen are to be elected for each ward in the manner provided in the preceding clauses of the Act. If the Council neglects or refuses to make a sub-division according to the petition, a commission is to deal with the matter.

WEDDING AT DOURO.

Miss Emma E. Abbot, of Douro, and Mr. Wm. J. Blezard, of Otonabee, United in Marriage.

One of these interesting events which are looked forward to in the list of social happenings took place at the residence of Mr. Wm. Abbott, of Douro, on Wednesday evening last, being the occasion of the marriage of his youngest daughter, Emma E., to Mr. Wm. J. Blezard, son of Mr. Wm. Blezard, of Otonabee, and nephew of Mr. Thomas Blezard, M. P. P., for East Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Limbert. The bride, who was attired in a handsome cream costume with pearl trimmings, was assisted by Miss Mabel Cox, who was also gowned most becomingly. Mr. Jas. Moore, of Otonabee, acted as groomsman.

After the ceremony had been performed the assembled guests, to the number of about forty, repaired to the dining room, where they all partook of a recherche wedding supper. The rest of the evening was spent in games and in a social manner.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome and valuable wedding presents, testifying to the esteem in which she was held by her large circle of friends. The happy couple will start out in their married life followed by the best wishes for their future happiness and prosperity of a large number of friends.

WINTER VISITORS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,--Avignoramus was correct when he styled the (Bohemian Waxwing, Ampelis Garrulus) "a visitor." This bird which is doubtless the one referred to, as a crest was part of the description, is looked upon as a visitor throughout New England and the other Atlantic States as far as Philadelphia; also at Kansas and the Colorado valley, latitude 35 degrees, throughout our own province also.

I could give a lengthy description, but do not wish to intrude upon your kindness and columns too much.

The length of this bird is 8½ inches, extent 15 inches, the general colour cinerous drab; white bands upon wings; feathers of the crown elongated forming a crest nearly 1½ inches in length; black chin, also a black streak along from bill to the eye; undertail coverts, cinamon. Call at 176 Harvey street and see a fine specimen.

Join the Bug Society. We are glad you are interested. Thanking you Mr. Editor, I remain

Yours truly,

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION OF OPINION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,--In THE EXAMINER, issue of the 27th inst., "Avignoramus" makes enquiries respecting the species of two strange birds recently observed in town. Though the description is too vague to permit of definite identification, I will attempt an answer, not, however, without protesting most strongly against the opprobrious epithets applied to our learned society by certain frivolous persons. For the information of all such, permit me to say, Mr. Editor, that our organization is named the Peterborough Natural History Society, and further, that it is composed of ladies and gentlemen whose learning and enthusiasm in the pursuit of natural history entitle them to the respect of the community. "Grub Society," indeed!

But to return to the matter in hand. We have in Ontario nine species of woodpecker:--(1) The hairy woodpecker (dryobates villosus); (2) the downy woodpecker (dryobates pubescens); (3) the Arctic three-toed woodpecker (picoides Arcticus); (4) the American three-toed woodpecker (picoides Americanus); (5) the yellow-billed sapsucker (sphyrapæus varius); (6) the pileated woodpecker (ceophlœus pileatus); (7) the red-headed woodpecker (melanerpes erythrocephalus); (8) the red-bellied woodpecker (melanerpes Carolinus); and (9) the highhold r (colaptus auratus). Of these, Nos. 5, 7, 8 and 9 migrate in the fall and do not return until spring; Nos. 3 and 4 are far northern species, visiting Ontario only occasionally in the winter; and Nos. 1, 2 and 6 only are winter residents. With the exception of the highholder, who is now making his annual tour south, the colours of the woodpecker family are black and white, variegated in some species by red markings, on the crest wings or breast. These facts make it impossible that the birds referred to by your correspondent could have belonged to this group.

Beside the members of the order Pici, our chief winter residents are the grouses, the snowbird, the horned lark, the house sparrow, the robin (in some localities), the chickadee, the crow (in some localities), the owls, the blue jay and the gray jay. None of these, however, with, perhaps, the exception of the jays, taliy, even remotely, with the specimens described in Avignoramus' letter. The colours of the blue jay are too marked and distinct to be mistaken, by even a casual observer, for dove-colour. The gray jay corresponds well with the description in all points except length of bill. Below is given a brief description of this bird, for the benefit of those wishing to make comparisons.

Our few winter visitors all come to us from the north--some from the dreary wastes of the Arctic regions. These wanderers, for some unaccountable reason, make occasional visits, singly or in flocks, to Southern Ontario, appearing suddenly and unexpectedly in mid-winter, and disappearing as mysteriously as they came. Indeed, so erratic are their movements, and so infrequent are their visits, that the advent of any of them to our southern town, is hailed by the ornithologists as a rare opportunity. To aid any so fortunate as to meet any of this class, I give them their names, with a short discription of the more striking among them.

The Bohemian waxwing, (ampelus garulus).--general colour:--A soft, silky, ashy brown, head-crested, and shaded with purplish cinnamon; wings barred with white; tail tipped with red or yellow; bill rather stout, and hooked; length 7 to 8 in; habitat, north to the fur coutry.

Cedar waxwing, (ampelus cedorum).--Discription as for garrulus, distinguished by being smaller in size, and absence of wing-bars, and coloring on tips of tail-feathers; more common, frequenting orchards in spring; length 7 to 7½ in.

Northern shrike, (serinus borealis).--Colour,--clear bluish ash above, white beneath: black bar on side of head; wings and tail black, the former with two white patches; bill rather stout and hooked; habitat, north among the pineries, south to great lakes in winter: food, frog, birds etc: length, 9 to 10 in.

American crossbill (soxia curvirostra minor).--Color,--brick-red; wings blackish; length 6 inches; habitat, northern Canada, sparingly south; easily recognised by its bill, the parts of which are crossed at the tips; length 6 in; eggs laid and young hatched during winter; resembles the next, but is smaller; no crest.

Pine grosbeak (pinicola enucleator).--Male:--Carmine red, whitish beneath, wings and tail dusk streaked with white; beak large, compressed and hooked at the point; no crest. Female and young ashy gray in colour above, paler beneath.

Habitat, far north among the pineries, straying south in winter to southern Ontario; length, 8 to 9 inches.

Evening grosbeak (coccothraustes vespertina).--Colour, dark olive, marked on the head and under the tail, coverts with yellow; crown wings, and tail black; beak of immense size (¾ in. long and nearly as thick); habitat, western N. A., causally coming east to Ontario in winter; very rare and much prized by collectors; length, 8 inches.

White-winged crossbill (soxia leucoptera).--Wings in both sexes barred with white. Male, rosy-red; female, brownish olive, marked with black, rump saffron colour; mandible hooked, and crossing the maxilla at the point. Habitat, far north, but straying south in the winter; length, 6 inches.

Lapland longspur (calcarius lappanicus).--Colour, head, black with white streak on the side, neck circled by a chestnut collar; upper part of body black, streaked with white, lower parts white speckled with black; beak, moderate, straight; hind toe very long; habitat, Artic America, appearing irregularly as far south as Ontario in winter; length 6 to 7 inches. A very handsome bird.

The Redpolls (genus Acanthis.) There are four American species belonging to this group, all having their homes amid the snows of the Arctic regions, and all paying irregular winter visits which extend as far south as the Great Lakes. They are medium sized birds, rather smaller than the common house sparrow, and resembling that bird somewhat in general contour but not in colour. All are more black above, more or less mottled or streaked with white; beneath, the colour is white or yellow. The distinguishing feature which gives the group its generic name is a red patch on the crown. The four species are: The Greenland redpoll (æanthis hornemanni), hoary redpoll (æanthis hornemanni exilipes), the redpoll (æanthis sinaria), and Holboel's redpoll (æanthis sinaria Holboellii.)

The above, together with the pine siskin, who visits us occasionally include the more important of our avian winter guests.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for the space allowed me in your valuable paper, I will conclude with a short description of the Canadian jay.

The grey jay--whiskey jack--(perisorens Canadensis.) Upper parts dull leaden gray, varying to slate colour; lower parts yellowish white; neck with grayish white band; head crested, coloured as on back; length 10 to 11 inches (slightly smaller than blue jay); habitat northern Ontario, rarer in southern part; food, fruit, eggs, young birds, offal, etc.; note, a hoarse croak. This species is an accomplished thief, watching his opportunity for hours, and when it comes darting stealthily upon the nest of some neighbour, in the absence of the owner, and greedily devouring the eggs or young birds, after which he retires to the fastness of some spruce or cedar, and utters his horse gloating cry as if in mockery. During the stress of winter the bird becomes quite tame, visiting the lumbermen's camps to pick up the offal thrown away, sometimes even venturing upon the table if the door is left open.

Yours sincerely,
PERISORENS.

Nervous Prostration.

Cured effectually by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

His heart was affected.

"Overwork as a student at college brought on an attack of nervous prostration," says Mr. Gilbert, a railway missionary. "I was exceedingly nervous and if I exerted myself my heart commenced to flutter violently, and I was warned that even ordinary exercise endangered my life. But thanks to Scott's Sarsaparilla I feel better than I ever expected to feel, for I can now address a meeting without effort, can walk a brisk pace for two hours or more without exhaustion and am free from that distressing palpitation. In my work I have oftentime recommended Scott's Sarsaparilla, and have seen many cases where its effects have been most marked."

Scott's Sarsaparilla acts like magic in restoring shattered nerves because it rebuilds the nerve centres. Nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia and all nerve derangements wear on the system. Scott's Sarsaparilla makes new blood and muscles and strong nerves. Of all druggists, $1 per bottle. Dose from half to one teaspoonful.

MEN ACTED BY WOMEN

THE REVIVAL OF ACTRESSES IN MALE CHARACTERS ON THE STAGE.

Some of the Triumphs of Great Actresses when Wearing Sock and Buskin—Miss Cushman's "Romeo" Recalled as Well as That of the Divine Sara.

Miss Ada Rehan's appearance in the part of Prince Hal, Shakespeare's mad cap hero of "Henry IX.," marks the revival of actresses in male characters. It is also announced that Miss Vera Beringer, who was the original Little Lord Fauntleroy in London, and her sister, Miss Esme Beringer, are studying the parts of Romeo and Juliet. This is the first time since the days of Charlotte Cushman that these famous roles have been essayed by two sisters.

As early as 1838 Miss Cushman played the male part of Rolf in "Pocahontas," a drama by George Washington Parke, Curtis, and her career at the Park Theatre, in New York as "utility actress," developed her capacity in this direction. It was when she began her second London engagement at the Haymarket in 1845 that she appeared as Romeo, selecting the original play instead of the acting version then in vogue. Her idea of playing this tragic lover's part was chiefly to bring out her sister Susan. She met with great success, for the play ran eighty nights, then a wonderful length, and had an extended tour in the provinces.

The London Times said: "It is enough to say that the Romeo of Miss Cushman is far superior to any Romeo we have ever had. The distinction is not one of degree, it is one of kind. For a long time Romeo has been a convention. Miss Cushman's Romeo is a creation, a living, breathing, animated, ardent human being * * * * Miss Cushman looks Romeo exceedingly well; her deportment is frank and easy; she walks the stage with an air of command; her eye beams with animation. In a word, Romeo is one of her grand successes."

Although Mme. Sara Barnhardt has never apepared in America as Romeo; she is said to both look and act the part of that passionate young lover with consummate art.

Though Charlotte Cushman is associated chiefly with Lady Macbeth and Meg Merrilies, she achieved great renown as Cardinal Wolsey. On a few occasions she played Hamlet, which her biographer, Emma Stebbins, says "gave her intense pleasure. Miss Cushman alludes to it in some of her letters of theh very highest effort she had ever made, and the most exhausting of all her parts, this one seemed to fill out most completely the entire range of her powers. Miss Marriott appeared as Hamlet at Sadlers Wells, London, under her own management in 1864, and in 1870 appeared in New York in the same role.

Another woman who gained early distinction in this line was Mrs. John Drew, who began her career sixty-eight years ago as the Duke of York to the "Richard III." of Junius Brutus Booth. She played also Hamlet as well as Dr. Pangloss in the "Heir at Law." The latter character she appeared in about 1829.

Pretty Peg Woffington, the heroine of Charles Reade's novel, was famous for her man's characters, and Sir Harry Wildair, in the "Constant Couple," will always be associated with her name. She first played it in 1738 in Dublin, taking the town by storm, and it is said one maiden refused to believe that it was played by a woman and offered her hand in marriage to the handsome Peggy. She made a great sensation when she appeared in London in this character in 1740, which had never before been acted there by a woman. "It was admitted," says Macklin, "that Peg Woffington represented the gay, good-humored, dissipated rake of fashion with an ease and elegance of deportment that seemed almost out of the reach of female accomplishments."

It is interesting, too, to remember in this connection that Julia Marlow began her career as Sir Joseph Porter in "Pinafore," with a juvenile opera company billed as Fanny Brough, though her real name was Fanny Frost. Then she attempted Parthenia Frost. Then she attempted Parthenia, Juliet and Imogen, meeting with success. One of her best parts was that of Chatterton, the sad young poet, who perished in a garret

WOMEN'S FADS.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher's Love for Opals—Mrs. Booth's Odd One.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher has a fad which works with her, both winter and summer, but for which she now, alas! has small funds, although she does ocasionally fall a victim to its fascinations. This is for the buying of opals. Henry Ward Beecher loved these stones. Instead of thinking them unlucky, he got great inspiration from them, and he was always marching home with a new opal for Mrs. Beecher snugly tucked away in his pocket. Sometimes he did not care to give it to her if grocery bills were pressing at that moment. Mrs. Beecher grew to share his fondness for them. Now she is never without one of the great shining gems at throat or finger. She gazes at them in the shop windows, handles them over the jeweler's counters, caresses them fondly, and walks sadly away to revisit her favorites again and again.

Mrs. Ballington Booth takes few vacations, but such time as she allows herself is spent in the very oddest occupation ever invented by a woman for a summer holiday. All during her vacation hours she busies herself with a pastime to which she is passionately devoted—the gathering of books on surgery. It is said that she has the finest collection of surgical works to be found outside of the great libraries. She chooses those of simple terms and seeks to perfect herself in them. When she has opportunity she visits operating rooms. Her book, "Antiseptic Christianity," was the direct outcome of hints gleaned from operating tables, and she was assisted not a little by Dr. McCosh, son of the late President of Princeton. During vacations she revels in surgery of all kinds, practical and printed, and is the only example on record of a very pretty woman who enjoys musging in very disagreeable scenes.

HER CHOICE.

It Was a Question of Appetite and Wearing Apparel.

She was bitter in her condemnation of the girl who had gone on the stage.

"But you have no right to pass judgment upon her," he protested. "You do not know anything about the circumstances."

"Oh, of course, you'll stand up for her," she retorted. "The moment a girl goes on the stage she has a fascination for men."

"Fascination, nothing!" he answered, sharply. "You condemn her merely because she has taken to comic opera without regard to the circumstances."

"What were they?"

"She was poor"——

"Pooh! There are lots in just as bad a fix."

"She tried to get work that she was fitted for and failed. She had no friends to help her, and was almost starving. Then came an opportunity to go on the stage."

"And she jumped at it?"

"On the contrary, I am told that she hesitated a long time. But she was in sore distress. It had actually come to a point where it was a question of having something to wear or something to eat."

"And from her costume to-night it is easy to infer that she chose to eat," she returned, sharply.

And then he realized that it was useless to continue the argument.—Chicago Post.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root. Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritiv value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

Continued Progress.
. . . THE . . .
Canada Life Assurance Co.

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business in Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows:—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nearly 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life.

ITS RATES ARE THE LOWEST AND PROFITS THE LARGEST.

Intending Assurers would be consulting their own interests by getting figures and facts from the undersigned before placing their risks elsewhere.

Information requested. Informant's name kept strictly private. FINCH W. MILLER Agent and Ass't. Secy. OFFICE:—Town Buildings. Office Hours—10 to 1 a.m and to 3 p.m

The things that people see are inside of them and not outside. No two people see the same thing exactly alike. One woman may look out at a beautiful landscape and see all the beauty and restfulness and grandness that there is in it. Another one will look out at the same scene and see nothing. One will find enjoyment in a brilliant company, in music, in dancing, in an exquisitely prepared dinner. Another will enjoy these things half as much—another not at all. The things that people see are inside them. What one sees and what one enjoys depends upon the bodily condition—depends upon the capacity for enjoyment—depends upon the health and the vitality. The sick man has pain or discomfort so impressed upon him that he has no time to think of much else. A weak man has all he can do to struggle for mere existence. He has no strength to use in procuring pleasure. His performances are limited by his strength. He can do only a few things so he can enjoy only a few things. The man who is perfectly well and vigorous enjoys life to the full. The bedridden invalid enjoys it not at all. The man who is half sick and half well gets out of life about half what he ought to. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes people well. It doesn't do it in a miraculous way. There isn't anything unnatural about it—it is the most natural thing in the world. It simply puts the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, in perfect order and thereby makes the blood pure and rich. It doesn't have to do anything else. Nature does all the rest. All diseases live and thrive on impure blood. Keep a stream of pure, rich, red blood flowing into a diseased spot, and the disease will not stay. A man lives on rich, pure blood, and disease dies on it. That's the difference. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, rich blood—makes men and women strong and healthy; brings good appetite, good digestion and builds up solid, healthy flesh.

THE THREE STAGES.

PRESIDENT THWING DEFINES THE ELEMENTS OF SELF-MASTERY.

Egoism, Not Egotism, Work and Loyalty the Three Needed Qualities—The Result as They Work Out in Men's Lives on Earth.

Life has three stages, more or less clearly distinguished. Life begins in subjection. The first the child knows of the exterior world is its resistance to himself. This resistance he tries to resist, and the result is that he comes to himself. The second stage is the stage of what I shall call personality. It is the stage of the enlarging, quickening, fructifying life of the intellect. The third stage grows out of the two that have gone before. Now dawns the age of self-mastery. The man comes to himself. This self-mastery, this last and highest stage in the development of character, has in itself at least three elements.

One of the elements is egoism. By egoism I mean confidence in self. By egoism I mean a just, worthy and proper confidence in self. Great men always have egoism. It is the condition of aggressiveness. Without aggressiveness no man proves himself to be great. Take Emerson's representative men: Plato, the philosopher, is the man of egoism; Montaigne, the skeptic, is the man of egoism; Shakespeare, the poet, is the man of egoism; Napoleon, the man of the world, is the man of egoism; Goethe, the writer, is the man of egoism. Each of these great men is a man of egoism. Each of them has trust in himself. It is not cockeyism; it is not pride blown out so big that it has become thin, and is in peril of collapsing from its very thinness. It rests upon the calm weighing of the evidence presented by one's self for doing great things. A proper self-interpretation will always produce seriousness in any man. It will also give to each man a sense of mastery in and of himself. And this mastery of himself will also give him a proper interpretation of himself. Egoism, not egotism, self-respect, not self-conceit, self-love, not selfishness, is an element in self-mastery.

Self-mastery has in itself the element of work. The master of himself is a man of work. Work is both a cause and a result of self-mastery. Work is an expression of the worker. In expression man finds a larger self. Work is his alter ego, and also it may be a magnificent ego. The piece of work done is a convex mirror of the worker. The expression of self in work reacts on the man and makes him larger. The humblest work gives dignity to the worker who has put himself into it. "God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good." This self-satisfaction of God with His own work helps to prove how good and great He Himself was. He was in a sense more of a master of Himself, and more conscious of His mastery when He finished the creation and looked upon it than He was before creation began. As you love your own self and wish to have for yourself the largest selfhood, ever and everywhere be a worker.

Self-mastery also has in itself the element of loyalty to the highest principle and the highest being. Self-mastery implies respect for all facts and truths. The freedom of self-mastery is born of perfect obedience to perfect law. The man master of self has sufficient intellectual acumen to see that there are personalities more wise than himself. The man master of himself has sufficient heart to feel the presence of personalities more potent and more pervasive than his own. The man master of himself has sufficient will to recognize the fitness of his will being ruled by wills more puissant. The man master of himself has sufficient conscience to accept the universal law of right.

This self-mastery as seen in trust in one's self gives egoism. This self-mastery as seen in work, gives altruism and a larger egoism. This self-mastery as seen in loyalty to the highest, gives us religion.—Charles F. Thwing, President Western Reserve University.

Religion of Leisure.

The unbending of a man may be religious; not in the same sense in which his bracing up and putting on the armor of God makes him religious, but in an important sense. Therefore, wherever you go you can bear with you the spirit of Christ, the spirit of consecration, the spirit of devotion, so as to make other men happy. You can wear a cheerful face. You can keep a good temper. You can in conversation choose such words that men will be made better by your being with them—and that without regard to thermometer, topography or geography.

A man should carry his religion with him.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Refuses a Parole.

James Johnson, a lifetime convict in the Indiana State prison, at Jeffersonville, has refused a parole from the Governor, saying he is not guilty of murder, the crime charged, and will accept nothing less than an unconditional pardon. He was sentenced in 1893 for killing Leslie Bell, but claims it was done in self-defence. It is the only case on record where a parole was refused by any prisoner, as it is practically the same as a pardon.

"Caught a Tartar."

During a battle between the Russians and Tartars, a private soldier of the former cried out: "Captain, I've caught a Tartar!" "Bring him along," said the officer. "He won't let me!" was the response. Investigation proved that the captive had the captor by the arm and would not allow him to move. So "Catching a Tartar" is applicable to one who has found an antagonist too powerful for him.

"Done to a Turn."

"Done to a turn," suggests the story of St. Lawrence, who while suffering torture by fire, requested the attendants to turn him over, as he was thoroughly roasted on one side. Hence the phrase. "Done to a turn."

Brains of Men and Horses.

In the human subject the brain is the one-twenty-eighth part of the whole body's entire weight. In the horse it is not more than one-four-hundredth part.

THAT IMPALING CASE.

Mr. H. E. Hudson, Combermere, Severely Injured—Protruding Knot Entered the Body—Cured by One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

Novelties for the Sick Room.

A medicine bottle with a spoon attachment for administering the contents is a very unique sickroom novelty. The spoon is of porcelain, which is the best material for the purpose, and is fixed on a hinge to the neck of the bottle. When not in use it folds over the cork and can be readily bent over to an angle so that the medicine may be poured into it. When filled it is fixed at right angles with the bottle and then is in a convenient position to dash off the contents.

Another odd and extremely useful conceit for the sickroom is a cover for the medicine glass. It is in the shape of the face of a clock, with marble hands. These serve as a reminder of the hour at which the next dose of medicine is to be taken.

THE WORD OF THE SKIP IS LAW.

A Few Interesting Facts Concerning the Slippery Game.

The game of curling is one of the most puzzling of our winter pastimes, and it has been claimed, perhaps very truly, that no man ever curled to perfection. But difficult and intricate as the sport undoubtedly is, the beginner may soon acquire sufficient knowledge to enable him to take a respectable place in a rink. No man should be deterred from it by the fear that it is too difficult a game to learn.

As the player stands ready to receive and obey orders from his commander—the skip—and poses himself steadily on his crampit, the tyro watching him will be able to pick up many useful points of the game. He will see that the first thing he must do is to "fit the tee"—that is, he must so place himself that his eye travels along the central line towards the further tee, while his right foot rests on the back, or heel, of the crampit. No matter what kind of a shot he may be asked to play, though the point aimed at may be several feet to the right or left of the distant tee, the crampit, or back, must remain immovable, and no advantage should be taken by changing to a place from which the shot could be more easily taken. This is to "fit fair," and it distinguishes the modern scientific game from the older style, in which the curler, with his crampits fixed on his shoes, might now play from one side, now from another, as it suited him.

Many players bend their limbs in a very marked manner, and keeping the body perfectly rigid, do all their work with the right arm, which swings from the shoulder in pendulum fashion. No hard and fast rule for position can be laid down. Elegance should be sacrified to ease, and the player need not trouble himself about the awkwardness of his position if he finds that he has command of his stone. Advice on position may be summed up in the words of an old curler:

If you be a curler keen,
Stand right, look even,
Sole well, shoot straight and sweep clean.

"Look at the mark with all your e'en" is another bit of a veteran curler's advice. The eye must be intensely fixed on the object aimed at till the stone has left the hand.

The swing next requires attention. The curling stone should describe the same figure in its upward journey as the player hopes to make it describe in its descent. As the stone descends the centre of gravity is advanced and the left foot must be lifted and advanced as a base line to preserve the stability of the body. This saves one from rushing forward along the ice as some curlers do, and the lifting of the left foot in this way gives freedom in swinging the body and arm to the right or to the left, as the mark to be aimed at may require.

When the curling stone has left the player's hand the whole weight of the body should rest on the left foot, and there is no necessity for a player to career up the ice after his stone.

But the some of the curler's art is the "twist," the accomplishment which gives a finishing touch to curling proficiency and marks out the true scientific player from all his brethren, however keen and successful they may be. The "twist" is what in golfing paralance would be called the "wrist" shot. It is by curlers variously designated in its two-fold aspect as "elbow in," "elbow out," "in-turn," "out-turn." "wee finger in," "wee finger out."

The direction of the game in curling lies with the skip. The rink consists of four, and while three are under authority, one—the skip—is absolute dictator. He is appointed to his office by the will of his brother curlers. The essential qualifications of a skip are a thorough knowledge of the game and an all-prevading sense of humour. With a couple of sour skips at each end of a rink all the life goes out of a game.

To the first player on the crampit the skip does not give any information as to what he wants done, but simply plants his besom-shank upon the ice.

"Ye ken what's wantit," he says. "Cannily down the howe ice: j'st smeil the rink and I'll no blame ye."

He is a good skip who begins with caution and all through plays a cautious game. "A guid, calm shot is aye the best." So the first stone comes "snoovin up the howe. It does not quite reach the tee, and thus become a "perfect patlid;" it rests a foot or so in front of the tee, but it pleases the skip all the more, for it is in the way o' promotion."

It is now the turn of the opposing skip to direct. Had the first stone rested on the tee he would have called for its removal, but with caution he would have said, "Draw to the face o' this."

He asks for a "quiet draw." Too much force, and the player is liable to go "owre a' the ice;" too little, and he places the first stone on the tee and himself lies a guard to the enemy. So he leaves the stone alone and with a "quiet draw" he gets his stone beside it, in none the worse position, because its line of promotion is not the direct line to the tee, for "a sidelin shot" may prove better than a "patlid" at the end.

To get this stone promoted and guarded is now the opposing skip's aim. So "jist crack an egg on this," in his direction. But the player has been too timid and the stone lags on its journey, so the skip calls for the help of the sweepers.

"Gie him heels, gie him heels," he cries. "Soop him up, soop him up," and by the aid of elbow grease the work is done; his stone is on the tee and guarded.

"Weel soopit, lads. Come up, Sandy, an' look at it. Tak' yersel' by the han'. I'se gie ye a sniff fo 'that."

Such are the skip's expression of satisfaction. "Rub off the guard, but dinna throw away our stane," is now the mandate of his rival. But it is a "ragging shot," and missing the guard, it is through the "brough" and "awa' to the 'caff neuk.'" Skip No. 1 is jubilant; he is "shot and guarded." "Big on, pile on agony," he cries, as his second player comes forward, and this is his demand for a double guard.

"Ower the hog and you're a great one. There! That's another mote 'i their ee." "That's a seed in their teeth."

Then with a self-satisfied air, Skip No. 1 steps aside to see how Skip No. 2 with his second player will deal with the situation. Two courses are at least open. He can curl around the guards and find the winner, or by an outwick on the first player's stone he can force that upon the winner and leave it shot. Then all the guarding of No. 1 is crestfallen. So the game proceeds. The whole situation may alter in a moment for it is a slippery game.—Jas. S Mitchell in the New York World.

ONTARIO'S BOUNDS.

A Chain of 3,300 Miles Long Required to Bound us.

At the meeting of Ontario Land Surveyers in Toronto, on Wednesday, Mr. Alex. Niven, of Haliburton, read a paper on "Ontario Boundaries." It described the boundaries of the province, stating at what time the boundaries were defined, and in what manner. The boundaries of Ontario were not definitely known, except portions of the eastern and western parts. The distance around the province, following the boundary, through the lakes, was about 3,300 miles; the area of the province, about 200,000 square miles; and the northern boundary of the province was 1,000 miles in length, as accurately as it had yet been ascertained.

HOCKEY.

Concerning this evening's match in Toronto, the Globe says:—The final in the Junior League series to-night promises to be the hottest and most fiercely contested game of the year. Both teams are keyed up to the highest pitch, and so far as condition goes, fit to stand any amount of hard play. A change has been made in the Granite team, Carlyle, the Bank of Toronto goalkeeper, being put between the posts in place of Dixon. Jimmie MacDonald will not be able to play, and Ardagh, another bank man, will look after the Granites' interests at coverpoint.

The World says that Johnston, too, of the Granites, is laid off.

This morning Secretary Horkins received word by telephone that the ice would be too soft to play in Toronto, but as the Peterboroughs are all in the pink of condition, it was resolved to take no chances by postponing the game, and so a telegram was sent to the Granites that the Peterboroughs were coming and would play if there was a foot of water on the rink. The team will be composed as follows: Goal, J. Hamilton; point, W. J. Montgomery; coverpoint, S. Adams; forwards, L. King, W. Phelan, R. Davidson and J. Parsons. Several hundred citizens accompanied the boys up on the train.

THE WHEEL.

The Montreal Star says: Over four hundred new members have recently joined the Quebec Bicycle Club, making the membership now over 500. Among the new members are Mayor Parent and all the civic aldermen, which ought to be sufficient proof that if the annual meet takes place in this city the civic authorities will take a prominent part in the reception to the visiting wheelmen.

Tuesday's Globe says: "Rumours come from the east that if Quebec does not secure the meet on Good Friday it will not take that Province as long as it did Fitzsimmons to knock Maher into a state of somnolency to secede from the C.W.A. They claim that they have the best right to the meet, that it would inject more enthusiasm in the cyclists of that part of the country, that it would mean an enormous increase in membership for the association and in fact would build up the sport beyond fear of failure in Quebec and the adjacent provinces. In the opinion of Montreal men cycling in Ontario has been fairly run off its feet, and requires to be left alone so that it can resume its normal condition. Ontario has monopolized the favours of the association long enough, and it is time that they were conferred elsewhere. Whether Peterborough or Quebec will secure the meet is not a question as easily answerable as the other matter which bulks largely in the eyes of the wheelmen, the presidental fight. It is all a matter of supposition, but Mr. Robertson seems to have the call. Some parts of the country, which are credited with intentions to support him, will probably vote for Balfour, and many new and unthought-of circumstances are likely to be infused into the contest before its settlement. Ottawa and Montreal, it is claimed, will side with Balfour, the trouble that A. T. Lane and T. A. Beament have had with the Hamilton man in the past being advanced as the reason. All reports to the contrary notwithstanding the issue will be a straight one between Robertson and Balfour for the presidency and Quebec and Peterborough for the meet."

It is utter rot for Quebec to talk up a provincial claim to the meet. Montreal had it in 1894, and with its much larger membership Ontario is entitled to have it at least four times to Quebec's once.

A COMMITTEE WAS APPOINTED

To Confer With the Government With the Object of Having the Measure So Modified as to Permit Anti-Remedial Members to Vote for It.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—There was a caucus of the Conservative members held in room 16 this afternoon to discuss the Remedial Bill. It was not a regular Government caucus, as none of the Ministers were present, and the chairman of the regular caucus, Dr. Roome, did not preside. Sir John Carling acted as chairman. Those present were principally opponents of the Remedial Bill. There, were, however, a good many others. A number of Conservative members did not attend, not being in sympathy with the meeting, and a number of those opposed to the bill left by the noon train for their homes in the west.

Dr. Weldon submitted a resolution to the meeting appointing a committee, consisting of Sir Donald Smith, Mr. Lariviere and himself (Weldon), to arrange for a conference with the Government between those favoring Remedial Legislation and those against it. The idea is for this committee to get fifteen other members of Parliament along with them to wait upon the Government and see how the bill can be modified so as to permit anti-remedial members to vote for it. A good number of the members were opposed to this, stating that the bill was before the House, and members could either vote for it or not, as they had a mind.

Sir Donald Smith threw oil upon the troubled waters by making a speech. He said that he had visited Winnipeg in connection with the matter, but had no mission from the Government to do so. He went as a private citizen who was largely interested in Manitoba and the Northwest. He had a conference with Mr. Greenway while in Winnipeg, and he was not yet without hope that Mr. Greenway would come to the aid of the Federal authorities by settling the matter. This statement was received with considerable applause.

Messrs. Maclean, Wallace, Cockburn and Sproule spoke against the bill, and Col. Tisdale for it. Dr. Cameron and Mr. McDougall spoke of the desirability of party loyalty and maintaining the constitution. The resolution was said to have been adopted in the end. That the conference with the Government can come to anything is much doubted. It is not thought that the leaders of the Cabinet will back down in any degree. On the other hand, it is now said that 30 Conservative members will vote against the bill as it stands, and the Government's defeat is probable. The caucus caused a good deal of ill feeling.

HAMILTON YOUNG LIBERALS

Held Their Tenth Annual Banquet, at Which Messrs J. Israel Tarte and D. C. Fraser Spoke.

Hamilton, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—About 250 young Liberals of this city assembled in the Arcade Hall to-night when the tenth annual banquet of the club was held. The speakers of the evening were Hon. D. C. Fraser and Mr. J. Israel Tarte. The chair was occupied by the president, Mr. W. M. McClemont, and Mr. W. M. Findlay was in the vice chair. The Queen and the Country, the first toast, was responded to by A. F. Pirie.

Thos. Bain, M.P., proposed the toast of the Liberal party, to which Mr. Tarte responded. He began by referring to the charges that have been made against him. Referring to the Remedial question he said that the Conservative party, to which he belonged for so many years, has turned out to be the party to coercion. The question was a serious one and he reviewed the trouble from its commencement, referring to the establishment and subsequent abolition of Separate schools in Manitoba. The Roman Catholics have a great grievance, the Privy Council having decided so, the Government saw fit to issue a Remedial Order, at a time when three Quebec elections were coming on, expecting to win the constituencies by appealing to racial prejudices in the province of Quebec. He told the audience that the Conservatives had imported from the Motherland that product of coercion Sir Charles Tupper. He affirmed that he is a Roman Catholic and a French Canadian, but proclaimed amid loud applause that he was against coercion and he knew the minority of Manitoba were against it, too. He referred to this morning's article in The Mail regarding the situation at Ottawa and said he was in a position to deny it from first to last, and stated that if Mr. Laurier comes to power he will have no coercive policy and no one will ask him to have one. The Conservative party don't care much for the Catholic minority of Manitoba, but want the votes of Quebec, but he was sure the hierarchy will not be a party to such coercion. Coercion has no magnetism about it in the province of Quebec. A great revolution has taken place in Quebec; scores of prominent Conservatives are now joining the Liberal ranks and he appealed to the Conservatives of Ontario, proclaiming they would have nothing to fear from Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, who is a loyal Canadian. The Liberal party is united and if the other provinces do their duty it will be in power, as it should have been long ago.

Hugh Guthrie of Guelph responded to the toast of the Ontario Federation, of Liberal Clubs.

John Crerar, Q.C., proposed the toast of the Dominion Parliament, coupling with it the name of Hon. Mr. Fraser, who made a flowery and patriotic speech. He spoke disparagingly of the resignation of the Cabinet Ministers some weeks ago, and, in reference to the fiscal policy of the Conservative party, he referred to it as a sham, a humbug and a fraud, and knew there are thousands of Conservatives who know it is such. There has been more money lost to Canada by the National Policy than it has made, and he sarcastically spoke of the great Conservative party having an imbecile at its head and traitors at its tail.

Hon. J. M. Gibson responded to the toast of the Ontario Legislature, and there were songs by J. C. Taylor, H. Gayfer, jr., F. McIlroy and T. M. Davis. The committee consisted of W. M. McClemont, A. D. Ewing, Wm. Harvey, C. Davis and E. A. Fernside.

THE STORM WAS TERRIFIC.

One Hundred Lives Were Lost by Floods in Queensland.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 28.—The captains of vessels arriving here from Australia bring information of a terrible storm which has devastated the coast of Queensland. There were furious hurricanes and a fearful downpour of rain, which flooded the entire district.

More than 100 lives were lost, it is reported. Whole villages were destroyed. Thousands of houses were wrecked. And with the other property destroyed on shore, the damage is estimated at half a million pounds sterling. The value of the vessels wrecked cannot be estimated.

Townsville, a small city on the north-east coast of Queensland, seemed to be the centre of the storm, and not a house in the town or a vessel in the harbor escaped. Ross Island, a short distance away, was flooded, and many lives were lost in attempts to reach the mainland in small boats. The damage wrought by the hurricane in Townsville harbor alone is assessed at 250,000 pounds, this including the damage to the water front property.

The storm began Jan. 25 and did not abate its fury until the following Tuesday. In Townsville the hurricane had most devastating effects, roofs being blown off and tossed about in the air like sheets of paper, while two men were blown off their feet and into the harbor, both being drowned. The rainfall was tremendous, and numerous places were entirely submerged. In nine hours on Monday 20 inches fell.

On Ross Island many houses were swept away from foundations. The furious wind upset a rescue boat, and Mrs. Hunt and her infant, Mrs. Gunman, Gertrude Rowe, the elder Miss Rowe and a boy named William Wallace were drowned. A housemaid in Judge Chubb's employ, while wading towards the punta, was washed off her feet by the current and drowned. Sandy Walker was drowned while trying to cross the Victoria Bridge, which was six feet under water. Many steamers are overdue at different points along the coast, and when the Canadian liner Miowera sailed from Sydney for this port it was feared that a majority of these had been lost. Among the vessels lost were the following: Steamer Levinia went down, and her 24 hands were drowned; the iron steamer Alexander, of 618 tons, was sunk; the Adelaide, a small wooden steamer of 39 tons, sunk at Townsville; the steamer Star of Hope, 98 tons, sunk at Townsville; the Florence Elliott a lighter, sunk; the Nebo, a lighter, sunk; the Nautilus, a Government steamer, of 260 tons, owned by the Queensland Government, was wrecked in South Breakwater; the steamer Hopper, owned by the Government, also sunk; so were the Freeto and Iron Bark, the Ada Dent, a steam lighter; the Leura, a passenger steamer of 932 tons; and the passenger steamers, Aramas, 2114 tons; the Guthrie, 2300 tons, and the Helen, 1802 tons.

Three weeks before this great storm a hurricane visited the Hanai group, and in Lieuka and the neighborhood 240 houses were blown down. The damage to the cocoanut trees was so great that it will take the island two or three years to recover as a copra producing district.

THE IMMIGRATION CONVENTION

Closed With a Dinner at Winnipeg A Permanent Organization Formed.

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—The Immigration Convention was brought to a close to-night by a dinner to the delegates at the Leland Hotel. Felicitous speeches were the order of the evening, all agreeing that the convention had been most successfully and harmoniously conducted, and that great good would inevitably result from the publication of the many able essays on the conditions and resources of the country.

A permanent organization was effected, to be called the "Western Canada Immigration Association." The company will operate with a similar association formed in St. Paul a few months ago.

HORSE RACING BILL.

The Canadian Club Will Get Incorporation,

AS OBJECTIONS WERE REMOVED

Only Affiliated Clubs Will Come Under Its Control—The Chief Object is to Procure Honest Racing in Canada and to Keep Outlaws Away.

Ottawa, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—An interesting session of the Private Bills Committee was held this afternoon, when the bill respecting the Canadian Jockey Club was under consideration. The promoters were represented by William Hendrie, sr., and Wm. Hendrie, jr., of Hamilton; Dr. Andrew Smith and Robert Davies, Toronto; John Davis, Windsor; Adam Beck and Major Beattie, London; Angus Sinclair, Chatham, and A. R. Creelman, the club's solicitor, of Toronto. Mr. Sol. White of Windsor appeared in opposition to the bill, on behalf of the Windsor Driving Club.

Col. Tisdale, who has the measure in charge, explained its object. He said the club was already incorporated by letters patent for promoting and holding exhibitions for the purpose of improving the breed of horses, regulating and managing race meetings and exhibitions of horses throughout Canada. Some objection has been raised to the scope of the measure, and it had therefore been amended by eliminating these objectionable features. Among the clauses which the bill promoters wished to have passed was one that it should apply only to those clubs which wished to affiliate with the association. They did not desire to have any power that would compel any other organization to be controlled by them. Section 8 of the bill limiting the duration of race meetings to 14 days would be eliminated, the Minister of Justice intending to make some such provision in the Criminal Code.

Mr. Lister said he would like some further explanations as to the objects of the legislation.

Col. Tisdale said that the English and New York Jockey Clubs were two leading racing associations whose rules were undisputed, and with Dominion incorporation the Canadian Jockey Club would be recognized by those two jockey clubs and the decisions of one club would apply to the other.

Mr. Hendrie, sr., on being called upon, said that the bill arose out of circumstances which had occurred at Windsor. The Windsor Driving Association leased their track to two gentlemen from the Southern States, and inaugurated at Windsor continuous racing for 60 days, or thereabouts. They all knew what would happen in a short time if that were not stopped. In May last the representatives of different clubs met at Toronto and decided upon forming a jockey club. The measure had been modified in order to meet the views of those who objected to it.

Mr. Lister—You are taking the sting out of it?

Mr. Hendrie—Yes. (Laughter.)

Mr. Maclean—What is the sting?

Mr. Lister—Well, evidently it was the intention of the club to take control of all the race meetings and race tracks in Canada. Although the promoters have consented to strike out clause 8, the bill is just as bad as it was before. These gentlemen composing the Jockey Club may compel every other club in the country to become affiliated with them on such terms as they think proper. They might say: "You are a non-affiliated club, and we won't permit any horse of an affiliated club to go on the tracks of a non-affiliated club." So far as 60 days races are concerned, he did not think they were in the interests of horse-breeders of this country. Parliament would be justified in passing legislation applying to every track in the country, and saying that continuous races shall not exist for more than five, ten or twelve days. The Jockey Club, under the bill, would be in a position to compel every association to affiliate with it, and in that way a great injustice would be done to every club throughout the country.

Col. Tisdale said he was quite prepared to meet Mr. Lister's views. Personally he was not a racing man, but he was a lover of horses, and he thought it would be in the interests of horse-breeding to incorporate this club. He ventured to say that there were 2000 horses and hundreds of jockeys in the United States that could not race on the tracks of any respectable association on the other side of the line. The bill would only compel those coming within the rules of the club to obey the rules of the club. It was to the interests of all who loved good racing to keep outlaws away.

Mr. Maclean said he thought that, as horse-racing was a pastime of the people, the bill should be considered from that standpoint, as well as from the standpoint of improving the breed of horses. The question, however, had been raised whether it was competent for Parliament to give powers of outlawry to this Jockey Club. That issue had been raised by some who objected to the measure. Mr. Maclean read the following telegram from Mr. Patteson, Postmaster of Toronto: "The limitation of days is absolutely necessary and should be by the Criminal Code. The other powes do not require special legislation."

Mr. Sol. White said the most objectionable part of the bill had been eliminated, but it hardly went far enough. The club was given too much power.

Col. Tisdale—We don't propose to make the bill apply to trotting or pacing races.

Mr. White, continuing, said, if this legislation were enacted it might injure many of the existing clubs in Canada. Seventy thousand dollars had been expended by the Windsor Club alone on their property. He agreed that some of the provisions of the bill were unobjectionable, but did not consider that was any reason why Canada should look for recognition from New

THE Citizen (a Government organ of course) still thinks that Mr. Haggart is quite irresponsible for the case of steal in connection with the Curran Bridge. Judge Desnoyers said that the frauds were mainly due to the looseness of the departmental administration. Is the Minister of Railways not responsible for the management of his own office?

SIR OLIVER MOWAT proposes to effect a needed improvement in the mechanics' lien law. Heretofore it has been comparatively easy for sub-contractors to cheat workers out of their wages, but the change will make wages a claim against the products of the workers' labor, irrespective of the dealings of such intermediaries. Proprietors can easily compel sub-contractors to pay their workmen. The change will make such a course expedient.

THE Dominion Rifle Association has to be congratulated, says the Ottawa Free Press, on its satisfactory report and the enthusiastic spirit which seems to animate it. The discussion at the meeting shows that there is no need for doubt as to the material of our militia or of the zeal of those who officer and compose it. With these combined qualities and efficient weapons, the Canadian forces would be equal to "going anywhere and doing anything." But the militia must be more encouraged than they have been of late. Regiments are of more importance to the country than boodlers and contractors. The speech of the major-general had a sterling ring about it, which promises well for the future. The association must do its best to aid in seeing that his hands are strengthened by the voice of public opinion.

ONTARIO FOR ONTARIANS.

The EXAMINER has just received an attractive little pamphlet from Hon. John Dryden, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, entitled "The Pioneer Farm and the Wabigoon Country, Rainy River District."

The attention of the Department having recently been called to this hitherto unsettled region, Mr. Dryden determined to establish there what he termed a "pioneer farm," to demonstrate in a practical manner the country's agricultural capabilities. The experiment so far has been very successful, and this pamphlet giving general information regarding the section, which is now open for settlement, is the result. It is illustrated and contains a map of the district.

This information will be very opportune in view of the increasing demand at the present time for cheap land, especially on the part of young men of small capital, the sons of farmers, who desire to secure farms and homes of their own. Such should by all means investigate the Wabigoon country and other unsettled portions of Ontario before turning their attention elsewhere. Ontario still has vast resources at her command—a heritage intended for her own people—and presents advantages unsurpassed by any province or by any foreign state. Those desirous of securing a copy of the pamphlet should address a card to the Department of Agriculture, Toronto.

IT WAS A MARE'S NEST

Mr. Marter Thought He Had a Good Thing,

BUT QUICKLY DID IT FIZZLE OUT

A Clerk Happened to Visit Kingston at the Time of the Election That Was All—Patron Leader Haycock and His Railway Pass Bill.

Toronto, Feb. 28.—The Opposition ran up against a stone wall yesterday when they struck Mr. William H. Clark, a clerk in the Queen's Printer's Department. Messrs. Marter and Matheson were at the sitting of the Public Accounts Committee and thought they had unearthed a mare's nest when they discovered that Clark had gone down to Kingston during Hon. Mr. Harty's last election. They thought he had gone down with money and without warning sent for him and placed him on oath. Then the fun began. Clark was asked all manner of impudent questions which would have been promply ruled out in any court of justice. He made no objection, however, and gave his sole reason for going to Kingston, the fact that he had heard Dr. Smith was a P.P.A., and he he went down to do all he could to defeat him. After arriving at Kingston he learned that there was doubt as to whether Smyth was a member of the secret order in question, and made for home imediately. He had seen Hon. Mr. Harty and Libranian Preston while at Kingston, but had given them no parcels and had no particular conversation with them. Clark was then allowed to depart, the whole affair having fizzled out. Marter and Matheson loked cheap, while the other members of the committee gave them the laugh.

Mr. Marter actually mustered up courage in due course to ask if James Massie had been appointed registrar of York. Hon. Mr. Gibson said he had on Jan. 23 last, and the commission had been sent o him. It was expected that Mr. Marter would have had some objection to offer, but he seemed quite satisfied and the matter was allowed to pass without further comment.

Mr. Haycock introduced his bill of last session to prohibit members of the Assembly using railway passes. The debate will be on the second reading, which will not be before next Friday.

Mr. McKay (Oxford) and Mr. McNaughton continued the Budget debate.

In reply to a question by Mr. Marter, Hon. J. M. Gibson gave the following figures, showing the cost per prisoner at the Central Prison for clothing and for provisions, also the earnings of each prisoner for the years from 1891 to 1895: For clothing—1891, $10.36; 1892, $13.69; 1893, $12.92; 1894, $11.80; 1895, $12.49. Provisions—1891, $42.60; 1892, $42; 1893, $38.02; 1894, $28.52; 1895, $26.70. Earnings, 1891, $37.38; 1892, $22.46; 1893, $62.37; 1894, $59.15; 1895, $68.74.

In reply to Mr. Brower, Mr. Gibson said that Dougall Campbell was appointed farmer at the London Asylum in April, 1890, that he served between five and six years, that he was not pensioned off, but had been granted a gratuity of $235.

In answer to a question by Mr. Preston, Hon. Mr. Harcourt said that P. Jamieson, whose name appears on the public accounts for $6000 in 1895, was lessee of the old Agriculture and Arts Association offices, corner Queen and Yonge.

Mr. Willoughby asked for an order of the House giving the names of all applicants for the position of registrar in the County of Brant and the County of Wentworth, the dates of the applications, the names of the appointees and the dates of the appointments.

Sir Oliver Mowat said that it was usual to give the applications in such cases.

It was pointed out that the applications were not asked, simply the dates of them, but Sir Oliver replied that the dates alone would be no use, and the motion was lost.

Mr. Marter rose to a question of privilege. The Globe, in reporting his speech on the Budget, said that he had been compelled to withdraw a certain statement he had made with reference to some remarks of Mr. Davis of North York on the surplus. He (Mr. Marter) had not been compelled to withdraw anything; he simply accepted the explanation of his statement given by Mr. Davis.

Hon. G. W. Ross accused Mr. Marter of abusing his privilege by declining to accept the statement of a member of the House; but, ascertaining that he misunderstood the position of the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Ross withdrew the statement.

A Government notice of motion ratifying certain orders-in-Council drew an enquiry from Mr. Marter with reference to the aid granted the General Hospital at Huntsville. Mr. Marter asked to which hospital the grant was made.

Mr. Gibson replied that it was made to the only hospital concerning which a report had been received from the inspector. He believed that there was another hospital there, a private concern.

Mr. Marter said that he understood that the hospital receiving Government aid was also a private concern, and he could see no reason why it should be singled out for Government favors, unless it was that its founder was an active Government supporter.

The order referring to this matter was held over. The others were allowed to pass without question. According to these the following institutions are named in the schedule of the Charity Aid Act: Bethesda Orphanage, Wellesley, Berlin and Waterloo Hospital, Woodstock Hospital, Maternity Hospital, Ottawa, Leeds and Greenville House of Industry ($4000). Huron House of Refuge ($4000), Old Folks' Home, Toronto, Infants' Home, Ottawa.

Dr. McKay of West Victoria, resumed the debate on the Budget. He reviewed briefly some of the items of Government expenditure and found none of them extravagant. Indeed, if any fault was to be found with the Government, it was because it was too parsimonious. In regard to the expenditure on colonization roads, especially, the besetting sin of the Government was its parsimony. He pointed out that two of the province's great sources of revenue, Crown lands and liquor licenses, would eventually become exhausted, and he therefore advised the Government not to take the advice of the Opposition, to make a reduction in the succession duties. The sooner liquor licenses ceased to be a source of revenue the better.

D. McNaughton of North Bruce (Patron) followed. He attacked the Education Department because of the relative expenditures on High and Public schools. He thought the distribution of public money in this respect was unfair. The policy should be to advance the Public schools. If a man wanted to educate his son for the professions diet him pay for it. If a farmer buys a farm for his son he has to pay for it; he should not have to pay for a professional education for another man's son. He criticised the management of the Ontario Agricultural College because of certain extravagances in connection with it. He recommended the Government to make an effort to make the institution self-sustaining and even profitable. In this time of depression he believed it to be the duty of the Government to economise and retrench as far as possible, and he recommended that something be done to this end in pruning down all high-paid officials. He was willing that economy should be practised in regard to the indemnities of members of the House, and was prepared, for his own part, to turn over $100 of his share for the general good.

The House rose at 4.45.

To Disqualify Pass Holders.

The following bills were introduced: An Act to amend the Election Act, Mr. McLean. The object of this bill is to enable persons whose names are entered on the voters' lists of a municipality and who have removed from the electoral district to some other locality in the province, to vote in the municipality in which they are entered on the list at any election for the Legislative Assembly held not later than six months after such removal, provided they are not entered on the voters' list in any other municipality.

An Act respecting the granting of passes and other special privileges by members of the Legislative Assembly, Mr. Haycock. This bill provides that every person entitled to travel free of charge or at a reduced rate or enjoying any other special privilege by virtue of any pass or other document issued or granted to him for the whole or part of his term of office as a member of the Legislative Assembly by any railway company carrying on business in this province shall, by the acceptance or use of such pass or other document, become disqualified to be a member of the Legislative Assembly.

An Act to extend the Woodman's Lien for Wages Act, Mr. Carnegie. The Woodman's Lien for Wages Act, enabling the employes of lumber companies to enforce their claim for wages was extended in 1894 to Muskoka, Parry Sound and Nipissing. The original Act applied only to Algoma, Rainy River and Thunder Bay. Mr. Carnegie's bill proposes to further extend the operation of the Act to the provisional county of Haliburton.

A MANVERS, ONT., WONDER!

The Life of Mr. A. Forsythe Saved by Paine's Celery Compound.

THE SAVED MAN SAYS: "I BELIEVE IT IS THE BEST MEDICINE IN THE WORLD."

In times of peril and danger—when doctors and medicines fail to save life—Paine's Celery Compound invariably is the preserver and renewer of old and young.

The testimony of Mr. A. Forsythe of Manvers, Ont., is another strong link in the great chain of evidence that the vast majority of patent medicines and medical prescriptions are quite worthless when disease has obtained the mastery. Mr. Forsythe makes the following declaration:

"For two years I was in a low condition of health, suffering from nervousness, fainting spells, pain in the head, stomach troubles and loss of appetite. I was attended by two doctors but received no benefit from their treatment. I also used two bottles of a recommended patent medicine, but no good results came. I was then advised by a neighbor to use your wonderful medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. The use of this marvellous preparation soon produced the very best results. I am glad to report that my health is improved in every respect; I am stronger, sleep better, and my appetite is good and natural. I am pleased to recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all sick people as I believe it is the best medicine in the world."

WHO IS THIS FORGER CONVICT?

He is Said to be a Native of Wolverton, Ont., and Was Convicted Under an Assumed Name.

Columbus, O., Feb. 27.—There was brought to the penitentiary yesterday from Mansfield a prisoner who was sentenced to serve a term of three years for the forgery of a $25 check. The man's lawyer said that the prisoner was related to New York persons of high standing and that letters to prove his previous good record were produced in court.

It is said that three years ago the prisoner was a rich citizen of New York city, well known in politics and a member of the Union League Club. He is said to have lost $140,000 by indorsing paper for a friend who failed. After that he soon lost the rest of his fortune and disappeared. His family, it is said, did not know what had become of him until his trouble in Mansfield necessitated his revealing his whereabouts in order to prove his previous character. He was committed under the admittedly assumed name of David M. Campbell.

The official description of the prisoner is as follows:

Age, 41; height, 5 feet 4 7-8 inches; eyes, hazel; hair, brown and gray; complexion, common; forehead, high and broad and retreating at the sides; brows, arched and apart; ears, medium and stand out; nose, medium and straight; chin, medium and round; small scar at corner of mouth.

He gave his nativity as Canada. He said his wife's name was Adele and that she lived at Detroit. He said he had a son named Albert living at the same place. His father's name he gave as Henry, and his mother's Elizabeth, and said they lived at Wolverton, Ontario, Canada.

More About the Great Remedy Which Relieves Rheumatism in a Few Hours and Cures in One to Three Days.

William McKenzie, Esq., of the G. T. R., Thamesville, Ont., says: "About two years ago I was completely laid up with the rheumatism and called in our family physician who attended me for weeks without benefit. At last I secured a bottle of South American Rheumatic Cure, and obtained relief in a few hours. Two bottles enabled me to resume work. It is the quickest acting remedy in the market, as one dose convinces of its great worth. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

SMALLPOX RAVAGES ZEITOUN.

U.S. Minister Terrell, at Constantinople, Reports Great Distress in Armenia.

Washington, Feb. 28.—A long telegram was received by Secretary Olney to-day from Minister Terrell at Constantinople telling of great distress in Armenia. He says that the inhabitants of Zeitoun and its vicinity are suffering from the ravages of smallpox and other diseases and from want of food. Relief expeditions are setting out as fast as possible. The progress is, however, necessarily slow and uncertain because the valleys are deep in mud and almost impassable, while the mountains are filled with snow, and the weather is unusually cold. The English Vice-Consul at Zeitoun has sent relief to Harpoot, and the Sultan has issued an Imperial decree insuring protection and facilities to Miss Clara Barton.

A SWIFT ACTING RIFLE.

One That a Single Straight Movement of the Hand Loads and Fires.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Dr. S. F. McClean of Washington, Ia., who has invented an army rifle that is causing astonishment among military men wherever it is exhibited, left Chicago for New York yesterday, to enter his rifle in competition before a committee of the State Legislature, which was appointed to equip the National Guard of that State with 15,000 new guns. The invention has been fully patented. A single straight movement of the hand loads and fires the rifle, which has a capacity of five cartridges at present. It is filled by one movement from a case containing the cartridges. The new contrivance makes clogging of the rifle or disarrangement of the cartridges impossible. It is lighter than other rifles, and 750 rounds have been fired at one time to test its endurance and faithfulness to aim.

ANOTHER BIG STREET CAR STRIKE.

Employes in Seven U.S. Cities Demand a Ten-Hour Day at Twenty Cents.

Philadelphia, Feb. 28.—The street railway employes of this and other cities are preparing to make a demand for a 10-hour day, at 20 cents an hour, and in the event of the refusal of the employers to grant the concessions asked it is said a general strike will occur. It is said this decision was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railroad Employes of America held recently at the headquarters of the organization in Detroit. The cities named are New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, Worcester and Milwaukee.

FOR TIRED FEELING.

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

OVERWORKED HIS HEART.

And Would Have Been a Dead Man but for Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart.

The whole trend of present day living is in the direction of the grave. Where our fathers lived so that they might prolong life, the people of the present day live so that they may shorten it. It is all hurry-burly and the result is that a large percentage of the men and women on the stage of life to-day are over working what at any time, and under any circumstances, is the hardest worked organ of the body—the heart. So long as people will persist in this method, the best thing they can do is to keep a remedy like Dr. Agnew's Cure for the heart, close by. This remedy is a heart remedy only, but is almost miraculous in its effects. In all cases of organic or sympathetic heart disease relief is secured within thirty minutes, and there are scores and hundreds of people in Canada who testify that had it not been for the prompt use of this medicine they would have been in their graves to-day. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

THEY WILL QUIT OCEAN RACING.

The Sailings of the American and White Star Liners are to be Changed.

New York, Feb. 28.—On and after April 1st next there will be no more ocean racing, so far as the American and White Star Line steamers are concerned. Under an agreement entered into by these two trans-Atlantic companies, it is the purpose of each to change its course of sailing from this side, so that the steamers may start several hours apart. The two companies have sent their ships from this side every Wednesday, within an hour of each other—the American line at 11 a.m., for more than a year, and the White Star at 10 a.m. since Jan. 1 last.

The annual report was submitted as follows by Mr. A. L. Grover:

In presenting the 7th annual report of this Sunday school, we record with gratitude the blessings bestowed upon us during the year by a kind Heavenly Father. Every step of the way has been marked by His gracious dealings with us.

While every year of the school's history has shown progress, this year has surpassed all others. Last year we reported an enrollment of 150. This year it has reached 217. The average attendance from Jan. 1st, 1895, to Dec. 31st, has been 141. This gratifying result has been brought about largely by a hearty co-operation of the church and its adherents. Exactly two-thirds of our our church membership are in the Sunday school labouring earnestly for its welfare either as officers, teachers or scholars. A spirit of intense loyalty to the school is characteristic of all connected with it. Along spiritual lines there have not been the results we have earnestly sought after, and therefore we do not review it with satisfaction; still there is very much to be grateful for. A goodly number of the scholars have professed faith in Jesus, and we are hoping that ere long there will be from these additions to the church. A large and enthusiastic men's class, now having enrolled 32, has added great interest to the school. The regular attendance of so many adults encourages and has proved beneficial to the work.

To the coming year we look forward with hope. Its prospects are bright, and we pray that God may give us grace and wisdom equal to the responsibilities that will lie upon us.

Tuesday Night's Attraction.

Read what the Cornwall Standard of Feb. 28th. says:—"Hands Across the Sea" drew a full house at the Music Hall last night, and it was no more than the performance merited. The play itself gives all the necessary material for an interesting melodrama, and the unravelling of the plot sustained the interest throughout. The play was full of life and introduced many startling situations. Maurice Freeman as the hero, "Jack Dudley" and Miss Nadine Winston as "Lillian" were very clever. The actors were greeted from time to time with loud applause. This company appears at Bradburn's Opera House, next Tuesday night. Prices, 25, 35, and 50 cents.

PETERBOROUGH LOST THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

HUNDREDS GO FROM TOWN TO SEE THE FINALS PLAYED.

The Ice Was Inches Deep in Slush—Lionel King's Wrist Was Broken—Parsons Was Knocked Senseless—It Was a Very Rough Game, but Peterborough Has Challenged the Granites for Another.

It is a long lane which has no turning and the Peterboroughs realized the truth of this old saw last evening when they were defeated for the first time in three years at the match which took place with the Granites in Toronto. The score stood seven to three and that the Peterboroughs ran in the hardest kind of luck is conceded by all. Early in the first half Lionel King received a heavy body check, which threw him against the wall with such force as to break one of the small bones in his wrist and necessitate his having to leave the ice. With King gone the magnificent combination of the Peterboroughs went all to pieces and although the defense put up a star game the Granites, encouraged by the poor success of their opponents in the way of scoring, woke up and poured in the shots on the Peterborough goal so rapidly that they soon gained a big lead on the boys, who have so successfully won and held the championship since the formation of the league. The strenuous efforts of the Peterboroughs to score after King had been laid off certainly entitled the boys to credit. Time after time did the remaining forwards take the puck up the whole length of the rink, going through the Granite defence with comparative ease, but when it came to shooting the goal the absence of King was felt as the puck would be passed across in front of the almost defenceless flags, but there was no one there to give it the necessary lift requisite to send it whizzing between the posts, as this part of the combination work was almost always left to King, who, in a rush, invariably plays about six feet in front of the goal ready to "do the necessary" when the puck is passed in from the opposite wing. Another disheartening factor in the match was the which Parsons received from the Granite goalkeeper. He was struck in the face by the stick of his opponent, lifted off his feet and thrown to the ice with such force as to cause him to lose consciousness. He was carried off the ice in a faint, but recovered sufficiently to again appear in about ten minutes. The two accidents occurring through the roughness of the Granites lend strength to the rumour that they intended to use their superior weight against the Peterboroughs, if the match was at all a close one. That they did so goes without saying, as several times during the game members of their team were retired from the ice by the referee for indulging in rough play.

The puck was faced off at 8.44 and was taken by Phelan down on the Granite goal, on which King made a shot, which was stopped by Carlyle. Phelan then got a chance to shoot, but the Toronto goal keeper was again in the way. Parsons also sent the puck whizzing in on the Granite goal but failed to tally. The Toronto defence relieved and besieged the Peterborough goal. Hamilton stopped two hot ones, but a third found its way through, and the first goal went to Toronto in 4½ minutes. Score, 1—0.

A great scrimmage in centre ice marked the beginning of the second game. Presently the puck who passed to the forwards, and with one of its old time dashes the Peterborough forward line went swinging down the rink like a flash. Everyone knew that they would score when they started—and they did. Phelan passed to King who hoisted the puck through the flags in just a minute and a half. Score, 1—1.

In the third game the excitement ran high and the Granites made things hot for the Peterboroughs on the start, but the defence was all there and held their own so well that gradually the scene of operations was transferred to the Granite goal. To avert defeat the Toronto men used their great weight with telling effect and the lighter players of the Peterboroughs went crashing into the wall time and again. For ten minutes the terrific onslaught on the Granites' flags was continued, when suddenly the referee's whistle was sounded and Lionel King was seen to be in trouble. An examination showed that one of the small bones in his wrist was broken, and the hopes and expectations which the Peterboroughs had formed were dashed to the ground by this most unfortunate of accidents. Dixon scored for Toronto in nineteen minutes. Score 2—1.

PUZZLED BY THE LOSS of King, the Peterboroughs allowed the Granites to close in the goal. Adams and Montgomery, however, put up a splendid game, and although the Granites made things interesting for the Peterboroughs' defence, they were unable to score before half-time was announced.

When the second half was begun a change in the formation of the Peterborough team was noticed. Parsons was back at his old position at cover point and Adams was put on the forward line. Peterborough hustled things from the start and Adams' dodging tactics showed up to good advantage. On good ice, even without King, the Peterboroughs would have stood a good chance of winning, but the slush was inches deep in places and it was weight, not skill, which was required to carry it through. The puck never left the Granite goal in this game and Phelan finally lifted it through in three minutes. Score 2—2.

Peterborough made a great effort to score the next game, Montgomery coming up on the forward line. Phelan took the puck from an offside faceoff and passed to Adams who sent it through the Granite flags. The referee, however, was not satisfied with the way in which Walter and would not allow the game. Phelan again secured the advantage at the face off and made a splendid shot on goal, which, however, was stopped. Again he shot and the puck went between the posts but the referee claimed that it had been taken on an offside play, and once again was the game disallowed.

The great exertions of the Peterboroughs began to tell on them and the Granite defence was soon able to relieve, and the Peterborough goal was besieged for a time, but the puck was soon back in the Granite territory again. In their defence of their flags the Granites were so rough that the referee put a couple of them on the fence for five minutes. The play was now all on the Toronto goal, but by massing their forwards in front of their flags the Granites prevented the Peterboroughs from scoring. The slush on the ice prevented the puck from being lifted with the strength and accurateness necessary to get it through such a crowd, and presently the two Granites who had been cooling their ardor on the fence again came into the melee and the Granite goal was relieved, and with a rush the Toronto boys went down on the Peterborough flags and Dixon scored for them in 27 minutes. This virtually as the Peterboroughs seemed to completely lose heart. The luck was all against them, and although rush after rush was made down the rink, the forward line seemed to go to pieces about twenty feet from the Granite flags. A final effort was made to even the score with Montgomery up in the forward line, and for a minute it looked as though Peterborough was going to do something, as the puck was scrimmaged within a couple of feet of the Granite goal. To relieve, the Granites slashed with their sticks in a bloodcurdling manner. Finally the big six foot goal keeper came from between his flags with a rush, and with his stick struck Parsons a blow across his face, which felled him to the ice and sent him into dreamland for a few minutes. The referee, unfortunately, did not see this incident. Parsons again appeared on the ice but appeared to be dazed. Within six minutes the Granites scored three goals. Phelan then braced up and made one of his grand rushes down the ice, scoring in about half a minute.

Another great effort was now made by Peterborough to tie the score. Adams was left on defence and Parsons and Montgomery went on the forward line. It was no use though, for although the fighting was all on the Granite goal and the puck passed within an inch of the flags, half a dozen times, there never seemed to be anyone there at the critical moment, to tip it through. When the Granite defence returned they easily scored another game, and as time was called shortly afterwards the match went to Toronto by the score of seven goals to three.

THE CONSOLIDATED MILLING COMPANY.

Great Success of the New Milling and Grain Buying Establishment.

In the case of the above company consolidation and success seem to go hand in hand. A concentration of energy, facilities and management seem to have borne good fruit. The other day a representative of The Examiner happened in the vicinity of the Otonabee mills and was greatly impressed with the bustle and activity that prevailed in, on and in the vicinity, of the the premises. The excellent site of these old and well known mills, dating back nearly half a century, is known far and wide as one of the most central and accessible situations in the district, especially from the farmers' point of view. There were throngs of farmers from all directions and the expeditious and business-like manner, in which Mr. Eakins and his assistants, attended to the numerous wants of their many customers, afforded at least, one explanation of the popularity which the Consolidated Milling Company achieved. Though only in existence a short time, under its present management, this thoroughly equipped and well managed establishment has already gained an enviable reputation for a strictly honourable and straight forward manner of dealing with the public. The quality of their flour is of the very best, and, when to this fact is added courteous and considerate attention to their customers, it is no surprise that Consolidated Milling Company is rapidly working up a large business.

A circumstance the public will appreciate is the fact that new and more commodious business offices have been opened, adding one more to the other pleasures of doing business with this Company.

INCREASING BUSINESS NECESSITATES ENLARGEMENT.

The Premises of the Golden Lion now Include a Floor Space Equal to That of the Large Departmental Stores.

The growing demand in the business of Mr. Robert Fair, of the Golden Lion, has increased to such a degree that he has had to make arrangements for such additional space as to make his establishment equal in size to the large departmental stores in town. "Fair's way" seems to be a very taking way, indeed, by the way the business of the Golden Lion is steadily assuming such great volume.

The third flat or carpet department of the premises has now been so enlarged as to include a number of rooms hitherto reserved for other purposes. The partitions have been torn down and as a result Mr. Fair is in possession of a fine, large, well-lighted apartment 25x60 feet in size. The room is newly papered and tinted. About sixty feet of new shelving has been put in and a splendid stock of the most varied patterns of carpets in the province are being arranged. There are Axminsters, Brussels, Wiltons, tapestries ingrains and reversible unions of every conceivable shade and degree of richness. The growing demand and the favour which his special lines of carpet are finding in the eyes of the public determined Mr. Fair to pay especial attention to this department and as the result the assortment to choose from is a large one indeed. That he is justified in the step which he has taken, is proven by the statement, that this spring's business is the largest in the history of the Golden Lion.

The fourth flat of the premises is to be utilized hereafter, and will be reserved for English floor oilcloths, linoleums, cocoa mattings, twine mattings and china mattings. This department is 25x45 feet in size and of two adjoining rooms one is used for the reserve stock of which, as an importer, Mr. Fair always carries a great quantity, and the other as a depository for wadded paper for placing under carpets, felt paper, stair pads and a large number of other requisites used in the housekeeping department.

Access to these upper flats is easily gained by the new safety rapid transit elevator.

With enlarged premises and every facility for accomodating patrons, the outlook for a great increase in business at the Golden Lion this year, is not only promising but deserved.

HOCKEY.

In its report of last night's hockey match the Mail and Empire has the following to say:—"The score does not fairly indicate the comparative strength of the teams. Notwithstanding that the match was played in slush and water, it was an infinitely better contest from a spectator's point of view than the recent final in the senior series. It was a rusher from the face-off to the call of time, and at all times the ultimate result was in doubt. It is due to the Peterborough boys to say that under unfavourable conditions they played a very fine game. They were neater than the Granites, and on the whole played combination.

CURLIANA.

The return match in the Peterborough-Lindsay cup competition will be played off on Tuesday afternoon next. Three rinks of Granites will go to Lindsay, and three rinks of the Thistles play on the local ice.

Six rinks of the Victorias, of Toronto, come down on Thursday next to play the return match in the Boucher-Davidson competition. The Granites and Thistles will each play three rinks against them in the afternoon.

A meeting of the Granites will be held in the rink to-night at 8 o'clock to decide who will be the skips in the two above matches and to make the draws in the ones medal competition.

Short Sketches of Great Men.

Æsop.

The cathode rays of the new photography would be useful indeed, if they could be used in penetrating the mist which envelopes the life and works of our author. The barren registry of the mere name of Æsop is almost all that biography can claim to deepen our interest in a man so pre eminently conspicuous amid the gray mists of early Grecian literature. If to this we add the slenderest notice of his birthplace—even this the subject of dispute—and of his death, we have nearly all that can honestly be claimed as the story of his life.

We have it on the excellent authority of Herodotus and Aristotle that Æsop flourished about the middle of the sixth century, B. C., when the wealthy Crœsus was king of Lydia, Amasis, Pharaoh of Egypt, and Peisistratus lorded it over the Athenians. A survey of that important epoch in Grecian history will go to prove that he was no inapt representative of the great social and intellectual movement going on at that time; or rather he will appear to be, as it were, a stepping stone between the poetry which had gone before and the prose that followed, making the politics and morals of the day his study, but clothing his lectures in the garb of imagination and fancy.

As to the place of his birth the weight of evidence points to Phrygia Major. Lucian, Phædrus and Aulus Gellius; in making mention of him, refer to him as Æsop the Phrygian. That he was born a slave we may conclude from what Phædus relates of him in Book II., Fable IX. and Book III., Fable XIX. His boyhood days were probably spent at Athens, and slave though he was, he could not have spent them in a more favoured spot. Such was his poor start in life, and who would have thought that, with no outward circumstances of fortune to recommend him to the notice of the great, he would force his way by his mother wit into the courts of princes and lay the foundation of a fame more universal and perhaps more lasting in its influence than that of all the seven wise men of Greece, his worthy contemporaries?

From Athens Æsop went to the Isle of Samos, where we find him taking a very prominent position, which goes to prove that he had been emancipated from slavery. Aristotle, in the second book of his Rhetoric, Chapter XX, represents him as speaking to the Samians in behalf of a demagogue who was impeached for plundering the commonwealth. On this occasion Æsop is said to have applied the fable of the Fox and the Hedgehog. This fable was afterwards applied by Tiberius to the extortionate prefects of the Roman provinces, and it has a modern application to Canadian politics, which the reader can make for himself.

Plutarch is our authority for the statement that Æsop, on leaving Samos, came to Croesus, King of Lydia. His fame had probably preceded him, but less as a sage than as a wit. Here he quickly grew in favour with the Lydian monarch, from the mode in which he imparted his knowledge. While Solon held the school-master's rod over the philosophical monarch, Æsop conciliated alike his will and his reason by timely drollery and subtly conveyed advice. He must not, however, be looked upon as a mere court jester. He came to amuse, but he remained to instruct, and Croesus, according to Suidas, learned more from the fictions of Æsop than from all the learned disquisitions of his retained philosophers. Æsop made several voyages into Greece either for pleasure or in connection with the affairs of Crœsus. Being at Athens a short time after Peisistratus had usurped the sovereignty and abolished the popular government, and observing that the Athenians bore their new yoke with great impatience, he repeated to them the fable of the frogs demanding a king, a lesson both to prince and people. This we have on the authority of Phædrus, book I, Fable II. In the Canadian House of Commons, at the time of the crisis during the present session, the great economist of the house, Mr. McMullen, in the course of his sympathetic speech made a clever allusion to this fable, by asking the Conservatives if they had become tired of King Log, Sir McKenzie Bowell, and desired King Stork, Sir Charles Tupper? Æsop was also present at the Court of Periander, King of Corinth, at the banquet of the Seven Wise Men, an account of which is given by Plutarch.

We come now to Æsop's death, and again we follow Plutarch (De sera Numinis vindicata, page 536.) Æsop went to the oracle of Apollo at Delphi to offer a great sacrifice to the God in the name of Crœsus and to give each inhabitant a large sum of money. He offered sacrifice but sent back the money, thinking the inhabitants of Delphi unworthy of the gift, immersed as they were in pride, avarice and barbarism. Unfortunately for himself he allowed his contempt and aversion to become publicly apparent, though clothed in his usual allegory. Jealous of their reputation and seeing that their craft was in danger, they resolved to silence the censures of Æsop by depriving him of his life. They raised against him the vulgar cry, too often successful, of impiety and sacrilege. He was tried and condemned to death. For once his ready weapon failed. He is said to have appealed to their reverence for the laws of hospitality in the fable of the Eagle and Beetle. But he appealed in vain. They dragged him forward to the fatal spot and precipitated him from a rock, and he fell lifeless at its base. Thus perished as he lived, the sage and celebrated Æsop, mixing wisdom with wit, entertainment with instruction. He was not unavenged. Plagues cursed the scene of his murder and the conscience smitten Delphians, to deliver themselves from the pestilence and famine that distressed them, paid wergild to the grandson of his master Iadmon. The proverb of Æsop's blood in after times gave warning to his countrymen that a murdered man's blood will not cry to heaven in vain.

There are no further authentic notices of Æsop's life and death. The ridiculous particulars of his life and person as they are commonly given are but a compilation made in the middle ages of sorry jokes borrowed from various quarters, with enough of older fact and tradition to give them a sort of plausible consistency. The whole has been attributed to the imagination of Planudes, a monk of the fourteenth century. It is such a mixture of legends, fictions, absurd stories, manifest improbabilities and anachronisms that it is unworthy of credit.

Concerning the reputation of Æsop in antiquity a few words will be in order. Æsop was of the same turn of mind as the seven wise men of Greece, his worthy contemporaries. Their appearance marks an epoch in Grecian history, inasmuch as they are the first persons whoever acquired an Hellenic reputation, grounded on mental competency apart from poetical genius or effect. Their celebrity rests upon moral, social and political wisdom exclusively, which came into greater honour, as the ethic feeling of the Greeks improved and as their experience became enlarged. Added to this, in the case of Æsop, was the manner in which he clothed his wisdom. There is scarcely an author among the ancient Greeks who mixed anything of morality in his writings but either quotes or mentions him. The Athenians, those excellent judges of true glory, erected a noble statue to this learned and ingenious slave, to let all the people know, says Phædrus, that the ways of honour were open indifferently to all mankind, that it was not to birth but to merit, that they paid so honorable a distinction The statue was the workmanship of Lysippus and was placed in front of the Seven Sages. To be able to tell a good story from Æsop was the indispensable accomplishment of an Athenian gentleman, and he who had not got Æsop's Fables at his finger's end, was looked upon as an illiterate dunce. Aristophanes, in his Comedy the Aves, line 471, brings on the stage one man upbraiding another for ignorance and illiteracy in these words: "You have not so much as read Æsop." Aesop's practical wisdom was as much regarded as his caustic humour, and the common tradition that he appeared alive again and fought at Thermopylæ tells more for the honour in which he was held as a patriot than a hundred authentic anecdotes.

Plato in that immortal dialogue on the immortality of the soul, the Phædo, describes Socrates in those serious hours he spent in prison, just before he drank the fatal hemlock, as turning some of the Fables into verse, and in the Republic, when discussing education, Plato himself earnestly recommends his Fables to nurses to instruct their children in them betimes, in order to form their manners and inspire them early with the love of reason. Mention could also be made of Aristotle, Demetrius, Phalereus, Herodotus, Demosthenes, Lucian Plutarch, and many others. Among the Latin writers Ennius, Horace, Catullus and Tibullus have embellished their poetry with his Fables. Quintilian mentions him. Phædrus gives him abundant applause, and Aulus Gellius praises him at length. We thus see that the fame of Æsop as a Greek fabulist was established on a sure foundation before the commencement of the Christian era, and no subsequent discoveries, nor learned paradoxes can destroy it, and the fact that many of his fables are recorded by the poets, historians and philosophers of repute in ancient Greece and Rome is a sufficient answer to those who maintain that they were written by Babrius, whose long lost fables were but recently (1842) discovered on Mount Athos.

Concerning his reputation in modern times, we will only state that with the exception of the Bible and Pilgrim's Progress we doubt if any other book has been translated into so many different languages. Martin Luther was so fond of them that we find, on the authority of Sir James Stephen, that Æsop lay on the same table with the Book of Psalms, and the two translations proceeded alternately, and he declared that he knew no better book, except the Bible only.

RHEUMATISM

Its Cause and Cure.

A poisonous Acid in the Blood, which needs removal.

Only one means for a radical cure.

Rheumatism is a blood disease, due to the presence of uric acid—a poison—in the system, and it is only by the removal of this pain-producing poison, that a radical cure can be effected. Acute rheumatism is hereditary, and thus it is that young children are often victims to this torture. The use of liniments, embrocations and outward applications, may give temporary relief, but can never cure, for the poison is in the blood, and until it is expelled, rheumatism, sciatica and neuraligic pains will continue. Scotts' Sarsaparilla cures rheumatism by removing the cause—by neutralizing and expelling this poisonous acid. In chronic cases, this medicine reaches the source of the disease as no other medicine can. It gives renewed energy to the organs that sustain life, the forces that make the blood. For the nervous troubles of youth, for the debility that precedes old age, for ladies in their severe ordeals, it is without a compeer.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated compound of the finest medicines known to modern medical science—The dose is from one half to one teaspoonful and during its use the ordinary vocations are not interfered with.

THAT "KOOTENAY" WILL CURE CATARRH.

Read the Sworn Statement of Three of Hamilton's Citizens.

Dominion of Canada, County of Wentworth, Province of Ontario, to wit:

I, William G. Cox, of the City of Hamilton, in the County of Wentworth, flour and feed merchant, at 374 King street west, in said city, do solemnly declare and say that it affords me great pleasure to add my testimony as to the wonderful properties of "KOOTENAY CURE" for catarrh, with which I have been troubled for fully ten years. I tried almost every advertised medicine for this disease, but without success until I began taking Ryckman's "KOOTENAY CURE," in October, 1895, and found after following the directions closely, that it has exceeded my most sanguine expectations, and relieved me from all of the unpleasant symptoms of the disease. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one thus afflicted, and feel confident that if its use is persevered in for a reasonable time, and directions faithfully observed, that it will lead to a positive cure.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act.

(Signed) WILLIAM G. COX.

Declared before me at the city of Hamilton, in the County of Wentworth, this 18th day of February, A.D. 1896.

(Signed) W. FRED WALKER, Notary Public.

Dominion of Canada, County of Wentworth, Province of Ontario, to wit:

I, Margaret Sovereign, of the city of Hamilton, in the County of Wentworth, Province of Ontario, residence 376 King street west, do solemnly declare that I am pleased to make the following declaration: My daughter Lulu, aged 14, was troubled with catarrh for two years, and during that time her health was very poor. Our family physician was called in and pronounced her case inflammation of the lungs and catarrh. Her constitution gradually ran down, and until she commenced taking Kootenay Cure we were alarmed about her. She has now taken one bottle and a half of the medicine and has gained eleven pounds in weight, has rosy cheeks, her general health has been greatly improved, and she feels that she is being cured of catarrh.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath or by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act.

(Signed) MARGARET SOVEREIGN.

Dominion of Canada, County of Wentworth, Province of Ontario, to wit:

I, Josephine Stuart, of the City of Hamilton, in the County of Wentworth, Province of Ontario, spinster, residing at 374 King street west, in said city of Hamilton, do solemnly declare and say as follows: That I have been suffering from catarrh for a period of nearly five years past; that during that time I have used various remedies, recommended for that disease, without receiving any relief for it. About two months ago, on the recommendation of a friend, I commenced to take "Kootenay Cure," and have used two bottles according to directions, and have experienced great relief. While I cannot say I am completely cured, I am satisfied I am almost so, and shortly will be by the use of this medicine. I cannot too highly recommend it to all patients suffering from catarrh.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing it to be true, and knowing that it is of the same force and effect as if made under oath and by virtue of the Canada Evidence Act.

(Signed.) JOSEPHINE STUART.

NINE THOUSAND DOLLAR BLAZE.

Chemical Laboratory at the Ontario Agricultural College Destroyed.

Guelph, Feb. 28.—Fire destroyed the chemical laboratory at the Ontario Agricultural College this morning. About 5.10 o'clock Mr. Colon, one of the farm hands noticed a blaze in the southwest corner of the building. When the alarm summoned the students to the scene the whole front interior of the structure was in flames. The students got their hose attached and soon had a stream playing on the flames. It was even then apparent that their efforts to save the building would be futile and a large umber were put to work removing the books and chemicals that had not yet been reached by the fire.

Meanwhile the alarm in the city had sent the brigade to the scene. Firemen and students worked hard, but unavailingly. The heavily slated roof of the doomed structure kept the blaze confined to the building until its interior was a mass of charred ruins At 7 o'clock the fire had spent its force. The cause of the disaster is a mystery. John Harcourt, assistant chemist, closed the laboratory at 11 o'clock. About 4.30 this morning a party of young people returning from a dance in Puslinch noticed a light in the southwest corner of the laboratory, but paid no attention to it further than remarking that some of the students were at work early.

The building, erected about nine years ago, was a substantial and commodious brick structue, situated on the college campus between the main building and the gymnasium. It was one story high, with a 16 foot ceiling, and was divided into an office and private library for the chemist. It was well supplied with all the chemicals and costly appliances of a first-class laboratory. Most of the materials and Prof. Shuttleworth's library were saved. The library of Prof. Harcourt was destroyed. The loss on the building will be $7500, and on the contents about $1500. There was no insurance.

IT DOES NOT SCARE SPRECKLES.

The Youngest Son of the Hawaiian Sugar King Will Face the Charges.

San Francisco, Feb. 28.—Rudolph Spreckles, youngest son of Claus Spreckles, sugar king, sailed for Honolulu on the steamer City of Peking His mission, it is said, is to face President Dole and his Cabinet, by whom he is charged with treason against the Hawaiian Government.

The charge of treason was preferred against Spreckles by Dole after the Hawaiian uprising a year ago. He was accused of supplying the revolutionists with arms and funds, and in one instance giving the ex-Queen $10,000 to aid in carrying out her plans to overthrow the republican Government and place her niece, Princess Kaiulani, on the throne.

Soon after these charges were made a report reached Honolulu that Rudolph Spreckles was en route to the capital on a Pacific line steamship. When the vessel arrived at Honolulu a detail of soldiers went on board and searched for the young millionaire, but failed to find him. He had arranged to make the trip, but altered his intention on the day the steamer sailed.

With such a serious charge hanging over his head, it was believed Spreckles would not return to Hawaiian soil, and his unexpected departure caused consternation among his friends. He will undoubtedly be arrested upon the arrival of the steamer.

Helps for the Ladies.

Within the last few years science has been at work, and the results are the Fast Diamond Dyes for Cotton—Turkey, Red, Pink, Purple, Crimson, Seal Brown, Orange, Olive Green, Brown, etc. These dyes make colours so fast that even washing in strong soap-suds will not move or change them. Ladies are warned against buying crude and imitation Dyes that are utterly worthless and positively dangerous to use.

MANITOBA'S NEW RAILWAY.

The Legislature Grants Aid to the Road Into the Lake Dauphin Country.

Winnipeg, Feb. 28.—(Special.)—In the House to-day, a resolution granting aid to the railway running into the Lake Dauphin country, was passed without opposition. The proposed line starts from Portage la Prairie, and extends about 150 miles northwestward. At Portage la Prairie connection is made with the C. P. and the N. P. and the Manitoba & Northwestern Railways. It is said the building of this road, which begins this spring, will insure the construction of an air line from Winnipeg to Duluth, because with running powers over the Northern Pacific between Winnipeg and Portage la Prairie, which, it is said, are already arranged for, the proposed Winnipeg-Duluth Railway, would have access to wheat fields over 2500 miles in extent.

BISHOP, RECTOR AND CURATE.

These Three Ecclesiastics Have Each Spoken Cordial Words in Favour of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

One of the most cordial endorsements of the curative powers of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder has come from the Bishop of Toronto. But he has not stood alone in his praise of this medicine. He was followed by men like the Rev. John Langtry, and the Rev. W. H. Wade, rector of the Church of the Ascension, Hamilton; Ont., and falling into line with the Rev. W. R. Williams, Mr. Langtry's popular curate, the Rev. H. B. Gwynne, assistant pastor of St. Peter's church, Hamilton, has been of the latest to endorse this wonderful remedy. It never fails, and is so quick, in case of cold in the head and catarrh, and is the current panacea for Hay Fever. Sample bottle and blower sent on receipt of two 3-cent stamps. S. G. Detchon, 44 Church street Toronto. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

TO SLAUGHTER THE BOERS.

Jameson's Men Were Armed With Six Power Explosive Bullets.

New York, Feb. 27.—Mr. G. Van Deth, a citizen of the Transvaal, now in this city, has ventured some amazing assertions in regard to Dr. Jameson's raid, giving as his authority letters from his Boer friends and files of The Amsterdam Telegraaf. He alleges that Dr. Jameson has been guilty of untruth in stating that 200 Boers were killed by his troops, as there were but five victims. But, though this makes the bloodshed insignificant, he asserts that butchery was the purpose of the raid, Jameson's troops having been armed with cartridges loaded with explosive Maxim bullets, each of which would have killed six men.

He asserts that 1,000,000 bullets of the same pattern were shipped into Johannesburg from Cape Town by Dr Jameson and Cecil Rhodes, together with all the other munitions of war, and preparations fully made for a general rising of the Uitlanders and complete massacre of the Boers. He says that in proof of this President Kruger is in possession of papers lost by Jamezon and has discovered the explosive bullets in Johannesburg. Cecil Rhodes was at the bottom of the whole affair and on Jameson's defeat at once resigned so that it would appear that the chartered company, of which he was a director, and not the English Government inspired the contemplated massacre of Boers and the seizure of the Rand. The sum spent by the English to equip the Uitlanders he estimated at $20,000,000.

The Winter Cough of Children

Is often a source of anxiety to parents, and properly so, for if neglected the seeds of consumption or bronchitis may take root! Cough medicines are objectionable owing to their tendency to upset the stomach and to impair the appetite, thus reducing the nutritive power of the body and adding to the emaciation and incidentally to the pulmonary irritation. It is of importance to know that Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is admirably suited to these cases, not only because of its efficient action, but none the less on account of its palatability, for children soon grow fond of it. The remedial action of the oil is fortified by the nutritive value of wheat, oats, and barley of the maltine, and further by its action upon starchy foods, which are rendered soluble, and thereby becomes fitted to afford that abundance of nourishment which after all is the essential medicine in these cases. Nourish well and the cough will cease. Maltine, with Cod Liver Oil, for these reasons possesses ten times the remedial value of any emulsion.

. . . THE . . .

Canada Life Assurance Co.

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business In Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows:—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nearly 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life.

ITS RATES ARE THE LOWEST AND PROFITS THE LARGEST.

A woman's headaches may come from several causes. She may have a headache arising from nervousness, or from digestive disturbances; just the same as a man might suffer for the same reasons. Nine cases in ten, however, her headaches come from disorders peculiar to her sex. Possibly the apparent cause of the headache will be nervousness or indigestion, while the cause of these is not thought of. The organs distinctly feminine are more vital than any other organs in a woman's body. Any trouble of those affects the whole body. It may show itself in the symptoms which are characteristic of a dozen disorders. Thousands of times, women have been treated for the disorders thought to be indicated by these symptoms, when the real trouble was much deeper and more serious. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was compounded for the sole purpose of relieving womankind of the ills and pains very commonly considered the uncomfortable inheritance of her sex. It cures where really good physicians have failed. Thousands of women have testified that after taking treatment from several physicians without benefit, the "Favorite Prescription" cured them completely and quickly. It has been used for over thirty years, and has an unbroken record of success. The afflicted woman will find immediate relief and ultimate cure in the "Favorite Prescription." There is no doubt about it—there is no question about it. The woman who hesitates is invited to send 31 one-cent stamps for customs and cost of mailing a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This celebrated work contains full information about Dr. Pierce's medicines, with the reproduced photographs of hundreds of people who have been cured by these world-famed remedies, also giving their names and addresses, besides plain, clear information about all of the organs of the human body and their functions. It has reached the unprecedented sale of 680,000 copies at $1.50 a copy. Thus the expense of preparation has been defrayed, and now 500,000 copies will be absolutely given away. Remember that this book is not a mere advertising pamphlet, but a genuine standard work of 1008 large pages, over 300 illustrations, some of them in colors. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

Maud—What is the trouble between Alice and Kate? Ethel—Why, you see, Alice asked Kate to tell her just what she thought of her. Maud—Yes? Ethel—Kate told her!—Boston Budget.

He—Oh, dear! I wish I could get hold of some good biscuits like mother used to make for me! She—And I wish I could get some good clothes like father used to buy for me.—Indianapolis Journal.

Charles—Really, I think that Miss Gray takes a good deal of interest in me. Henry—But you should remember that where the interest is large security is apt to be pretty poor.—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Hicks—I'd like to know what you could have to say to that disreputable looking dog-catcher. Hicks—I told him if your poodle got lost to come around and I would give him a dollar.—Truth.

She—Do you think that Mr. Warrington still oves his wife? He—Loves her? I should say he did. Why, if she should use his best razor for a can-opener Warrington would not complain.—Somerville Journal.

Visitor (hearing the piano in the next room)—Is that your daughter? She appears to be playing with only one hand. Gentleman of the house—Yes; her fellow is probably playing with the other.—Boston Transcript.

"Doctor, my father wanted me to study medicine, but I wouldn't have made a successful physician. "Indeed! Why not pray?" "Because I could not have felt a lady's pulse without causing heart trouble."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Susy—Say auntie, dear, you're an old maid, aren't you?. Aunt Emma (hesitatingly)—Certainly, Susy; but it is not nice of you to ask such a question. Susy—Now, don't be vexed, auntie; I know it isn't your fault!—Herriedener Laubfrosch

He was proposing to the Boston girl, and in the fervor of his plea he leaned over her anxiously. "Pardon me," she said, "are you not getting a trifle too parsimonious?" "Parsimonious?" he gasped. "Yes," she said; "or, as the vulgar would put it, 'close.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Posted on the Ring.

"Strange," remarked Mrs. Brown. "I have rung at Mrs. Smith's door three times this week, and I didn't succeed in arousing any one. I suppose the family is out of town?"

"Possibly," replied Mrs. Jones; "but Mrs. Smith was telling me just now that she could tell your ring among a thousand."—Spare Moments.

An Old Thing Out West.

Mr Effete—Really! What do they run with?

Drawbead Dick—Mules.—New York World.

New York's Busiest Corner.

"Something terrible to look at, isn't it?" said one woman to another, looking back as they reached the sidewalk after crossing Broadway at Fourteenth street. Maybe she didn't actually mean exactly that, and then, again, perhaps it struck her in just that way. Certainly that corner at this busy season, with its throngs of pedestrians and many passing teams and cable-cars, rounding at speed, presents easily the most exciting street scene in New York. People halt on the sidewalks to look at it.—New York Sun.

Lunacy and the Moon.

A short time before Dr. Charcot died he said in a lecture that semi-scientists had for more than fifty years ridiculed the idea that the full of the moon was a dangerous time for mad people. Better informed men are coming back to that old-time notion, said Dr. Charcot, as the result of increased learning on the subject of earth tides, similar to the oscillation of sea tides.

Their Chance for Marriage.

A female orphan asylum in Naples sends all of its proteges who are over 18 years of age every year to a neighboring church, to be chosen in marriage. The girls, all dressed in black, kneel before the altar, and the suitors, after their credentials have been approved by an attendant priest, pass in and select their brides.

A Singular Coincidence.

A Lewiston (Me.) man who picked up a gold ring on the street the other day took it home and found that it belonged to his wife.

Mr. H. E. Hudson, Combermere, Severely Injured—Protruding Knot Entered the Body — Cured by One Box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Combermere, Feb. 17, (Special)—Mr. H. E. Hudson, trapper, hunter and lumberman, was injured by falling on a knot which entered his body from beneath and injured the bladder and kidneys. He says: "I was confined to my bed for six weeks and was rarely able to work, feeling too weak since the injury over eight years ago. I have taken one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and am perfectly cured and as able-bodied as ever before in my life. One box was worth one hundred dollars to me, if it is possible to estimate such a benefit in dollars."

A Witty Girl's Retort.

At a card party in the northwest a few evenings ago a cross-eyed man was posing as the man who knew it all, giving his positive opinions on every subject in a loud voice, and otherwise making himself a general nuisance.

A Boston girl was particularly annoyed at the lordly air he assumed and the attacks he had made on some of her pet theories. She had made up her mind to bowl him over if she ever got a chance.

It came sooner than expected. A few minutes later the Boston girl was the partner of the cross-eyed man, who immediately proceeded to give elaborate instructions as to how certain cards should be played to insure them the game. He finished by saying, "Now, go ahead, Miss Back Bay, and remember I have my eye on you." She never looked up, but in the most innocent way imaginable said, "Which eye, Mr. Jones?" It broke up the party.—Washington Post.

HORSE RACING BILL.

York. Canadian horsemen had their own interests to conserve. With regard to the Windsor meetings, everything was conducted there regularly. In drawing up lease to the Southerners he had been particular to see that no illegal practices could be pursued, and the lessees were limited to book-making and pool selling. Mr. Hendrie's sons had visited the track and put up the money on horses.

Mr. W. Hendrie, jr. (indignantly)—If you refer to me, I never bet a dollar on the track. (Laughter.)

Mr. White, continuing, said that the amount of money invested by the different driving clubs throughout the Dominion was enormous, and it would be an outrage to put them under the control of the Jockey Club.

The general discussion then ceased, and preamble and clauses 1, 2 and 3 of the bill were passed.

Clause 4, defining the constitution of the club committee, was amended by making the committee consist of 12 members, instead of 13.

Mr. Lister—Why do you make it 12?

A member—Because 13 is an unlucky number. (Laughter.)

Clause 5, defining the powers of the club, was amended in its different sub-sections so as to bring it in harmony with Col. Tisdale's statement that the provisions of the bill should only apply to affiliated clubs.

Clause 7 was amended so that a copy of the by-laws should be mailed to every club affiliated with the Jockey Club.

On clause 9, Mr. Smith (Ontario) asked, if the bill became law, would it apply to trotting races or races controlled by any fair or agricultural association?

The chairman replied in the negative. At Mr. Smith's request a clause specifying the application of the act as not covering those races was inserted.

Mr. McKay regretted the absence of Mr. Lottridge of Hamilton, and read a telegram from him, urging that the bill should be passed to protect good, honest racing in Canada, in order to encourage the breeding of a superior class of horses.

Mr. Davies of Toronto, speaking on the subject of outlawing, said that all the Jockey Club wanted was to have the power to say that the men who were conducting these 60-day meetings should not race under Jockey Club auspices.

Mr. McGregor, M.P., contended that when a man was in good standing and his horses had not been disqualified he should have the right to go on the tracks of the club.

Mr. Boyd of Marquette said that Mr. McGregor's contention could not be recognized. Any club could refuse the entry of a horse. He fully approved of the provision, and desired to secure the co-operation of the English and New York Jockey Clubs.

Mr. Lister moved the insertion of a clause as follows: "No horse, if otherwise in good standing, shall be ruled out of any race track of the club by reason only of such horse having run on a track or tracks of any club or incorporated company not affiliated with the club."

The amendment was negatived by a large majority and the bill was then ordered to be reported. Mr. Lister, however, will endeavor in the House to secure the insertion of his amendment in the bill.

VITAL TO PERFECT HEALTH.

If in Doubt. Use South American Kidney Cure.

The average man or woman cannot trifle with that slight pain in the back that may be thought only a result of cold. More than likely it is the warning note that kidney trouble has taken hold of the system. It is simply amazing the extent to which kidney disease is common in Canada. The wise man will take time by the forelock, and in using South American Kidney Cure drive the disease from the system in its incipient stages. Fortunately, if it too late to do this, this remedy is strong enough to battle with the worst case of kidney disease. It is another instance of doing only one thing, but doing it well. South American Kidney Cure is a kidney cure. It does not make any other claims, but no other remedy can meet it on its own ground. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Hegyard's Pectoral Balsam cures coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles.

NERVOUS HEADACHE.

A TROUBLE THAT RENDERS THE LIFE OF MANY WOMEN MISERABLE.

A Sufferer for Twelve Years Whose Trouble was Aggravated by Kidney Disease Tells How to Regain Health and Happiness.

From the Smith's Falls Record.

Since the Record began to publish accounts of the cures by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, its representatives have found that half the wonderful cures effected by this medicine have not yet been given to the public. Women as well as men who have found relief are eager to let the facts be known for the benefit of other sufferers. Among them is Mrs. James Cotnam, of the township of Wolford.

SUFFERED FROM SEVERE HEADACHE.

The lady referred to was for twelve years a constant sufferer from nervousness, headache and kidney trouble. Having read so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills she determined to give them a trial. Their use for a short time brought a great improvement, and after taking them for about a month the nervous headache and kidney trouble left her. The degree of thankfulness felt by one who receives such benefits as the above can better be imagined than described. Here are Mrs. Cotnam's words: "If you could only know or if I could but tell of the intense suffering which I have endured and the many sleepless nights I have spent in mental and physical agony, you would not wonder at the degree of thankfulness I feel for my restoration to health." Her trouble was a continual dread to her, and for a long time prevented her from doing any work. Since using the pills she is as well as ever—or to use her own words—"fully restored." In this household Pink Pills are now looked upon as one of the necessaries.

As is the case with every good cause Pink Pills have much to contend with; spurious article have been placed on the market, and, though in appearance and colour they may resemble the genuine, they have an altogether different effect on the system. The writer was once in a store when Pink Pills were asked for by a customer. The dealer hadn't them but said that he had something "just as good." The public are warned against this "just as good scheme" which is too often resorted to by some storekeepers. It should be borne in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific for all diseases arising from an impoverished condition of the blood or a shattered condition of the nervous forces, such as St. Vitus' Dance, locomotor ataxia, rheumatism, paralysis, sciatica, the after effects of la grippe, loss of appetite, headache, dizziness, chronic erysipelas, scrofula, etc. They are also a certain cure for the troubles peculiar to the female suppressions and all forms of female weakness, building anew the blood and restoring the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of any nature. Sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper (printed in red ink), and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schnectady, N. Y., at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Official Report of the Work of the Peterborough Organization.

From the elaborate report of Mr. J. J. Kelso, the Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children, issued by the Ontario Government, the following report of the local society is taken:

The Children's Aid Society of Peterborough report having investigated forty-one complaints of children either ill-treated or neglected, the number of children involved being seventy-five. Eleven cases in Police court were attended to, and warnings that legal action would be taken were issued to thirteen different parties. The Secretary writes as follows:

In January of this year, 1895, our Society appointed a salaried agent, Mr. Finch Miller, who was duly approved by the police supervision. He is always on hand, and works with the police, who assist him with information to a large extent. We are working in harmony with all the charitable societies of the churches and are trying to establish a complete system for giving mutual information to them as well as to the Town Charity Committee, so that charitable people may not be unduly imposed upon. Misdirected public charity is doing a great deal of harm. We find that if young girls are to be saved from disgrace and ruin, their parents will have to exercise more home-control. This running out on every conceivable pretext at night and parading the streets in flashy dress is doing a vast amount of harm. Parents seldom know of the decline of their children until the fall comes, when it is too late. Parental carelessness has a deal to do with it also. The magistrates are warmly in favour of the Children's Aid system, as also are the Chairman and members of the Town Charity Committee, and in fact all who pay any attention to such matters. Truancy, I think, ought to be put under our control as well. When things are once reduced to a business system it is comparatively easy to carry on the work. We are in good form and prepared always to act at a moment's notice. Experience has taught us to rely upon what we see and very little upon what we hear, from delinquents. We are cautious to begin, but when we are sure of our ground we do not delay. These are the chief points of our work here.

Have the Boers and Germans Been Intriguing

IN REFERENCE TO DELAGOA BAY?

Matters Look as if Great Britain Had Been Outwitted, Not Knowing of Jameson's Intended Raid on the Transvaal—Charges Against the Doctor.

London, Feb. 29.—Certain favored Conservative journalists have obtained from the Foreign Office a story of what they call the Delagoa Bay plot, which throws the clearest sidelight upon the Boer and German intrigue to secure a foothold at Delagoa Bay, the capital of the Portuguese possessions in East Africa, which would amord the best inlet and outlet to the trade of the Transvaal. There is no doubt of the truth of the story, which is to the effect that just prior to the raid of Dr. Jameson into the Transvaal, a Mr. Milne, a Portuguese concessionaire, who held a frontage on the foreshore of the bay for a distance of seven miles, offered to sell the concession to Great Britain for £20,000. The Government, through Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of Cape Colony and British High Commissioner in South Africa, declined to deal with Milne, as nothing was then known in England of the Transvaal row. Thereupon President Kruger, who for a long tim has been making efforts to secure a port for the Transvaal, supplied Seeman & Eiffee, a German firm, with money to purchase the concession, thus giving to German subjects who are entitled to German protection territorial rights on Delagoa Bay. The concession will be actively operated. Seeman & Eiffee control the trade route outside of the railway to the Transvaal, and the main routes to Swaziland.

Dr. W. J. Leyds, the Transvaal Secretary of State, before coming to Europe, visited Delagoa Bay and arranged an important part of the Boer-German coup against British possession of that place. As Great Britain would rather go to war than submit her right to pre-empt Delagoa Bay to the decision of a European Congress, the foreshore affair at first sight does not look to be of critical import, as that matter does not seem worth fighting over, but as soon as the award of the Swiss arbitrators is made in the matter of the Delagoa Bay Railway, which is expected to result in the granting of £50,000 compensation to the American bondholders, Portugal will put the railway up at auction. The Boer-German syndicate will then undoubtedly buy it, and the Transvaal will then have secured its long sought for outlet to the sea, and will be able to carry on a foreign trade without having recourse to the British railways to the south. The Anglo-Portuguese convention only prevents Portugal from selling the Province and harbor of Delagoa Bay without giving Great Britain a chance to acquire them, but the Anglo-Portuguese convention can be practically annulled by the German holders passing on their concessions to their government. How Mr. Rhodes, who once offered to buy the whole Delagoa Bay district for £2,000,000, got tricked over this concession is unexplained. His reputation as a far-seeing politician has been recently utterly shaken.

The Right Hon. George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admiralty, has delivered a speech at Lewes, in which he made an allusion to Emperor William that is calculated to infuriate the German newspapers. He said that a curious succession of events seemed to convince the foreign powers that Great Britain was asleep and unable to assert herself. A great German statesman, not Prince Bismarck, seemed to have formed a depreciatory estimate of this country. He had been undeceived, and he (Mr. Goschen) hoped he was now convinced that Great Britain would not shrink from using the greatest physical force to maintain her rights. Everybody believes that Mr. Goschen had reference to Emperor William and not Chancellor Von Hohenlohe. Mr. Goschen declared that Great Britain would not contract an alliance with any power or group of powers. She preferred isolation, relying on her navy, with which she was ready to face anything. Mr. Goschen's speech was preliminary to his producing the navy estimates.

Official denials do not alter the belief in political circles that there is a crisis in Egyptian affairs. A credited semi-official report has it that the Sultan of Turkey has asked Great Britain to arrange a settlement of the Egyptian question with the powers on the basis of his retention of the suzeranity of that country. Germany, which is now the bete noir of the Foreign Office at every point, is supposed to be inciting the trouble.

The Tory papers, for instance The Globe, publish grotesque comments on the Cuban resolutions adopted by the American Senate. The discretion given to President Cleveland to use his offices to secure autonomy for Cuba is compared with the United States demanding the independence of Ireland in the event of a rebellion there. It adds that if Spain elects to go to war rather than to sacrifice her honor, international sympathy will be on her side.

The St. James' Gazette says that for a country that fought a stupendous war to put down a rebellion, this reason goes far indeed. It indicates the Monroe doctrine telling Europe to keep her hands off, but means that the United States intends to put her hands on.

The Westminster Gazette (Liberal) sounds a balanced note. It says it relies on President Cleveland's discretion. The United States, it adds, have genuine interests in Cuba, and cannot refuse to recognize the rebels as belligerents if the situation in the island does not grow better.

Yesterday's Madrid papers contain some curious official statistics regarding the war in Cuba. According to these there were sent to the island up to March, 1896, 113,000 men. Thirteen thousand of these were sent at the time of the outbreak of the rebellion. The cost of the war thus far is placed at $50,000,000. For the second year the cost is estimated at $75,000,000. Each soldier in Cuba cost the Government $500 annually. During the first year 406 soldiers were killed and 3472 died from yellow fever.

The Havana correspondent of The Pall Mall Gazette says that Captain-General Weyler will no more suppress the rebellion than did Gen. Martinez Campos. The United States, he adds, should, on the score of humanity and her general financial interests, insist on autonomy for the Cubans.

New York, March 1.—Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables from London to The Tribune: The excitement over Dr. Jameson has subsided as rapidly as it rose. Public comment on the case is excluded by the excellent practice of the English press when an important trial is pending. Dr. Jameson, who is naturally a reticent man, has wisely retired from public view, and takes no notice to letters or cards sent to him. Several offers of marriage are said to have awaited his coming, but he is devoting his attention to courting of another sort. Sir John Bridge's warning was heeded by his officers, and no theatrical exhibition of jingoism has followed the first scene in court. The form of legal procedure which will be adopted is not yet known with precision, but it is probable that, if Dr. Jameson and his officers are indicted and committed for trial in consequence of the preliminary enquiry before Sir John Bridge, the case will come before the Old Bailey Sessions, with three judges and a special jury. The legal questions will be only partly disclosed in the opening enquiry, but these are likely to be of paramount importance.

The defence will evidently make a great effort to invalidate on technical grounds any indictment based upon the Foreign Enlistment Act. The case of the Crown against Sandoval and others for fitting out an expedition against Venezuela is the only precedent under that act, and it does not run on parallel lines with the invasion of the Transvaal. The court will have to establish its own precedents in the Jameson trial. This fact does not favor the accused, since there will be less quibbling over technical points.

If the Foreign Enlistment Act can be shown not to apply to the invasion of the Transvaal, the prosecution will collapse on questions of law; otherwise, the defence will have a serious task, for the contention that the country was invaded without the consent of the Queen will not require much evidence. The eminence of the counsel engaged to conduct the defence is a signal proof that the interests of Dr. Jameson and his fellow-raiders will be adequately protected. It is not likely that the military officers with Jameson will be court martialed; indeed, the Army Act seems to exclude a subsequent trial, since it provides that no officer subject to military law can be prosecuted for any offence after conviction or acquittay by a civil court.

Dr. Jameson himself is not an ideal jingo, either in appearance of character. He is a quiet, reserved and thoughtful man, without theatrical mannerisms. He looks like a dreamer rather than a resolute man of action. He is not the sort of man who naturally fits in with melodrama like "Cheer, boys, cheer."

Mr. Rhodes will be in Buluwayo, the capital of Rhodesia, within a fortnight, and from the date of his arrival things will begin to hum. That means trouble for the Transvaal. Mr. Rhodes has resolved that Rhodesia shall outgrow the Transvaal in wealth, population and ultimately absorb it peacefully, or, when the time comes, by force of arms. He believes there is plenty of gold in Rhodesia, but independent recent reports deny this. Meantime Mr. Rhodes will concentrate his energies upon the completion of the main railway and telegraph lines, the development of the mining industry and the settlement of the native labor difficulty. The last-named is likely to give him trouble. He will start out with intent to attract the natives by kind, generous treatment, which shall sharply contrast with the Transvaal labor system. But if he be not careful he will have the Anti-Slavery Society, the Aborigines Protection Society and all the philanthropists and faddists in England vigorously denouncing him.

HOT BLAZE AT NIAGARA FALLS.

Several Stores and Dwellings Were Consumed—Other Fires and Losses.

Burk's Falls, March 1.—At about 4.30 this afternoon a disastrous fire broke out in Manzies' old stand, completely consuming it and Mrs. D. Wilson's millinery and fancy goods store and dwelling, Capt. H. Walton's harness shop and dwelling, William Wilson's undertaking establishment, R. H. Manning's barber shop, and Samuel Cross' lost nearly all his household goods. The estimated loss is about $5000, being only partly covered with insurance. The fire is supposed to have started from the furnace. It was only by hard work that William Wilson's new block was saved. This is the result of having no fire protection.

BAD FOR UNCLE SAM.

He Has Stirred Up a Hornet's Nest in Spain

BY RECOGNIZING THE CUBAN REBELS

The United States Consulate at Barcelona Stoned by the Maddened Mob—The Stars and Stripes Torn in Shreds—More Troops Sent to Cuba.

Havana, Feb. 29.—The steamers Colon, San Fernando and Leon XIII. arrived from Spain to-day bringing 6,400 additional troops. All this afternoon's papers publish despatches from Washington containing the news of the adoption by the United States Senate yesterday of the resolution favoring the according of belligerent rights to the Cubans. The despatches further add, however, that it is not expected that the House of Representatives will not approve of the Senate's action in the matter.

Already there is talk by extreme Spaniards of making a demonstration against the United States. The volunteers are most rabid. The Captain-General assured the Consul-Generals some weeks ago that regulars would be held in readiness to protect Americans against the Spanish volunteers should the emergency arise. The absence of an American warship is greatly deplored. Only those knowing the explosive character of the Latin race can appreciate the situation. As the situation is realized, the feeling grows. It is impossible to predict the result.

Madrid, March 1. The War Department has begun preparations to despatch to Cuba a new army consisting of 20,000 infantry and 5000 cavalry.

Vice-Admiral Beranger, the Minister of Marine, has been ordered to prepare the speediest warships, including the Pelayo, the Casa Viscayo, the Cyundo, Maria, Teresa, the Lepanto and Alfonso XIII., also some trans-Atlantic steamers to be despatched to the Bahama Channel.

Senor Sagasta, the ex Premier, in an interview, declared the Government had gone mad in dissolving the Cortes on the same day as the arrival of grave news. He says Spain must proceed with great prudence and also with great energy because the action of the United States Senate was the beginning of serious complications. He added: "I greatly fear that the remainder of the American Republics will follow the example of the United States. God grant the coming elections may be peaceably conducted."

Popular feeling here is bitter against the United States because of the action of the Senate in adopting a resolution favoring the granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels. The action of Admiral Berenger, Minister of Marine, in ordering the speedy preparation of six warships and some of the naval reserve vessels of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Company for despatch to the Bahama Channel meets with hearty approval.

The Prime Minister said last evening: "I trust that President Cleveland will veto the formal resolution of Congress and I have more reason to trust that he will not comply with the recommendations contained therein." He added: "The granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels is not a casus belli, but Spain will declare that it is not the act of a friendly nation. I do not think that Spain is threatened by foreign aggression, but measures will be taken for the defence of Spanish rights chiefly in Cuba. As regards demonstrations in the streets here, I shall repress them severely if they are attempted."

Despatches from Barcelona state that an attack has been made upon the United States Consulate in that city, notwithstanding the fact that the building was guarded. During he day a procession, comprising 10,000 persons, headed by four Republican members of the Chamber of Deputies, paraded through the principal streets of the city as a demonstration against the action of the American Senate. A strong guard had been placed about the American Consulate in anticipation of trouble. As the procession passed it there was some derisive whistling interspersed with cat-calls and other tokens of disapproval. Some of the paraders tried to force their way into the building, but the police and gendarmes succeeded in driving them away, but not until they had been forced to charge upon the mob with drawn sabres.

In the evening there was another outburst of disapproval of the United States and all things American. This time it took the form of publicly dishonoring the American flag. The rioters had purchased somewhere a large American flag, which, after it had been dragged through the streets, was pulled to pieces amid cries of "Long live Spain," and "Down with the Yankees." There is still much excitement in this city.

After this outrage on the flag of the United States the mob became more violent, and a proposition to make a further demonstration against the American Consulate was speedily acted upon. The mob proceeded to the Consulate, in the meantime arming themselves with stones. Arrived at the Consulate a perfect volley of missiles was directed against the shield over the doorway bearing the American coat-of-arms, which was battered almost to pieces. The mob in the same way became possessed of several American flags, which were destroyed amid ribald jests and expressions of contempt for the nation they represented. The situation was becoming more and more threatening when reinforcements for the guards at the Consulate arrived in the shape of a detachment of mounted gendarmes. The crowd was ordered to disperse, which they sullenly refused to do, whereupon the gendarmes charged them with drawn swords and put them to flight. Several of the rioters were injured by being trampled upon by the horses. Until a late hour the boulevards were thronged by excited crowd singing patriotic Spanish songs.

DON'T WANT CANADIANS.

An Effort Will be Made to Further Restrict Their Entry at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Representative Mahany, a member of the House Committee on Immigration, to-day received the message of Mayor Cutler of Niagara Falls and the unanimous endorsement of the common council of that city in favor of his bill restricting Canadian immigration. These documents he presented to the committee at its session this morning and gave notice that he would move for a hearing on the bill sometime after March 10.

Nansen and the Pole.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—A pilot named Klaebo, who took part in the Wiggins polar expedition in 1894, has arrived at Aftenblad, from Yeniseisk, East Siberia, and reports that about the middle of January he heard a customs official say that Dr. Nansen was returning from the north pole, which he had almost succeeded in reaching. Klaebo says he regarded the statement of the officer as a joke.

BUDGET SPEECH.

Mr. Stratton's Comprehensive Address.

A STRONG DEFENCE PRESENTED.

Opposition Criticism met and Answered—A Full Review of the Field of Provincial Finances—The Government Management Vindicated—Opposition Absurdities Exposed. Evidences of Excellent Government and Administration.

The following is a more extended report of Mr. Stratton's speech on the budget, in the Ontario Legislature on Tuesday last. It is felt due to his constituents, that they should be in full possession of facts that have a bearing upon their most important interests, and which set forth in what a satisfactory manner the favoured Province of Ontario is governed.

Mr. Stratton on arising to address the house was very warmly received, and during the course of his speech was greeted from time to time with hearty applause. He said:—

Those of us who have occupied seats in this House for the past number of years have listened to the reiterated attacks upon the budget and the financial management of this province by the honourable gentlemen, who for the time being have occupied seats on the opposite side of the House, and while recalling the recurrent persistence of these attacks, I am inclined to give them credit for their indomitable courage. In spite of the repeated attacks upon the financial stronghold, which have always resulted in such dismal failures, they, each recurring session, repeat them, undaunted; like the traditional British soldier "they do not seem to know when they are beaten." (Hear hear). They can see no evidences such as the facts present, that, notwithstanding the very large sums, that have been expended for all purposes involving the wants and needs of this province, that, to use a familiar expression made by a leading Conservative newspaper the Mowat government's "management of the finances has been judicious, thrifty and clean." On one point the opposition are particularly skeptical, and that is in regard to the surplus; and in their speeches they make "ducks and drakes" of it, as they would do really if, by any misfortune, they should be placed in charge of the spending departments of the government, and figuratively they bring the province into debt as they would do literally if the time should ever come when they should realize their quarter of a century aspirations in the direction of reaching the treasury benches. Hon. gentlemen opposite evince a great anxiety to saddle the province with a debt. This anxiety is, from a party point, a laudable one, as it involves a desire not to be behind their friends at Ottawa, who have piled up such a mountain of debt that of over thirty million dollars yearly paid in taxes is required to pay the interest charges on the debt every year. (Applause.) The honourable gentleman who has just taken his seat (Mr. Meacham), and the honourable gentleman who opened fire on the budget on behalf of the opposition (Mr. Mathieson), have made very general and vague charges of extravagance and increased expenditure against the government, but they have both been very careful to point out where any specific reductions could be made that would materially lessen the expenditure, without adopting an actual cheese-paring policy. We, on this side of the House, assert most emphatically that the policy of this Government has been the opposite of an extravagant policy. It has been as economical as it could be made, consistently with the requirements of the province and the public service. That the expenditure has increased during the past twenty-three years, no one on this side of the House attempts to deny; and for this increased expenditure there is but the one legitimate reply—the Province has been compelled in the interests of the public service to meet a demand upon the same principle that an expanding business or a growing family necessarily involves increased expenditure.

It is continually pointed out from the other side of the House that when the Sandfield Macdonald Government retired from office there was a cash surplus on hand, but at the same time they omit to inform the public that it was the very fact of having this surplus that threw the necessity of increased expenditure upon his successors. He had committed the province to large expenditure to be met by those who followed him, such as the grants to railways, the cost of building the Central Prison, etc., and in meeting these demands, which could not honourably be ignored, his boasted surplus was more than absorbed, and it is an unfair argument, based on misconstruction of the facts, to advance in support of a proposition purporting to show the superior economy of the Sandfield Macdonald Government, or one charging the Mowat Government with unnecessarily lavish expenditure.

During the last general election campaign the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Marter) made the statesmanlike statement that if the policy of the Sandfield Macdonald Government had been carried out, there would be an immense surplus in the treasury. Supposing that policy had been adopted, we should not have had the Province of Ontario in the foremost ranks in public buildings, public works and other improvements. We should not have had the new Parliament buildings—paid for to the last cent out of the current revenue, and charged to "boodle" account; we should not have had the Mimico Asylum, the Orillia Asylum, the Brockville Asylum, the Central Prison, the Model Farm nor many other public works and buildings which are the pride of the province and are indispensably essential to the working of an administration, in line with the advanced civilization of the age. Lest the honourable gentleman should be prejudiced against any arguments I may advance I will quote him an authority he cannot cavil at—a newspaper friendly to his party and an opponent of the Government. The Toronto News, referring to a speech made by Mr. Marter on the above lines, says:

"In his address Saturday night Mr. Marter declared that had the Sandfield Macdonald policy been continued there would now be a cash surplus of $20,000,000 in the Ontario Treasury. The statement is probably correct. But if the money had not been spent we would be minus half the railway mileage of the province; there would be no deaf and dumb institutes; our asylum accommodation would not be nearly so great and there would be no Central Prison or Model Farm. These things are surely of more benefit to us than cash hoarded in the treasury. A government is not to be condemned merely because it has spent the public funds. The question to be considered is:—Has the expenditure been within the financial capabilities of the state, and have the best results been obtained from the spending?"

It will thus be seen that the honourable gentleman cannot get his own party friends to subscribe to his advocacy of a penurious, penny-wise policy that would hoard money at the expense of the promotion of the best interests of the province and its material advancement.

That there is a surplus does not admit of a doubt and of its existence has been so often proved that it is a mere waste of words to employ them in advancing more proof. Honourable gentlemen season their fault-finding with very prudent caution—they do not point out wherein any special reduction can be made. Will they indicate where an appreciable and warranted reduction can be made in the cost of civil government? How can legislation be reduced? Do they wish a lax administration of justice? Will they point out wherein, in any of these can be more cheaply conducted, consistently with the proper and efficient administration of public affairs? If it is to be a plank in the policy of the Opposition that the very Liberal grants heretofore given poor Public and High Schools is to be done away with, or materially reduced, let them come out squarely and assert their position so that the country will know where they stand, and so that we on this side of the House may properly estimate the danger that would arise to the Government from the propogation of such a a retrograde policy. Do honourable gentlemen desire to place upon the shoulders of the people by direct taxation the $800,000 spent annually in the maintenance of our public institutions? If so assure the electors that such is their policy, and call upon them to tax themselves directly for the support of these institutions, and let them see what the answer will be. Are the unfortunate persons that are so carefully cared for and treated in the lunatic asylums of this Province to be allowed to go without the care and kind treatment heretofore bestowed upon them? Surely honourable gentlemen cannot contend that any of the moneys appropriated for this purpose should be lessened. Can this wealthy Province of Ontario afford to lose the ground she has gained, in advance of the world, in the matter of agriculture and the dairying industry? What province or state has done, or is doing, more to advance the most important industry of the Province? Can we afford to lessen our expenditure in this direction? Are we to say to those who have gone into the forests in the northern and western parts of the Province, to and subject them to profitable production, that the paltry sum now spent upon colonization roads is to be withdrawn, and the assistance heretofore bestowed upon the settlers in the newer districts is to be withdrawn for the sake of hoarding up a surplus? If along these lines, then, the opposition wish to direct their policy, they might be able to show a larger surplus, but I am inclined to believe that their policy would not commend itself to the good common sense of the electorate. Why do not the honourable gentlemen crystallize their vague charges of extravagance by proposing specific reductions? They make no effort to give effect to their carpings. During the past twenty years the records of the House will show that they have not proposed, suggested or moved for sufficient reductions to amount to the value of the time consumed by the hazy charges of extravagance made by them in their speeches. That they have not done so is no fault of theirs; but it is the strongest possible evidence of the careful and economical management of the affairs of the Province by the present administration.

If we turn for a few moments to the estimated expenditure of the Ontario Government for the year 1895 and institute a comparison with our sister province of Quebec we shall find a contrast. While there is nothing absolutely perfect in human affairs, we shall find that there is a in Ontario, under Liberal administration, than there has been under Conservative administration in Quebec. Why sir, the first item that meets the eye when one turns up the public accounts of Quebec for the year ending June 30th, 1894, (the last volume issued) is the item of $1,437,932.67 for interest charges on the public debt of that Province, which means that since Confederation, when both provinces started on equal terms, the Province of Quebec has piled up a debt of about thirty millions, which requires a sum about equal to one third of Ontario's total expenditure last year to pay the interest of. If we look for a corresponding item in the public accounts of Ontario, it is not to be found, but instead we see an item indicating the receipt of over $300,000 interest on Ontario investments. Is this not an agreeable contrast to the electors of Ontario? And if we go further and make a comparison of the different items of expenditure, we find that all these items, where the expenses are devoted to the carrying on of the public service, Quebec is much higher; while in all these expenditures that go to lessen the burden of local taxation, the Province of Ontario is much more liberal. For instance,—the cost of civil government in Ontario is $244,727,47 as against $256,725,-24 in the Province of Quebec, a difference in favour of Ontario in this item of about $12,000. And it must be borne in mind that the population of Ontario is much greater, being in 1891 2,114,321, while the population of Quebec at the same census was 1,448,535, showing that the expenditure should be proportionately less in Quebec than in Ontario. Legislation cost in Ontario $150,068.67, against $207,676.77 in Quebec, or over $57,000 greater in Quebec. In the administration of justice the expenditure in Ontario is $463,564.99, and in Quebec it is $459,523.19, or $6,000 greater. But here comes a most striking contrast. For education Ontario contributes to lessen the taxes of the people, $693,042 95, as against $309,280 by the Province of Quebec, or about $383,000 more is given for this purpose by Ontario than by Quebec. Again,

NEARER APPROACH TO PERFECTION

ANOTHER GREAT CONTRAST

is presented. For public institutions Ontario expended last year $799,223.15, as against $283,433.75 spent by the Province of Quebec, or, in round numbers, $515,000 more than our sister province spent for the relief from direct taxation in municipalities. In agriculture, where Ontario makes so pre-eminent a showing, this province spent $32,000 more than Quebec. The next great contrast exhibiting Ontario's lessening direct taxation, we find Ontario expending for hospitals and charity $190,231.08, as against $42,640.25 by Quebec, or a difference in favour of Ontario of about $148,000. Will honourable gentlemen opposite, having regard to the duty incumbent on a Christian province of liberally providing for the wants of the suffering and afflicted, suggest that this province practice the economy apparently practiced by Quebec? We might have a greater surplus if we permitted the dead to bury their dead, that is, allowed the sick and suffering to suffer alone. The Province of Ontario particularizes the expenditure on repairs and maintenance of public buildings and public works, but the Province of Quebec combines these three items under one head, thus making comparison difficult; but unitedly the expenditure is in Ontario $470,838.74 and in Quebec $491,993.10, and as this is a spending department of administration, it will be observed that $21,000 more is paid out by Quebec under these heads. When it comes to colonization road expenditure, representing great and greatly needed assistance to the pioneers of the province,

THE CONTRAST IS AGAIN PALPABLE.

Last year Ontario expended on colonization roads $116,706.55, and Quebec $79,-077,65, a difference in favour of Ontario of about $37,000. Again charges to crown lands, refunds and miscellaneous expenditure in Ontario are separated while Quebec lumps them. In Ontario the expenditure under these three heads is $268,801.88, and in Quebec $324,603.95. Again where the spending takes place the Province of Quebec outstrips Ontario by over $54,000. The items that I have just given the House in the Province of Ontario amount to $3,476,-351.49, and in Quebec they amount to $4,267,946,07. About $792,000, or over three quarters of a million more is spent in Quebec by a Conservative administration than is spent in Ontario under a Liberal government. At the same time it must be remembered that with all this great excess in total expenditure of Quebec, that this province spends over one million dollars more than the Province of Quebec in services that lessen the burden of the citizen in the payment of direct taxation. The expenditure for the Province of Ontario per head amounted in the years under consideration, to $1.89, as against $3.81 per head in the Province of Quebec. No matter in what light is regarded the expenditure of Quebec under Conservative rule, as compared with the expenditure of Ontario under Liberal rule, the comparison is in favour of this province from every point of view. Ontario with its fine revenue—producing a surplus of nearly six million—Quebec staggering under a load of debt of about thirty million, or to amplify the comparison and of the two Provinces that started on even terms at Confederation, Quebec, which has been practically under Conservative rule, is about $35,000,000 behind the Province of Ontario, which has practically been under Liberal Government since Confederation.

Then again the honourable gentlemen complain that the statement presented does not represent a correct statement of the assets and liabilities of the Province, as there are, they claim, two and a half millions outstanding in the form of railway annuities. But it must be remembered that these railway annuities are paid annually out of the current revenue of the Province, and they are treated as the Dominion and the other Provinces treat them, as being payable out of the current year's revenue as they become due. Now, no one objected to the large sums voted by this House to and for the construction of railways to promote the development of the rear districts of the Province and to bring settlers within the reach of the advantages of the older civilization. To meet the obligations thus incurred, railway certificates were issued and as both sides of the House agreed to all those grants in aid of railways it seems to me to be not only reasonable, but fair responsibility arising therefrom. But suppose that we admit that these railway and honest, that all should share any annuities become due and payable at once and we deduct the $2,268,800 of railway annuities from the $5,078,980.16 of a revenue-producing surplus we have still left a surplus of about two and a half million dollars —which Quebec if it only represented the full amount of her debt. But it is only fair—and all municipalities practice issuing debentures to meet large expenditures—it is only fair, I repeat, that those who are to come after us, and who will reap equal advantages of the roads in question, should bear their share of the indebtedness incurred for their advantage and benefit.

In regard to the criticism of honourable gentlemen opposite in respect of Government extravagance they seem to forget that they themselves as a party are, to a great extent, responsible for a very large expenditure of money, and guilty at the same time of taking an unpatriotic attitude. I need only mention the costly contest with the Dominion Government over what is now the undisputed, but then the disputed, territory. In the attempt of the Central Government to rob us of a very large and very valuable extent of territory, they received the sympathy and aid here of gentlemen opposite. We all know that that contest cost this Province a very large sum; and this expenditure was forced upon this Province very largely from the attitude which the Dominion Government knew that a party in this Province thought it their place to assume. And I have no doubt that the question could have been settled much more cheaply if the then Opposition now so very solicitous for cheap government, supported instead of practically opposing the claims of Ontario to a territory of sufficient extent, so rich in mineral and timber resources as to furnish, if required, sufficient revenue to keep the Province to come. And we cannot regard lightly the action of the Opposition by their support of the Federal Government in an attempt to rob this Province of the revenue derived from liquor licenses as involved in the McCarthy Act, a measure as contrary to the wishes of this Province as it was contrary to the constitution of this country—the revenue guaranteed to the constitution; the revenue from liquor licenses, which amounts to some $3,000,000 a year. In the fifteen years that have elapsed since the opposition, through the party they supported at Ottawa attempted to rob this Province of this source of revenue, it has amounted to $4,000,000, which enormous sum would have been lost to this province if the honorable gentlemen opposite and their friends had had their way. Did they not also attempt to decrease the revenue of this Province by favouring administrative action at Ottawa for the benefit of millionin the person of their party at Ottawa are lumberman, as represented by the repeated veto of the Rivers and Streams bill, passed by this legislature, and the effect of the high handed interference with provincial rights, was to depreciate the value of our timber resources by placing obstructions to lumbering operations, and to injure the interests of the settlers in the newer portions of this province. And not only this but the gentleman whom they supported at Ottawa gave away for a mere song of our standing timber in Northwestern Ontario—another act which deprived the province of a large amount of revenue.

IN SPENDING MONEY FOR MANY YEARS

Of course the expenditure of the province has increased, but are not the critics of the Government responsible in the direction just mentioned, as well as by assenting to nearly all the expenditure proposed and voted by the House, since the present Government came into power? When comparisons and references are made to Ottawa, honourable gentlemen complain and squirm and attempt to evade any responsibility for the acts of the Federal Government, but by their support of that Government and its policy they are morally responsible—responsible for a policy and practice that have resulted in an yearly increase of fifteen million dollars in the public expenditure of the Dominion and in addition the gross debt of the Dominion has increased from one hundred and forty million in 1878 to three hundred and eighteen millions in 1895, or an increase of one hundred and forty-four millions. Notwithstanding that the Mowat Government has spent in the past twenty-three years millions of the public money, it had all been spent for legitimate purposes. The Mowat Government could not boast of a Curran bridge scandal which represented a clean steal of $230,000, nor a McGreevy & Connolly contribution for election funds, nor Tay canals, nor Galops Rapids or other similar scandals, and yet in view of all the facts I have cited and in view of the record of present provincial government which commands the respect of fair minded opponents, honourable gentlemen of the Opposition still indulge in their criticisms. Permit me to quote what the Montreal Gazette, a stalwart Conservative organ, has to say of the financial administration of the Mowat Government:

OUT OF THE GOVERNMENT CHEST

"It is to be said, however, that much of the expenditure in Ontario is represented in material properties. The Province has exceeded all the others in making provision for the insane, the blind, the deaf and dumb, and in the separating of hardened criminals from lesser offenders in prison. Nearly a million of the total expenditure is for the maintenance of public institutions, the chief of which are the asylums, etc., and charities. There is, also, a fine agricultural college owned by the Province, and it has other works and institutions of general benefit, which other Provinces could wisely copy, if their means would permit them to do so."

Continuing, Mr. Stratton drew attention to the fact that Opposition speakers invariably attack the Agricultural College and Experimental Farm, the only institution that the farmers of Ontario can lay exclusive claim to. He could account for this only on the ground that conspicuous success aroused envy and provoked attack. He said that one of the very best proofs of

was the fact that the Dominion Government had copied the experimental part and established a series of experimental farms, which, he was pleased to say, were doing a good work in advancing the interests of our greatest interest—the agricultural. The Agricultural College, it was admitted on all hands, was to the general advantage of the province and the particular benefit of the farmer; where the sons of farmers received a university education, barring the classics, as well as reaping the benefit of sound practical knowledge. Speaking of the Agricultural College, probably an outside and presumably unbiased authority might have more weight than any eulogy he might be able to make. Col. Birch, of Chicago, editor of the American Sheep Breeder, and who is a high authority on such matters, speaking at a banquet at the Guelph Fat Stock show in December last, is reported thus:

He paid a high tribute to the Canadian character and the fostering of the higher amenities of civilization which had so strongly impressed him. He dwelt on the marvellous improvement in Western Ontario during the past forty years. Their show was the greatest fat stock show in America; he hoped it would not degenerate into a mere social function as it had done in Chicago, and was in danger of doing in New York; it was a magnificent showing of stock. He praised the premier position of agriculture in Ontario; no concentration of capital had so far dominated it or robbed it of its rightful position; it was the power and glory of their land. (Cheers.) He immensely admired the O. A. College, the most practical school of husbandry he had ever seen; every man about it seemed to know his business practically. He also felicitated them on having such a farmer as John Dryden at the head of the Agricultural Administration in their province.

Another and more practical proof of the value of the Agricultural College was the foremost position Ontario had taken in every department relating to the soil and its products, and in all the branches that received an impetus and inspiration from such an institution, such as stock breeding, and dairying generally.

Referring to the

ALGOMA PIONEER FARM,

Mr. Stratton said that the member for South Lanark (Mr. Mathieson) in speaking of this Pioneer Farm, had characterized the expenditure as "an utter waste,"—that "the Minister of Agriculture had thrown away more than $5,000" in this way—that "the farm was miles away from any other farm, so that it could be seen by nobody," and that its use as an educational institution was "utterly lost." This language, Mr. Stratton characterized, as being as wild as the region he was discussing. The honourable gentleman did not seem to realize the fact that the very argument he was using against the farm constituted the very reason the Government had in view in establishing the farm. The object was to attract settlers to an entirely unsettled region, hitherto a complete wilderness—a place where the soil was good, where the water supply was excellent, where the climate was salubrious, and while it had been burnt over there was still a sufficient supply of timber for fuel, building and fencing purposes. No person seemed willing to try the experiment and the Government did the right and proper thing when they built a house and barn, cleared forty acres and put in a crop, thus furnishing an object lesson of the value of the territory for agricultural purposes. This was a policy of progress and a much better one than a standstill retrograde policy.

Honourable gentlemen complained that the succession duties or inheritance revenue was a "disgrace to the province." Mr. Stratton asked what better way could the amount derived from this source be more justly raised for it was devoted to—the fund for the maintenance of our charitable institutions? Rich men were not particularly noted as a general rule for their liberal contributions for charity, and Mr. Stratton thought that the Opposition speakers were not in accord with the Conservative party on this question, as the Toronto News had stated only the other day that the succession duties constituted "one of the most justifiable imposts levied by the province, that imposed no burden on any one" and that "the act would be approved by the people and could be defended on the grounds of public policy." He also quoted from the Toronto World, another Conservative newspaper, to the effect that the Government was fully justified in taking the step and that it was a practical application of a principle of political economy. Surely the honourable gentlemen did not put their views against the collective wisdom of all the provinces—against England and all the most important States of the American Union. After a reference to the amount received by the province for licenses, the decrease in drunkenness and the increase in temperance sentiment under a well administered license law, Mr. Stratton pointed out the Government gave back to the municipalities $282,000 yearly from this fund, while the Province of Quebec took all the receipts from licenses and kept them. Complaint had been made that the School of Pedagogy was useless, that it served no good purpose, but Mr. Stratton showed that the best educational authorities were opposed to this view. They contended that it was of our training schools. Mr. Stratton showed that it was a safeguard of the High School system; that it was very necessary that inexperienced boys and girls, adopting teaching as a profession, who had acquired the necessary literary knowledge should take a practical course of training, under the most competent instructors, in the art of imparting that knowledge, and the two-year term given in the School of Pedagogy fitted them efficiently for their work. This school, the Normal School and the Model School were all invaluable training schools for our teachers, and their importance could not be overestimated, for the efficiency of our schools depended upon the efficiency of our teachers. In this connection Mr. Stratton referred to the reckless criticism of the charge of an examination fee for High School entrance pupils—reckless, because no such fee had ever been imposed. Mr. Stratton then referred to the charges made reference to the cloth purchased for clothing for the officers of the public institutions, and the account that had been paid to Donagh & Oliver for lumber, which he showed had been used for legitimate building purposes at the Central Prison, and proved conclusively that the action of the Government in regard to both of these matters had been in the public interest.

The Opposition criticism of the timber policy of the government, Mr. Stratton said required no defence. The wisdom of periodical sales have been and the electors had repeatedly justified it. He said the importance of this industry demanded as it had received, the best attention of the Government; the resources were practically inexhaustible. He contrasted the methods of disposing of timber lands by the Dominion and Ontario governments respectively, to the latter. He contrasted the sales held before and since Confederation by different governments, and said, that from the best information obtainable, there was at the present rate sufficient timber to last the province for the next hundred years to come. He asked, if the policy advocated by the Opposition were to obtain, what was to become of the thousands of men employed in the lumber industry, and the other industries circling around it? Where would these men be if timber cutting were to cease? It was also pointed out that more timber had been destroyed by fires during the last twenty years than had been cut by the axe of the lumbermen. The Crown Land's Departments administration would stand the severest honest criticism.

Dealing with the question of the mode of procuring supplies for public institutions, which has been dealt with by the Opposition, Mr. Stratton pointed out that it had been shown last session that all the supplies that could be procured by tender had been procured by that method. Of the $800,000 expended on public institutions, $252,000 were for wages and attendance, items that did not lend themselves to tender; $190,000 had been purchased by tender, and $59,000 was represented by special arrangements made for the purchase of meat, leaving the balance which could not possibly be dealt with by tender to be purchased as the goods were required. He then took up the items that were not purchased by tender and showed to adopt the method of tender in regard to these articles. He showed that gas and light and water were fixed by municipal rates, that freights and duties, officers' travelling expenses, cost of recovering elopers, schools and religious instruction, removal of patients, repairs, farm and garden work and other similar items could not be made subject to a fixed contract. He said the Government and their supporters were in favour as they had shown in practice of employing the tender system wherever it was practicable and wise to do so, but he showed the utter impossibility of any of the items in the classes referred to above, being purchased by tender.

Mr. Stratton defended the money expended on colonization roads as a necessary expenditure in order to open up new districts to markets and lessening the hardships of settlers and then closed an address of an hour and three-quarters by pointing out that it was not by honest and fair criticism of the government's record and practice, that the opposition had sought to obtain power, but by appeals to the passions and predjudices of the people, in regard to religious matters. Mr. Stratton paid an earnest tribute to the excellent and statesmanlike administration the Ontario Government had for the past 23 years bestowed upon the management of not only the financial affairs of the province, but every branch of the service with the result that its financial standing, which was unique and supreme amongst provincial government, was the admiration of all, and every branch of the public interests had been attended to,—complete service presented in a manner that combined efficient administration with sound and satisfactory economy.

On resuming his seat, Mr. Stratton was warmly applauded.

CHEAPER THAN PATCHES!

Are the Boys' Suits we are making up during the tail end of winter

The short ends left over after the season's business are just as good as the rest of the web was but are only long enough for Suits for the Boys and Pants for the Men.

We sell these Remnants for little or nothing, and make the cutting and making cost less than usual in order to clear them out of the road of the New Spring Goods coming in.

Mending and Patching is dreary work for a woman at best. You'll likely need the Pants as badly as the Boy needs the Suit.

CANADA'S RIFLE LEAGUE.

The Matches This Year will Again be Shot in Three series. Le Temps on Mr. Devlin's Vote.

Ottawa, March 1.—(Special.)—I hear to-night that Archbishop Langevin has expressed his approval of the Remedial Bill.

Le Temps, the French Liberal paper, published in this city, warmly approves of Mr. Devlin's statement that he will support the Remedial Bill. The paper continues: "It is announced that several other Liberal members from Quebec will support the bill. The most important of this group is Mr. Beausoleil, M.P. for Berthier. The latter does not believe the Remedial Bill as complete as he would like it to be, but he declares, so we are told, that if the ecclesiastical authorities think it sufficient to permit the establishment of Separate schools, Catholics ought to support the measure. We cordially approve the attitude of these representatives of the people who throw party to the winds and courageuously enter the patriotic field of asserting our just claims."

The Cabinet has under consideration the tenders for the erection of the west wing and dome of the Dominion Reformatory at Alexandria. The lowest tenderer is Joseph Bourque of Hull, his figure being $50,000 The next lowest offer is that of Viau & Lachance of Hull, at the price of $117,000. The highest tenderer is $180,000. It was announced in the House the other day that the estimate for the work is about $100,000, but it will really cost more than that. It is claimed, therefore, that Bourque's tender is too low.

Harry Symons, barrister, of Calgary, but formerly of Toronto, arrived here from the Territories this morning. Speaking to you correspondent, he said that the ranchers had had most successful winter, the cattle being in splendid condition. Thousands of head of cattle were, on account of drought, shipped from western Ontario to the Territories last fall, and they had grazed in the open all winter and had done well.

The program for this year's Canadian Military Rifle League matches is well under way. An arrangement has been made by which the C.P.R. are to telegraph the scores made in the different matches, the league to bear the expense, to the morning papers in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Victoria, London, Toronto, Montreal, St. John and Halifax. The matches will, as last year, be shot in three series, as follows:

First, Martini, Martini-Metford and Lee-Metford; ranges 200, 500 and 600 yards.

Second, Snider; ranges 200, 400 and 500 yards.

Third, Snider carbine; 200, 300 and 400 yards.

The entrance fees this year will be $10 for the first team and $5 for additional teams.

STEAMSHIPS IN COLLISION.

The Atlas Liner Ailsa Now Lies in Seventy Feet of Water.

New York, Feb. 29.—The steamship Ailsa of the Atlas Line was sunk about 2.30 o'clock this evening by the steamship La Bourgogne of the General Trans-Atlantique, bound for Havre. The Ailsa had sailed from New York enroute to Kingston, Jamaica. Owing to the dense fog the Ailsa came to anchor just at the south mouth of the narrows. The strong tide that was running at the time swung the vessel's head so that at the time of the collision she was pointing toward New York. Everybody on the Ailsa, passengers and crew, was saved, although a Mrs. Pierce of Kingston, Jamaica, was slightly burned. The Ailsa was commanded by Captain J. W. Morris of Jersey City. The crew consisted of 37 persons, of whom 14 were Spanish, all firemen, and the remainder were Italians and Scandinavians. She lies in about 70 feet of water, southwest of Fort Hamilton, 300 yards from the shore, with her masts and the top of the funnel above water. A diver is examining the wreck.

A Mouthful of Pearls.

The teeth, perhaps more than any other feature, enhance or destroy that intangible, because complex, thing we call beauty. What more repellant than ill-kept, discoloured teeth? What unsightliness more needless and inexcusable? Ivorine is delightful, whether as a cleanser or in its property of imparting to the teeth that dazzling whiteness so much desired and admired, and as efficiently does it render the breath sweet and fragrant. Ivorine is simply incomparable as a toilet requisite, which accounts for its recommendation and use by leading dentists.

TIME TO GET READY.

Liberals Should Prepare for the Elections.

DRY ROT IS KILLING THE TORIES

There are Too Many Fossils in Their Camp—The Government is Now Relying on the Quebec Hierarchy to Carry Them Through the Present Crisis.

Ottawa, March 1.—The Budget debate is now behind and the school debate before us, with dissolution less than 60 days away at the outside and possibly only 30. It is time for the Liberals to prepare actively for the elections. The coercion Government are relying on the Quebec hierarchy; Mr. Laurier depends upon the people and the policy put forth by the people themselves. The Liberal party is in good shape, the Conservatives are at sea both as to their leader and their policy, and are unfortunate in having for active allies ecclesiastics who arrogate to themselves the right to dictate public policy for a free Parliament. Sir Mackenzie Bowell is Prime Minister. He is supported by Sir Frank Smith; Sir Charles Tupper is the man in waiting, and he is supported by Sir Donald Smith. The ages of these four Conservative leaders united make in round figures 300 years. Sir Mackenzie is 73, Sir Frank 74, Sir Charles 75 and Sir Donald 75. There used to be a leader affectionately called the old man—now there are too many old men. The country needs a strong, vigorous Administration with a settled policy. None of these men can form such an Administration. The Conservative party is dying of dry rot, and the young members of it who are in Parliament look forward with relief to a period in Opposition when the barnacles can be shaken off and the party reorganized. They rely on such men as Mr. Dickey, Sir Hibbert Tupper and Mr. Dupont. The complete collapse of the elder Tupper boom pleases none so much as the younger men of the party.

In the meantime, by virtue of his vigorous old age and youthful spirits, Sir Mackenzie Bowell is easily first in the esteem of his party, and if it was not for his mistaken policy would be a fairly strong leader. That policy rests solely on the approval of certain ten or twelve bishops of the Roman Catholic Church. It is condemned by the laity, both Catholic and Protestant, who approve the policy of Mr. Laurier as wise and patriotic. Father Lacombe in his letter makes it plain that the bishops for whom he professed to speak support Sir Mackenzie Bowell's school policy. Bishop Cameron of Antigonish would cover with obloquy every one who did not suport that policy. Archbishop Fabre implored one of his clergy in God's name to frown upon Mr. Laurier. Archbishop Begin, Bishop Labrecque and Archbishop Langevin all stand behind Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and are using if not the terror at least the influence of the church to intimidate the electors into line. Cure Dumas of Les Eboulements threatened his parishioners with excommunication unless they supported the Government candidate in Charlevoix. He was probably ignorant of the fact that the Catholic laity of Manitoba are too poor to support efficient separate schools out of their own means, and that they privately declare they do not want separate schools, in which their children would be handicapped for life's battle. It was boasted on the floor of Parliament by the Postmaster-General that the Liberal candidate in Charlevoix only won the election by repudiating his political leader and accepting Bishop Labrecque's policy instead. This was false, but it shows the extent to which the Government rely on clerical intimidation. It is the sole hope of Mr. Haggart, Dr. Montague and Mr. Wood of Brockville. Mr. Haggart told the caucus that the best thing they could do would be to pass the Remedial bill. The result was that the opponents of the bill in Mr. Haggart's party held a caucus of their own to protest against the idea that they must vote for the bill. The Liberal who opposes the bill is, to use Mr. Daly's expression, to be made to laugh on the other side of his mouth by the church in Quebec. How he is to be treated by the Quebec Tories may be imagined from the utterance of Sir Hector Langevin's organ, The Courrier, who disposed of the protest of L'Electeur, the Liberal organ, against clerical interference in politics by saying: "At last the mask has been lifted and L'Electeur shows its real face, which is the face of a priest-hater"; in other words, if the Liberals prefer investigation, enquiry and an amicable settlement to the Remedial bill, they will be denounced in Quebec as priest-haters and enemies of their church.

MR. KRUGER'S PROPOSED TRIP.

The Boer President Has Not Declined Mr. Chamberlain's Invitation.

London, Feb. 29.—The Observer says that the Colonial Office has received a despatch from the Transvaal regarding President Kruger's visit to London. The paper further states that the contents of the despatch will not be made public for the present, but is certain that President Kruger has not refused Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's invitation to visit London.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

A Commissioner in B. R.

GENTLEMEN,—Having used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam in our family for years I have no hesitation in saying that it beats everything else we ever tried for coughs and colds in children as well as grown up people. It relieves that tight binding sensation in the chest. We would not be without it for anything. WILLIAM ANDREW, Commissioner in B.R., Balmoral, Man.

NEGROES WENT ON A RAMPAGE.

They Played Havoc in the Cane Fields on St. Christopher Island.

New York, March 1.—A negro uprising is reported from the Island of St. Christopher or "St. Kitts." Beginning as a strike of watermen and porters at Basseterre against a reduction of wages, the trouble spread to all the sugar estates.

Cane fields throughout the island were set on fire. Plantation buildings were looted, and in most instances burned or otherwise destroyed. The British warship Cordelia turned up at a critical moment and, landing a force of marines, checked the disturbance, which was without head or organization. So far as is known here no life was lost, but the damage to property is extensive.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health. It makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, and receive free a copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Judgment Reserved.

Thomas Williams was before the Magistrate, this morning, charged with a violation of the by-law regulating to the licensing of carters. Chief Rozel endeavoured to show that the defendant operated two wagons, when he only had a license for one, the extra vehicle being driven by his son. Mr. Williams testified that the extra cart was used in drawing coal from a car to a shed on the Carbon Works' premises, payment being received at a certain rate per ton. This cart was driven by the son, whilst defendant worked with the other at Appleby's. The alleged offence occurred on Friday last. Judgment was reserved.

"Hands Across the Sea."

Ottawa Journal: "The play at the Grand last night drew a full house, but no better than it deserved, for "Hands Across the Sea," as presented by Maurice Freeman and his company proved well worth seeing. The play itself gives all the necessary material for an interesting melo-drama, and the unravelling of the plot sustains the interest throughout. The acting is all good, Mr. Freeman as "Jack Dudley," the hero, is strong. The play relies more on its own merit of action than on scenic effects, though the scenery was good. The play is full of life, and introduces many startling situations, yet not too startling to appear unreal." "Hands Across the Sea" will be at the opera house, here, to-morrow night. Prices, 25, 35 and 50c.

TRAINS CANCELLED.

The Rain and Sleet Block the Railways.

All trains over the Grand Junction from here to Belleville have been cancelled today. Conductor Stanton's train from Belleville got as far as Campbellford this morning and had to turn back on account of the snow and ice, which had accumulated on the rails yesterday, when no trains were moving on this division of the Grand Trunk.

The Lakefield branch is closed for the present but will be re-opened to-morrow. One snowplough is in the ditch near Campbellford, and another has left the rails about a mile and a half from here on the Port Hope branch.

It is the ice, rather than the snow, which is giving the trouble, as the snowploughs run right up on it without breaking it and thus leave the track very easily.

No. 1 from Port Hope to Toronto, was an hour late, but No. 2 from Toronto to Port Hope passed through only 20 minutes behind time. All trains will be running as per schedule to-morrow.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

Non Jury Sittings—The Business Concluded.

The non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice opened this afternoon, at the Court House, Mr. Justice Robertson presiding.

The first case called was that of Hay vs. Kelly et al, an action brought by T. A. S. Hay against T. Kelly, of Ashburnham, to recover $3,737.85, or in default foreclosure of a mortgage to be applied on payment of debt, and that after such sale D. Conroy, one of the defendants, be ordered to pay balance of mortgage. Judgment given directing Local Master to sell property within six weeks and any balance to be paid by D. Conroy, he to have remedy against the estate of Agnes Becket. W. H. Moore for plaintiff, Edmison & Dixon for defendant, Conroy. Hall & Hayes for defendants executors. Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson for infant defendant.

Denoon vs. Denoon—Action by John Denoon against Elizabeth Denoon, to recover $407, in payment of notes discounted by plaintiff in the management of a butcher shop in the interest of defendant. Judgment: Court found that notes in question were issued without consent of defendant, and gave judgment for defendant with all costs, including costs of cross-examination. This judgment not to prejudice defendant's counter claim. Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson for plaintiff; G. H. Watson, Q. C., and Hall & Hayes for defendant.

This concluded the business and the Court rose.

Edward Tighe Gets Two Months for the Offence.

This morning Edward Tighe was was fined twenty dollars, to be paid forthwith, or as an alternative, sentenced to two months in gaol for striking his mother with a hockey stick on Thursday last.

Tighe, it seems, was not satisfied with the breakfast his mother gave him that morning and flew into a passion, breaking the furniture, upsetting the stove and ending up by striking his mother over the fingers with a hockey stick.

As her son does not pay anything for his board his mother thought this was carrying things too far and invoked the aid of the police, who arrested the disturber of the family harmony on Saturday evening, with the result that he will spend the next two months at Castle Nesbitt.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, with a large attendance of salesmen present.

Mr. J. M. Drummond, president, occupied the chair, and congratulated the Cheese Board on the large number of prominent men connected with it—two members of parliament and one warden and three ex-wardens, and to this fact was to be attributed the success of the Board. He outlined the business that was likely to engage the attention of the Board, and referred to the distribution of the surplus among the poorer factories. He thought the Board should stand by some of the factories in relation to the inspectors more than it had formerly. Mr. Drummond also referred to the importance of shipping cheese, when it was fit for market, and also called attention to the rules in this connection, and in relation to SELLING OFF THE BOARD.

In reference to the suggestions to have weekly meetings at the beginning of the season, Mr. Drummond thought it was not advisable to do so—not wise to put green cheese on the English market.

Mr. John Riddell asked Mr. Cluxton, who was present, if he would not make a few remarks concerning the points mentioned in the president's address.

Mr. Cluxton stated that the board was now considered to be the best in Canada, and it had been worked up to this high point of excellence through the attention which had been paid to the enforcement of of the rules and regulations which had been adopted in the beginning and improved upon at various times. He considered it would be very inadvisable to have weekly sales instead of fortnightly ones, as the green cheese would have to be sold at a lower price and would have a tendency to lower the price of Canadian cheese on the English markets. If green cheese was once placed on the English market too soon, the standard of Canadian cheese would be greatly lowered.

Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald stated that if the sales were held weekly, it would greatly of the buyers. He did not think that the firm which he represented would be able to be present at every meeting if the sales were held so often.

Mr. Samuel Edwards, treasurer, presented his annual report showed the handsome surplus of receipts over expenditures of $87.50, the largest in the history of the Board. The receipts consisted of balance from last year of $63.27, and fees from market privileges, $46.00, a total of $109 27. The expenditures amounted to $21.70, leaving a credit balance of $87.57.

In the matter of the request of the Lindsay Board for a portion of the surplus to be handed over to it as its share, the Victoria members having contributed regularly whilst connected with the Peterborough District Board, Mr. Edwards spoke in favour of refunding to the members, who left the Peterborough Board to form one in Lindsay, the fair proportion to which he thought

THEY WERE ENTITLED.

He thought the Lindsay Board was now formed to stay.

Mr. Cluxton was of the opinion that the members of the new Board would soon be seeking readmission to the Peterborough Board, and cautioned the members to take time to consider the matter.

Mr. J. G. Galvin and Mr. John Riddell spoke in favour of making a refund to the Victoria district members, and on their motion the President Secretary and Treasurer were appointed a committee to strike the amount due the Lindsay members.

Mr. J. G. Galvin was then asked to speak on the merits of the Babcock tester. He thought that dairying could not be well carried out successfully without it. He explained the origin of the test and thought it was successful in correcting evils which the law failed to detect, although the Federal and Local Government has legislated on the question. Through the use of this test much trouble and litigation were avoided, as no adulteration was possible without being detected. Then again the use of the tester perfected the farmer in dairying and encouraged him of his milk over night, for if it was properly treated at the farm it would average two or three points better at the factory in the morning than that of the farmer who paid no attention to his milk after it was in the can until it was sent away. Again, the grade of cheese was raised by this means and a better grade of cheese would bring a better price in England. Lastly, but not least, the Babcock test raised every patron of a factory above suspicion. Although the introduction of the test sometimes caused a little difficulty at first, it gave general satisfaction in the end.

Several others present who used the test in their factories also spoke in favour of it.

In regard to the markets, Mr. Cluxton stated that a year ago the English cheesemakers had tried to make an article to compete with the Canadian cheese, to be eaten when new. The trial had resulted in failure and the loss to the English cheesemakers had been enormous. He agreed with Mr. Galvin in saying that anything which tended to

of the farmer in preparing his milk for the factory must have merit. Concerning the holding of cheese for higher prices, Mr. Cluxton was firm in his advice to the buyers not to hold if the market was even and not unduly depressed. He had a motto on his mantel, "Sell! Sell! Sell!" and he advised the salesmen to adopt this motto also.

He was not in favour of changing the day for sales, as the buyers would be greatly incommoded thereby and no particular good would result from it.

In the first clause of the rules the clause "be one-half pound over" has been inserted before the words "up beam weight." The rule now reads as appended:—

"All sales of cheese shall be subject to inspection at the factory, and be one-half pound over up beam weight at the place of shipment (except when otherwise agreed upon at time of sale). No allowance for shrinkage to be made for October cheese.

On motion of Messrs. Middleton and Edwards it was resolved "That the rules and regulations for 1895 be adopted, except that the word "shall" in clause 5, for the season of 1896. The clause in question will now

READ AS FOLLOWS:

Any salesman selling cheese off the Board without having first obtained permission from the Board to do so, the factory he represents shall be erased from the Board, or a fine imposed not less than $10 nor more than $25. But any salesman failing to get an offer at any sale for the cheese of the factory he represents, shall not have liberty to sell off the Board, unless otherwise allowed by the President.

On motion of Messrs. Riddel and Sanderson it was resolved that two weeks' notice be given before any of the rules can be changed.

The following officers were re-elected to serve for ensuing year:

President—James Drummond.
Vice-Pres.—Geo. Stewart.
Secretary—James Middleton.
Treasurer—Samuel Edwards.

It was decided to hold the first meeting of the Board for sales on Wednesday, May 13th, at 1 p. m., when the salesmen could decide whether Wednesday or Tuesday be fixed as the regular day for the meeting of the Board.

Nervous Prostration

It is now a well established fact in medical science that nervousness is due to impure blood. Therefore the true way to cure nervousness is by purifying and enriching the blood. The great blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this letter:

"For the last two years I have been a great sufferer with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart. I was weak in my limbs and had smothered sensations. At last my physician advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla which I did, and I am happy to say that I am now strong and well. I am still using Hood's Sarsaparilla and would not be without it. I recommend it to all who are suffering with nervous prostration and palpitation of the heart." MRS. DALTON, 56 Alice St., Toronto, Ontario. Get Hood's, because

SWAN WANTED TO DIE.

A Kincardine Man Shoots Himself While Visiting in Toronto

Toronto, March 2.—At 2.20 Saturday afternoon George Swan of Kincardine shot himself at the residence of Harry Hunt, 159 Harbord-street.

For sometime past Mr. Swan has been suffering from nervous depression, and about six weeks ago he came to Toronto to visit his brother-in-law at the above address. The visit seemed to have benefited him, and it was the intention of himself and wife to return home Saturday afternoon. After this decision had been arrived at Mr. Swan was very nervous in his actions and appeared to be laboring under some inward excitement. After lunch on he walked up and down the hallways of the house. His wife spoke to him and he asked to be left alone. He entered the bath room and a moment after the report of the shot was heard. He was found lying on the floor, with a small red scar on the frontal bone, from which blood was issuing

Mr. Swan is one of the most prominent business men of Kincardine. He came there about 25 years ago as cutter for D. & W. G. Collins. He afterwards commenced business for himself and made a success of the venture. He became identified with many important questions in the interest of the town. He is a prominent member of the Methodist Church, and is estimated to be worth $20,000. He has four children, two girls and two boys.

Coroer Johnson issped a warrant for an inquest, thinking that Swan was dead. The warrant has been withdrawn.

Drs. Mennie, Cameron and Machell held a consultation yesterday and concluded that Swan may have a possible chance of recovery, if signs of inflammation of the brain or pressure from internal herorrhage are not apparent to-night

Thomas Swan of Detroit, and Mrs. Swan, brother and mother of the wounded man, arrived last night. They registered at the Queen's and drove immediately to the Harbord-street house.

Despondence the Undoubted Cause

Kincardine, Ont., Feb. 29.—Mr. Swan abo six months ago began to be low spirited. He had the year before completed and moved into his large fine residence on Princess-street, and owing to a falling off in business began to brood over what he considered a mistake in building too large a house and to fancy everything going against him. For upwards of four months he had not gone near his place of business. He had acquired a competency in business and took a great interest in educational matters, for years occupying a seat at the Board of Education, of which for two years he was chairman. He was an enthusiastic Oddfellow and was highly respected. In early life he had met with an accident on a railway by which he lost one leg.

ARMENIAN QUESTION ABLY DISCUSSED.

REV. DR. TORRANCE SPEAKS ON THE SUBJECT.

The Details of this Present-Day Topic Placed Plainly before the Congregation of St. Paul's Last Evening.

Rev. Dr. Torrance last evening preached a most timely and instructive sermon on the Armerian Question. He said that it is a lamentable fact that in this the 19th century of the Christian era, an unoffending, peaceable nation, like the Armenians, should be subjected to the most cruel persecutions at the hands of the Turks. It is no wonder that the Christian sentiment in Europe and America has been outraged by what has been taking place, and that there has been a demand for the punishment of the oppressors and for the deliverance of the oppressed. The wonder is that while these persecutions have been going on for months, the nations of Europe have not combined forcibly to stop them. We might have expected that laying aside all petty jealousies, they would have united as one and sent to Turkey the message that if these persecutions did not cease within a certain time the Sultan would be driven from his throne, and the dismemberment of the Turkish Empire would take place. How sad to think that while the Armenians were being robbed, tortured and put to death, President Cleveland should have made a threat of war upon Great Britain about an unimportant matter in which the interests of the United States were not really concerned and that the German Emperor should have sent his message to the President of the Dutch Republic in South Africa, in which his hostility to Great Britain was not disguised. Can it be that either of these rulers was impressed with a sense of the overwhelming importance of the Armenian question and with the claims of the Armenians for help. No. They were quick to resent anything which they thought might affect themselves, but so far they have not been willing to make the smallest sacrifice on behalf of the persecuted Armenians.

Armenia is one of the countries mentioned in the Bible. It is of interest in Bible history, because somewhere within its border, the Garden of Eden was planted, and because on one of its mountains the Ark rested, after the abatement of the flood. It is the the fountain land of the Paradise rivers, and abounds in romantic scenery and luxuriant pasture.

Armenia has not now a separate existence, but is divided between Turkey, Russia and Persia. It was calculated about 1850, that there were approximately four millions of Armenians in the world, of whom 2,500,000 were inhabitants of the Ottoman empire. They are a peaceable people, loyal to the governments of the different countries in which they live.

The Armenian Church is not in communion either with the Greek Church or with the Church of Rome. Its historical founder was St. Gregory, a prince of the reigning family of the Arsacidae, who having been converted to Christianity, was eager for the conversion of his countrymen. He was consecrated Bishop of Armenia (302, A.D.)

It is doubtful whether anything in the annals of persecution has been more terrible than what has been taking place in Armenia for the past two years. Terrible were the persecutions to which the early Christians were subjected at the hands of Pagan Rome. They were made to fight wild beasts in the Roman amphitheatre, while thousands of citizens looked on, exulting over their sufferings. When Nero, the Roman Emperor, had deliberately set fire to Rome, he charged the Christians with the crime and then, as a punishment, had them sowed up in bags, smeared with pitch, and set as torches to light his garden.

Terrible were the persecutions to which Papal Rome subjected those who refused to acknowledge her sway. She inflicted all kinds of bodily torture upon them. She burned multitudes of them at the stake.

But terrible as were the persecutions inflicted by both Pagan and Papal Rome; they were not more terrible than those, which are being inflicted by the Turks upon the Armenians at the present time.

One who knows the truth of what he writes, says, "The Armenian people in Anatolia are being exterminated root and branch by Turks and Kurds—systematically and painfully exterminated by such abominable methods and with such fiendish accompaniments as may well cause the most sluggish blood to boil and seethe with shame and indignation.

Kurdish brigands lifted the last cows and goats of the peasants, carried away their carpets and their valuables, raped their daughters and dishonoured their wives. Turkish tax-gatherers followed these, gleaning what the brigands had left, lest anything should escape their avarices, bound the men, flogged them till their bodies were a bloody mangled mass, cicatrized the wounds with red hot ramrods, plucked out their beards hair by hair, tore the flesh from their limbs by pincers and often even when dissatisfied with the financial results of their exertions, hung the men whom they had just beggared and maltreated from the rafters of the room and kept them to witness with burning shame, impotent rage and incipient madness the dishonouring of their wives and the deflowering of their daughters, some of whom died miserably during the hellish outrage.

In Treubsond on the first day of the massacre an Armenian was coming out of a baker's shop, where he had been purchasing bread for his sick wife and family, when he was surprised by the raging crowd. Fascinated with terror, he stood still, was seized and dashed to the ground. He pleaded piteously for mercy and pardon and they quietly promised it, and so grim and dry was the humour of this crowd that the trembling wretch took their promises seriously and offered them his heartfelt thanks. In truth they were only joking. When they were ready to be serious they tied the man's feet together and taunted him, but at first with the assumed gentleness that might well be mistaken for the harbinger of mercy. Then they cut off one of his hands, slapped his face with the bloody wrist and placed it between his quivering lips. Soon afterwards they chopped off the other hand and enquired whether he would like pen and paper to write to his wife. Others requested him to make the sign of the cross with his stumps or with his feet while he possessed them, while others desired him to shout louder that his God might hear his cries for help. One of the most active members of the crowd then stepped forward and tore the man's ears from his head, after which he put them between his lips and flung them in his face. Then, after other tortures, they cut his throat."

It were possible to proceed along this line at great length, but this will be more than sufficient to give some idea of the persecutions to which the Armenians are now being subjected.

The Turks endeavour to throw the blame for this state of things upon the Armenians. They assert that while the Armenians owe their riches and their prosperity to the favour of the Turks, they have turned upon their benefactors and sought to destroy them in order to set up a kingdom for themselves. They assert further, that in almost all places where massacres have taken place, the Moslems have acted in self defence. It is possible that many of the Turks believe these assertions to be true, but the Ministers and higher officials know them to be false. Twenty years ago the Armenians were well treated by the Turks. Since the last war, however, a change has taken place. The Sultan has been gradually abolishing the rights and privileges of the Armenians, ignoring the constitution previously granted to their national church, and treating them as enemies, whom any official could imprison and plunder. It is absurd to suppose that the Armenians, unarmed and few in numbers in comparison with the Turks, should have risen in rebellion if they had been receiving just treatment.

Now what has been done by the nations of Europe to protect the Armenians? Last May the ambassadors of three of these nations proposed certain alterations of law and constitution, with this end in view. These proposals were that a proportional number of Christian employes should be added to the administration in all the provinces where large numbers of Armenians were. In the speech which Lord Salisbury delivered at Guildhall banquet in November, he expressed a doubt as to the likelihood of these reforms being carried out. In reply to this the Sultan immediately sent a message to say that he was determined to carry out these reforms as soon as possible and pledging his word of honour in support of the fact. But the events which have happened during the past three months show that little reliance can be planced in the sincerity of the Sultan. The ambassadors of the three European nations asked permission from the Sultan to send up each a second ship through the Dardanelles for the protection of the European community in case of renewed rioting. After a fortnight's delay the Sultan consented, but this can hardly be regarded as a proof of the Sultan's determination to carry out the promised reforms.

The nations of Europe have permitted this state of tuings to continue for too long a time. As they have not been able to stop the atrocities by diplomacy they ought to be a resort to force. And undoubtedly there would have been long ago if the nations had confidence in each other and had been actuated by a desire only for the common good. But nations, as well as individuals are too often influenced by selfish considerations kept from doing what is their manifest duty to do. If the nations were to depose the Sultan and drive the Turks from their place as an European nation, what would become of the Turkish Empire after dismemberment. Then, again, if England were to interfere alone might it not be, as the falling of a spark, which would set all Europe in a blaze. And so, while the nations are sitting with folded hands, doing nothing more than remonstrating with the Sultan, the Armenians are being robbed, tortured and put to death.

In the meantime, as the people in Christian lands are being informed as to what is really taking place in Armenia, sympathy is being called forth toward the Armenian and indignation against the Turk. Public meetings are being held in different places, calling upon the Governments actively to interfere. A memorial of 229 ministers of religion in and about Liverpool has been forwarded to Lord Salisbury. "Your memorialists, being ministers of religion in and about Liverpool, desire respectively but with all emphasis to impress upon your Lordship their profound conviction that the honour of this country and then its Christian character alike demand immediate action on the part of England of such a nature as to stay the progress of outrages, torture and massacre among the Christian subjects of the Porte, and they appeal to your Lordship, in whose keeping is the good name of the English people, to give these and similar representations your most prompt and grave consideration."

The blood of the Armenians cries to God for vengeance, just as truly as did the blood of the souls under the altar, referred to in the text. Do we suppose that God is a disinterested spectator of what is going on in Armenia at the present time? No. He is looking with pity upon the sufferers—their cries of distress is entering into His ears. He will take vengeance because of the persecutions of the Armenians vengeance upon the Turk for his cruelty, and vengeance upon the nations for withholding help. "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the least of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." Vengeance may seem to be long delayed; but sooner or later it will come.

And now let us ask, what can we do to help the suffering Armenians? We cannot go in person to fight for them. We cannot bring any influence to bear upon the Sultan. But we can give money to enable them to procure food. There are places in Canada where they have begun to raise money for this purpose. It is to be hoped that we, in Peterborough, will not be behind. Let us think what our feelings would be if these atrocities were being committed in our own Dominion, if our sons and daughters were being dishonoured, starved, tortured and put to death. And as under these circumstances we would desire help ourselves, let us not withhold help from others.

Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites for Throat and Lung Troubles.

Perfectly well established is the value of cod liver oil in the various diseases of the air passages, and combined with maltine and the hypophosphites, its remedial value is vastly enhanced. In the elegant and palatable preparation, Maltine with Cod Liver Oil, are combined the valuable tissue building oil, and that sustainer of vitality and digestive, maltine. No emulsion can compare in remedial value with this preparation, for in addition to disguising the unpleasant taste of the oil and rendering it more easily digested, the maltine plays a most important part in maintaining adequately the process of nutrition so essential in wasting and pulmonary diseases. This it does by rendering the starchy foods in a form which assures its assimilation, with the result that emaciation gives way speedily to plumpness, the irritated bronchial tubes are soothed, rest grows natural and health becomes an assured fact. Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is a food, medicine and digestive.

—The Josephine Kid Glove Cleaner is unlike any other—that's the good of it. Ladies will not do without it at twice the cost once they use it. Sold by Robt. Fair, sign of the Golden Lion, headquarters for Perrin Freres' celebrated Kid Gloves in newest styles for all occasions.

Milburn's Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Wild Cherry and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, and pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil in perfectly palatable form. It is the best for coughs, colds and all lung troubles. price 50c and $1 per bottle

CHRONIC HEADACHE.

The change in my Mother's condition marvellous.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a Boon.

MONTREAL, August 29th, 1895.

GENTLEMEN:—There is such a change in my mother's health that I cannot restrain myself from writing you. She suffered for years past with a chronic headache, accompanied with a disordered stomach. She was weak and irritable, and we thought she was going into a decline. For three weeks she has been taking a course of Scott's Sarsaparilla, which was recommended to her by Mr. McGale, Druggist, Montreal. Her headache is now but a memory, her appetite is good, and she has gained five pounds in weight in twelve days. She is a different woman, and I feel that you, in God's hands, have been the means of restoring her to health. I shall always recommend Scott's Sarsaparilla to sufferers from head or digestive troubles. Thanking you again, I close.

Yours sincerely,
Hortense Gaviliere.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated extract, pleasant to the taste, and is taken in small doses. It is the finest remedy for disorders of the stomach and liver, palpitation, scrofulous sores, eczema and skin diseases arising from impurities of the blood. It builds up the weak, the strong it maintains in health. $1 of all druggists.

Sold by J. D. Tully, Peterborough.

GENUINE ELOQUENCE.

The Irish Pauper's Most Powerful Plea to Humanity.

Leitch, in his "Travels in Ireland," says:

"In my morning rambles, a man sitting on the ground, leaning his back against the wall, attracted my attention by a look of squalor in his appearance which I had rarely before observed, even in Ireland. His clothes were ragged to indecency, and his face was pale and sickly. He did not address me, and I passed by; but, having gone a few paces, my heart smote me and I turned back.

"'If you are in want,' said I, 'why do you not beg?'"

"'Sure, it's begging I am,' was the reply.

"'You did not utter a word.'

"'No! Is it joking you are with me, sir? Look there!' holding up the tattered remnant of what had once been a coat. 'Do you see how the skin is speaking through the holes in my trousers, and the bones crying out through my skin? Look at my sunken cheeks and the famine that's staring in my eyes! Man alive, isn't it begging I am with a hundred tongues?'"—New York Ledger.

Instinct of Birds.

Some wonderful facts about the instinct of birds have been observed by naturalists. The oriole, for example, has a fondness for bright colors, and yet prudence leads the little creature in choosing its nest to select the least conspicuous hues. He also shows architectural skill in attaching a string to his hanging nest and fastening it securely by a number of turns and a knot to a branch above.

Birds also show a progressive spirit. Since the introduction of British manufactures they use sewing thread and ravelings from cloths.

In the districts of Switzerland where watches are made, the wagtails have learned to build their nests of the fine steel shavings. Sparrows, which usually build in the chinks of walls or under roofs, if forced to construct their nests in trees or any unsheltered spot, cover them with a sort of hood to keep out the rain.

A Royal Editor.

One of the most interesting of newspapers is the New Zealand "To Pakio Matariki," or "Pleiades," or "Seven Stars." It enjoys the distinction of having a King for an editor. His Royal Highness Tawhiao is not, it is true, an independent sovereign like Emperor William, but when he descends from the royal throne to the editor's "easy chair," then, indeed, is he monarch of all he surveys, even of that otherwise independent personage, the "printer's devil."

The "Pleiades" is a small, eight-page paper, three columns on a page. It is printed in English and native tongues. Sometimes the translation is in the center column, sometimes in one of the outside columns.

The Maori language is a Polynesian dialect. It closely approaches that of the Sandwich Islands, of the Navigator's Group, and of Rarotonga. Natives of these mutually understand one another.

A Queer Situation.

Applicant—No; I didn't git no fixed wages where I was last. I worked on time.

Business man—Were you discharged?

"Yes, sir. I expected to be there for years, but they discharged me in three years for bein' good."

"That's strange. Where did you work?"

"In the penitentiary."—Philadelphia Record.

Queer Combination.

The man behind—Pardon me, miss, I can see nothing owing to your hat.

The woman in front—True! There is nothing owing. I have paid for it in full.—Philadelphia Record.

Long-Drawn Out.

She—Kiss me once more.

He—I am afraid I won't have time. I must leave in half an hour.

A Baffled Agent.

Mr. Quick had just thrust his feet beneath his desk, and comfortably settled himself for a long afternoon's work, when the office door opened, and a female entered with a satchel slung from her shoulder.

"An agent!" groaned Mr. Quick, as she advanced to his side.

"Good afternoon, sir," said the female politely. "Have you any objection to a lady's polishing your shoes for you?"

"Indeed I have," responded Mr. Quick, emphatically.

"Oh, you mustn't mind a little thing like that," said the female, reassuringly. "It's just a matter of business. I'm introducing a new kind of polish, and I can't sell you some unless I show you what it is, can I? So just put out your feet, and I'll black your shoes in a jiffy."

"I cannot permit it, madam," asseverated Mr. Quick. "On no account will I permit you to do such a thing."

"I know a great many gentlemen do object to letting a lady do such work, and a very great credit it is to their gallantry," said the female, simpering.

"Oh, I don't mind that," asserted Mr. Quick, interrupting her.

"Why, what is your objection, then?" asked the surprised female.

"Mine are tan shoes," explained Mr. Quick.—Truth.

Canada Life Assurance Co.

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business In Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows :—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nearly 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life

THE workman often eats his lunch on the same bench where he does his work. The office man snatches a few minutes from his occupation and turns his desk into a dining-table. Neither gets the exercise he needs, neither takes the proper time for eating. It is small wonder that the digestion of both gets out of order.

Nature works as hard as she can, but there are some things she cannot stand. If a man gets some foreign substance into the works of his watch, he doesn't expect the watch to run until the impediment is removed. His own digestive system is a much more wonderful and delicate mechanism than that of his watch, and yet he neglects it and abuses it. He lets it get out of order, and refuses to help it. In the end his neglect reacts with terrible force upon himself. The reaction comes on gradually, however, so that sometimes he scarcely suspects the cause.

The cause of nine-tenths of the sickness of the world is constipation—a condition so common that four people out of five take it as a matter of course. From this one cause come indigestion; disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys; biliousness, headaches, flatulence, heartburn, impurity of the blood and the serious complications that follow. To begin with, constipation is a little thing, and a little thing will cure it. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated granules. They give to nature just the little help she needs. They are as gentle as they are efficient, and will perfectly cure the worst cases of constipation. There is nothing in the world like them, so there can be nothing "just as good." The druggist who tries to sell you something else has his own interest in view and not yours.

For a free sample package of from 4 to 7 doses, address World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of customs and mailing only, will receive free a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. "ROBINSON CRUSOE."

PARTICULARS OF THE EVENTFUL CAREER OF ITS NOTED AUTHOR.

How Daniel Defoe Came to Write the Book—A Man Who Saw Six Sovereigns Come to the Throne of Britain—Who Alexander Selkirk Was.

Who wrote "Robinson Cruesoe?"

In the ancient parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, London, where Milton lies buried, there was born to an honest butcher and his wife, in the year 1661, a little child who was called Daniel Foe, afterwards written Defoe. The Foes were humble, faithful people, devout Christians and conscientious parents.

The academy at Newgate Green, to which he was sent in his fourteenth year to study for the ministry, was in charge of a very interesting teacher, a Mr. Chas. Morton, who took special pains to drill his pupils in the use of good English. Defoe seems to have been very happy at the academy. He was a quick, eager scholar, lively, merry, "a bad hater, gentle-hearted, but unusually pugnacious." Among his best friends was handsome young Timothy Crusoe, who afterwards became a minister, but his chief title to fame comes through the use of his name for the hero of his friend's great story.

On leaving school Defoe went into the hosiery business for several years, but living a very eager, restless, interesting life, taking up cudgels in behalf of any cause of person that seemed to need defense, publishing political pamphlets by the score, editing newspapers, and, of course, getting into trouble over and over again.

Six different sovereigns came to the throne in Defoe's lifetime. Oliver Cromwell had died shortly before Defoe was born.

Then came Charles II., followed by James II. Then William and Mary were invited over to help the Island Kingdom out of its difficulties, and later Queen Anne and two Georges. We find Defoe riding in the guard of honor at the coming of Queen Mary, and invited to assist in laying out Kensington Gardens, for all his life he was a great lover of flowers. But he was far enough from being a general court favorite, and his fearless pen brought him once to Newgate prison. And once, on account of the publication of a political pamphlet, described as "seditious and libelous," he was condemned to stand in the pillory for several hours, and his pamphlet was burned by the common hangman.

About two hundred and fifty books and pamphlets were published by Defoe, who was a rapid and eager writer and very quick to seize upon an idea. But he was a bad business manager, and was often in reverses. Defoe loved to wander about in order to hear and see all sorts of novel things, neglecting business for politics; and for this and his generally irregular though never disreputable ways his wife treated him to so many lectures that Defoe made a vow of silence, and for twenty-eight years, from 1686 to 1714, he never spoke to her.

But how came Defoe's wonderful book to be written?

The man whose adventures inspired the story of "Robinson Cruesoe" was born while Defoe was a student at Newington. His name was Alexander Selcraig or Selkirk, and he was a wild, restless fellow, who ran away to sea. As a result of a quarrel with his rough sea companions, he was left on a desolate island called Juan Fernandez, west of Chili. After remaining on the island for years, he escaped and returned to England. Many people came to listen to his strange story, and with the others, of course, came wandering Defoe. The account touched Defoe's lively fancy, and he obtained from Selkirk all his papers. Six or seven years later the story of "Robinson Crusoe" was written. The London publishers were not eager to accept it after it was written. Some one gives us a picture of Defoe going up and down the streets of London with the manuscript under his arm, visiting one book shop after another without success. But finally a Mr. William Taylor accepted it, and on April 25, 1719, a book of 364 pages was issued, with this title page:

"Life and Strange Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe of York, mariner; who lived 8 and 20 years all alone on an Uninhabited Island on the coast of America, near the mouth of the great River Oronoque. Having been cast on Shore by Shipwreck, wherein all the Men perished but himself. With an Account how he was at last as strangely delivered by Pyrates. Written by himself. London; Printed for W. Taylor at the Ship in Paternoster Row, 1719."

At once the town seized upon the charming story. A second edition of the book was called for within seventeen days; a third twenty-five days later; and August 8 the fourth edition was given to the public. Everybody wanted to read it, and Mr. Taylor realized a fortune, though a small sum only is said to have fallen to Defoe. In a few months the ready romancer had prepared a second volume called "The Further Adventures of Robinson Crusoe."

Defoe died in 1731. His last days were troubled and unhappy, and quite alone and uncared for, he died at the age of 70.—The Outlook.

The Elephant Catcher.

Dimmick the English elephant catcher, knows more of the habits of the animal than any other living man. He is supposed to be the original of Kipling's "Peterson Sahib." He says that but twenty-four white elephants have been caught since the commencement of the Christian era.

The Credit Business.

Grocer—I give you credit, Bill, for stopping that runaway horse the other day.

Bill—Thanks; I was jist goin' ter ask yer fur a little.

Grocer—Get out o' here; who'd give you credit?

Only a Woman.

First Mouse—How did you get the cheese?

Second Mouse—I found out that there was no one in the house but the servant, and I just went and held her up.

Tongue Twisters.

A good merry making game at an evening party, or for that matter at any time, is trying to repeat difficult sentences over and over again. One of the simplest and best of these is "Mixed biscuits." Another is "Gig whip," and even worse than that is "Six thick thistle stick." Peter Piper fades into insignificance when compared with such jawbreakers. Having mastered them, attempt "She stood at the door welcoming him in," and proceed to the direction which the writer has been obliged to give, "Stop at the shop at the top of Sloane street." Should any member of the company feel sure of the prize thus far an antidote to conceit is "There was an old woman and she was a thistle sifter. She had a sieve of sifted thistles and a sieve of unsifted thistles, and she was a thistle sifter."

Toasts to Women.

Woman—The sweetest creature the Lord ever made.

Woman—The source of help, happiness and Heaven.

Woman—She needs no eulogy; she speaks for herself.

Woman—A creature "nobly planned, to warn, to comfort and command."

Woman—Once there was a woman, sir, and here she is.

Woman—The tyrant we love, the friend we trust.

Woman—God bless her, the queen of all creation.

Woman—The fairest work of the great Author; the edition is large, and no man should be without a copy.—Baltimore World.

AN EXPRESS COMPANY'S LIABILITY.

An Interesting Case Before the Supreme Court Over a Missing Money Package.

Ottawa, Feb. 29.—The argument in Jeffrey v. Wilkie before the Supreme Court was concluded to-day and judgment reserved.

The case of the Northern Pacific Express Company v. Martin was next taken up, being an appeal from a decision of the Court of Queen's Bench in Manitoba, in an action for the loss of a package containing $2000 sent by Messrs. Martin & Mitchell, grain dealers at Winnipeg, to their buyer at Wawanesa. The package appears to have arrived safely at Wawanesa on a Saturday evening, and the evidence is in effect that, as the consignee was signing the receipt book, the express company's agent laid the package on a table near him. The consignee does not appear to have either seen or taken the package away with him, but called again for it on the following Monday morning, when the agent of the express company claimed to have made the delivery at the time the receipt was signed. Upon a careful search the package could not be found, and it was concluded that the package had been stolen by a couple of tramps who had been seen lurking about the station on the Saturday evening. The Court of Appeal in Manitoba affirmed the judgment given by Mr. Justice Dubuc against the express company, and that company now seeks to have both judgments reversed.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., appears for the appellants and Mr. J. S. Ewart, Q.C., for the respondents. The argument was not concluded when the court rose for the day.

BIG BLAZE AT HALIFAX.

Nearly a Quarter of a Million of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

Halifax, March 1.—Fire broke out shortly after midnight in Gordon & Keith's wholesale and retail house-furnishing establishment, one of the largest in Canada, and the building was in flames in less than 15 minutes. The entire place was threatened with destruction, involving great loss, and a number of wooden buildings, on both sides were in danger of burning. Gordon & Keith's fronts on two streets, Barrington and Granville, and the main building is a handsome brick structure of five stories. A wooden building adjoining is also occupied by the firm.

At 12.45 the furniture building was a roaring furnace and the blaze was communicating to the other houses. At that thour the whole square bounded by Barrington, Sackville Granville and Blowers-streets was threatened and it looked as though few of the stores or dwellings would escape unless the flames were got under control very rapidly.

By 1 o'clock all the firemen in Halifax were working on the conflagration and were succeeding fairly well in preventing the flames from doing serious damage to buildings not within immediate reach of the fiery forks leaping on all sides from the Gordan & Keith structures. Those next door, the latter on either side, on both Granville and Barrington-streets, caught. The fire department were able to keep the flames from making rapid headway, devoting all their attention to saving the places adjoining that on which the work of destruction began.

At 1.15 o'clock the conflagration, which had apparently been subsiding somewhat, burst forth with renewed energy, and with appaling rapidity began to eat its way through the adjoining buildings, especially those to the south. The roar of the burning buildings could be heard a mile away and people crowded to the scene from all sections. It was evident by 1.30 o'clock that the loss would be enormous, perhaps half a million dollars.

At 1.45 all the electric lights in the city went out on account of the wires being cut. Gordon & Keith's walls were tumbling by that time on all sides, but the firemen were devoting all their attention to other property, where they could do more effective work.

On Barrington-street there are retail stores of various descriptions to to the north and south of Gordon & Keith's. Those immediately south are occupied by Arthur J. Roubbier, confectioner, and Mrs. M. T. Conroy, drygoods and millinery. On the north are Mrs. A. O'Connor, millinery, and Mrs. A. McEachren, fashionable dressmaking establishment. On Granville-street, to the south, are James Croosskill & Sons, bottling house, and the Orpheus Music Hall, the latter owned by the leading musical organization in the province. On the north are two large stone dwellings, four stories high, occupied by Mrs. Sarah Neville, Mrs. A. Bowers, and H. H. Landis. All these buildings, except the Orpheus Hall, were burning most of the time, but the strenuous efforts of the firemen kept the fire in their quarters fairly under control.

Before 5 o'clock the fire was under control, and the flames, which were then only visible in Gordon & Keith's wrecked establishment, were being rapidly quenched. One fireman is reported missing, but the report cannot be verified. Several men were injured by falling walls, but none seriously.

During the day, when a better survey of the ruins could be made, it was estimated that the aggregate loss would be between $150,000 and $200,000. Gordon & Keith suffered far more than all the others combined. Their stock was insured for $67,000 and the buildings for $30,000. They place their loss at about $25,000 over the total insurance, which was all in English and American companies, except $5000 in the Quebec. There was $20,000 in the Norwich Union, $20,000 in the Phœnix and $7000 in the North American Company of Philadelphia. Mrs. O'Connor, milliner, carried $7000 insurance, which is much more than her loss. Donald Keith, one of the founders of the firm of Gordon & Keith, received the news of the fire while on the train from Halifax for Montreal, having left here yesterday afternoon. The statement of detailed losses and insurance is not yet obtainable.

THE PRICE OF HOGS.

Mr. Wm. Davies, of the Davies Company, Toronto, thus writes to the Mail and Empire, under date of Feb. 27:—The low prices ruling for hogs the last few months have been very disappointing to farmers, drovers and pork packers. Probably the two former have been under the impression that export packers have been coining money, but the following market report from the London Commercial Record will show to all concerned what has been the cause of the very low prices, viz., the enormous increase in hogs in Denmark. We might naturally suppose that it would bring about a reaction in that country, and we earnestly hope this will be the case, though it is to be feared that the number of young pigs in the hands of farmers in that country is very large.

The greatest difficulty in making sales in England at the present time is that all heavy bacon, fat or lean, is in decreasing demand, and the increasing demand is for lean sides from hogs weighing, alive, 160 to 190 pounds. It is evident that this is in accord with the interest of farmers, because many experiments at Government farms in Canada, the United States and foreign countries have demonstrated that all feeding animals yield the best return for feed when marketed young—say pigs at six or eight months old.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigourous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable "examinations" and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for thirty years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain cure for all derangements, weaknesses, irregularities and displacements of internal organs peculiar to women.

OUR DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT

Was re-opened for the season on Monday, the 2nd inst. and from the number of orders for Dresses and Costumes received on the opening day the coming season promises to be the busiest in our record.

The popularity of this branch of our business grows year by year. It is in charge of a lady who stands at the head of her profession and will not allow a garment to leave our store that is not fully up to order and perfect in every particular, and this is the secret of our success.

Our display of New Spring Costumes is admired by all who have seen them.

Our showing at the present time embraces all the Newest Effects up to the time of our last shipment, and our stock will be augmented from time to time as new ideas are produced.

New Spring Mantles and Capes are to hand.

The latest creations in these Garments are to be found in them. There are many changes and cuts this season that characterizes our stock, very different from what you will see elsewhere this year, and all marked at such close prices that we expect to do an enormous trade in our Ready-Made Mantle Department.

New Prints and Ginghams.

Many were the surprises to our customers last Saturday when they learned the low prices at which we were selling our New Spring Prints and Ginghams.

At 8c you can buy the loveliest range of American Prints—colours guaranteed absolutely fast.

27 inch American Ginghams, worth 15c, selling at 10c. Every piece warranted fast colours.

For 15c you can buy from us a heavy 2 yard wide Cotton Sheeting, the 20c kind.

Have you seen our Bleached Cottons? If not you are just paying perhaps 10 per cent. more for them elsewhere.

We placed on sale to-day 1 case of 12½c and 15c English Prints, to be cleared out at 8c the yard.

This line embraces some of the choicest patterns for the coming season, and were imported to sell at the former prices.

THE BILL SCORCHED.

Principal Grant Makes a Hot Statement.

WILL SIMPLY RESULT IN IFRICTION

And Fill the Pockets of Lawyers for Settling Legal Difficulties—It is a Barmecide Feast for the Roman Catholic Minority in Manitoba.

Montreal, March 2.—(Special)—The Rev. Principal Grant expresses himself as follows on the Remedial bill:

"The proposed Remedial bill, in my opinion, is well adapted to irritate every one, without doing a particle of good. It combines the prospect of a long-continued Donnybrook between the Province and the Dominion. What a Barmecide feast for the Manitoba Roman Catholic minority.

"There must be dozens of men in Parliament who, after a little reflection, will see how it is sure to work. The bill puts all the powers of the Provincial Government into the hands of a Board of Education, which is responsible to no one. To entrust such powers to nine gentlemen of whom nothing is required but they shall be nominally Roman Catholics is so contrary to the whole spirit of our constitution that one is tempted to think that the measure must have been drawn up by the innocent Father Lacombe. When, however, we look a little deeper, these extravagant powers are seen to be a pure delusion.

"The machinery looks wonderfully complete. It is spread out over 40 pages of type, but there is not a pound of steam to run it. Not a cent is provided even to enable the board to hire a room to meet in or to pay its necessary expense.

"The executive officer of the board is the superintendent and he must have a good salary. He has all the work to do and a difficult country to travel over. Without his initiative nothing can be done. But his salary and the salaries of the local inspectors and the expenses of a normal school and other higher training as well as more than half the salaries of the teachers are all to be paid out of a fund to be voted by the Legislature of Manitoba.

"It sounds like a huge joke. Of course, Manitoba will not vote a dollar. The efficiency of the schools is to be determined by inspectors appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and every school is to be deemed efficient till an inspector reports it inefficient. As no inspectors will be appointed we shall have Hotheboy's hall over again if we have anything.

"No doubt the bill says that any sum granted by the Legislature of Manitoba for the separate schools shall be placed to the credit of the board, but there is not a pretence that the Dominion Government has the power to force any such grant. The constitutional question is shirked. If the Roman Catholics are thankful for such a bill, the fox must have been thankful for the dinner to which the stork invited him.

"However, let us suppose that the board does meet in the street or elsewhere and finds a superintendent who will work for love and put his shoulder to the wheel to set the machinery in operation. He organizes a few school districts and gets trustees appointed. These call on the municipal council to levy separate school taxes; the municipality obeys. What then? Section 92 of the British North America Act, enumerating the exclusive powers of Provincial Legislatures, subsection 2, is as follows: 'Direct taxation within the Province in order to the raising of a revenue for Provincial purposes.'

"This surely deprives the Dominion Government of the power to authorize the collection of such taxation.

"The Remedial Legislation provided in sub-section 4 of section 93, permits the Dominion Government to apply Dominion funds for the purpose, but in view of previous decisions of the Privy Council, which have jealously guarded provincial rights, it is difficult to believe that it gives them power to interfere with the fundamental principle of the constitution in order to carry out their peculiar ideas of Remedial Legislation.

"Should a municipality try the experiment it will find itself in litigation pretty soon. Should it refuse and the Board undertake the work instead, the litigation will come a little sooner.

"The bill proposes that Roman Catholics assessed for the support of sectarian schools are to be exempt from taxation for Public schools. The British North America Act gives no power to the Dominion Government to make such exemptions. If it does why not also exempt the Mennonites, who came to Manitoba under promise of the most favored race treatment, and the Anglicans, who had more schools in 1870 than the Roman Catholics and people who have no children and corporations. Then the province would have very few people left to tax. Of necessity the province must proceed against any man who refused to pay a provincial tax. What a veritable Lucullic banquet to the lawyers is suggested by all this litigation.

"Again, if the trustees of a school district require a loan for the purpose of building or for any other purpose, and the Lieut.-Governor in Council declines to sanction the loan, His Excellency the Governor-General in Council is to have the power. Can the British North America Act by any stretch of meaning be made to cover this transference of power? Besides, what means are provided for informing His Excellency's advisers as to whether there is sufficient security for such loans? It is unnecessary to go on criticising. The bill means friction at every point.

"It may be asked whether a better bill could not be drawn. I doubt it. The subject of education is by our constitution entrusted to the people of each province. The wisdom of the arrangement is shown by the fact that there are peculiarities in the system or in the administration of every province, even the territories having a different system from that of any of the seven provinces. The peculiarities are due to the historical development and the stated conditions of the different sections of the country, but, notwithstanding the apparent variety, we have substantial unity and peace as well as a reasonable degree of educational progress. This happy condition has been arrived at by trusting the good sense and the good feeling of the people immediately concerned. Changes are made from time to time in every province, according as they are needed. Hard and fast lines are now here more unsuitable than in connection with educational growth.

"Coercion from without is always odious to free men, and never as tedious as when administered by people who do not understand the peculiar conditions of the case and who would stoutly refuse to take the medicine which they propose to force upon others, as full grown as themselves.

"Even at the last hour I would fain hope that the Government will frankly recognize that it is attempting the impossible. The longer it perseveres in the present course the worse for it and the country.

"If this bill would settle the question, men might be induced to give it a grudging support. But, clearly, it will not. I see that Archbishop Langevin is already saying that he hopes for more in the future. He will need more, and need it soon. Why, then, should men ruin their political life, or at the cost of their political life, or at the cost to the country of their political superannuation, attempt to force this bill on Parliament? Intelligent Roman Catholics must now see that, as Hon. Mr. Fielding put it, "One point conceded by the Government of Manitoba will be worth more to them than half a dozen promised by the Dominion."

"The Government would do a brave thing if it called its followers together and announced its decision to begin again on the basis of accepting the proposals of Manitoba.

"Should its supporters from Quebec rebel, what could they do? Simply put Laurier in power to let him do the very thing which seems to them outrageous. Surely at this critical epoch in the life of our nation and empire, Canada might cease convulsing herself over a two penny half-penny matter, which three or four sensible men could easily settle so as to satisfy everyone except a few clerical and secularist bigots."

SIR CHARLES TUPPER PLAINTIFF.

Messrs. McConnell and Dunn of Halifax Come Up for an Examination.

Halifax, N.S., March 2.—The summonses issued in the Sir Charles Tupper criminal libel suit against John Dunn and Robert McConnell were returnable to-day, and the defendants and a number of men who had been subpoenaed were in court. R. L. Borden, Q.C., and J. A. Chisholm were present for the plaintiff, and W. B. Ross, Q.C., and B. Russell, Q.C., for the defence. Mr. McConnell was first called, and Mr. Ross, waiving the reading of the charge, applied for a continuance till Wednesday. The preliminary examinations therefore went over. In the Dunn case the procedure was the same, only the examination was fixed for Thursday.

RECOGNIZED BY CONGRESS, TOO.

The Cubans are Carrying on a Public War on Their Island.

Washington, March 2.—The House to-day after two hours' spirited debate under the limitations of a suspension of rules by a vote of 263 to 17 agreed to the first of resolutions adopted Friday by the Senate the concurrent resolutions reported last week by its Committee on Foreign Affairs, declaring that in the opinion of Congress a state of public war exists in Cuba, the parties to which are entitled to belligerent rights and between which the United States should observe a strict neutrality. They further declare that Congress believes the only permanent solution of the contest is in the establishment of a government by the people of Cuba, and that it is the sense of Congress that the Government of the United States should use its good offices and influences to that end, and that the United States should be prepared to protect the legitimate interests of its citizens in Cuba by intervention if necessary. The last of the series of resolutions reported by the committee, pledging the support of Congress to the President in carrying out the foregoing, was stricken out, it being thought unnecessary, being covered in the others.

Hon. J. A. Chapleau's Movements.

Montreal, March 2.—Hon. J. A. Chapleau will go to Atlantic City for a few weeks, but the general impression is that His Honor will return in time to accept office in Sir Charles Tupper's Cabinet.

Hon. Henry Starnes Dying of Paralysis.

Upper Montreal Was Flooded.

Montreal, March 2.—By the bursting of a water main to-night a large portion of the upper part of the city in the vicinity of Bleury to Park was flooded to-night. The water got into many of the houses, and a great deal of damage has been caused.

THE CAUCUS TO-DAY

Will Decide the Fate of the Remedial Bill.

WHY SOME MEMBERS ARE SO QUIET

They are Waiting for Government Positions, Which Might Not Come Their Way if They Voted Against the Government's Measure of Coercion in Manitoba.

Ottawa, March 2.—The Government caucus to morrow will practically decide the fate of the Remedial Bill. If its opponents are weak-kneed and spineless, or if the promises of office will go round, the Governmnt may venture to go on with the bill. There are half a dozen Ministerial members still waiting for offices and one or two for Senatorships. Among the latter is Mr. Wilmot of Sunbury, N.B., who has been strongly against the bill. How will he vote finally? Mr. George Taylor of South Leeds is naturally an opponent of the bill, and, under ordinary circumstances, would actively oppose it. Up to date his public utterances lend color to the belief that he would vote for the bill. What is the explanation? Mr. Taylor has not been re-nominated, and, with a vote for the bill, would have no chance of securing the convention—why, then, is he not opposing the bill? He, no doubt, has a good reason, and there is no connection between his attitude and the fact that he expects to be apointed Superintendent of the Rideau Canal. Mr. Boyle of Monck has of course been promised a customs collectorship at Niagara. Mr. Metcalfe will vote for the coercion bill. He also wants the Wardenship of the Kingston Penitentiary. Mr. Haslam of British Columbia does not intend to again ask the confidence of his constituency. Those who do not expect to run again are ready to vote for the bill—on public grounds of course. Members of Parliament who are appointed to office for subserviency to the Administration when the interests of the constituencies would naturally compel them to vote against the Administration are simpler than most people imagine if they expect to retain office should the Administration they bound themselves to go out at the elections. An office at this juncture has very little intrinsic value if the elections go against the Government, as they certainly will. When the Government thought they were "gone" last January they passed 20 orders in Council a day, mostly for friends, because they knew they would never come back alive from the elections. Actions speak louder than words.

The committee committed to Messrs. Weldon and Lalliviere met this evening down town at a private house. They will report to the caucus to-morrow. Mr. Edgar gives notice to-night that he will asks the Government if Premier Greenway has been invited to come to Ottawa to discuss the school question.

The second reading will be moved by Sir Charles Tupper, Bart. It is expected that Mr. Laurier will follow him and in that event Sir Adolphe Caron will reply to Mr. Laurier. The Hon. Mr. Dickey, who has the bill in charge, will reserve himself for a later period of the debate.

Major Sam Hughes has a letter in to-night's Journal, in which he discusses the school question and winds up with the following: "Let, therefore, Canada's Premier, as being senior officer of all, or Lord Aberdeen in his private capacity, invite the parties interested to a conference at Ottawa, not to obtain information, but to effect an immediate settlement. The second reading of the bill might be proceeded with, but long before its conclusion the conference would have an amicable settlement effected. Under the circumstances a statesmanlike spirit and ordinary common sense should satisfactorily arange the whole conclusion in less than an hour.

It is said to be definitely settled that the Lee-Enfield magazine rifle will be purchased by the Government for the use of the Canadian militia, 40,000 stand being secured. This confirms the announcement made in this connection by your correspondent two weeks ago.

Lieut.-Col. G. T. Denison arrived here from Toronto to-day to attend the meeting of the Imperial Federation League on Wednesday. The report of the Executive Committe contains a memorial addressed to Lord Salisbury, requesting that a second conference of the self-governing colonies be called to consider the question of imposing a special Imperial duty upon importations from all foreign countries, into every Imperial port, for the purpose of producing funds for Imperial defence. The proposal will be made to affiliate the league with the British Empire League.

Senator McCallum's bill to amend the Railway Act was discussed this afternoon. After several had spoken Sir Mackenzie Bowell said if the Government thought any change was necessary in reference to the question of drainage it would make an amendment to the Railway Act. He was sure that appeals under the bill would be more expensive to the petitioner than they are now and personally he was opposed to the measure. The bill might pass the Senate, but he was afraid that when it came up for consideration in the other House it would not be accepted. The motion for a third reading was carried by a vote of 28 yeas to 14 nays.

During the sitting the Premier received a telegram informing him that Lady Smith, wife of Sir Frank Smith, had died. Sir Frank is deskmate of the Premier. Sir Mackenzie will leave for Toronto to-morrow night to attend the funeral.

Mr. Kenny, M.P., returned to Ottawa to-day.

Mr. Edgar will ask if the Government have invited the Premier of Manitoba to come to Ottawa on the Remedial bill.

The Minister of Finance gives notice of a motion authorizing the Government to advance two million dollars to the Montreal Harbor Commission

MR. SEAGRAM'S VIEWS

What He Thinks of the Cana-Jockey Club Bill.

MUCH INTEREST IN THE COMMONS

Shown in the Proposed Measure to Regulate Horse Racing in Canada - What is Meant by Affiliation With Other Clubs—The Bill Delayed in Committee.

Ottawa, March 2.—(Special)—The committee stage on the Jockey Club Bill was reached in the House this afternoon and it led to a pretty lively discussion on the measure.

Mr. Lister said he thought the bill should be reprinted so that all members of the House could have an opportunity of considering its provisions. The discussion before the Private Bills Committee, when the measure came up, was not very lengthy and there was not a full representation of the parties interested. The bill proposed to incorporate a joint stock company, to be called the Canadian Jockey Club, and stock was to be issued by the company to a certain amount. He understood that a large majority of that stock would be held by gentlemen who were promoting the measure, but who were not acting in accord with the Horse Breeders' Associations throughout the country. The effect of the bill as it now stood would be to give voting power to the stockholders instead of to the representatives of the different clubs. This provision would give the stockholders control of the management, instead of the affiliated clubs. He thought that every club should have one vote on the board and not give the control simply to stockholders. The principle of the bill was wrong. The Jockey Club should not get these powers as a joint stock company at all. Its powers should be simply that of a club with the object of interesting breeders throughout the country in the better breeding of horses.

Every club that joined this association should have a vote regardless of the question of stock. Under the bill, however, the stock was to govern and the powers given were simply enormous. It would be within the power of this joint stock company to say that any horse that was found upon a non-affiliated track should be disbarred, and that it should not have the right to run upon any affiliated track. The intention was that these Jockey Club rules shall be the same as those of the New York and other States, and the result of the bill will be that any horse declared ineligible by this company will be ineligible in New York State or in any of the other States, acting with the company, which it is proposed now to incorporate. Regardless altogether as to whether the horse is properly disbarred or not, regardless altogether of whether the owner has done any thing that ought to disbar the horse; the mere fact of the horse having gone upon an unaffiliated track will be sufficient, if this company thinks proper to make that a rule, to disbar that horse and to prevent him going upon any track in Canada or the United States not affiliated with this Jockey Club.

The result of that will be that this joint stock company can compel every track in Canada to affiliate with this company's track in Canada, and thus bring every track in Canada under the control of this company. That was not good legislation. It was simply unprecedented. He did not believe that such legislation as proposed here could be found in any State or in any Province of this Dominion. He proceeded to read the following letter:

"I have been following with much interest the various phases the Canadian Jockey Club bill has taken, and I see with some alarm that it passed the Private Bills Committee yesterday; true, in somewhat a modified form, but still in such shape as to be a menace to horsemen generally, but more particularly to racetrack owners the country over. I have noticed in the papers you are taking an interest in this very uncalled-for piece of legislation and that you appreciate clearly what a tremendous power is being given to the individuals who are asking for it; and consequently I am calling your attention to a few points which strike me as vital, even though the bill be passed in its modified form, if such its present shape can be termed.

"The great cry of those at its back is, 'in the interest of racing these 60-days' meetings must be put a stop to.' I think I almost quote William Hendrie's words before the committee. With these ideas I am entirely in sympathy. Now, this I understand, is to be done by an insertion of certain words in the criminal code of 1892; so that plank is pulled from the platform. But still they do not seem satisfied and consequently it must be that more is desired. Now, to my mind it is very wrong that any body of men, especially the governors of racetracks—unless elected by the horsemen of the Dominion—should control racing, and the clause in the bill regarding affiliation is the one to which I wish to particularly call your attention, for as the section now reads they have power to refuse a license to any track, whether it obey their mandate or not. This is distinctly wrong, since, if they act in unison with the American Jockey Club, all horses racing on such a track would be disqualified everywhere.

"I think it should be framed in such a way that any racetrack should have the privilege of coming into the association, and if they obey the rules, should remain members in good standing and should have a representative on the board who would have a voice in all that was done; each member of the board to have one vote and not have it regulated by the amount of stock held. We do not live in an age when any corporation, however high may be the standing of each individual member, may be trusted with such gigantic power as that demanded by these people.

"I would like to call your attention to one point, but with apologies, as it is an amendment suggested by yourself. I refer to the question of outlawing all horses on tracks not in affiliation with the Canadian Jockey Club. If an amendment in accordance with my suggestion could be inserted, there would be no necessity for this clause, for each track would be given its election of coming in or remaining out, and if they did not accept what must necessarily be reasonable rules, then in the interest of racing generally, they should be made to pay the penalty of outlawing.

"I hope I do not trespass on your time and patience, but I take such a deep interest in this matter that I should like to let you know my ideas. If you think this letter might be used to any advantage you may use it as you think fit. These aer my sentiments regarding what is for the best interests of the turf and the breeding of thoroughbred horses in Canada."

This letter, continued Mr. Lister, was from a gentleman who took an interest in this matter, and one of the one of the leading turf men in the country, who had seen this letter, had endorsed it as follows: "I have read this letter and it embodies my ideas concerning the bill exactly."

Mr. Sproule—Name.

Mr. Lister—It is of no consequence, I suppose.

Mr. Sproule—You have read the letter and you had better give the name.

Mr. Lister—The letter was written by Mr. R. R. Pringle, and the endorsement was by Mr. Joseph E. Seagram.

Mr. Sproule—They are very good men, too.

Mr. Tisdale said Mr. Lister was like the gentleman who wrote that letter, Either of them must have misunderstood this bill. Mr. Seagram had sent a circular, and a very able one, to every member in this House.

Mr. Lister—I did not get it.

Mr. Tisdale—Well, he sent a circular to a great many members before this bill came up. On account of that circular and for other reasons the bill, as first introduced, was reprinted before it was submitted to the committee at all. Then when it came before the committee, the bill was changed, and that is the reason why I mentioned that the amendments were so simple that it was not necessary, in my opinion, to have them reprinted. The principal change was this, and it was a very important one. As the bill was introduced and taken before the committee it enabled the Canadian Jockey Club to control all the clubs in the country, whether they affiliated with it or not. It also asked for the prohibition of race meetings lasted more than a certain number of days. Now, the prohibition of race meetings was struck out at the suggestion of the Minister of Justice, who thought that if any such thing was to be dealt with it should be dealt with in the Criminal Code. The striking out of that clause was the first important change made in the bill. The other changes were to strictly limit the bill to those clubs who sought fit to affiliate, as to make it entirely voluntarily, and in regard to the important question that Mr. Lister mentioned, he called his attention to clause four, showing that it does give representation on the committee to every club that affiliates.

Mr. Lister—It gives representation but no vote.

Mr. Tisdale—Yes; it gives a vote.

Mr. Lister—Who is to elect a member on the Club Committee?

Mr. Tisdale—His own club. The clause provides distinctly that every club that affiliates shall have one member on the committee and if 100 clubs affiliated every club would have a member on the club committee. If there are 50 clubs affiliate dthe club committee would have to be composed of 50 members. So far as Mr. Seagram was concerned, when he received the circular some ten days before the meeting of the committee, he asked him by all means to be present, because he agreed with everything Mr. Lister had said in regard to Mr. Seagram's connection with racing. Continuing, he said that Mr. Seagram objected to the compulsory clauses of the bill. He (Col. Tisdale) had written him this morning explaining that his views had been sustained my the Private Bills Committee and that the horsemen who were there conceded the point at once. As to the Horsebreeders' Association, which, personally, he cared more about than the racing association, that body was represented by the president and secretary. These two gentlemen investigated the whole bill and agreed with it in every particular. He was quite sure also that if Mr. Pringle, who was a high authority on racing, had been present, he would have been satisfied with the measure. The bill was perfectly fair in all its provisions. Some of the misapprehensions had arisen because the newspapers had overlooked the point that each club joining would have a representative on the Board of Directors.

Mr. Edgar was desirous to know whether or not this association was a voluntary one. Was it entirely free to other racing associations to join. If it were so, then it was a domestic matter largely and he did not see why the House should interfere with it.

Dr. Sproule said that evidently a number of important amendments had been made to the bill in committee and he thought no harm would be done in delaying the matter. The representations of racing authorities like Messrs. Seagram and Pringle should be fairly considered.

Mr. Tisdale said that he did not wish to press the bill to-day if there was a desire to have it reprinted.

Mr. Martin asked for a reasonable delay in order that the bill might get fairly before the country.

Mr. Hasen, chairman of the Private Bills Committee, said the object of the bill was that the Jockey Club should be in every respect a voluntary one, its rules binding only on such club or clubs as voluntarily affiliated with it. The objects of the promoters was to keep horse racing in Canada as respectable as it could possibly be.

Mr. Casey raised the question of the jurisdiction of Parliament to deal with this matter.

Mr. Dickey said he did not think there was any doubt about the jurisdiction as the bill applied to the whole of Canada. He thought the bill was deserving of more consideration. It seemed to him that the mode in which affiliation was to take place was indefinite and the status of the proposed club was not definite either. He would look into the measure before it came before the House again.

After some observations from Mr. McGregor the committee reported progress.

Mr. Ives informed Mr. Campbell that 22,913 barrels of flour were imported into Canada between July 1 last and Jan. 31, also 76,647 bushels of wheat. Duties were paid in each case, amounting to $32,000.

Mr. Foster told Mr. McMillan that 55 tons of hay had been sold recently to T. C. Porter of Wiarton, from the Experimental Farm here, at $10 per ton, on board cars at Ottawa.

Mr. McCarthy had on the order paper a number of questions respecting Sir Donald Smith's recent visit to Winnipeg.

Sir Charles Tupper informed him that Sir Donald was not authorized by the Government to negotiate with the Government of Manitoba with reference to the school law. The only communication that had taken place since Sir Donald's return was the one between Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Donald, and it was of a purely personal character, no report having been made.

A TORONTO LADY

GETS A CHRISTMAS BOX WHICH SHE PRIZES HIGHLY.

In tracing up some of Santa Claus' good deeds this year, a lady gives us the following account of her Christmas box. The lady's name is Mrs. H. G. Ferguson, and she resides at 211 Church st. Mrs. Ferguson began as follows:—

"I have for years been a great sufferer with kidney complaint, severe pain under shoulders and across back, and latterly so weak that I could not walk out or do housework. Seven years ago the doctor told me I had Bright's Disease. A number of physicians told me I was past help; one of them said I could not live a month. I have taken a great deal of medicine, but without relief, and had given up hope; in fact, told my son that I did not expect to live until spring. My son saw the advertisement of the Doan Kidney Pill Co., Dec. 3rd, and told me. I asked him to get a box and I would try them, although I had but little faith in them, because all other remedies had failed, and as a result I had given up hope. He got one box of pills at J. R. Lee's drug store and I commenced taking them. The result has been marvellous. After taking them once I experienced relief, and after taking them three times the change for the better was marked. I have only taken one box of pills, but I feel like a new woman. The pain and other symptoms of the dreadful disease are gone. I am stronger and better than I have been in many years. I am now able to do my housework and walk out without suffering any inconvenience. That box of Doan's Kidney Pills was indeed a grand Christmas box for me. I am glad to let everyone know about this wonderful cure, in the hope that some one who has suffered as I have may try the remedy and be benefited as I have been."

Makes Them Well!

Paine's Celery Compound Woman's Tower of Safety in the Spring Season.

IT HAS A MARVELLOUS RECORD.

Cures when all other Medicines Fail

The Home Friend of Half a Million Canadian Families.

The world has never heard of a medicine so highly recommended as Paine's Celery Compound. It has a world-wide reputation, because it "makes people well."

Paine's Celery Compound is known as "Woman's Tower of Safety." As the seasons come with trying and varied weather, women of all conditions find in Paine's Celery Compound a life-giver and health-preserver. It establishes that perfect condition of health that keeps the user far above any depressing influence of variable weather. It feeds the great nervous system and keeps the blood pure and fresh. For weakness, prostration, nervousness, rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, headache and neuralgia, this marvellous discovery of Prof. Phelps has no equal. It always cures when other medicines prove useless, and to-day Paine's Celery Compound is the chosen medicine in half a million of Canadian homes. Miss Bridges, of Montreal, says :—

"I consider it a pleasure as well as a duty to put on record what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I suffered for years from indigestion, headache, pains in the back and side, and from a nervous, tired feeling. I used many patent medicines without any good results. I was also attended by one of the best doctors and used his medicines, but could not get cured.

"I saw Paine's Celery Compound advertised, and decided to try a bottle. It gave me such good results that I used six bottles, and found myself altogether a new person. I have now used it for some time and can say with pleasure that all my troubles are banished; my nerves are strong, my sleep is good, and appetite splendid.

"I would therefore strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who suffer as I did; they are sure and certain of good results."

"I'll see about it, I told you."

"And we need money. It would be a great favor."

"Didn't I say I would call?"

"Yes; but when?"

"Look here," said the debtor, as he rose up, "do you mean to insult me?"

"No, sir. I mean to go down to the newspaper office and get them to put in a notice that you will soon depart for Africa. Good day, sir."

"Here, come back. Here's your money. Do you suppose I want 500 collectors making a rush on my office? Please receipt the bill. Sorry I kept you folks waiting for it."

A Mouthful of Pearls.

The teeth, perhaps more than any other feature, enhance or destroy that intangible, because complex, thing we call beauty. What more repellant than ill-kept, discoloured teeth? What unsightliness more needless and inexcusable? Ivorine is delightful, whether as a cleanser or in its property of imparting to the teeth that dazzling whiteness so much desired and admired, and as efficiently does it render the breath sweet and fragrant. Ivorine is simply incomparable as a toilet requisite, which accounts for its recommendation and use by leading dentists.

A WESTON HOLD-UP.

The Robber Nabbed at the Junction—A Mad Man From the Other Side.

Toronto Junction, March 2.—Suburban towns and villages seem just now to be the favorite stamping-ground of thieves. Late this evening a young man of rather tough appearance entered Irwin's drug store at Weston and bought a small package of cough-drops. As Clerk Watson turned from the till to hand the man his change, he found himself "covered" by a revolver in the hands of his customer, who demanded the money in the till. Having, as he thought, terrified Watson into submission, the robber proceeded to go through the till. The clerk, as soon as the revolver was pointed another way, bethought him of resistance, but on his first movement he was seized by the ruffian and half choked. The cash which was in the till, amounting to $7, was abstracted, and the thief boarded a Junction trolley car.

Watson secured a rig and chased the car. Upon overtaking it the motorman was notified, the doors of the car were secured and the car proceeded to the Junction, Watson driving ahead, to notify the police. At Peacock's Hotel P. C. Graham was met. He boarded the car, seized the robber and handcuffed him at the point of a revolver.

The prisoner, who said his name was Ed. Williams, denied any knowledge of the robbery, but the officers, on searching him, found a revolver, the exact sum stolen from Irwin's and some papers which had been in the till.

Williams is an American importation. He was ejected from a train near Weston shortly before the robbery.

WHERE BRITAIN SHINES.

She's Got the Money and She's Got the Men and Ships.

London, March 2.—In the House of Commons to-day George J. Goschen, First Lord of the Admiralty, presented the navy estimates. He said that the proposed increase in the naval expenditures was not due to any feeling of alarm. More ships meant more men, and these could be got. The Government proposed an increase of £850,000 for guns and docks at Gibraltar. It had decided to build three docks instead of one. The cost of the new works was estimated at £2,500,000 in addition to the £361,000 pounds already allotted for the new dock there. Summing up the demands of the Government, Mr. Goschen said it was proposed to raise the naval works bill from the £8,500,000 proposed by the last Government to £14,000,000, which would be the amount of the Government bill. Continuing, he said that these might seem large figures, but the Chancellor of the Exchequer authorized him to state that the Exchequer could supply the money. It was proposed to add to the navy five battleships like the improved Renown, four first-class cruisers, three second-class cruisers, six third-class cruisers and 28 torpedo boat destroyers.

The total estimates were £21,822,000, against £18,701,000 for 1895-96. The Ministers believed that they had arrived at a point on which they might stand. If any tremendous strain came upon the country, obliging Great Britain to bear the whole burden alone and unaided, or whether in the event of any general disturbance, she would take her place with any other power. The British fleet would represent the self-reliance of a great nation. This was the Ministers' unanimous opinion. On that unanimous opinion they commended the estimates to the House, confident that the cost would be cheerfully borne, and trusting that they would be received as they were conceived, in a spirit of moderation.

WHAT COWARDS THE SPANIARDS ARE.

They Fired Shots Into the Body of a Drowning Man Who Was Pinioned.

Havana, March 2.—While 39 political prisoners were being taken on board a Spanish steamer here to-day to be shipped to Ceuta, Africa, one of them jumped overboard. His arms were pinioned and he immediately sank. When he rose to the surface the guards fired four shots into him and his body disappeared beneath the waves.

The Spanish warship Hernan Cortes sailed from Havana for Matanzas on Friday night. She had her lights extinguished when off the coast east of Havana, where she sighted a mysterious looking steamer carrying a single light forward. The Hernan Cortes fired three blank charges at her and followed them with a solid shot. The steamer seemed to have extraordinary speed and escaped.

The transport steamers bringing additional troops from Spain arrived to-day.

AVOID DANGER AND TROUBLE.

Beware of Substitutes When Buying Package Dyes.

When danger and deception threaten to disturb the peace and happiness of wives and mothers, it is but right that they should be warned and advised.

Crude and worthless imitations of Diamond Dyes are put up by some manufacturers for the sake of profit only. It matters little to them if women have their materials spoiled in the dyeing operation, their tempers ruffled, or soul worried, as long as their common products are sold.

For easy and profitable home dyeing, the Diamond Dyes to-day command the admiration of the civilized world. Insist, therefore, that your dealer provide you with the "Diamond" that are always a success. The Diamond Dyes are the favourites with all wise women.

BALLINGTON BOOTH SPEAKS.

He and His Wife will Devote Their Lives to Evangelism—Will Not Organize a Salvation Army.

Mont Clair, N.J., March 1.—Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth have issued a statement to the press, the gist of which is contained in the following sentence :

"Although most of our former associates in the Army have given their allegiance to the new commander, they are watching every move made by us with the deepest interst and concern. From many of them I have received messages assuring me of their personal devotion.

"Information reached me to-day of the resignation of Staff Captain, Blanche Cox, in command of the Maryland division, with headquarters at Washington. She is undoubtedly the best special worker in the Army, and her influence cannot be underrated. I may say that three more high officers whose names will be surprising, will soon announce their resignations.

"Already seven secretaries of district auxilliary organizations in eastern cities have resigned, carrying with them many persons who have hitherto been valued supporters of the Salvation Army."

The public have heard but one side of this most unfortunate affair. I have all along maintained a dignified silence concerning my participation in the occurrences of the past ten days. I have refrained from saying fwhat actually occurred on that memorable Thursday night when Mrs. Booth and myself were aroused from our rooms at midnight and summoned to a conference with the English emissaries.

"I have not made reply to the bitter statements that were uttered against me. I held my peace, even though my sister did assert that we and our little ones would be driven into the streets, and though my brother, the commandant of Canada, did heap upon us stinging words and threatened curses.

"As to the property of the Army which is still in my possession, it will be turned over in due time to those in power. Since they hold the offices, it is no more than right that they should also have the property of the organization."

License Holders Attention.

All holders of town licenses—billiard tables, liveries, carters, peanut stands, eating houses, etc., should attend to their renewal, as several of them have fallen due and the Chief of Police will be looking into the matter almost any day.

Latest on Cheese.

A lot of about 1,000 boxes of September and October, under finest, has just been sold at 8¾c, showing a loss to the seller of about 1c per lb. Finest Western fall is is quoted at 8¾c to 9c. There is a little better feeling by cable advices to-day, one cablegram reading:—"Dullness breaking away; more business passing, but at no better prices. Look for improved values soon." It seems that the recent low prices for cheese on the other side has been caused by the immence quantities of cheap Danish bacon and New Zealand frozen mutton that have been dumped on the English markets, which of course have had their effect on the cheese market.—Trade Bulletin.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT was received from R. Clinkscale, as follows, and referred to the Street and Bridge Committee:—

Taking down old bridge and drawing material to yards	$ 36 00
Drawing 158 cords of stone	280 70
" 2,158 yards gravel from Hilliard's	625 82
Drawing 55 yards of gravel from other places	12 37
Cutting ice and spreading stone and gravel	108 00
Levelling crossings and sanding sidewalks	102 00
	$1,172 89

Councillor Moore asked who was to pay for the gravel which had been drawn to raise the grade of George street near the C.P.R. station, and if any arrangement had been arrived at with the Street Railway regarding the matter.

Councillor Langford stated in reply that the Street and Bridge Committee would meet the directors of the Street Railway in regard to the matter Tuesday evening.

A BYLAW.

Councillor Hughes introduced a bylaw, whereby the corporation is empowered to exact a license fee of $100 from transient traders. The by-law passed its several readings and was signed by the Mayor.

DEPUTATION TO TORONTO.

Councillor Moore brought up the matter of Mr. Stratton's letter regarding the advisability of a deputation waiting on the Private Bills Committee at the session of the Legislature in regard to the legislation required by the town. He represented the importance of endeavouring to secure the water lots lying between the C.P.R. spur line and the main shore, for the purpose of filling it in and using it as a market, the present square being too small.

On the question being raised as to the rights of private citizens in the matter, Mr. Walter J. English, who was present, stated that in the deed of the property owned by the English estate, it was set forth that the title to the lands extended out into the river beyond the water front.

The matter will be thoroughly looked into before the town seeks to acquire the water lots.

On motion of Councillors Mills and Phelan, the Mayor and Councillors Moore, Best and Langford, will go to Toronto in connection with the presentation of the petitions.

On motion of Councillors Phelan and Langford the names of Messrs. T. G. Hastitt and John Carnegie were added to the committee.

Beats Them All.

Rev. Andrew Fisher, an old and respected minister of the Church of England, now Rector of St. John's Church, Beechville, Ont., bears testimony as follows:

"In my opinion Pinesalt beats them all. Its promptness in allaying coughs, soothing sore throat or sore lungs, and breaking up a cold, to us has been surprising. Many remedies have been tried in my family, but Pinesalt excels them all. This voluntary opinion is given under a full sense of the caution imposed upon my position in society.

Pinesalt is the fashionable remedy for all throat and chest ailments. It is healing, soothing, and prompt in action. In chronic cases, and consumption, ask your druggist for Pinesalt and Hypophosphites, instead of plain Pinesalt. The Newest, most Palatable and Best.

No REMEDY cures coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, etc., so well as Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It heals, soothes and strengthens the lungs and throat.

A LIGHT SENTENCE

Imposed Upon John McGee by His Honour Judge Weller.

The interest in the trial of John McGee, who stabbed Wm. Bowman and John Arnott about two weeks ago, was manifested yesterday afternoon when it was known that he would come up for trial before Judge Weller. Long before the appointed hour the court was crowded and all the entrances were jammed with people.

Shortly after two o'clock the prisoner was brought in and arraigned before the Judge. He pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Mr. John Burnham, Q. C., M. P. The case was then proceeded with. There being two charges it was agreed between the Crown Attorney and prisoner's counsel to allow the same evidence on both.

The story told by the two principals, Mr. Wm. Bowman and John Arnott, was substantially the same as appeared in the EXAMINER at the time of the fracas. The prisoner had come into the C. P. R. restaurant with several companions and asked Mr. Bowman for a drink on credit, which was refused. McGee then interrogated a boarder as to the ownership of the house and being referred to Mr. Bowman, began demolishing things, when Mr. Bowman ran out and seized hold of him. Quite a scuffle took place and Bowman was getting the worst of it and Arnott ran to help him when McGee drew a knife and stabbed Arnott and then Bowman. The story of his arrest was told by the Chief. Evidence was also taken from the defence as to the prisoner's previous conduct.

Judge Weller after reviewing the evidence said that it was a good thing for McGee that it had not resulted more seriously, as his condition at the time might not be taken into consideration. He did not know of any criminal acts of the prisoner prior to this offence and he would let him down lightly by a sentence of four months in gaol at hard labour.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Brodigan is quite ill in her rooms at the Grand Central Hotel.

Rev. J. J. Rae is confined to his residence with a most severe cold.

Mr. Harry Phelan has recovered from his recent indisposition and is again able to attend to business.

Miss Rudkins was in Toronto yesterday attending the millinery openings and selecting stock for the season's trade.

Miss Elson of the South Central School, was taken ill a few days ago and was allowed to leave for her home in Millbrook.

The Port Hope Times says: "Mr. Robert Fair, formerly an enterprising merchant here, and now of Peterborough, is doing such a flourishing business in that town, that he finds it necessary to enlarge his premises. We congratulate him on his success."

The Lindsay Post says:—Previous to his departure for Orillia, this morning, Mr. Dan. Simons, knockabout and dance artist with the Marks Comedy Co., was presented by Mr. Chas. Podger with a unique gift in the shape of a green plug hat brought from British Columbia, where it had been used by a well-known actor for several years.

Weak, Tired, Nervous

Women, who seem to be all worn out, will find in purified blood, made rich and healthy by Hood's Sarsaparilla, permanent relief and strength. The following is from a well known nurse:

"I have suffered for years with female complaints and kidney troubles and I have had a great deal of medical advice during that time, but have received little or no benefit. A friend advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began to use it, together with Hood's Pills. I have realised more benefit from these medicines than from anything else I have ever taken. From my personal experience I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be a most complete blood purifier." MRS. C. CROMPTON, 71 Cumberland St., Toronto, Ontario.

A CRACK IN THE MASONRY.

The New George Street Bridge Settles at One End.

The council is undetermined whether Contractor Grant is entitled to his pay for the construction of the new George street bridge or not, as since the completion of the masonry, the south wall has cracked.

On being notified of this, the contractor writes blaming the Street Inspector, as he states that the filling was done in accordance with his directions. He states that instead of the stone and gravel being gradually filled in from the centre, as was done on the north side, it was thrown in first at the extreme west end, causing the ground to settle at that end to the extent of about two inches, thus causing the wall to crack.

The damage is said not to be extensive, the crack not being in the stone itself but in the cement. It is only three-sixteenths of an inch in width at the top and dwindles away to nothing. Several of the councillors have expressed the opinion that the value of the bridge is not at all impaired by the accident, but the town engineer has not as yet pronounced his opinion on the matter.

LEAVING PETERBOROUGH.

Capt. Schofield Banquetted by His Fellow Officers—Remembered by the Non-Coms.

Mr. George A. Schofield is bidding his friends in town good-bye. He leaves on Thursday for Chicago, where he will enter into business. Last night he sent in his resignation as Captain of No. 2 Company of the 57th, a position he has very creditably filled three years, come June 3rd, 1896. In response to this resignation he was very promptly brought to book by the officers and ex-officers of the Rangers. He was entertained at a banquet at the officers' quarters at the drill shed. There were present all the present officers of the battalion, as well as ex-officers. Major Bell occupied the chair, and complimentary addresses testifying to Captain Schofield's abilities as an officer and regret at his departure were made by the senior officers and staff officers to which Capt. Schofield made a becoming reply. The evening was pleasantly spent in the manner of old campaigners.

Last night the non coms of the battalion waited upon Capt. Schofield, at the Huffman House, and presented him with a complimentary address, read by Sergt. Green, on behalf of the others. Capt. Schofield made a suitable reply. He is very popular in the battalion, and his departure is generally regretted by both officers and men.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigourous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable "examinations" and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for thirty years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain cure for all derangements, weaknesses, irregularities and displacements of internal organs peculiar to women.

CHEESE MAKERS IN COUNCIL.

EXCELLENT ADDRESS BY MR. D. DERBYSHIRE.

An Intetesting Session of Peterborough Cheese Makers—The Question of Rennet—Butter Making Possibilities—Officers Elected.

The annual meeting of the Cheesemakers' Association of the district was held yesterday afternoon in the town council chamber, with a large attendance of members. Mr. W. W. Grant, the President, occupied the chair, and after a few opening remarks introduced Mr. W. Derbyshire of Brockville, President of the Ontario Creameries Association, who was present for the purpose of giving an address on the cheese business in general.

Mr. Derbyshire opened by saying that it was a great pleasure to have the privilege of addressing the cheesemakers of this section. The cheesemaker must, he said, be educated, and his factory must in the future be a centre of education for that section in which it was built—the same as as the public school is to-day. The cheesemaker may sometimes have to send milk back home on account of poor quality, but he should that evening, if not before, and search for the cause of the trouble, and assist the farmer in locating the same. In this way he will have the farmer his friend and it will be a pleasure to him to do all he can to get the milk to the factory in better condition and in larger quantities, thus enabling the cheesemaker to make a finer quality of goods. The latter should continually advocate the growing of more corn, building a silo, fitting the stable in better condition, etc., so that the cows can be kept more comfortable and continue in milk a longer season. We should, said the speaker, make cheese of the finest quality for six months, from May until November, and butter the balance of the season, keeping the cows in milk for at least ten months in the year. We have too large a proportion of the cheese trade to-day to allow us to injure our prospects by sending anything to the British market but the best, as you know we have $10,000,000 out of $20,000,000 worth of cheese that Englishmen buys abroad.

There is plenty of room to develop the butter industry in Canada, he said, as we only furnished this last year out of sixty-five million placed on the English market. We can easily double this in 1896 and so continue to furnish a larger proportion of butter each year until our butter shall bring us as much English gold as does our cheese to-day. Our whole business depends on cheaper production and a longer season of operation and this, I feel sure, that our plucky Canadians will attend to. I am just returning, said he, from a visit to the National Butter and Cheese Association held at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, last week. After a careful examination of the quality of their goods, their dairy appliances, their climate, their factories and all surroundings I never felt better satisfied that I am a Canadian, that I live in this grand Province of Ontario, that we have such magnificent dairy schools and every facility for putting ourselves right to the front in this great dairy industry. I trust you will heartily cooperate with one another and do all you can in this section to keep yourselves to the front, which I feel sure you will do. We must

THREE MILLION DOLLARS WORTH

AGITATE AND EDUCATE

and continue working with our farmers, with our factories, with ourselves until, as I said before, we largely reduce the cost of production and add the making of fancy Canadian creamery butter to our summer practice, so that we will have a steady flow of English gold coming into the country not only in the summer, for our cheese, but in the winter for our butter.

If we will do this persistently, concluded Mr. Derbyshire, there is a grand future in store for us. Again I thank you for your kind invitation to be present, and hope this meeting of cheesemakers will not be in vain.

After sitting down Mr. Derbyshire rose to speak on the matter of the patrons not allowing petty jealousies to creep in amongst them, causing some to leave the factory and start one of their own. The money in cheesemaking, he stated, lay in having large factories where a first class maker could be employed at a good salary, thus turning out such a quality of cheese as would bring the highest price. Small factories could not afford to hire a first class maker and therefore it was the factories which commanded the best prices for their cheese. He did not believe in allowing a man with two years experience to get a factory by offering to do the work at a less price than a good honest maker. When a factory could afford to have a good man, better cheese was turned out and higher prices realized.

At the meeting of the Association which he recently attended, much time had been wasted in discussing the question, of how to make first class cheese out of second class milk. He had stated to them at the time that they ought rather be discussing how to educate farmers to have good milk produced by his cows.

Give the Englishman a good quality of cheese, said he, and he will open up his pocket book. He is going to have what he wants no matter what it costs. It was possible to improve poor milk brought to the factory, but it was not wise to discuss it. The proper remedy lay in educating the farmer to bring it in a proper condition. The farmer and the cheesemaker should go together on this question.

Mr. Derbyshire was asked by Mr. Kevil, when was the best time to BEGIN MAKING CHEESE.

He answered, "Just as soon as you get good grass—not before," and stated that some factories were doing great injury to the cheese trade by sending April cheese to England. The name of Canadian cheese was too good to allow any risk to be taken in such matters. A poor quality should never be allowed to leave the country.

Mr. Derbyshire then spoke of the great home market which existed for butter. Last year he manufactured and sold 2,000 tubs of creamery butter in Canada, besides sending a great quantity into the United States, where he received 30c. a pound for it, simply because it was done up in neat wrappers. Style, he stated, had a great deal to do with the sale of butter and neat packages always brought a much better price than a more clumsily done up article.

Mr. Grant asked Mr. Derbyshire to say a few words about rennet before he took his seat.

Mr. Derbyshire stated he was, himself, the agent for Hansen's rennet and he could recommend it to all cheesemakers as the only pure article on the market. Other brands were adulterated with acid, whereas Hansen's was absolutely pure. The so-called which was said to be manufactured in Germany was in reality made in Chicago out of hogs' stomachs and although it coagulated the milk quickly the smell of the hog-pen could be plainly discerned in the cheese after the lapse of a few months.

Mr. Samuel Bickle, who was present, took exception to the reflection cast on the Blumenthal rennet. He stated that he was the man who introduced this brand in the Peterborough district, and it had given great satisfaction. The statement that it was made in Chicago of hogs' stomachs was incorrect as he received his shipments directly from Germany. Peterborough cheese had always commanded the highest price paid on the market and if it smelled of the hog pen this would not be the case.

In regard to the QUESTION OF SALT,

Mr. Derbyshire stated that cheesemakers should only use the best that money could buy. The pure salts in his opinion were Windsor, Higgins & Ashton. The Babcock test was very highly landed by the speaker, who stated that when used it proved a great encouragement to farmers to keep a better grade of cows and to take more care of their castle.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—F. D. Cline.

Secretary—Chas. Kevil.

On taking the chair the new president made a few remarks, in the course of which he noticed the habit of cheesemakers to keep any information of which they became possessed to themselves, as a secret instead of imparting it to their fellow members of the craft. The price of cheese, he stated, for a district could be raised by a uniform high grade, but one factory turning out a high grade did not benefit either itself or those in the district. He urged that hints be exchanged at all times amongst the cheesemakers.

Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. Derbyshire, Mr. W. W. Grant, the retiring president, the Town Council, for the use the chamber and too the press.

*Note:—Mr. Bickle called into THE EXAMINER office, this morning, with letters and invoices proving incontestably that the shipments made to him of the Blumenthal brand of rennet a direct from Germany and not, as stated by Mr. Derbyshire, from Chicago.

Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites for Throat and Lung Troubles.

Perfectly well established is the value of cod liver oil in the various diseases of the air passages, and combined with maltine and the hypophosphites, its remedial value is vastly enhanced. In the elegant and palatable preparation, Maltine with Cod Liver Oil, are combined the valuable tissue building oil, and that sustainer of vitality and digestive, maltine. No emulsion can compare in remedial value with this preparation, for in addition to disguising the unpleasant taste of the oil and rendering it more easily digested, the maltine plays a most important part in maintaining adequately the process of nutrition so essential in wasting and pulmonary diseases. This it does by rendering the starchy foods in a form which assures its assimilation, with the result that emaciation gives way speedily to plumpness, the irritated bronchial tubes are soothed, rest grows natural and health becomes an assured fact. Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is a food, medicine and digestive.

Racked with Rheumatism

Unable to Walk, owing to excruciating pain.
After ten years' terrible torture, Cured by Scott's Sarsaparilla.

A. H. Christiansen, writing from the Clifton House, Niagara Falls, says: "I owe you more than I can ever pay. For ten years I suffered the tortures of the damned with rheumatism. Father had it before me, and I believe it is an hereditary disease. My knee joints would get inflamed and if I was out in any "weather" I was sure to be laid up, which to a travelling man is a calamity. In a score of Canadian towns local doctors treated me, some giving relief, others none. I read that Sarsaparilla was a rheumatic cure, and I asked a druggist for "a bottle of the best Sarsaparilla on the market." He gave me Scott's, remarking that it was an improvement on all others, and that he could honestly recommend it. I have taken four bottles, and am as free from pain as a man can hope to be. I was out in a rainstorm two days ago and never felt a twinge. As I said before, to Scott's Sarsaparilla I owe more than I can ever repay."

The best remedy for rheumatism, sciatica, and neuralgic pains—all arising from the presence of poison in the blood—is Scott's Sarsaparilla, a modern concentrated medicine, prompt in its curative effects. Doses from one half to one teaspoonful. At $1 per bottle of your druggist.

Sold by J. D. Tully, Peterborough.

Polite Reproof.

A lady once ventured to publicly reprove a well-known London society man for his over-fondness of good living. The gentleman made himself conspicuous by the way he gorged himself at a dinner to which he and others of the upper ten had been invited. To make matters worse he was sufficiently unwise or thoughtless enough to attempt to excuse himself with the remark that "in eating well I praise the food," thereby using a well-known quotation.

It was an opportunity not to be lost by the somewhat disgusted and witty lady sitting at his elbow.

"Really, sir," she observed with a sweet smile, "you should not carry praise to the point of flattery."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you ought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

BRITISH POLICE OFFICERS

Are Being Pushed to Stations Along the Venezuelan Frontier.

New York, March 1.—Latest advices from British Guiana say that large reinforcements of police continue to be pushed forward to stations on the Venezuelan frontier. Although, strictly speaking, not a "soldier" has been sent forward, a British force of considerable strength, well drilled and capably officered, has been gathered at strategic points along the alleged boundary and the stations have been connected by telegraph. Uruan is garrisoned by nearly 100 policemen armed with Maxim guns, which have not yet been withdrawn, despite the promise that they should be.

Do Not Do This.

Do not give up in despair because other medicines have failed to help you. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and you may reasonably expect to be cured.

. . . THE . . .

Canada Life Assurance Co.

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business in Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows :—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nea y 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life

"If Eric is in robust health, and has slept well, and is at the top of his condition at his departure from Greenland, his ships will reach Newfoundland. But, take out Eric and put in a stronger man—Biorn or Thorfin and the ships with just as much ease will reach Labrador and New England."

Emerson was right. The stronger a man is the fuller his chest is, the sounder his heart and brain and lungs are, the further he will sail on the ocean, the higher he will sail in his balloon, and the deeper he will dive into the intricacies of his business or profession. A man's glory is his strength. The world has small use for weaklings, and, it must be said, sickly people have little use for the world. But, sickness is generally an unnecessary evil. It is almost a crime against nature to be ill. If you are ill and feel repentant, anxious to undo the mischief, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Don't be despondent because your grandfather died of consumption or bronchitis, or some other equally frightful throat or lung trouble. There is no need of hereditary consumption. Purify your blood with "Golden Medical Discovery," then take more of it to thoroughly strengthen and build up your whole body through the purity and strength of your blood.

There is nothing miraculous about the "Discovery." It is a compound of curatives skillfully blended. It will cure 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption if it is honestly used.

Would you know yourself? Send 31 one-cent stamps to cover cost of customs and mailing only, and get Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. In the reading of this book of 1008 pages is a medical education. It is a complete family doctor book, written in plain language that everybody can understand, and profusely illustrated. A CONCEITED MAN.

Only a Little Change Needed to Make Him Eligible.

Women do not admire conceited men, and a rather droll story was told to me a few days ago that is quite amusing. Mr. L——, one of the society men about town, who thinks himself just "too elegant," was at a reception. He was standing near the punch-bowl that stood in one corner of the room and was twirling his blonde mustache and dropping claret. A group of young people were standing near him at the time, and Miss G——, one of the young women, said merrily, "Ah, Mr. L——, we were just talking about you."

"Saving something nice, I presume?" remarked Mr. L——, with a smile of satisfaction spreading over his fair complexion.

"Well, perhaps it was," dubiously replied the young woman.

"Of course it could not have been otherwise than nice since it had reference to me," answered Mr. L——, complacently.

This was too much for witty Miss G——, and had a bomb exploded the party could not have been more alarmed when they heard her say seriously: "Say, Mr. L——, I'd like to marry you."

"Marry me, ah! Now would you really?" and placing down his empty glass, seated himself on a divan and surveyed the group with infinite satisfaction.

"Yes, I would indeed," the fair one replied, "if you love me as much as you love yourself."

This was so entirely unexpected Mr. L—'s china-blue eyes opened wide, his round chin dropped, and utter consternation and amazement were depicted on every feature.

Amid the hearty laugh that followed he walked quietly away. Perhaps in future he will endeavor to win esteem by remembering that to gain admiration and esteem is to be utterly unconscious of self.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Eyes of Animals.

The owl's eyes have no muscles by which they can be moved. This deficiency is atoned for by extraordinary flexibility in the muscles of the neck by which the owl can move his head with incredible rapidity in any direction.

A deer's eyes command a wide field of vision, and the animal can see behind as well as before, though not so distinctly, for when alarmed by a noise from the rear the deer will always turn so as to gain a clearer view of the object.

A mole's eyes are believed to give the animal nothing more than an impression of light, which is probably painful or at least annoying, the sensation prompting the creature at once to burrow into the earth and escape the annoyance.

The eye of the cat, like that of the horse, is provided with a false eyelid, which may be moved independently of the outer or true lid. It is often employed by a cat when obliged to face a very bright light, and is believed to act as a shade.

Oysters are provided with eyes, but the oyster's eye is not located where public opinion places it. What is called the eye of the oyster is the great muscle which holds the shells together, and which is separated by the knife of the opener.

When a snake sheds his skin, the skin of the eye comes off with the rest. Translucent in most parts, the skin over the snake's eye is perfectly transparent.

Blue-eyed cats are always deaf. The physiologists have in vain attempted to explain this curious circumstance.

The ostrich is believed to see objects behind him as well as those in front. Persons standing directly behind an ostrich can see the pupils of his eyes, and, of course, are thus easily seen by the animal.

The common house fly is said to be provided with 16,000 eyes; that is to say his two compound eyes have each 8000 facets. By this singular arrangement he is enabled to see in every direction.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WHEN TO GIVE UP.

An Interesting Fable of the Tramp and the Housewife.

One day a Tramp who hadn't had anything to eat or drink for several years, and was consequently feeling about used up, came along to a farm house just as the Wife was pouring milk from a pan into a dish.

"I pray thee give me a quaff of that milk," said the Tramp as he looked as sad as possible in order to work on her sympathies.

"We don't feed Tramps here!" was the brusque reply, as she looked at the caller with stony eyes.

"But, my dear madam, I am perishing while you have plenty. Have mercy, I pray you!"

"That milk is for the dog," she said as she placed the dish on the earth. "If you are thirsty, go drink at the horse pond."

"And you will not even give me a quart of skimmed milk to keep the lamp of life alight till I strike a job?"

"Get thee hence!" she commanded in reply, as she looked around for the axe handle.

"I go, Mum—I go, but—"

"Here—what's the matter of the dog!" shouted the woman ere the Tramp had reached the gate.

"He's evidently swallowed sumthin' that astonished him, Mum. Say! Have you any paris green in the house?"

"I have."

"Don't you keep it on the shelf over the milk?"

"I do, and, alas! I see how it is! The milk has been poisoned and the dog is a goner!"

MORAL.

"When you want a thing and want it bad," said the Tramp as he calmly pursued his way, "then is the time to let somebody else have it!"

Something Like a Miser.

Some rather good stories are told about a very wealthy old miser, who lives in one of the English northern counties.

Some years ago, evidently in a weak moment, he gave £10,000 or £12,000 towards the support of a foreign mission, and since then numerous people have called upon him, with the object of obtaining subscriptions.

On one occasion two ladies succeeded in gaining admittance—a by no means easy task, for every visitor is closely questioned through a little aperture in the door before the bolts are drawn—and were ushered into a room and left alone for about a quarter of an hour.

At the end of that time the "gentleman" of the house entered the room, and glancing at the table said:

"Who stole my pin?"

One of the ladies blushed, and said she had taken it to fasten her bonnet-strings.

"Then out you go! Anyone who would steal my pins has no right in my house," and he unceremoniously showed the ladies out.

His stock of underlinen, it is said, consists of two shirts.

He, of course, wears one while the other is being washed. On one occasion he said to the laundress, "I think eight cents is rather too much for washing and ironing a shirt. Can't you charge less?"

"No, sir," replied the laundress. "Eight cents is my charge, and you see I have a long way to come for your shirt, and then I deliver it when it is washed."

"Ah, to be sure! Now, how much less would you charge if I changed my shirt at your place?"—Tit-Bits.

An Important Point.

"Now, Freddie, the moment you're naughty, Louise will put you to bed."

"Say, ma, which of us is to decide if I'm naughty?"

Size of the Universe.

It has been estimated, says W. H. Lamaster in Popular Astronomy, that a cannon ball, moving with a velocity of 500 miles an hour, and leaving our earth and traveling in the direction of the nearest fixed star, would not reach it in less than 4,500,000 years! and yet there are stars in the heavens and visible through telescopes that would require a cannon ball moving with the same velocity at least 500,000,000 years to reach them. It was said by the elder Herschell that it would require light traveling at the rate of 185,000 miles a second 2,000,000 years to come to the earth from the remotest luminous vapors within reach of his 40-foot telescope, and yet, whatever may have been the effort of astronomers to bring the starry heavens as a whole into view even with the most powerful reflectors, they have so far proved to be futile. Hence, to the minds of men the universe must seem forever to be and to remain immeasurable, incalculable and incomprehensible. And while we may be able to weigh and measure suns and systems, within range of our telescopes, there are others so far away and so far beyond our powers of vision, and our power of calculation, that even our present supposed great knowledge of the sidereal heavens would dwindle into the thinnest of mental vapories.

THEY COUNT BY THE SCORE

Yea, By the Hundreds, Those Who Have Been Cured of Dire Disease By South American Nervine.

A Remedy Widespread and Universal in Its Application.

Where Other Medicines Have Failed and Doctors Have Pronounced the Cases Beyond Cure, This Great Discovery Has Proven a Genuine Elixir of Life.

The Same Verdict Comes From Old and Young, Male and Female, Rich and Poor, and From All Corners of the Dominion.

If it is the case that he who makes two blades of grass grow where only one had grown before is a benefactor of the race, what is the position to be accorded that man who by his knowledge of the laws of life and health gives energy and strength where languor, weakness and anticipation of an early death had before prevailed? Is not he also a public benefactor? Let those who have been down and are now up through the use of South American Nervine give their opinions on this subject. John Boyer, banker, of Kincardine, Ont., had made himself a hopeless invalid through years of overwork. At least he felt his case was hopeless, for the best physicians had failed to do him good. He tried Nervine, and these are his words: "I gladly say it: Nervine cured me and I am to-day as strong and well as ever." Samuel Eliza, of Meaford, was cured of neuralgia of the stomach and bowels by three bottles of this medicine. Jas. Sherwood, of Windsor, at 70 years of age, suffered from an attack of paralysis. His life, at that age, was despaired of. But four bottles of Nervine gave him back his natural strength. A victim of indigestion, W. F. Bolger, of Renfrew, says: "Nervine cured me of my suffering, which seemed incurable, and had baffled all former methods and efforts." Peter Esson, of Paisley, lost flesh and rarely had a good night's sleep, because of stomach trouble. He says: "Nervine stopped the agonizing pains in my stomach the first day I used it. I have now taken two bottles and I feel entirely relieved and can sleep like a top." A representative farmer, of Western Ontario, is Mr. C. J. Curtis, residing near Windsor. His health was seemingly completely destroyed through la grippe. No medicine did him any good. "To three bottles of Nervine," he says, "I attribute my restoration to health and strength." Neither man or woman can enjoy life when troubled with liver complaint. This was the sentiment and feeling of W. J. Hill, the well-known bailiff of Bracebridge. "I was so bad," says he, "that one of my medical attendants said that I was dying, but, thank God, I am not dead yet. From the first few doses I took of Nervine I commenced to feel better, and am to-day restored completely to my usual health." A resident of the Maritime Provinces, in the person of S. Jones, of Sussex, N.B., says: "For twelve years I was a martyr to indigestion, constipation and headache. The treatment of several physicians did not help me. I have taken a few bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say that I am a new man."

A shrewd observer of human nature has said: "The hand that rocks the cradle moves the world." How important it is, then, that health and strength should be made the lot of the mothers of this country. The women of Canada are ready by scores to tell of the benefits that have come to them through the use of South American Nervine. Mrs. R. Armstrong, of Orillia, wife of the colporteur, of the Bible Society of that town, suffered for six years from nervous prostration. Medical assistance did not help. "In all," she says, "I have taken six bottles of Nervine, and can truthfully say this is the one medicine that has effected a cure in my case." Mrs. John Dinwoody has been for 40 years a resident of Flesherton, and has reached the allotted three-score years and ten. Three years ago her system sustained a severe shock through the death of a daughter. Nervine was recommended. She perseveringly took 12 bottles of medicine, with the result that she is to-day again strong and hearty. Hundreds of women suffer from impoverished blood and weakened nerves. "All vitality," says Mrs. J. Ballis, of Brampton, "seemed to have forsaken my system. I was unable to get relief from any source until I commenced taking South American Nervine. The results are most satisfactory—greater far than I could have hoped for." It came within the way of Mrs. H. Stapleton, of Wingham, to treat under the best physicians, both in Canada and England, for heart disease and nervous debility, but she failed to get any relief. "I was advised," she says, "to take South American Nervine, and must say I do believe that if I had not done so I would not be alive to-day."

Newspaper space is too valuable to permit of further additions to these earnest words of testimony from those who know just what they are talking about. In the common language of the day, they have been there, and are speaking from the heart. The dozen or more witnesses that here speak have their counterparts by the hundreds, not only in the province of Ontario, but in every other section of the Dominion. South American Nervine is based on a scientific principle that makes a cure a certainty, no matter how desperate the case may be. It strikes at the nerve centers from which flows the life blood of the whole system. It is not a medicine of patchwork, but is complete and comprehensive in its application.

FURS

AT LOWEST PRICES.

As we shall take stock in a couple of weeks we wish to clear out all lines of our Fine Furs and offer them at great reductions.

The present time is your opportunity to buy cheaply and get bargains.

Wm. Lech & Sons.

THIS WEEK YOU CAN SAVE BY SPENDING!

You think this strange, but, if you doubt it, come in and see the prices of Fine Fur Garments, of all kinds at the J. & J. Lugsdin Bankrupt Stock Sale now going on at FAIRWEATHER & CO'S.

Last week our sales were phenomenal for this season of the year. The only way to account for it was the values offered.

It pays to buy at 40 per cent. off cost price, for another season's wear, and the people that came to look thought so, and bought in every case where they had the money.

Prices this week will continue same as last. Bargains in Furs that the people of Peterborough have never had offered to them before and that rarely occur as it's seldom there is a bankrupt stock in good, reliable, well-made furs offered for sale anywhere.

CURLIANA.

Whatever may be the practice among modern curling clubs, these fraternities in the days long gone by had a kind of a ritual with secret signs and a password. Regarding the Sanquhar Curling club, Dr. Taylor informs us that a dispute had arisen among the members as to which was the true curler word and grip, and the society found it necessary to issue an authoritative declaration on the subject in the following terms:—"In order to prevent all disputes concerning the curler word and grip, the master, who is always present during his office, and the rest of the society have agreed that the following shall be held and reputed the curler words and grip of this society for the future:

THE CURLER WORD.

If you'd be a curler keen,
Stand straight, look e'en,
Sail well, shoot straight and sweep clean.

THE CURLER GRIP, WITH THE EXPLANATION.

"Gripping hands in the common manner of shaking hands is gripping the hand of the curling stone. The thumb of the person examined or instructed thrust in between the thumb and forefinger of the examinator or instructor signifies 'running a port.' The little finger of the person examined or instructed, linked with the little finger of the examinator or instructor, means an 'inning.'"

THE CURLER'S GRIP, BY DR. SIDNEY.
Air: "Auld Lang Syne."

Losh, man! I'm glad to see yersel',
I'm glad to meet a freen';
But man, the pleasure's greater still
When he's a curler keen.

Sae gie's the curler's grip, my freen',
Sae gie's the curler's grip,
Losh, man! I'm glad to see yersel';
Sae gie's the curler's grip.

Man! When I feel a grip like that
I'm unco sweer'd to pairt;
The blood rins din'lin' up my arm
An' warms my very heart.

Sae gie's the curler's grip, my freen',
Etc.

But as the nicht is gye well through,
Let's hae anither "nip."
An' drink success tae ilka ane
That kens the curler's grip.

Sae gie's the curler's grip my freen',

MR. EDJ. HARTLEY AT FENELON FALLS.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette says: Mr. E J. Hartley, of Peterborough, gave an exhibition of his skill on skates in the rink here on Wednesday evening last to a fair sized audience. He executed a variety of movements, comprising changes of edges (inside and out), serpentines, cross cuts, double eights on one and two feet, combination eights, vines, single foot spin, double foot whirl, lock foot spin, waltz steps and others. His toe movements were particularly fine. Mr. Hartley is considered to be the best fancy skater in Canada, and in his performances here fully sustained the high reputation he has secured.

DOMINO!

A domino tournament, for a trophy consisting of a silver cup, presented by Mr. C. LeBrun, will take place at the Palace Restaurant, on Monday evening, next. The drawing to match the players takes place at 7.30, and play will begin at 8. Already fifty four bone matchers have entered their names.

TO HEAL MANKIND.

It is as a healing medicine for all outward sores, ulcers, blotches, skin diseases, cancer, scrofulous sores, etc., that Burdock Blood Bitters has won some of its most signal victories over disease. In every case where it has been faithfully tried a clear bright skin and sound whole flesh have resulted.

Here is what Miss Lillie V. Doyle, of Strader's Hill, Ont., says:

For three years I had a very bad breaking out all over my face and went to a doctor who gave me a bottle of medicine which I used but got no benefit. I then went to another doctor who gave me medicine, but as my face kept getting worse I asked him to change the medicine, which he did, but it also failed to do any good and he told me he could do no more for me.

About three months ago I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and began using it; I soon found my face was getting much better, so I got another bottle and used it and on using the third bottle found my face completely cured. Several others who have followed my advice to try B. B. B. have been cured of similar troubles.

The Clerk's Mistake.

A commercial traveler at Liverpool has "taken a rise" out of the clerk at a certain leading commercial hotel. One day last week he entered the office and, banging his fist on the desk, demanded angrily:

"Why didn't you have me called at 6 o'clock?"

"I did," calmly replied the clerk.

"You did not, sir."

"I tell you I did."

"You did not, sir, and I can prove it."

"All right, go ahead; but you can't prove it."

"Yes I can."

"Prove it, then."

"Well, you did not have me called at 6 o'clock because I did not leave word to be called at all," and the commercial man grinned and looked for the clerk to blush and apologize.

But he looked in vain. A little thing like that wouldn't bother a hotel clerk. —London Telegraph.

One Honest Man.

Dear Editor:—Please inform your readers, that if written to confidentially I will mail in a sealed letter, particulars of a genuine, honest home cure, by which I was permanently restored to health and manly vigor, after years of suffering from nervous debility, sexual weakness, night losses and weak shrunken parts. I was robbed and swindled by the quacks until I nearly lost faith in mankind, but thank heaven, I am now well, vigorous and strong, and wish to make this certain means of cure known to all sufferers. I have nothing to sell, and want no money, but being a firm believer in the universal brotherhood of man, I am desirous of helping the unfortunate to regain their health and happiness, I promise you perfect secrecy and as I do not wish to expose myself either, please address, simply: P. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Sleeplessness is Another of the Vanquished Ailments.

A Wakeful Poison in the Blood—A Few Doses Relieves—A Few Boxes Cure.

Kidney disease has no surer sign than the condition of sleeplessness.

Without pain of any kind, or even uneasiness, the sufferer awakes, or remains awake, hour after hour every night.

There is a peculiar irritating and wakeful poison in the blood that causes it. Sluggish kidneys have allowed this to pass into the circulation.

A few doses of Dodd's Kidney Pills will make such a change for the better as to satisfy you that you are taking the right medicine.

But sleeplessness cannot be overcome in a day.

If in the habit of waking at a certain hour of the night—take one pill on going to bed.

If you have suffered from this form of unrest for any great length of time it will require a box or two to put the kidneys in good shape.

But Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure this condition.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so many diseases that have never been considered in any way related to the kidneys.

By this means because Dodd's Kidney Pills cure—we often learn that a certain form of suffering never before suspected is a form of kidney trouble.

And sleeplessness is one of the troubles that is settled by Dodd's Kidney Pills every time.

It is no experiment to use a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills for sleeplessness.

In one hundred thousand houses in Canada Dodd's Kidney Pills have a sure place.

One sufferer cured has told a dozen and so the good news has spread from house to house and from Province to Province.

OUR DRESS-MAKING DEPARTMENT

Was re opened for the season on Monday, the 2nd inst. and from the number of orders for Dresses and Costumes received on the opening day the coming season promises to be the busiest in our record.

The popularity of this branch of our business grows year by year. It is in charge of a lady who stands at the head of her profession and will not allow a garment to leave our store that is not fully up to order and perfect in every particular, and this is the secret of our success.

Our display of New Spring Costumes is admired by all who have seen them.

Our showing at the present time embraces all the Newest Effects up to the time of our last shipment, and our stock will be augmented from time to time as new ideas are produced.

New Spring Mantles and Capes are to hand.

The latest creations in these Garments are to be found in them. There are many changes and cuts this season that distinguishes our stock, very different from what you will see elsewhere this year, and all marked at such close prices that we expect to do an enormous trade in our Ready-Made Mantle Department.

New Prints and Ginghams.

Many were the surprises to our customers last Saturday when they learned the low prices at which we were selling our New Spring Prints and Ginghams.

At 8c you can buy the loveliest range of American Prints—colours guaranteed absolutely fast.

27 inch American Ginghams, worth 15c, selling at 10c. Every piece warranted fast colours.

For 15c you can buy from us a heavy 2 yard wide Cotton Sheeting, the 20c kind.

Have you seen our Bleached Cottons? If not you are just paying perhaps 10 per cent. more for them elsewhere.

We placed on sale to-day 1 case of 12½c and 15c English Prints, to be cleared out at 8c the yard.

This line embraces some of the choicest patterns for the coming season, and were imported to sell at the former prices.

Sir Charles Tupper Takes the Further Step

IN FAVOR OF THE REMEDIAL BILL

He Moves the Second Reading After a Long Speech, in Which He Digs Up Ancient History—Mr. Laurier Moves the Six Months' Hoist.

Ottawa, March 3.—(Special.)—Sir Charles Tupper, in rising to move the second reading of the Remedial Bill, said he did so under a deep sense of responsibility. The question transcended in importance any measure that had ever been submitted to Parliament during its existence. Before entering on the discussion of the measure he would like to ask the attention of the House while he revelwed what had been accomplished since Confederation. In 1864 a measure was concerted between New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island for a Maritime union. Sir Leonard Tilley was then Premier of New Brunswick, the late Col. Gray for P.E.I., and he (Sir Charles) held the same position in Nova Scotia. Sir Leonard Tilley was known throughout Canada for his high attainments and able public services. At that time a deputation came down from Canada to suggest confederation. The position of Canada at that time was most unfortunate. Racial and religious strife existed and Upper and Lower Canada were divided into hostile camps. The credit of the country was low and trade was stagnant. It was under these circumstances that the leaders of public opinion in Canada sought to bring about a change in her constitution, and made overtures to the Maritime colonies for the federation of British North America. He outlined the negotiations which took place and made a graceful reference in passing to Sir Hector Langevin, the only father of Confederation now in Parliament, except himself. Confederation was brought about by all the colonies joining together except Newfoundland, but he hoped the time was not far distant when Confederation would be rounded off by that colony becoming a portion of the Dominion. (Cheers.) Sir Charles then proceeded to sketch in eloquent language the progress of Canada since Confederation. To-day her credit stood as high as any country in the world; her colonies were joined from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the country was united by ties commercial, political and social.

But Confederation would never have been accomplished except for the acceptance of the proposal of Sir Alex. Galt, then the representative of the Protestants of Quebec, with a view to the protection of the rights of minorities, whether Catholic or Protestant. The B.N.A. Act provided that a province should legislate exclusively on educational matters, except as otherwise set forth. For the minorities, whether Catholic or Protestant, there was a guarantee of their educational rights, including an appeal to the Federal authority and the right of the Parliament of Canada to pass remedial laws. The talk of coercing Manitoba, in view of the provision of Confederation, Act I., was simply absurd. Once the right of minorities was infringed upon and an appeal was made to the Federal authority and the provincial authority declined to redress the grievances complained of, then ipso facto the Federal Government was seized of the right to legislate on this subject. (Cheers.) He was glad to know that there was no doubt on that score, there being the highest authority in the Empire for it.

He eulogized the Judicial Committee as being without a peer among the legal tribunals of the world. He proceeded to quote at considerable length from the judgment of the Privy Council to show that the Manitoba Government had denuded themselves deliberately of the right to legislate exclusively on the question of education, and the duty was imposed on the central Government of the Dominion to legislate in this case. But it might be contended that the duty of Parliament was not definite, that they "might" make laws and not "should" make them. If that view were pressed, it was a contention which would be unworthy of the government of any civilized country. (Cheers.) He trusted, therefore, no one would hide behind a subterfuge like that. (Hear, hear.) He repeated that not only was this provision made at Confederation for the protection of the rights of minorities, but what was more, it was made at the request of Protestants for the protection of Protestants. (Cheers.)

But, besides the question of constitution, there was a higher law, which should be respected, and that was to do unto others as you would be done by. (Cheers.) He referred to the views of eminent Protestants like Sir Wm. Dawson and others who endorsed the Act of Parliament of Canada in giving redress to the Catholics of Manitoba, whose rights had been infringed upon. He asked whether the peace and harmony of the country was to be disturbed by this unfortunate question being allowed to be thrust upon it. Was a small minority in Manitoba to be deprived of the rights guaranteed to them by an Imperial statute? The Canadian who, with the history of the past or present before him, would do anything to foment a war of races was the enemy of Canada. (Cheers.) This was not simply a question of Separate schools, it was a question of the constitution of the country. (Cheers.) It was a question of sacredly maintaining those rights guaranteed under the constitution.

Continuing, he said: In framing this bill the Government, while doing substantial justice to the rights of the minority, have been careful to encroach as little as possible upon the Local Government. No person can read this bill without seeing on the very face of it that it is not proposed that the Government of Canada should take action under even this bill, by the appointment of a board, the appointment of the superintendents, the guarantee that the schools shall be of the same high character as that of the other schools in Manitoba. Before all that is done, this bill provides first, to invite the Government of the Province of Manitoba to take action and it is only when they refuse, and when the unpleasant and disagreeable duty is forced by the act of the Imperial Parliament upon the Dominion of Canada that this Government proposes, in the least degree to interfere with the matter. And, as I say, the coercion comes not from the Dominion Government.

There is no coercion so far as the Dominion Government is concerned. There is not a line of coercion to be found in the bill from the beginning to the end. There is a most easy and natural provision to meet the interests of these people whose consciences deprive them of the opportunity of making use of such schools in Manitoba as they are now taxed to sustain. Under these circumstances the Government have been compelled to adopt the policy which they have adopted. I need not say that they have adopted this policy in the face of great difficulty, because it is always an extremely unpleasant thing for any Government to find themselves in a position in which there is a single member of their great political party that does not see eye to eye with them. In the face of even this difficulty the Government have felt compelled, in justice to their own position, and in regard to their duty to the country as imposed by the Imperial Act, the Government have felt obliged to take the step they have taken.

They have taken that step in the most moderate and temperate manner that was possible to be devised, and, even down to the present hour they have been open to any suggestions by which the responsibility which is imposed upon them under the circumstances could be removed. They are still open to any suggestion, from any quarter, of any means which will remove the necessity of their being compelled to take action of this kind, and having done that, Mr. Speaker, I have no hesitation in saying to you, that the Government would feel that it was unworthy the position it occupies; that the Government would feel that it did not deserve the confidence of that great Liberal-Conservative party who have enabled it to accomplish so much for Canada; that the Government would feel it was unworthy the confidence of the gentlemen on either side of the House, if, on a question so momentous, so important and so vital, to the good government, progress and prosperity of Canada, they were not prepared to lay down office if necessary, or to refer to the great intelligent electorate of this country for a decision as to whether they had discharged their duty or not. (Loud cheers.)

THE OPPOSITION LEADER

Asks in the Name of Peace and Harmony That the Bill be Dropped.

Mr. Laurier, who was received with loud Opposition cheers, said at a time when the name of the constitution had been outraged, and in the name of peace and harmony in this land, in the name of this young nation, he rose to ask Parliament not to proceed any further with this bill. (Liberal cheers.) If the measure were to become law, while it would not afford any protection to the minority in Manitoba, it would be a most violent wrenching of the principles on which Confederation was based. Sir Charles Tupper had taken credit for the Government as being the champions of the minority. The burden of his speech was that the Government were not free agents; they were simply the creatures of necessity. If their object were to do justice to the minority only, he could commend their motives, but not their judgment or good sense. Whenever there was a question in which the community was divided, it was the part of statesmanship not to force down the views of any section, but to endeavor to bring them all to a uniform standard, a uniform conception of what was right.

Reference had been made by Sir Charles Tupper to Confederation, but there was one page to which he had not alluded, not even a line had he read, and that was the manner in which his (Sir Charles Tupper's) native province of Nova Scotia was forced into Confederation. Since the days of Athens of old there had never been such a galaxy of able men as the small Province of Nova Scotia had produced. (Cheers.) It would have been the part of statesmanship to make the people of that Province realize the grandeur of the idea of Confederation. But such was not the case. There was at the head of the Government in Nova Scotia a gentleman who was determined to force the measure down the throats of the people of Nova Scotia by his mechanical majority in a moribund Legislature. That was Sir Charles Tupper (Liberal cheers.) To-day the young generation of Nova Scotia had become reconciled to Confederation, but not until the men of Confederation days had entirely passed away, would

MR. LAURIER'S DAY.

His Brave Stand on the Measure of Coercion

SHOWS HE'S A NATIONAL LEADER

Sir Charles Tries to Put Some More Wind into the Tupper Boom. But it Was the Liberal Leader's Start Towards Victory for Canada.

Ottawa, March 4.—(Special.)—The day has been one of the most notable which the Parliament of Canada has seen. The interest of six years was summed up in the proceedings of an afternoon, and the events upon which the fortunes of Canada hang were outlined in the policy which was formally launched. On the side of the Government the day had no surprise in store, for, its policy having been laid down, nothing remained but to wipe out the last possibility of an eleventh hour withdrawal by getting ahead in the way marked out. Sir Charles Tupper took upon himself the duty of launching and defending the Government's policy. He had husbanded his strength for the occasion, and elaborately prepared himself for what was to be a great effort. His public deliverances since his re-entering nito Parliament had not justified the acclaim with which he was received. In his first deliverance he was obliged to defend his veracity, in his second to deny an accusation against his honesty, and in his third to reply to a report that he was to be deposed from his newly-acquired leadership. To-day, however, he was to restore his weakened status and to inflate again the Tupper boom. How he succeeded may be left to the judgment of the readers of his speech. The single observation may be made that although physically he spoke sometimes with considerable vigor, the matter of his speech shows that years of absence from the arena have put him out of touch with the movements of events, until to-day he appeared, with his reminiscences of a dead generation and his extravagances of language, like a figure of the past rather than a man of the present. Of his argument, it may be dignified by the name, nothing need be said, more than that he rested his whole case upon the contention that the Government had no option left it by the constitution but to pass the Remedial Legislation, and that in fact the constitution in this matter worked mechanically. He was not able to make even so important a speech as this without falling into his old habit, as for instance, when he declared that prominent Methodist divines have publicly endorsed the bill, although he could not have given the name of one such. The other defender of the bill was Mr. Dickey, Minister of Justice. He came on late in the evening, but despite this disadvantage, he made a very much better argument than his leader. Speaking from a Government standpoint, it would have been better if the chief place had been given to the young Minister. As it is, the first day's debate closed with the advantage altogether with the Opposition and its courageous leader. The day presented two notable features—the less important the practical failure of the Conservative leader, and the more important the splendid speech and the still more splendid courage of the Liberal leader. Mr. Laurier's name is in everybody's mouth this evening. His speech strikes all minds as a master-stroke of politics, while at the same time those who look beyond present events see that it is far more than bold tactics, that it is statesmanship of a kind that unhappily has not often in the past confronted the racial and religious commotions of this strife-torn Canada. It was expected by those who did not know the man that when the time came for him to take a position he would be unequal to the situation; that while he might copy the Duke of Wellington's Torres Vedras tactics, he would not emulate the Iron Duke's courage when the day of battle should arrive. But to-day has shown the measure and mettle of the leader whom the Liberal party has placed at its head. It has shown him not as the spokesman of a party, as he never has been, but as a national leader, and the embodiment of the spirit of conciliation and harmony by which the now wavering elements of Canadian people may be united. No more candid nor clearer exposition of principle was ever given than he laid before the House, and no broader treatment of the relations of races and creeds, out of which have been springing the succession of heart-burning, peace-destroying agitations which have shaken Confederation. No more courageous utterance was ever made by a public man than when he defined his relation as leader of the Liberal party toward the ecclesiastical dignitaries who might seek to dictate to him as a member of the Catholic Church. He concluded by moving in amendment that the Remedial bill be given the six months' hoist. This is the straightest issue which it is posible to take with the Government upon it policy. Mr. Clarke Wallace, who followed Mr. Laurier, declared his intention of voting for the amendment. There was a great jam of visitors in the galleries throughout the afternoon, while on the floor there was a full attendance of members.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigourous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable "examinations" and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for thirty years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain cure for all derangements, weaknesses, irregularities and displacements of internal organs peculiar to women.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS ALWAYS CURE

AFTER TEN YEARS SUFFERING

Two Box Cure

MILVERTON, 28TH JULY, 1895.

Gentlemen,--For the last ten years I had been troubled with kidney disease, being so bad at intervals that I could not lie in bed at night nor stoop to the ground.

I had tried all the remedies I could find without effect, but heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and procured a box.

I am most happy to say it for my own sake as well as for others that I am perfectly cured after using four boxes.

PURCHASE OF GOVERNMENT SUPPLIES.

THE Conservative Belleville Intelligencer quotes, with the evident intention to make a point against the Mowat Government, the following grumble from the Belleville Ontario :—

"The Ontario Government is a Liberal Government, kept in power by Liberals, and West Elastic go has done its share in supporting this Government. It would seem then that when there is patronage to be distributed the Liberals ought at least be the recipients of an equal share with the Conservatives. In many instances this has been followed, but there are exceptions which are noteworthy. For instance, in dry goods the purchases for the year amounted to $581 53. Of this large amount Sinclair & Ostrom received the munificent sum of $26.46; J. P. Thompson & Co., $23.57, and the balance, $534.90, went to Geo. Ritchie & Co. We think such a distribution of patronage is most unfair to our other dry goods merchants. One well-known dry goods establishment, conducted by a Liberal, did not receive one cent's patronage, nor has it for several years. But the firm of Geo. Ritchie & Co., two members of which are strong Conservatives, receive nearly the whole amount."

The complaint of the Ontario is an outcome of the vicious doctrine promulgated so practically and persistently by the Government at Ottawa, "to the victors belong the spoils." No doubt the complaint of the Ontario is, as to its facts, well founded. But no discredit is to be written against the Ontario Government. During the budget debate in the House Mr. Matheson, the financial critic of the Opposition, accused the Government of unduly favouring its political friends in the purchase of supplies and a similar charge is a constant ingredient of the stock of Opposition critics. The Belleville incident is a proof that the Ontario Government in the purchase of supplies buys where it can buy to the best advantage. It's a pity Mr. Matheson had not had the Belleville Ontario's grievance for use in his budget speech. The Ontario Government administers public affairs in the interest of the province, not of the party, of which the complaint quoted above is the best possible evidence.

GENERAL regret must be felt at the dissensions in the Salvation Army. It is easy enough to criticize some of the Army's methods and plans of work. But, taking it all in all it has been a grand influence for good. Tens of thousands of men in the old land and on this side of the water owe their rescue to the work of the many noble men and women that are to be found under the banner of General Booth. But human nature is much the same in the Army as out of it. Power and responsibility are always associated with trouble. And leaders and lieutenants will never see eye to eye until the millennium.

MR. DRYDEN ought to be satisfied, says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, with the reception which his proposal to appoint a Provincial Highway Commissioner has met with. We have seen no adverse criticism of it anywhere. Among the many journals which have warmly approved of the idea are half a dozen of the leading Conservative papers of the province, such as the London Free Press, Toronto World, Ottawa Journal, Stratford Herald and St. Thomas Times. In addition to these may be added that powerful organ of independent Conservatism, the Montreal Star; while the attitude of the Hamilton Spectator is practically one of approval, although it expresses the opinion that Mr. Dryden has not gone far enough. It would like to see him abolish statute labour. Judging from all this, and from a multiplicity of evidence from many quarters, the campaign of education which has been carried on by the Ontario Good Roads Association is beginning to bear fruit. Let the good work go on.

The teeth, perhaps more than any other feature, enhance or destroy that intangible, because complex, thing we call beauty. What more repellant than ill-kept, discoloured teeth? What unsightliness more needless and inexcusable? Ivorine is delightful, whether as a cleanser or in its property of imparting to the teeth that dazzling whiteness so much desired and admired, and as efficiently does it render the breath sweet and fragrant. Ivorine is simply incomparable as a toilet requisite, which accounts for its recommendation and use by leading dentists.

SUCCESSFUL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

HARVEY AND NORTH SMITH SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

A Concise and Pithy Report—Three Successful Sessions — Admirable Practical Addresses.

The fifth annual convention of the Harvey and North Smith Sunday school Association was held in Wesley church, North Smith, on Thursday, the 27th ult.

The first session opened at 10.20 a.m. After devotional exercises by the Rev. G. R. Clare, and reading of minutes by the secretary, Mr. D. Weir, the first subject before the convention, "The Sunday school programme and the duties of each officer," was lucidly dealt with by the Rev. G. R. Clare. The teachers and officers should be early at their posts to receive and care for the children on their arrival. Everything should be done to secure their affection and impress them with the fact that you are deeply interested in their welfare. Perfect order is necessary to good results and should be secured at once without the repeated ringing of a bell or the objectionable "five minutes to come to order." The capable superintendent will devise means to suit his circumstances in securing this result. Mr. Clare placed a time programme on the black-board as he proceeded, suitable for a session of one hour. Whatever variations might be found necessary to suit varied circumstances, he would require each teacher and officer to work to the time-table adopted.

"The cultivation of the missionary spirit in Sabbath school," was introduced by the Rev. Mr. Jamieson, who admirably succeeded in making the subject both interesting and profitable. The missionary spirit is simply the opposite of the spirit of selfishness and positively is not, as it is popularly regarded, simply the giving of money for foreign missions. It is the practical application of the "Golden Rule" made to every-day life. No one can be successful in any department of life who is moved by a spirit of selfishness, hence the necessity and importance of cultivating early an opposite spirit, in order that the highest attainments may be reached. Some advocated a contribution box with departments in it for each class, and at stated periods the box would be opened and the results made known as to what each class had given. Others would put respective classes on a black-board with the amount each class had given. These plans, though commendable as money-extorting schemes, by creating a rivalry among the classes, are objectionable and hardly likely to create a spirit of voluntary and generous liberality. The better way, the speaker thought, would be to keep worthy and definite objects of charity before them, supply them fully with the facts of each case, their condition, need, etc. The children's sympathies would thus become enlisted and better and more enduring results would be obtained.

Revs. Messrs. Clare, Jamieson and Neville and Messrs. S. Northey and Stevenson were appointed a nominating committee, and adjournment was made for noon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Convention was again called to order at two o'clock.

After devotional exercises by Rev. Mr. Jamieson, the Nominating Committee named the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—A. E. Kennedy.

Vice-Presidents—All ministers within convention bounds.

Executive Committee—Messrs. D. Weir, W. Ventress, A. Brock, W. Bennett, S. Northey, J. Chase and G. Harrison.

The reports from the various schools showed them to be in a healthy condition and that good progress had been made during the year.

"The Normal Teaching of the Sunday School Lesson" was introduced by the Rev. W. R. Young, who has the happy faculty of making whatever subject he handles not only instructive and impressive, but exceedingly interesting. Every teacher must have a definite plan of the lesson and work to it. The eye is a medium of instruction as well as the ear, therefore to obtain best results a blackboard or some substitute is an absolute necessity. The character, occupation and social positions of persons named in the lesson, also the geography and history of the places named, and not only the text, but the context and post-text must be carefully studied in order that a thorough understanding of the lesson may be reached.

Rev. W. R. Young also took the place of Rev. J. J. Rae during the afternoon, but to attempt to give even a brief synopsis of his remarks on either of his subjects, would be to put the writer beyond his depth, particularly when it is known that the reverend gentleman sustained the unflagging interest of the large audience for over two hours, almost without intermission.

An adjournment, was made for tea at 4.45.

EVENING SESSION.

The Convention was again called to order at 7 o'clock. After devotional exercises by the Rev. Mr. Neville, the Rev. Mr. Cragg, of Peterborough addressed the convention on the growth of Sabbath Schools, referring to the many new features introduced into Sabbath School work since his boyhood days.

The Rev. W. R. Young then addressed the convention on the words "Other men laboured and ye have entered into their labours."

This is true in all departments, both of the church and state. Apt illustrations were drawn of the advancement made since the pioneer days showing the grand possibilities that are before the young men of our day if they will but prepare for the them. Neither youth nor age is a passport to position, but real worth. It behooves us to see that we do our part to advance the noble heritage left to us by our forefathers. It must be done by individual effort. Advancement can be seen all along the line, except in the field of politics. There, things had come to such a pass that honest men would hardly dare to touch it. Degeneracy reigns rampant and boodle is king. The hope of the country is in the youth, and it becomes every one who loves God and his country to rise to his privilege and duty and remove the stain.

The singing during the morning session was led by Wesley choir, and in the afternoon and evening by Chemong Indian choir, which added greatly to the interest of the convention.

The collections amounted to something over five dollars, more than enough to meet expenses.

Votes of thanks were passed to the people of Wesley for their royal hospitality, and to the speakers and choirs for their assistance, and thus ended a very interesting and profitable convention.

A FARMER'S EXPERIENCE.

HE SUFFERED FROM RHEUMATISM AND LA GRIPPE.

Suffered Much Pain was Despondent and Easily Tired—Spent Much Money on Various Medicines Before a Cure was Found.

The after effects of la grippe and rheumatism is a combination well calculated to make any life miserable. La grippe weakens the whole nervous system, frequently leaving the victim with a constant feeling of depression, fickle appetite, headache, heart palpitation and a feeling of exhaustion as the result of the slightest exertion. As a cure for the depressing after effects of la grippe, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have met with more marvellous success than any other medicine known to science. They act directly upon the blood and nerves, renewing the one and fortifying the other, thus driving disease from the system. Among those who speak in grateful terms of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, is Mr. William Carroll, of Sydney, Manitoba. Mr. Carroll had been a sufferer from rheumatism to a considerable extent for upwards of twenty years, and to add to his suffering for two successive winters he was attacked with la grippe in all its severity, and was left in a weak and despondent condition. Mr. Carroll says:—"Following the second attack of la grippe my whole system was so weakened that it was with difficulty I could do any work. In this condition I was an easy prey to my old enemy, rheumatism, and I suffered the agony of its pains in almost every bone in my body. I doctored a great deal, but without any beneficial results, and I spent seventeen dollars for one medicine largely advertised as a cure for rheumatism, without the least benefit. I naturally felt despondent, and thought the trouble had fastened itself upon me in permanent form. I had read so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I at last determined to give them a trial. I can't say that I felt anything in the way of beneficial results until I had used the third box, but at that juncture the encouragement was so great that I determined to continue the treatment, and I used the Pink Pills throughout the winter, constantly gaining in strength. When spring arrived I found myself better than I had been for years, every vestige of rheumatism had disappeared, and although some ten months have now passed since I took the last pill I have not had the slightest return of the trouble. I therefore think it but right that I should make known the good I have received from the famous Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I hope my experience may be the means of putting some other sufferer on the road to renewed health.

There is no disease due to an impoverished condition of the blood, or shattered nerve forces which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will not cure if given a fair trial. With the approach of spring Pink Pills ought to be used by every person in the land, as they purify and enrich the blood, give strength and tone to the whole system, and ward off all possibility of disease. The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can only be had in boxes the wrapper around which bears the trade mark, and words "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Pills coloured pink offered in any other form are worthless imitations, and should be refused, no matter what the dealer who tries to sell them may say.

TO HEAL MANKIND.

It is as a healing medicine for all outward sores, ulcers, blotches, skin diseases, cancer, scrofulous sores, etc., that Burdock Blood Bitters has won some of its most signal victories over disease. In every case where it has been faithfully tried a clear bright skin and sound whole flesh have resulted.

Here is what Miss Lillie V. Doyle, of Strader's Hill, Ont., says:

For three years I had a very bad breaking out all over my face and went to a doctor who gave me a bottle of medicine which I used but got no benefit. I then went to another doctor who gave me medicine, but as my face kept getting worse I asked him to change the medicine, which he did, but it also failed to do any good and he told me he could do no more for me.

About three months ago I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and began using it; I soon found my face was getting much better, so I got another bottle and used it and on using the third bottle found my face completely cured. Several others who have followed my advice to try B. B. B. have been cured of similar troubles.

YOUR "BAD BACK" RE-BACKED.

HOW IT IS DONE!

The pertinent question of the day is—Does your back ache? Is it lame?

Thousands suffer from what they commonly term "Bad back." When they walk or when they work, when they lie down or rise up, wherever they may be or whatever they may do, the old aching, paining, "lame back" worries and wearies and wears them out.

Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can be cured.

Just a word of explanation.

The back is the key-note of the kidneys. When it aches that's a sign that the kidneys are not acting properly. When it is "lame," that indicates that the kidneys are clogged up.

Then all the poisonous products that it is the kidneys special duty to eliminate from the blood, are carried in the blood current to every organ and tissue of the body, bringing on many a kidney trouble which if neglected means disease.

Will you heed the timely warning the back gives you? Will you strike the enemy while you can strike hard? Doan's Kidney Pills are the little enemies of kidney disorders. They strike with no uncertain hand Old backs and young backs are being "re backed" and freed from never-ceasing pain and many a lame and shattered one, stooped and contracted, is strengthened and invigorated by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. THE FIGHT BEGINS.

it be forgotten how the manhood of the Province was outraged by the manner in which their dignity and rights were trampled upon. (Liberal cheers.) Coercive methods never led a people to good and wise government.

He joined issue with Sir Charles Tupper in his statement that the Canadians had been happy and prosperous since Confederation. Was it not a fact that the country had been torn by almost continual agitations which more than once had shaken it to its very roots and threatened its very existence? In this connection he referred to the New Brunswick school question, the Quebec school question, the Streams bill agitation in Ontario, the railway agitation in Manitoba, and the Jesuits agitation in Ontario. Today we could hear the roar of another agitation coming upon us. The demon of discord was out in the land, blowing the wind of strife from all directions and in all directions, awakening slumbering passions and arousing old prejudices. It could be seen in the cities, in towns and in villages and even in the backwoods settlements the rude life of the pioneer was not proof against its evil suggestions. (Liberal cheers.)

He proceeded to sketch his ideal of a government, laying down as a first principle the axiom that majorities must rule. If a minority felt that it was not getting justice it should agitate and endeavor to bring the majority to its way of thinking. It was obvious that if the minority would not concede to the arbitrament of the majority and an appeal was made to the Parliament of Canada, the result would be to import into the Dominion Parliament the bitterness of strife, where it would rage with equal violence and probably increased fury. Perhaps, therefore, it was not an unmixed wisdom when this power, of supervision of the Local Legislatures was introduced into the constitution. If it were to be applied it should be done in a manner so as not to provoke irritation. A remedy must be applied according to the circumstances of the case and only after full inquiry into the facts and all efforts of conciliation had failed. (Cheers.) The time was when an easy way presented itself to settle this question.

Mr. Ives—How?

Mr. Laurier—I will tell the hon. gentleman. In 1890, four acts of the Legislature in Manitoba came for review before the Government of Canada. One related to the abolition of the French language, another abolishing separate schools, a third related to quarantine, and the fourth to public companies. What did the Government do? They disallowed the acts relating to quarantine and public companies but allowed the acts abolishing the French language and separate schools to remain on the statute book. The power of disallowance has always been held by the Government to be essential to the administration of the affairs of the country and if ever they had a fair chance to put the doctrine they had always preached into operation it was then.

Mr. Moncrieff—I would like to ask the hon. gentleman if he thinks the Government should have disallowed the Separate School Act?

Mr. Laurier—Did the hon. gentleman or anyone else on his side ever take the view of the Liberal party on the question of disallowance? (Ministerial laughter.)

Mr. Moncrieff—That is no answer to my question.

Mr. Laurier said he judged the Government by their own methods and their own doctrines. If it were right and proper to disallow the Cattle Quarantine Act, was it not proper to disallow the School Act? Proceeding, he said that when the petitions for the Remedial Legislation were received, the Government should have investigated the claim. Instead, they went to the courts to see if they had power to pass the legislation asked for. When the courts said they had the power, the Government immediately passed a drastic order-in-council, without any investigation, and, in the name of justice for the minority, now asked Parliament to pass legislation to enforce it. He declared in the name of the minority that the course pursued by the Government was unconstitutional, weak and dangerous. (Liberal cheers.) He denied that the Government must act mechanically on this question, and said if such was the case then the granting to provinces of the control of education was a most fatal gift, as it was a snare to entrap the provinces into humiliation. (Hear, hear.) The minority claimed their conscience had been outraged.

If this were so, then all would agree that justice should be done. But how was it to be known if the grievance was a real one without investigation and enquiry? (Liberal cheers.) He denied that the facts of the case had been settled by the judgment of the Privy Council, and quoted the reference to show that the facts were assumed. If the Government then believed the facts were as stated, why had they not said so when time after time they were challenged in Parliament? He assailed the bill, because he was of the creed and nationality of the minority. They had a strong case and he did not want it said that they had to carry it through, as was now proposed, on assumption of facts. (Liberal cheers.) He admitted the right of the minority to appeal to Parliament and to the power of Parliament to grant the relief asked for in the appeal, but contended that all the facts should be investigated, so as to give something for Parliament to act upon. By the course pursued the Government was putting itself into a false position.

Referring to Mgr. Paquet's words in favor of Catholic M.P.'s voting for the Remedial Bill, he said: Mgr. Paquet evidently had not read Manitoba's answer to the Remedial Order, from which he held that reference could be made, that if investigation showed the existence of a grievance, Manitoba itself would give the requisite measure of relief. He declared all the facts set forth in the petition of the minority should be investigated, and said that even those in the House who opposed Separate schools on principle, would, if even a single claim of the minority that the compact with the Crown guaranteed them Separate schools was substantiated, support the measure of relief.

Methods of persuasion and conciliation should have been adopted all along. Even if Parliament had full proof of the existence of a grievance, what right, he asked, had it to pass this proposed remedy without having any knowledge of the local circumstances and conditions? Knowledge of these was necessary in framing a measure that would be of any value. The measure was a half-hearted one. It was to be administered by an outside Government. He questioned, under the circumstances, if the bill could be of any possible benefit to the minority, and asked if it would not have been far wiser to have appointed a commission on which Manitoba should be represented and have whatever legislation the commission deemed requisite administered from within and by a friendly Government. He took issue with those who claimed that Manitoba was not willing to do justice. They had never been approached in a proper spirit. The Government went to them with a club in hand. The policy of the Government had been wrong from first to last. Why had they approached Manitoba in haughty spirit? Why, after the judgment of the Privy Council, did they not say to Manitoba, "Do not compel us to exercise the power Privy Council says we have?" Probably Manitoba would then have acted. Why did they not send an ambassador to Manitoba, not a few days ago as they had sent Sir Donald Smith but 12 months ago? However, the Government was not even entitled to the last faint measure of credit, for Sir Charles Tupper had declared he was not sent by the Government. (Liberal cheers.) Investigation and conciliation were the only means by which the question could be dealt with rightly and settled. He had taken one stand from the beginning and he stood upon it still. (Cheers.)

Adverting to the threatened influence of the Roman Catholic church against him, he said: "Sir, this is too grave a phase of this question for me to pass it by in silence. I have only this to say: Even though I have threats held over me, coming from high dignitaries in the church to which I belong, no word of bitterness shall ever pass my lips as against that church. I respect and I love it. But, sir, I am not of that school which has been long dominant in France and other countries of continental Europe, which refuses ecclesiastics the right of having a voice in public affairs. No; I am a Liberal of the English school. I believe in that school which has all along claimed that it is the privilege of all subjects, whether high or low, whether rich or poor, whether ecclesiastic or laymen, to participate in the administration of public affairs, to discuss, to influence, to persuade, to convince, but which has always denied, even to the highest, the right to dictate even to the lowest. (Liberal cheers.)

"I am here representing not Roman Catholics alone, but Protestants as well and I must give an account of my stewardship to all classes. (Renewed cheers.) Here am I, a Roman Catholic of French extraction, entrusted by the confidence of the men who sit around me, with great and important duties under our constitutional system of Government. I am here, the acknowledged leader of a great party, composed of Roman Catholics and Protestants as well, in which Protestants must be in the majority in every party. Am I to be told, I, occupying such a position, that I am to be dictated to as to the course I am to take in this House by reasons that can appeal to the consciences of my fellow Catholic members, but which do not appeal as well to the consciences of my Protestant colleagues? (Hear, hear.) No; so long as I have a seat in this House, so long as I occupy the position I do now, whenever it shall become my duty to take a stand upon any question, whatever that stand, I will take it, not from the point of view of Roman Catholicism, not from the point of view of Protestantism, but from a point of view which can appeal to the consciences of all men, irrespective of their faith. (Liberal cheers.) From the point of view of men who love justice, freedom and toleration—(Liberal cheers)—and so far as this bill is concerned, I have given you my views; I acknowledge that there rests in this Government the power to interfere, that there is in this Parliament the power to interfere; but that power should not be exercised until all the facts bearing upon it have been investigated, and all means of conciliation exhausted. Having these opinions, I move that the bill be not now read the second time, but that it be read the second time this day six months." (Prolonged Liberal cheers.)

MR. CLARKE WALLACE'S POSITION

The Ex-Controller of Customs Finds Fault With the Government Policy.

Mr. Clarke Wallace resumed the debate after recess. He opened by a complimentary reference to the great services rendered Canada by Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., and said, while he still endorsed the trade policy and the general policy of the Conservative party, he regretted he could not agree with Sir Charles Tupper on the Remedial Bill. He concurred that Canada had been a happy family since Confederation, and held it would continue to be so if such questions as the present one were left where they belonged, viz., to the provinces. He repelled the charge that those opposing the bill were fanatics. He said that every resource should have been exhausted to settle the question before the Government took its present course, and he could not agree that this had been done. The responsibility would rest on the Government, who had thrust Remedial Legislation on the Conservative party. The party in Ontario, as he knew it, was not in accord with the bill. (Applause.) He held that the judgment of the Privy Council did not compel the Government to act. It simply said the Government had the power to act. Parliament had many other powers, which it could exercise, but did not. He held that the privilege had simply been withdrawn from the Catholics and that the Protestants for that matter had the same privilege and had it withdrawn from them as well. He asked if it was a grievance to give Catholics efficient schools for inefficient ones, to give all the province of Manitoba better schools than they had previously, this being the result of the province being able to devote to one school system money that before had been divided between two. He held it was not the people of Manitoba that wanted to return to Separate schools, many Catholics of the province as well as Protestants being in favor of the present system.

The recent elections in Quebec showed the people of Quebec were not interested in forcing Separate schools on Manitoba. It was the hierarchy that was at work. If they succeeded in this they would not stop there but would continue agitating with respect to the Territories and the other Provinces. Incidentally, he referred to the School Act passed by the Northwest Assembly, which has never gone into effect because the Governor had not signed it. He was told it was through Archbishop Langevin that the measure was not signed. Proceeding, he held that regarding the claim that Catholics had treaty rights previous to the admission of Manitoba into Confederation, the bill before the House would be of no benefit to the Catholics and would only result in increasing religious animosities. He held the education provided in ecclesiastical schools was not practical; and that the system, wherever tried, had proved a failure. He then went on to show how the hierarchy constantly tried to force its views on the people in elections. He read Archbishop Cameron's reference to "Hell-inspired hypocrites" and said he did not want to be called such though he had opposed Separate schools.

Mr. Foster—Perhaps the objection won't hold.

Mr. Wallace—It will with the people of Canada. Continuing, he said the action of the clergy in this respect was an intolerable species of intimidation.

Referring to the plea for the appointment of a commission of investigation he said that Mr. Martin (Winnipeg) talked loudest for it. He asked why Mr. Martin, the author of public school laws, should be asking for information. He considered the commission utterly unnecessary, but thought if a conference had been arranged between the two Governments, many of the difficulties could have been removed. He concluded by deprecating the idea that the Canadian people should be divided and prophesying constant trouble if the bill was passed. He would vote for Mr. Laurier's amendment. (Applause.)

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ASPECT

Placed Before the House by Mr. Dickey, Minister of Justice.

Mr. Dickey spoke on the legal and constitutional aspect of the case. He said if it were the fault of Parliament that the rights of Catholics, which the House at this time, and the Catholics at this time, considered were being preserved, were not preserved, was there not some obligation for Parliament to make amends? He admitted there was no obligation on Parliament to take action, but he pointed out there was nothing to compel the country to pay its bonds, nothing but war to compel the country to keep its treaties, still these were observed as a matter of honor. If the facts of the case were right, would not this be equally a debt of honor? Personally he did not believe in Separate schools, but in following the present course, he considered he was doing his duty under the constitution. (Hear, hear.) What would be thought of a judge vested with power to grant a divorce if he refused to grant it because he did not believe in divorce. In refutation of Mr. Laurier's claim regarding disallowance, he showed the course adopted by the Government was a parallel with that followed by Sir John Macdonald and Alexander Mackenzie with respect to the New Brunswick school question.

Proceeding, he held that the judgment of the Privy Council indicated that it was necessary to redress the grievances of the minority. If the House, after referring the question to the Privy Council, should take steps that would involve the assertion that its judgment was not right, it would be stultifying itself in a manner he could not find words sufficiently strong to express. If the judgment was ignored he held that the result would be that Parliament could never again submit another case to the courts for settlement, but in future cases of similar character would have to be settled first and last in the House, without the assistance of the judicial expressions of opinion. (Hear, hear.) Proceeding, he held that the Manitoba Government had never done anything to indicate they were prepared to meet the policy of conciliation, but had stood on strict rights, as they looked upon them.

He denied that the Remedial Order was drastic in character and held it was simply clear, definite and decided, as judgments of courts are. Moreover, the whole order was qualified by the part of the Privy Council judgment it contained, which pointed out all that was required was the substantial righting of the grievance and did not necessarily mean a return to the old school laws, as a repeal of the new ones, but simply modifications of the new laws. He held there was nothing to investigate, as Mr. Laurier claimed, but the question was simply one of law and history. He said the Protestants in Quebec depended for their school rights on exactly the same clause of the constitution as that under which the Catholics are now claiming redress. If the Quebec Legislature wished, they could force on Protestant schools text books, no matter how offensive, and also do away with their School Board and many other privileges. The only resource of the Protestants would be to appeal to Parliament, as the Catholics were now doing. Therefore, the House now was deciding the principle in which all minorities were vitally interested. He concluded by declaring that the Government did not claim the Catholic vote because they were carrying the bill through. They were simply following the constitution. (Cheers.)

The debate was adjourned on motion of Mr. Edgar.

The House adjourned at 10.50.

Hands Across the Sea.

One of the best dramatic productions seen in Peterborough for many a day, was that given by Mr. Maurice Freeman and a strong company of actors. The plot was a good one commencing in the quaint old country home and gradually thickening until the climax is reached in the prison scene, where the devoted wife arrives just in time with a reprieve which saves her husband from a felon's grave. The play then goes gradually down until everything ends well on the far shores of Australia. It is very difficult to attempt to criticise the parts of the different members but Mr. Maurice Freeman is certainly a star in his profession, taking with ease two exceptionally heavy roles. Miss Nedill Wenstan, the devoted wife, was exceptionally fine and has peculiar but good delivery. The part of Dick Milford, King of Australia was well taken by Jas. Otley. The audience was kept in roars of laughter by the amusing antics of Tom Basset and Lucy Nelsiford who imagined each loved the other, particularly in the scene on the deck of the S. S. Australasian. Mr. Geo. Mach made a great hit in two of the latest popular songs. Although the audience was not as large as it should have been, the company have made arrangements for a return engagement during the early part of April, when a crowded house should greet them, as the company is worthy of it.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL.

A Very Pleasant Evening in St. Andrew's Lecture Room Last Evening.

There was a birthday social given last evening by the young lady members of Mrs. Waddell's class, in the lecture room of St. Andrew's church. There was a very large attendance and all present enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. Rev. Mr. MacWilliams very ably filled the chair. In his remarks he briefly outlined the work and principal features of Point Aux Trembles School. Mrs. Waddell's class of young ladies is supporting a student at that school and the money derived from the social is to be sent to aid that student.

After the Chairman's address came a comic recitation by little Miss Aggie Patterson, which was encored. Then followed an instrumental duet by Misses VanEvery and Tully, after which Miss A. Fowler sang a solo very sweetly. Mr. Percy Owens and Miss Fawn Russell then gave an instrumental duet, which was encored.

The pastor and Mrs. McWilliams then sang a duet, which was also encored. Mrs. MacWilliams kindly responded to the encore, and sang "Mary of Argyle." Mrs. MacWilliams has a full and very rich voice, which she controls very effectively. An instrumental trio came next by Messrs. VanEvery, Waddell and Henricks. This selection was also encored. Mrs. MacWilliams then sang another solo, also Miss Annie Fowler. Mrs. H. Jones gave a vocal solo, with banjo accompaniment by Mrs. Welton, and had to respond to an encore. Mr. Mulligan then sang "Joy, Sorrow."

Intermission followed after the first half of the programme had been concluded. Ice cream and refreshments were then served. Great credit is due the young ladies and Mrs. Waddell for the pains they had taken to make the social a success.

A BUSINESS CHANGE.

Mr. J. D. Tully Buys Out the Drug Business of Mr. Geo. A. Schofield.

The drug business recently conducted by Mr. George A. Schofield, on the north-west corner of Hunter and George street, has been purchased by Mr. J. D. Tully, druggist, who will conduct it in connection with his own business until he can conveniently make arrangements to remove his own large stock to the newly acquired premises.

The site constitutes one of the very best business stands in Peterborough, and as Mr. Tully was educated in town and has conducted a drug store here for the past twenty-five years, success will undoubtedly smile upon the new venture, and whilst Mr. Tully has always enjoyed a liberal patronage, his handsome new premises promises to greatly enlarge his business connection.

In leaving town Mr. Schofield leaves all his prescriptions with Mr. Tully and recommends his customers to give their patronage to the new possessor of the premises. The following card is published at his request:

PETERBOROUGH, March 3, 1896.

Having disposed of my drug business to Mr. J. D. Tully, I extend to my friends my sincere thanks for their past patronage and recommend them to favour him with a continuance of their custom.

With him I have left all prescriptions and private formulas, including those for Dr. Harvey's celebrated croup mixture and Schofield's cough mixture.

GEO. A. SCHOFIELD.

For the present Mr. Tully will continue to operate the two stores. Mr. Frost, formerly in the employ of Mr. Schofield, will remain in the new store.

AN EVENING IN THE COUNTRY.

St. Luke's Choir Goes Down to Mrs. Z. Burnham's—A Pleasant Time.

Mr. R. H. Leary drove seventeen members of St. Luke's choir down to Mrs. Z. Burnham's, last evening, when several hours were spent most enjoyably.

The party was accompanied by Rev. Mr. Symonds, Miss Symonds and Rev. W. L. Baynes Read. Upon arrival all were made most cordially welcome by Mrs. Burnham, whose hospitality seemed inexhaustable. The evening was very pleasantly spent in singing and the playing of games. Refreshments were served before the party left for home.

Leaving to-morrow he will embark almost immediately for Johannnesburg, where he will join his brother who has been in South Africa for some time. Mrs. Crowe will reside in Sarnia until her husband becomes permanently settled if he decides to remain in the newly opened up territory.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Its Prosperous Condition — Its High Standing and Undoubted Efficiency —The Effect of Having a First-Rate Principal—The Board's New System of Graded Salaries.

In the issue of the DAILY EXAMINER of July 22, 1890, in the course of an article introducing Mr. Principal Fessenden to its readers, the following words were used:—

"THE EXAMINER feels justified in congratulating Mr. Fessenden on becoming a citizen of the first town of the Dominion, and in congratulating the School Board and citizens in securing the services of a principal with such a well-approved record. But the best man will have his efforts largely neutralized without the hearty and active co-operation of the Board of Education, fellow-teachers, pupils and parents, and this we bespeak in his behalf, with full confidence that the co-operation spoken of will be heartily extended, in which event we can safely predict a prosperous future for the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. This Institute has had a rather trying experience in the past, but happier days are dawning. The School Board seems to be influenced by broad, liberal ideas, and inclined to work harmoniously for the promotion of our educational interests whether associated with the Institute or Public Schools; in fine, the conditions are every way favourable for a "boom" in educational matters in Peterborough the coming year, and we predict many a year beyond."

Without having assumed the often dangerous role of prophecy, THE EXAMINER may claim that the predictions made above have been literally verified and even surpassed. That the Collegiate Institute, as well as the Public Schools, is now in the highest state of efficiency, goes without saying. We have, as regards the Institute, every-day evidence of the extremely effective character of its working, and official testimony is afforded by the official report of Inspector Hodgson, presented at the Board meeting, last night, which asserts that the teaching in all departments is up to the highest mark, and that the discipline, without which effective teaching and the best results are impossible, is "excellent." That the teaching is of this character is due in a large degree to discipline, and in all fairness it must be admitted that the discipline is very largely due to the principal, at the same time admitting the teaching abilities of his colleagues on the staff. It will be observed by our report of the proceedings of the Board of Education last night that the Board adopted a system of regular gradation of salaries. The effect of this, it is claimed, is to retain the services of teachers of proved efficiency, by recognising faithful work, with a tendency of identifying the personal interests of the teacher with the interests of the school. Under this system the minimum salary of a principal is $1500 with a regular yearly increase of $100 till the maximum of $2,000 is reached. Of course it is plain that unless a principal's services are satisfactory he will not be retained, and therefore there will be no increase of salary, for in case his services are dispensed with the new principal's salary will start at $1500 to be increased only on condition of giving such satisfaction as will warrant the retention of his services. Under this system it is claimed that once a good principal is secured his services will be reasonably certain—he is assured of a steady increase of salary in case his work meets approval, and he will be more apt to decline overtures from other schools, which would gladly secure his services. Thus when we get a good man we can keep him. A decided advantage—for there is nothing more dangerous than exchanging a man who has proved himself to be good, for a principal, a teacher whose employment will be a matter of experiment. If we have a Collegiate Institute it is desirable that we should, as we have now, the best in the country. Complaints are sometimes made of the expensiveness of the High School, but it is a necessity to the unity of our educational system—which works in a circle—without High Schools or their equivalent we could not equip teachers and without teachers we could have no Public Schools.

That it pays to have a first-rate principal and teachers is a fact, not only from the viewpoint of educational results, but from the material consideration of dollars and cents. The year preceding the appointment of Mr. Fessenden the Collegiate Institute fees amounted in round numbers to only $1,300, while last year the total receipts for fees was $2,600, a difference of 100 per cent.—$1,300, which is $800 clear cash gain over and above the increase of salary, according to the new scale, a first-class principal would be entitled to in five years.

The system of minimum salaries and regular increases to a maximum, as adopted in the Public Schools, has led the Board to the adoption of a similar system for the Collegiate Institute. As will be seen by the report the other teachers of the staff have fixed minimum salaries, with regular increases up to a maximum figure. All teachers know what they have to depend upon, and also know that to gain increase of salary they must earn it, that is, they must give such teaching services as will retain them in their positions. The Board, doubtless, thinks that their action in this matter is in the interests of the Public Schools and they hope that its wisdom will commend itself to public opinion.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the Golden Medical Discovery will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

A number of young men have formed themselves into an athletic club, and have rented the old St. Andrew's Hall, over C. N. Brown's store on Simcoe street. The premises were well equipped for the purpose intended, a first-class gymnasium being fitted up. A few evenings ago some person broke open the lock in the door and the fastenings on the locker, and removed a set of boxing gloves from the premises. The members of the club are leaving no stone unturned to locate the gloves, and if the depredators can be found there will be trouble of the liveliest kind.

THE STATE OF THE STREETS.

To the Editor of the Examiner :

DEAR SIR :—I beg to call attention to the state of the streets in the Northern part of the town. Aylmer street north and some adjoining streets have been blocked with snow for a considerable part of the winter, and traffic there has been stopped, to the great inconvenience of the residents and those having business there. While many receiving charity are idle, it does seem a pity that the public streets of the town are allowed to remain blocked, when a small expenditure will keep them open. The attention of the Street Inspector has been called to this disgraceful state of affairs, but no steps have been taken to remedy the grievence.

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

It is said that Lionel is prepared to make affadavit that the blow which broke his wrist was premeditated.

The Globe of to-day says :—The Peterborough Club's request for another game with the Granites some time this week will not be complied with, as the junior champions want to keep in good shape for the game with the Electrics of Ottawa.

CURLIANA.

It looks as though the Peterborough curlers were going to even things up on Lindsay for defeating them in the early part of the season. A portion of the return match in the Peterborough-Lindsay competition was played off on the local ice yesterday, when three rinks of the Thistles defeated three rinks from Lindsay by nineteen points. Skip Jimmy Connal and his colts had the felicity of winning from Skip Billy McLennan by the score of 19 to 3. Skip Ray won from Skip Jimmy McMillan by six points, and Skip R. S. Davidson held Skip Flavelle down until the last end, when the latter scored four points and won by 13 to 10. The rinks were composed as follows :

The character of the pupils' work in Forms I and II in reading is as follows :

(1) Last class of entrants—Of 23 examined, 11 are good, 10 fair, 1 poor and 1 bad.

(2) Other pupils—Of 13 examined, 6 are good, 4 fair, and 3 poor.

Writing—(1) Last class of entrants—General character of work, fair.

(II) Other pupils—General character of work, good.

The grading shows that in the Inspector's opinion the teaching is of a high order in all the departments, being No. 1. The removal of the public school class has provided room for a well-equipped physical labratory. The buildings and grounds, however, (as pointed out by Mr. Seath in his last report), are not in keeping with the character of the work done in the class rooms. The report was received.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE, through its chairman, W. G. Ferguson, recommended the payment of the following accounts :

Clarke & Gibson	11 75
A Comstock	2 50
Cox & Davis	43 00

The report was adopted.

THE PROPERTY COMMITTEE

through its chairman, Mr. Peter Hamilton, reported :

That having settled with Thos. Rutherford, contractor for the South Ward school extension, would recommend that in addition to the amount of the contract Mr. Rutherford be paid the sum of $290.00 for extra work and changes necessary as the work progressed. Some of these extras were unavoidable and unforseen. The amount arrived at was carefully considered and in no case at all questionable. This amount is to be paid conditional that the cold air room is floored, also the stonework over the ground in the foundation be finished the same as the old building agreeable to specifications, or a sufficient amount retained until completion of these. The committee complimented the board on the successful completion of the school and are pleased to acknowledge the excellent work done by the contractor.

Mr. Hamilton explained that the extras were incurred through placing the furnaces on a different line than that on which they were at first erected, in joining the roofs of the old and new buildings and other things which the contractor was perfectly justified in classing as extras. The work had been completed in so satisfactory a manner that the committee were not inclined to wish to push the matter of the penalty.

The report was adopted.

THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS,

through its chairman, Mr. W. H. Hill, reported as follows :

Your committee at a recent meeting fully considered the question of grading the salaries of the staff of the Collegiate Institute, and, as a result beg leave to recommend that the following classification of teachers and scale of salaries for the same be adopted, and that the said scale be applied to all future appointments.

CLASSIFICATION AND SCHEDULE OF PRICES.

(a) The Principal. The salary of the Principal shall begin at $1500 per annum, and increase at the rate of $100 a year until the maximum salary of $2,000 be reached.

(b) The special assistant at the head of Special Departments :—The salary of each specialist shall begin at $1,000 per annum and increase at the rate of $40.00 a year until it has reached $1,200.00 ; this class to be composed in future of those with honour graduate standing, as well as specialist standing.

(c) All other assistants :—The salary of each assistant in this class shall begin at $850 per annum and increase at the rate of $30.00 a year until it reaches $1,000.00.

With regard to the present staff your committee recommends as follows :

That there shall be no increase made until September, 1896.

That any now receiving a higher salary than that proposed in this report be not reduced.

That those teaching now in the employ of the Board who have not attained to the maximum under this classification and scale of salaries shall receive in September, 1896, their first annual increase in all cases where length of service shall, at the above date, entitle them to the same—no increase, however, to exceed one annual increase.

That lady teachers who are honour graduates and specialists having charge of a special department shall receive salary as per schedule C.

Your committee further recommend that the janitor of the South Ward school be allowed an additional $50 per annum, dating from January 1st, last, to pay for the extra help he necessarily requires to employ since his work was so largely increased, owing to the large extension to the building and the increased number of furnaces to be looked after.

Mr. Hill and Mr. Hayes moved the adoption of the report.

In amendment, Mr. Wrighton and Mr. McBain moved that the report be not adopted, but be left over for another month.

In speaking to the amendment Mr. Wrighton argued that the adoption of the report should be delayed in order to give the members more opportunity of discussing it. He read extracts from reports showing that Peterborough already was almost at the top of the list amongst the other Provincial towns in the matter of teachers' salaries and stated that while he did not wish to be regarded as opposing the new system, still he would like to have more opportunity of discussing the matter with the other members.

In defence of his report Mr. Hill stated that the salaries of teachers throughout the Province had advanced considerably since the compilation of the data in 1893, to which Mr. Wrighton referred. The whole question had been fully threshed out by the Committee on Appointments, composed of the whole Board, at its last meeting, and therefore all were fully conversant with the details of the scale, with the exception of one or two, including Mr. Wrighton, who were absent from the meeting.—The report was adopted.

THE VISITING COMMITTEE

through its chairman, Mr. W. B. Bamford, reported :

That having visited the different schools during the past week, found the work apparently progressing and the order good.

In going through the several schools they noticed the following defects :—In the Central school there were a large number of windows broken in the gymnasium, stove broken, and frame under the stove not covered with zinc.

There are holes in the floor of the long shed, and the boys' closets and urinal are dirty and filthy.

In the boiler room there are two large windows broken, also wainscotting under window. This room is untidy.

In Miss Noble's room the zinc behind the stove is worn out, and the stove rusty

In Miss Ames' room there is some plaster off the ceiling ; the teacher complains of gas escaping and poor ventilation.

In Miss Richardson's room we noticed that there are no blinds on the north windows and in the other rooms facing the north. Some teachers complain of the strong light.

The heat in this room is excessive, being

"BARBARA DERING"

IN THE STORIES OF AMELIE RIVES WAS REALLY HERSELF.

The Beautiful Authoress Married to Prince Troubetzkoy After Having Secured a Divorce from Mr. Chanler A Third Story Suggested.

In all Albemarle County, Virginia, there is not a man, woman or child, whether white or colored, whether of high or low degree, that is not taking a personal interest in the honeymoon of the Prince and Princess Troubetzkoy.

For fifteen years Albemarle County has watched Amelie Rives with an intense and passionate curiosity. Long ago public opinion decided that she was a "caution," to use the vague but highly expressive local phrase. And her latest doing has caused a universal chorus of "Didn't I tell you she was a caution? Whatever on earth will she do next?"

Albemarle County is one o the finest old counties of Virginia. Here are the homesteads of a score of the first families of Virginia. Life in Albemarle County goes, for the most part, as it went a hundred and fifty years ago. Here the ideal, fox-hunting, bowing and supercourteous Virginia squire is to be found in all his ancient peculiarity. And here the ideal of Southern womanhood is cherished and maintained. The ideal Southern woman, as you no doubt know, is a beautiful creature who fascinates an indefinitely large circle of males during her girlhood and young womanhood, and who presently marries one of these admirers and settles into a staid and sober wife.

You will have no difficulty in imagining how Amelie Rives would impress Albemarle County. She comes of a family than which there is none better. She is related to all the great families of Virginia. Her father's house, Castle Hill, is a beautiful place, an ideal Virginia country house. Her mother was a great belle in Parisian society a quarter of a century ago and she herself was educated in France.

When she was still a girl she was much talked about. She rode like a cowboy. She could take any fence or ditch in the county. She could walk all day or run against any man she knew.

PRINCESS TROUBETZKOY.

This is a reproduction of the photograph of Miss Amelie Rives which, when it was seen by John Armstrong Chanler, who afterward became her first husband, caused him to exclaim: "I will marry the original of that picture if I have to search the world over for her."

She was small and slender and most beautiful. She was sometimes full of laughter and of the witchery of a pretty tomboy. Again she was silent and gloomy and hid herself even from her family for days. They worshipped her for her beauty, for her wit, for her intellect and for her elfishness. Also they feared her. And Albemarle County was very uneasy about her.

Then she wrote several clever stories, and Albemarle County was impressed, but not quite certain whether it approved of women acting that way. And then she wrote "The Quick or the Dead!" That took the breath out of Albemarle. All it could say was "good gracious!" and it presently got breath and strength enough to add that it hoped for the best. When she married John Armstrong Chanler, Albemarle breathed normally again. Now she was going to be a real Virginia woman. Now she would settle down quietly and become a wife nad mother, after the old Virginia pattern.

But soon Albemarle County, never quite reassured, was in a quiver again. The "Caution" was as extraordinary as a married woman as she had been as a girl.

Albemarle County could make nothing of it. The uture seemed impossible. No one could imagine what she would do next. Everyone was certain that nothing she did would surprise him. But there again was Albemarle deceived. She got a divorce. This was a bombshell for Albemarle. All through the south death is looked upon as the only artistic and respectable form of divorce. So when it was announced in a careless, incidental way last October that Mrs. Chanler had resumed her maiden name because she and Mr. Chanler were incompatible, Albemarle County's first families almost took to their beds. And when the Prince Troubetzkoy appeared and an impending wedding was announced from Castle Hill, Albemarle simply sat with its mouth ajar. And, now the wedding is days past, and the whole country is discussing and comparing notes. They cannot speculate as to the future. They can only review the past.

Thanks to Amelie Rives herself, there is no lack of material for minute review of her past. For that reason two of her books, "The Quick or the Dead" and its sequel, "Barbara Dering," have a unique place in literature.

Now there is room for a third volume in the series. It would be interesting to read her own explanation of the struggle that must have been. She is now a woman of 31 years, with the matured mind of that age, but with the transcendent and sparkling beauty which was hers, in even a less degree, ten years ago.

The Prince is about her own age. He looks not unlike one's mental picture of one of the feverish Ouida's heroes. He is 6 feet 2 inches high, with magnificent chest and shoulders, a commanding and graceful walk, a handsome face, sweeping dark mustaches and a look that is strong and gentle and frank. He is a meritorious portrait painter, a musical composer of no small talent, a man of refined and poetic tastes. He has led a clean, honest life. He is generous without being prodigal. He is neither rich nor poor and has not unsubstantial expectations.

THE SERENADE.

Oh, bear with me, my sweet, my sweet,
While I my banjo play;
Plunky-te-plunk.
My heart is lying 'neath your feet,
Trample it not, I do entreat,
There's love for you in every beat,
So cast it not away,
Plunky-te-plunk.

Bear in bushes (sotto voce)—
I'll bear with you, my sweet, my sweet,
And on your banjo play;
Plunky-te-plunk.
My work I'll make both quick and neat,
And chew you both to sausage meat.
To those who love 'tis such a treat,
To with each other stay.
Plunky-te-plunk (please omit flowers.)
—TRUTH.

The Ruling Passion.

A retired Humorist one day ventured into a cotton mill, and while in an unguarded moment he was explaining some of his post-mortem jokes to an innocent operative, he was drawn into the ponderous gearing and dreadfully crushed. They combed what they could of him out of the machinery and spread the effects on the floor.

"Who is it?" was the anxious inquiry as the crowd gathered around. Nobody could answer.

Then the eyes of Humorist slowly opened and his lips moved.

"There is good reason why nobody recognizes me," the Humorist painfully whispered.

A systematic bystander bent down his ear.

"Why is it?" he asked.

"Because," explained the Humorist, seeing an opportunity to steal home, "because I have been traveling in cog."

And then a smile like a summer cloud played for an instant over his features and he was gone. He never spoke again.

That was one satisfaction.—New York Recorder.

Leap Year.

Dear miss, you ask me to be yours,
You say you love me true.
How can I know that I dare trust
My happiness to you?
They tell me that poor careless heart
Is cold and callous too;
And, if unfaithful you should be,
Ah me, what should I do?

Nay, do not squeeze my hand, nor kneel,
Entreatingly to me.
My heart you've won, I must confess,
And yet it cannot be.
For I've been told you wayward are,
And love not faithfully,
So I must bid you go, fair maid,
'Tis best, you will agree.

You gamble, miss, and drink and smoke,
I've even heard you swear,
I am too timid, I'm afraid,
Too fragile and too fair
To be the mate of such an one,
My life would be all care;
Your faithlessness and cold neglect
I would not, would not bear.

So let us speak no more of love,
It pains me, as you see,
For, though you swear you're constant, yet
I fear you'd tire of me.
But we may still be honest friends,
You shake your head, nais out!
Come, take my hand, I promise that,
I will a brother be.

FOR TIRED FEELING,

Exhaustion is Waste—Overwork Means Shorter Life—Dodd's Kidney Pill Mean Rest for the Kidneys.

Overwork is what you do after common sense asks you to quit.

Overwork of any kind does more than tire, it exhausts you.

Just a little more after you fought to quit is the "too much" that uses you up.

The blood goes out to all parts faster than usual when you overwork.

If the kidneys are not in perfect filtering order, more poison is injected through them to all parts of the body than usual, and then work to say nothing of overwork, is harmful.

As soon as your kidneys commence doing good work there is less and less poison in the blood every minute.

This explains why Dodd's Kidney Pills cure so promply and permanently.

Shiloh's Cure, the great Cough and Croup Cure, is in great demand. Pocket size contains twenty-five doses only 25c. Children love it. Sold by John Nugent, 289 George Street.

Threw Her Teacup at Him.

A feminine friend of Mrs. Carlyle, calling one day in Cheyne Row, met Carlyle on his own doorstep, his head bent, and perplexity and annoyance wrinkling the philosophic brow. The sage only bowed, and went on his way down the street. The servant showed the visitor into a darkened room, where there were to be seen the debris of tea and the prostrate form of Mrs. Carlyle on the sofa. "Did you meet Thomas?" demanded the wife, in a voice which showed unmistakable traces of a recent domestic storm. "Yes. He was going out. I met him on the door-step, looking very sad. What's the matter, my dear?" "The matter!" cried Mrs. Carlyle from the sofa, with sparkling eyes; "I've been two days on the sofa with a sick headache, and he's only this instant came in and asked me what ails me! And—well, I've just thrown my teacup at him!"

Times Had Changed.

A well-known naval dignitary in the United States has a beautiful daughter. A young ensign, with no resources but his pay, fell in love with her, and asked the old gentleman for her hand. The father at once taxed him with the fact that he had only his salary—hardly enough to keep him in white gloves and to burnish his brass buttons. "Well, Mr. Admiral, what you say is true. But when you married you were only a midshipman, with even a smaller salary than mine. How did you get along?" asked the ensign, who believed he had made the most diplomatic of defenses. But not so. The crafty old sea-dog thundered forth: "I lived on my father-in-law for the first ten years, but I'll be d——d if you are going to do it!"

Takes pleasure in announcing the completion of a Successful and Profitable Business for the Year 1895. The new business accepted, although not the largest in the Company's history, was the Largest New Business in the First Year of any Quinquennial Period.

New Assurances accepted in 1890 - - $5,880,000
New Assurances accepted in 1895 - - $6,628,000

A very substantial increase in the total business was effected during 1895.

Total Business In Force About $70,000,000

Some companies, like some individuals, are strong in promises but weak in fulfilment. A period of nearly half a century affords ample time to ascertain whether a company's fulfilment has equalled its promises.

We have taken the trouble to go through the 48 annual reports of the CANADA LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, and to total up the amount of premiums received from policy-holders, and the amount of profits paid or allocated to policy-holders, and funds as follows:—

Total Premiums Received From Policy-Holders, 1847-1894 . . . . . $24,630,000
Total Profits, paid and declared . . . $8,041,000

or equal nea y 33 per cent. of total premiums paid.

It is hardly necessary to say that no other company doing business in Canada, whether American or Canadian, can make such an admirable fulfilment of its contracts as the Canada Life.

ITS RATES ARE THE LOWEST AND PROFITS THE LARGEST.

A woman never really knows the meaning of happiness and content until she is the mother of a healthy, happy child. She never reaches the full degree of womanly development until she has felt the pleasing responsibilities of maternity. All this happiness may be marred or may be turned into misery if the child is not a healthy child. The health of the child depends on the health of the mother, both before and after birth. Heredity is strong, and it is every woman's duty to give her children the best possible chance in life. Nothing that she could possibly give them can be as valuable as health. Wealth cannot be enjoyed without health. Nothing can be enjoyed without health. Health is life. People who are not healthy are only half alive. The child who starts out with a robust body and vigorous, virile health, has everything to be thankful for and nothing to be afraid of. You cannot expect such a child to spring from a weak and sickly mother. Most all of woman's weakness and particularly the weakness that most strongly influences the health of children, comes from some derangement or disease of the distinctly feminine organs. All such trouble is as unnecessary as it is terribly distressing. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all troubles of this nature. There is no guess-work about this statement, and there is no qualification. The "Favorite Prescription" should be used promptly and persistently until the symptoms entirely disappear. In every case, it restores perfect health and strength and assists in the healthful and regular performances of all the natural functions. The "Favorite Prescription" should be taken regularly by every woman during the entire period of gestation. It gives strength to all the organs involved, lessens the pains and danger of childbirth and insures the health of both mother and child.

If you care to know all about the "Favorite Prescription," and to read the testimony of hundreds of grateful women, send 31 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only, and receive free a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, profusely illustrated. SILK SPUN BY SPIDERS.

How an Ingenious Man Secured the Results of the Insect's Labor.

One day I was watching a fine large spider completing his web. The stay-ropes were already stretched across the open window, and beginning where they crossed he was hobbling round and round fastening the crosslines of fresh, shiny silk.

Suddenly it occurred to me that I might reel out that silk for my own use—or amusement. Really, I fancied myself on the verge of a great discovery. Why might not a most beautiful fabric be made of that glistening material? Who could tell what might come of it?

So I managed to get hold of the end of the strand and began to draw it out. Now if there is anything that a spider particularly detests it is to be robbed of his silk; no pack-peddlar values his stock half so highly. As soon, therefore, as my victim perceived what I was at he reached back with a claw and snipped the thread. This was repeated several times.

Then I saw that I must devise some means for preventing this sort of interference. So I cut a small round hole in a bit of cardboard and made a slit from the hole to the edge—see cut. This arrangement I slipped about my spider's wasp-like waist. As his legs were on one side of the card and his abdomen with the spinners on the other, he could no longer meddle with the thread; neither could he get out of the sort of pillory in which I had placed him. He wasn't hurt in the least, but he was altogether helpless and in the worst of humors. Then I got hold of the strand with a pair of tweezers and proceeded to draw out as much silk as I pleased, winding it about my finger.

But this process was slow and did not satisfy me. I wanted spider's silk in bulk; my head was full of schemes for producing a new and beautiful fabric from this bright and elastic material. I therefore mounted a spool upon a spindle in such a way that I could make it rotate with great speed by means of a band running from a wheel—about eight inches in diameter—which I turned with a crank. To this spool I attached the end of the thread, and set my machine in motion. It was a great success. The spindle sang like a humming top as it spun on its bearings, reeling his precious silk from the disgusted spider until the glistening thread covered the spool as with a sheet of varnish. An angrier insect I fancy never lived, but what could he do about it? And afterward I fed him well by way of compensation.

Thus far my plans had worked to perfection; but when I endeavored to utilize the material so unscrupulously obtained, like many another thief, I became involved in difficulties. I found that the adhesive strands, so perfectly adapted to the owner's own business of fly-catching, were not so well suited to manufacturing purposes, as I had fondly hoped. In fact, they had glued themselves together so firmly that I was never able to unwind them from the spool, and my invention, though highly interesting, did not prove remunerative—a lucky thing for the spiders.

How Marbles are Made.

Most of the stone marbles used by boys are made in Germany. Only the refuse of the marble quarries is employed, and this is treated in such a way that there is practically no waste. Men are employed to break the stone into small cubes, which are then thrown into a mill consisting of a grooved bedstone and revolving runner. Water is fed to the mill and the runner is quickly revolved, while the friction does the rest. In half an hour the mill is stopped, and a bushel or so of perfectly rounded marbles is taken out.

What Men Need Most.

"What is man's greatest need?" asked the principal of several hundred boys and girls, ranging in age from 7 to twelve years.

Up went many little hands in all parts of the room, but to a little girl in one of the front rows of seats, who seemed particularly eager to answer, the principal said:

"Well, little girl, what do you think is man's greatest need?"

"Soap and water!" was the proud and confident reply.—Golden Days.

Precept and Practice.

"I heard the professor's remark," chuckled Fred,
As a little tack hammer he whirled.
"'Twas our duty as life's rugged path we tread,
To help a man rise in the world."
Then he doctored a pin and adjusted the same
With the little point heavenward curled,
And when the prof. into the lecture room came,
He got a good rise in the world.

Appreciation.

Papa—Here's a nice little savings bank for you, Willie.

Willie—Won't you give me a quarter, papa?

Papa—A quarter, what for?

Willie—To put in my little savings bank.—Truth.

Taking No Chances.

The boy hung back when the visitor spoke to him, and his mother was naturally annoyed.

"Won't you go to Mrs. Brown, Willie?" she said.

"No," replied the boy, shortly.

"Don't you like me?" asked Mrs. Brown, good-naturedly.

"No, I don't," answered the boy.

"Why, Willie!" exclaimed his mother, reproachfully.

"Well, I guess I got licked for not tellin' the truth yesterday, and I ain't takin' no chances to-day," protested the boy.—Chicago Post.

Proper Degree of Ignorance.

"My son," said the passenger in the silk skull cap, putting his head out of the window as the train stopped at a country station, "what is that stuff piled up in the long building over there on the other side of the track?"

"That's corn," replied the boy with the faded hair and jeans trousers, who was lounging on the depot platform. "Say, be you editin' some farmer's paper?"—Chicago Tribune.

Her Side.

Some time back the play of "Hamlet" was being performed at a Provincial theatre. In a scene with Polonius, the crafty old courtier asks: "Do you know me, my Lord?" The Prince responds: "Excellent well; you are a fishmonger." On hearing this an old woman in the pit stood up, and shaking her fist, shouted excitedly, "Well, and s'posing he is—that's better than play-actin', any day."—Tit-Bits

An Unhappy Man.

"Hang the luck!" exclaimed Mr. Skinphlint, "I forgot to notice how much money I had in my pocket when I started down town this morning. I found a 50-cent piece on the seat when I got up to leave the car, and I don't know whether it had dropped out of my pocket or some other man had lost it. I can't tell whether I'm half a dollar ahead, or whether I've had a narrow escape from losing a half dollar!"—Chicago Tribune.

Untimely Indeed.

"Tippleton's death was untimely, was it not?"

"Yes, it should have taken place at least twenty years ago."—Chicago Record.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM IN A WONDERFUL MANNER.

James A. Bell, of Beaverton, Ont., brother of the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., prostrated by nervous headaches

A victim of the trouble for several years.

South American Nervine effected a complete cure.

In their own particular field few men are beter known than the Rev. John Wesley Bell, B.D., and his brother Mr. James A. Bell. The former will be recognized by his thousands of friends all over the country as the popular and able missionary superintendent of the Royal Templars of Temperance. Among the 20,000 members of this order in Ontario his counsel is sought on all sorts of occasions. On the public platform he is one of the strong men of the day, battling against the evils of intemperance. Equally well known is Mr. Bell in other provinces of the Dominion, having been for years a member of the Manitoba Methodist Conference and part of this time was stationed in Winnipeg. His brother, Mr. James A. Bell, is a highly respected resident of Beaverton, where his influence, though perhaps more circumscribed than that of his eminent brother, is none the less effective and productive of good. Of recent years, however, the working ability of Mr. James A. Bell has been sadly marred by severe attacks of nervous headache, accompanied by indigestion. Who can do fit work when this trouble takes hold of them and especially when it becomes chronic, as was, seemingly, the case with Mr. Bell? The trouble reached such intensity that last June he was completely prostrated, in this condition a friend recommended South American Nervine. Ready to try anything and everything, though he thought he had covered the list of proprietary medicines, he secured a bottle of this great discovery. A second bottle of the medicine was taken and the work was done. Employing his own language: "Two bottles of South American Nervine immediately relieved my headaches and have built up my system in a wonderful manner." Let us not deprecate the good our clergymen and social reformers are doing in the world, but how ill-fitted they would be for their work were it not the relief that South American Nervine brings to them when physical ills overtake them, and when the system, as a result of hard, earnest and continuous work, breaks down. Nervine treats the system as the wise reformer treats the evils he is battling against. It strikes at the root of the trouble. All disease comes from disorganization of the nerve centers. This is a scientific fact. Nervine at once works on these nerve centers; gives to them health and vigor; and then there courses through the system strong, healthy, life-maintaining blood, and nervous troubles of every variety are things of the past.

Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites for Throat and Lung Troubles.

Perfectly well established is the value of cod liver oil in the various diseases of the air passages, and combined with maltine and the hypophosphites, its remedial value is vastly enhanced. In the elegant and palatable preparation, Maltine with Cod Liver Oil, are combined the valuable tissue building oil, and that sustainer of vitality and digestive, maltine. No emulsion can compare in remedial value with this preparation, for in addition to disguising the unpleasant taste of the oil and rendering it more easily digested, the maltine plays a most important part in maintaining adequately the process of nutrition so essential in wasting and pulmonary diseases. This it does by rendering the starchy foods in a form which assures its assimilation, with the result that emaciation gives way speedily to plumpness, the irritated bronchial tubes are soothed, rest grows natural and health becomes an assured fact. Maltine with Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites is a food, medicine and digestive.

BOARD OF EDUCATION RAISES SALARIES.

directly over the boiler. We find that there are no thermometers in some of the rooms. We noticed that some of the hot air registers are dirty with sweepings.

In the Collegiate Institute building, the foundation wall is wet, caused by dropping from the roof, and snow in some of the entrances is melting and water coming into the basement; the basement windows are darkened by snow. The basement was not well swept and the closets were covered with dust.

In the North Ward school there is no gong, and the head master states that this is a necessity.

In the West Ward school the heating and ventilation are not in a very satisfactory condition; the stoves require zinc protection in front to protect the children sitting near them from the heat. Some of the double desks are loose; the basement window is too low and the water runs in; there is about 6 inches of ice in it now.

In the South Ward school there are no hooks on the outside doors a small quantity of water coming in the basement window of new building. In the old basement we found it very hot caused by the long pipe from the furnace into the chimney. No thermometers in some of the rooms. The shed at this school is very dilapitated and unsightly. The committee are of the opinion that once in three months is often enough for visiting each school.

The report was adopted after favourable comment had been made upon it by Mr. Hamilton and others of the trustees.

THE SUPERVISION COMMITTTE, through its chairman, Dr. Caldwell, reported that they had asked for tenders for the supply of stationery for the ensuing year, and recommended that it be awarded to A. H. Stratton & Co., their tender being the lowest.

Tenders were also asked for the supply of chemicals for the Collegiate Institute, Mr. H. S. Macdonald's tender was accepted, it being the lowest.

The report was adopted.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN,—I have once more the pleasure of reporting the condition of the schools as generally satisfactory. During the month a few complaints have been made by parents concerning excessive home-lessons, and retention of pupils after hours. After a careful inquiry into the circumstances in each case, I am convinced that the friction was due partly to misunderstanding, and partly to a commendable anxiety on the part of the teacher to keep the more backward pupils abreast of the work, and so insure them against possible failure at the next promotion examination. I have advised moderation in all matters pertaining to discipline, and have urged upon all the wisdom of avoiding extremes. The teachers concerned have evinced a readiness to comply with any suggestions offered, and an anxiety to adapt their work to the best interests of their pupils, and I am convinced that no real cause of grievance will again occur from this source.

During the month, I have worked steadily among the different grades, examining the pupils as to progress and efficiency, pointing out defects to the teachers, and inspecting the rooms as to ventilation, temperature, cleanliness, and general sanitary condition.

The teachers of the rooms visited are, without exception, striving anxiously—a few somewhat too anxiously—to do the very best possible for their pupils; and the pupils, when due allowance is made for the set back arising from severe weather and sickness, are making satisfactory progress. In most of the divisions the classes have shown a fair degree of proficiency in the different subjects, though in a few instances I have found classes weak in some branches, notably arithmetic and grammar. These subjects are, however, under existing arrangements, in capable hands, and I hope on my next round of visits to find marked, improved.

The order so far I have found generally good. In one school, however, the head master has allowed his discipline to relax somewhat during the intermissions, and, in consequence, some disorder prevailed about the halls and rooms when school is not assembled. In another, the teachers do not exercise sufficient vigilance while the children are in the play-grounds, and the pupils, taking advantage, indulge in uncomplimentary remarks to persons passing. I have noticed in but a single room a disposition towards cheating or untruthfulness.

The apparatus for ventilation in the South Central and Barnardo avenue schools permits of easy adjustment, and no difficulty has been experienced either in keeping the rooms at a comfortable temperature, or in securing a sufficient supply of pure air, even in the severest weather. The teachers in the central school complain that the rooms are overheated. So far as I am able to learn the fault rests partly with the teachers who neglect to regulate the valves of the steampipes, and partly with the janitor, who fails in exercising judgment in adjusting the fire and head of steam in accordance with varying conditions of the weather from day to day. As the remedy is easily applied, the difficulty, now that it has been pointed out, will no doubt be removed. In the past there has been some slight carelessness in the sweeping, dust and rubbish having been allowed to accumulate in the corners of the rooms, the registers and fresh air inlets. Latterly this has been removed, and their is at present no cause of complaint on this account.

In the Park St ect School the equipment, as was to be expected, has not proven equal to the test to which the rigor of an extremely cold winter has subjected it, and the teachers have found it impossible to keep the rooms at a comfortable, equable temperature, and at the same time secure a sufficient supply of pure, fresh air. In rooms warmed by stoves, the only method of ventilation is to open the windows, and with the windows open it is impossible to regulate the temperature in winter, since those pupils nearest the stove will be too warm, while those farthest from it will suffer from cold; and all will be exposed to "drafts." The seating, also, in two of the rooms is bad, the desks being old, rickety and ill-adapted to the wants of the pupils. I would respectfully recommend to the Board of Education that new single seats and desks be substituted for the old ones in the rooms under charge of Mr. McCreary and Miss Beckett, and that shields be procured for the stoves in all four rooms.

Frequent reference has been made in previous reports to the backward condition of the schools in subject of reading. Though some improvement has been made, the pupils are still very deficient in this important subject, especially in the junior classes. A careful investigation into the cause has led me to the conclusion that the defect may be traced to two sources—first, the inability of the teachers to devote sufficient time to the subject owing to the overcrowding of the Public School curriculum, and, second, to the fact that the reading of the pupils in each grade is confined to the few lessons in one book, or portion of book. Where, as is the case in existing arrangements, a pupil is compelled not only to go over the same lessons, himself, day after day, but to listen to others continually repeating them, he soon gets to know them "by heart," without being able to recognize the individual words, and, worse still, the repetition and monotony destroy his interest and render him listless and indifferent. The remedy for this defect lies, of course, with the Education Department; but the second, I am convinced, can be met and removed by a well-chosen course of supplementary reading. In order, therefore, to please the pupils under conditions more favourable to progress, I would respectively submit the following plan for your consideration: The proposition is that a careful selection of books be made, suitable for pupils in all classes below the third, and that pupils willing to do so, be allowed to contribute toward the purchase of a set for each grade; and that, later, when the books have been secured, the teachers keep them in charge, distributing them among the pupils on occasions (say, twice a week) as substitutes for the ordinary text-books. I am confident that such a course, if adopted, beside adding greatly to the interest which the pupils take in the exercises, would promote materially their progress in the subject.

The plan of specializing the work of the teachers is still succeeding admirably, on the whole, even beyond expectation; and I think it may now be considered to have passed beyond the experimental stage and entitled to a place as one of the established systems of teaching in the schools.

Owing to to the continued severity of the weather, and the prevalence of "colds," the attendance has not improved greatly since last month. The rooms are now well filled, and the record for March promises to equal the excellent showing made during the fall term of 1895. No cases of truancy have been reported.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALEX. WHERRY.

The Board then adjourned.

THE GREAT QUESTION

Second Day of the Debate on the Remedial Bill.

FRENCH MEMBERS TAKE THE FLOOR

Messrs. Geoffrion and Lavergne Will Stand by the Policy of Their Honored Leader, Mr. Laurier—Sir Adolphe Caron Speaks on Behalf of the Clergy.

Ottawa, March 4.—(Special.)—Mr. Edgar resumed the debate on the Remedial Bill. He announced his entire agreement with Sir Charles Tupper as to the momentous character of the question. He feared it might endanger Confederation itself unless dealt with in a spirit of broad statesmanship and patriotic moderation. He was afraid Sir Charles Tupper's long absence from Parliament had led him to advance many propositions for contradiction which the Opposition never subscribed to. Manitoba, too, had admitted the right of Parliament to deal with this question, nor did Mr. McCarthy, arguing for the Provincial Government before the Privy Council, deny that the Roman Catholic grievance in relation to education existed. The real question was that the extent of the grievance ought to be enquired into. The Opposition did not deny the jurisdiction of this House in the matter of the educational legislative functions and the Local Legislature, but a respect for provincial rights in general should teach us how to interpret and exercise our powers of interference. He contended that the Government itself admitted that the only way to apply the remedy was through the Provincial Government. The bill was evidence of that. Then, as to the best time, there was no doubt that this proposed remedy should be applied only as a last resort. The character of the remedy was a matter of opinion so far, and should not be determined upon without enquiry. Nothing prescribed that it was Parliament's bounden duty, to act, or when and how it was to act. Very few except the Manitoba and Northwest members knew anything of the condition of the schools up there, and it would be as reasonable to expect Parliament to deal with the lobster fisheries of Nova Scotia without expert testimony or enquirry as to deal with this question without investigation. Thousands of dollars had been spent to investigate the evils of Chinese immigration and of intemperance by Royal Commission. Contradictory statements of facts appeared in every printed record of this school case. While the case was before the Privy Council, a witness, Mr. O'Donohue, testified that the Roman Catholics of Winnipeg were satisfied with the Public schools and would accept them, but the priests would not allow them. The disputed facts as to the Bill of Rights also required investigation. In conclusion, he said the bill was an unacceptable and a mistaken compromise, which pleased neither party. He trusted that the Government would eventually withdraw it.

Sir Adolphe Caron deplored the fact that such a question should have come before Parliament, because it was causing agitation and turmoil, but the constitution should be maintained at all costs. The question at issue was purely a constitutional one and should be so treated in the House and so separated as far as possible from the irritating circumstances accompanying it. The judgment of the Privy Council established that the rights of the minority had been taken away. It then became the imperative duty on the part of the Government to take action under the remedy provided for such cases by the B.N.A. Act. The Government in dealing with the question had avoided everything that might interfere with the autonomy of the province, holding that any other course would have been most unpatriotic. If the Government was now forced to take the course of passing the Remedial Legislation it was because after all means had been exhausted the Manitoba Government was found to be still unwilling to do right by the minority. The Dominion Parliament was the natural defender of the rights of the minority. If the rights of the Protestant minority in Quebec were interfered with, he would fight as earnestly for them as he now fought for the Catholics of Manitoba.

The Protestants of Quebec held the same view on the school question as the Catholics did, holding that they were vitally interested in the present case, because their interests depended on the same part of the constitution as that under which the Catholics now asked for redress. If Quebec wished it could take away or seriously interfere with the schools of the Protestant minority. This would not be done, but if it was, the minority would have to seek the same aid that the Catholic minority now sought. In dealing with the question at issue the Government had strictly carried out the course laid down in 1890 by the motion proposed by Mr. Blake, and carried unanimously by the House, by which questions of interference in matters of education should be referred to the courts. He quoted the various acts of the Manitoba Legislature to show that previous to 1890 the school system created by that Legislature, under its constitution, was carried out on denominational lines as between Catholics and Protestants. Throughout the history of the movement for redress the Government first referred all petitions and proceedings to the Manitoba Government. The course was not at all drastic. The school question had been before the country since 1890; therefore it could not be charged that the Government was acting hastily or without consideration.

It being 6 o'clock the House rose for recess.

After recess Sir Adolphe Caron continued the debate on the Remedial bill. He quoted at length from speeches of leading Canadian statesmen such as Brown, Holton and others at the time of the inauguration of Confederation to show that all were agreed that the special duty of the Federal Parliament was to see that the rights of all minorities should be protected. Moreover, those who had most strongly spoken for such a provision were those representing the Protestants of Quebec. Proceeding, he compared the attitude of the Conservatives and the Liberals to show that while the Conservatives had followed a consistent course throughout, the Liberals had been utterly inconsistent. Sir John Thompson had announces that the Government would stand by the judgment of the courts in the matter and the speeches of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. Haggart, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and Mr. Foster, which he quoted, all declared that their duty as laid down in the constitution would be done. There was no difference of opinion. The course had been followed out consistenly and that led to the present condition of the question.

Mr. Laurier had, on the other hand, in 1893, said that not a moment of delay should be allowed in the settlement of the question, but to-day he proposed six months' further delay by moving the six months' hoist. Later he said there should be an investigation, but now he simply wished to turn the bill out of doors. In the House he called the Remedial Order an invitation, not a very drastic name. He quoted La Cultivateur, and other French papers, which reported Mr. Laurier in Quebec, showing his speeches as reiterating the declaration that he would re-establish Separate schools while the English Liberal papers were altogether different in tone. Referring to Mr. Laurier's claim that there should be an investigation he asked what better evidence could be had on the point than that of Archbishop Tache and Sir Donald Smith. Moreover, when the proposal was made to secularize the schools all the Protestant clergy had protested against it. He considered Mr. Laurier's reference to the clergy as most unfortunate. Had the clergy no rights? They were sons of the families of the country and should the fact that they were the religious habit restrain their trying to lead or persuade their brothers?

The only brother he had was a priest among the blacks in the West Indies. A short time ago he received a letter from his brother, who asked that the Canadian flag should be sent him to place over the house he had built because he would like to see the flag of his native land flying on it. Of such loyal men were the clergy and the country was proud of them.

Sir Adolphe Caron then said: In 1812, when our people were under the sorest temptation to give up their allegiance to England, because of the promises held out by the Americans, what course did the clergy of Canada take? Even in that period of 1837, when the sentiments of the French race were more moved than at any other period, when some of our own people were fighting for constitutional rights, but ignored the constitutional way in which those rights should have been vindicated, what course did the clergy of Canada take? Did not we see then the Archbishops and the Bishops publishing mandamuses all through the country telling their people that their duty was to remain true to the Crown and to respect the constituted authority. Why should we not follow such a lead? I do not wish to be misunderstood, and I am not insinuating Mr. Laurier attacked the clergy—(Opposition hear, hear)—but carried away in the discussion, he said that he had been attacked by the clergy.

My contention is that it is not the habit of our clergy to threaten. I know not what the threat to which he refers was. If he referred to the letters which have been published in the newspapers, I do not see how that could be construed into a threat. I speak here in the presence of men from the Province of Ontario whom I have known when I was engaged in campaigns under the leadership of the great old leader of the Conservative party (Sir John A. Macdonald), and under the leadership of that other great man whose loss we deplore (Sir John Thompson). I tell those gentlemen that if they can be led to believe that the French-Canadian Catholics or the French-Canadian clergy are not as true and as loyal to the Crown of England and to the flag of Canada, I ask it to be shown to me, because I have had every possible opportunity of studying their past history and the history of their present movements and I am unable to find an instance in which it can be stated that the clergy of Canada have been disloyel. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Geoffrion (Vercheres) opposed the bill, because he wanted justice done, but the bill did not do it. Contrary to all practice at second readings, when the principle of the measure alone is discussed, he dealt with the details of the bill. The bill would result in a Catholic being taxed $25, while his Protestant neighbor paid only 50 cents. This would mean inefficient Separate schools.

Mr. Ouimet interrupted to ask if he was aware that these very inefficient schools were being attended in Winnipeg by 44 Protestant pupils; and these schools were being kept up by people who at the same time were paying taxes to Public schools.

Mr. Geoffrion—I was talking about schools as they will be under the bill, not as they exist at present. The only comparison I heard between Protestant and Separate schools was made by an hon. gentlemen on the opposite side of the House (Clarke Wallace). He, I suppose, was educated in a Protestant school; my leader was educated in a Separate school. I give the House the comparison. (Laughter.) Continuing, he offered as an objection to the bill the proviso making it optional for Catholics to support Separate schools, as the lower rate for Public school supporters would lead Catholics to support those.

Mr. Ouimet—No, no.

Mr. Geoffrion then said he would vote for the six months' hoist, because it was the only thing the bill deserved. He had no faith in the Government, but thought his own leader was better able to do justice to the minority. The bill might please the minority or not; that should be investigated. It might be acceptable to some interested parties, but he would oppose it.

Col. Amyot (Bellechasse) grew eloquent over the freedom and justice granted by Britain to her colonies and directing himself towards Mr. McNeill (Bruce), father of the recent loyalty resolution, said it was all very well to talk about loyalty, but all who were truly loyal and had any respect for the Crown would vote to carry out the terms of the law signed by the Queen. (Cheers.) He took exception to those who said they would not vote for the bill because it was not sufficient, as they were refusing perhaps the only measure of relief they could ever get and the only chance of restoring peace and happiness in the country. He thought Mr. Geoffrion's remark that Mr. Laurier was more able to settle the question than the Government was significant. Was there a communication between Mr. Laurier and Mr. Greenway? Did Mr. Laurier lead Mr. Greenway or Mr. Greenway direct the policy of the Liberals? (Cheers.) If Mr. Laurier had a hold on Mr. Greenway and failed to use it to put a stop to his infernal conduct whereby consciences are violated he should be denounced before all Confederation. It was a credit to the Conservative party that justice was about to be done through it, through its liberal Protestant membership, too. (Cheers.) He regretted some Conservatives, however, opposed the bill. He referred to Mr. Maclean, who used his newspaper, The World, to create public opinion against the bill and then said, "See, public opinion is against the measure." Yet the hon. member was of a large heart and broad understanding and ere long he believed he would be on the side of right and justice. That the bill was sufficient was evidenced by the fact that it was drafted after the model presented by Mr. Ewart and by the fact that Mr. Prendergast, the leading Liberal of Manitoba, declared it was sufficient to meet the views of the Catholics. He concluded by hoping that lovers of the country, fair play and justice would join hands and follow the course in the matter that would let the people of the Dominion go on in harmony, working together for the prosperity of the country. (Cheers.)

Mr. Lavergne followed, holding that the Government had made no efforts to conciliate and that there should be an investigation before action. He believed the proper course to pursue was to show that the grievances existed and then he was satisfied the Manitoba Legislature would redress the grievances which existed.

Mr. Masson claimed that the Government had acted with great moderation and good judgment. The wisdom of their policy was amply borne out by the decision of the Privy Council. It was no part or duty of the Government to approach Manitoba. That province should have redressed the Catholic grievances. He believed the Remedial Bill was strictly within the limits of the judgment of the Privy Council and showed great care on the part of the Government. It redressed the conscientious objections of the Catholics, putting them on a fair footing, while not in the least interfering with the Public school system. It was the duty of Parliament to go on with the Act, but if, at the present session, Manitoba, by her own measure, redressed the grievances of the Catholics every member of Parliament would rejoice in it. (Cheers.)

Mr. Ives moved the adjournment of the debate and the House adjourned at 1.30 a.m.
